Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 21

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Confusion can obscure real values if you attempt too much at one time. Relax. Avoid arguing with associates, friends. "Status quo" may be best. Means "let sleeping dogs lie" . . . for now.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Don't believe sensational claims made today. If you do . . . your budget suffers. Be responsible. Insist on facts, not fantasies. Real knowledge gained pays off!

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Spotlight turns in your direction. Be aware of personal appearance. If co-worker or authority appears confused, be patient. Obtain hint from today's Aries message.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Don't mix business with pleasure tonight. Social affair should be kept social. Be tactful, diplomatic. Weigh statements. Others could be ultra-sensitive.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Once more question of spending and saving dos to arise. Keep promise to mate or partner. Analyze inner feelings . . . but be true to your sense of fairness. Maintain dignity.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Take care of routine today. Tonight relax with congenial friends. Avoid extremes. Be aware of problem which confronts co-worker, or associate.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Finish project. Realize importance of timing. Avoid extravagance. Highlight taste, simplicity. What you do now affects future chances of success.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Obtain valuable hint from today's Leo message. If you exhibit air of confidence . . . you show progress. If you express doubt, others lose interest.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Remain neutral now in any unusual disputes. Weigh words, actions. If confronted with dilemma, don't feel you must immediately decide. Think, then answer.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Tendency may exist to "lose" things. Remain alert. Check valuables. Key is persistence. Be aware of alternative methods. Highlight versatility . . . then you move ahead.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 19): No day to overlook details. Be especially aware of legal ramifications. Cycle moves up. Have faith in your own beliefs, opinions. Observant attitude does wonders.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Your creative interests claim time, attention. Don't tell all you know. Maintain air of glamor, mystery. Pleasure indicated tonight . . . if you use direction.

If today is your birthday . . . you possess remarkable sense of humor, are versatile, capable of teaching — and are attracted to broadcasting, photography and writing.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Aquarius, Pisces, Aries. Special word to Scorpio. Family member may need encouragement. Provide it!

EXPORT LEADER — Volkswagens move past a point on the mile-long conveyor belt at the rate of one every 10 seconds. The plant at Wolfsburg, West Germany, is the world's largest and along with other Volkswagen plants 90,000 workers turn out 1,250,000 cars and trucks a year. It is Germany's biggest export product. About 35,000 are sold in Canada and 10 times that number in the U.S. (CP Photo)

1,250,000 Cars a Year

Heavy Demand Sells VW at Assembly Line

By HAROLD MORRISON

WOLFSBURG, West Germany (CP)—At the end of the mile-long Volkswagen factory, the world's biggest single automobile plant, the beetle - like cars move off the conveyor belt at the rate of one every 10 seconds.

They represent the combined effort, here and in other plants, of a total work force of 90,000 turning out 1,250,000 cars a year — Germany's biggest export product.

So efficient and profitable is this mass production that unlike British exporters, German manufacturers show little outward concern over the Canada-United States free trade in automobiles, although Volkswagen sells some 35,000 of the "beetles" in Canada and about 350,000 in the U.S.

Britain has pleaded for special Canadian concessions to ease anti-dumping regulations so that British cars can be sold in Canada at lower prices. French producers may overcome their difficulties by establishing a plant in Canada. But there won't be any Volkswagen production shift to North America.

EVERY CAR SOLD

"We have such a heavy concentration of automated machinery here, producing cars so rapidly that it would be an economic waste to transfer some of this production to Canada," says one of the Volkswagen managers.

So heavy is the world demand that virtually every car is sold before it comes off the assembly line. They are rolled on to two-tiered railway flat cars at the rate of about 7,400 a day. Every day 18 trains, each with 25 flat cars, haul the fresh production to the ports.

Volkswagen go to 44 countries and the demand appears to be unlimited as the developing countries, seeking some modest means of transportation, turn to the most competitive product.

Japan threatens to move in with its own export models but German producers laugh. They insist that in terms of price, availability and quality, their own products are unbeatable.

Workers averaging about $1.25 an hour, appear to be happy in this virtual company town in northeastern Germany. They live in subsidized apartments where rents average about $35 a month. They get holiday pay bonuses and the benefits of a profit - sharing scheme giving them about eight per cent additional annual income.

With the company producing at 120 per cent capacity, its working force is on overtime and drawing time - and - a - half pay.

Each worker can buy a Volkswagen at company prices and then trade the car in each year for a new one without any additional cost.

Workers are represented on the board of management but there is little evidence of any powerful centralized union strength such as that in Canada and Britain.

Volkswagen boasts it has never had a strike in any of its plants, which include one at nearby Hanover turning out 6,000 car engines a day.

One problem is shortage of labor. Women make up about 12 per cent of the 47,000 workers, and 4,000 Italians have been brought in.

The occasional derogatory remark indicates the Italians, who live in separate housing units, haven't been accepted by all German employees.

U. S. Potato Dearth Benefiting Canada

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Americans with a potatoes-and-gravy appetite are paying more for their taste this year than they ever have. Some are importing Canadian potatoes.

All this is because the 1964 U.S. potato crop was the smallest in seven years—nearly 25,000,000 100-pound bags under the previous five-year average of 268,000,000 bags.

All major producing areas but Maine were hit last year by bad weather and floods.

The acreage finally harvested — 1,300,000 acres — was the smallest since 1957, reports the U.S. department of agriculture.

Supply and demand have boosted San Francisco retail prices to 79 cents for a five-pound sack of No. 1 Oregon Klamaths, sized from six to 14 ounces.

Idaho, land of the premium Russet baking potato, suffered particularly from a cold spring and early killing frosts. Its 1964 production dropped to 36,300,000 bags, a decrease of 14,000,000 from 1963.

Idaho Russet bakers — when you can find them—in the market, cost 20 cents a pound for 10 to 14 ounces.

PRICES AT PEAK

But the general price pattern is that potato prices stabilized at high levels in October and now are peaking just before the new crop starts coming in.

"In 33 years in the potato business I've never seen anything like this," said George Burger, a San Francisco potato broker who handled a record $5,000,000 this past crop year.

He brought in a carload of Canadian potatoes to keep his hotel and restaurant customers supplied with eight-to-10-ounce baking sizes.

"I tell you I never did that before. These Canadian potatoes cost me $9 a bag delivered here."

Burger has been selling the Canadian spuds at $10. "I've got to take care of the people who depend on me," he said.

Potato chip prices have not gone up because chip makers were guaranteed their supplies at prices contracted with growers before they planted.

Prices have advanced some on processed potatoes.

WILL GO DOWN

One market chain expects prices to start downward by mid - April. Burger said he doesn't expect a major break before mid-May.

Meanline, in Maine's Aroostook county, where the Irish potato is king, things are looking up for the first time in 13 years.

Last fall's crop totalled nearly 40,000,000 hundredweight, an increase of 2,200,000 over 1962. The current bulk price to growers is around $6 a barrel—$3.75 more than it costs the farmer to produce a barrel.

Reflections are that growers may plant seven per cent more acreage this year than last. Maine grows about one-eighth of U.S. white potatoes, and most of them come from 6,453-acre Aroostook county.

Lightning Raids Block Attempt At Saigon Coup

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — A lightning series of raids Thursday night and today blocked an attempt to overthrow Premier Phan Huy Quat's government and the South Vietnamese military high command.

Quat charged that the Communist Viet Cong had a role in the attempted coup but did not give details of this.

Quat said one rebel officer was killed resisting arrest.

Reliable sources said at least four other plotters, including a colonel and several majors, were arrested. They were being held at the heavily guarded police headquarters in Saigon.

Several of the key plotters were reported still at large.

Quat said the coup attempt was the work of dissident military men who tried in November and again in February to take power.

The leaders of those attempts already are under death sentence but are at large. They are Gen. Nguyen Lam Van Phat and Col. Pham Ngoc Thau. Both are believed hiding in the Saigon area. Thau's brother, Pham Ngoc Thuu, was among those arrested.

AWARE OF PLOTS

"This is a Vietnamese affair," said a U.S. spokesman, adding that the embassy was aware that secret plots against the government and the military command existed.

The spokesman said Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor had been "fully informed" of developments.

A jet plane returning Taylor to Saigon from Da Nang was hit by a round of small arms fire from the ground today but neither Taylor nor anyone aboard the craft was hurt.

The coup attempt sent all military installations in the Saigon area into a state of alert and shattered the calm which had appeared to prevail in the capital's political world for the last two months.

Quat had been expected to replace the two military members of the ruling junta with more civilians, completing the demilitarization of the government that began with the dissolution early this month of the Armed Forces Council of military leaders that had dominated the government for 18 months.

The council dissolved voluntarily after the ousting of Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, the powerful commander of the South Vietnamese Air Force. The military leaders said Quat

Rule Changes Attacked

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker delivered a sharp attack Thursday on part of the government's proposed Commons rule changes but the measures won qualified support from the New Democrats.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the proposed "guillotine rule" would make Parliament a rubber stamp for the government.

"No tyrant could ask for more," he said. "This is a particularly formidable form of closure."

The Conservative leader's objection centred on a proposal to allow cabinet ministers to allocate time for a debate if an all-party business committee fails to reach agreement on it.

The Conservative leader said the proposed rule would give any cabinet minister the power to impose a time limit even before debate began on a controversial bill. The time limit could be as short as a few hours.

IS LESS DANGEROUS

The "guillotine" rule in the British Parliament was far less dangerous because it contained safeguards for the Opposition and was applied by a permanent, impartial Speaker, not by ministers.

As proposed in the revamped rules, any minister could ask that a House business committee, with representatives from each party in the Commons, try to work out an allocation of time for an item of business.

If the committee recommended a certain time allocation, the minister then could move for acceptance in the recommendation. If the committee reported it had been unable to reach agreement on a time limit, the minister could then move that an order be made setting a certain length of time for debate.

Stanley Knowles, NDP parliamentary expert, also called for a new look at this section with an eye to providing some protection for the Opposition.

The proposal was part of the

OUR NEW HOMES! — Beginning Tuesday, this beautiful new building on the corner of Bridge Street East and Pinnacle streets, will house the staff of The Ontario Intelligencer. With the new home goes a new phone number — the number, 962-9171.

We Move This Weekend To New Home

The Ontario Intelligencer, a centenarian which has been busting its seams like a sprouting teenager, tries on a new suit of clothes this coming weekend — but it will be a week or so before it appears in new dress.

The business, advertising, editorial and composing room personnel will move into their handsome new home at the southwest corner of the intersection of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets, but the paper will continue to be printed on the old press, in the old, familiar stone building opposite the City Hall until the trial runs of the new press have been completed.

When the new press is ready to roll, The Intelligencer will show visible signs of its growth — the pages will be two inches longer. Other changes, in keeping with the paper's modern new home, are planned.

The new Intelligencer building is the culmination of the paper's years of expansion in the Quinte District and will provide more space and modern facilities to cope with and continue this rapid expansion.

The old stone building on Front Street has been the home of a newspaper for almost 100 years and the home of The Intelligencer since 1930. In the spring of that year, The Intelligencer and The Ontario amalgamated and the Intelligencer was moved from 287½ Front Street to its new home at 168 Front Street.

The old building has served well, but it had its drawbacks — the lack of space made working difficult most of the time.

Time marches on.

Construction on a new home for The Intelligencer was started last July on the site of the old Post Office building. The new building was planned in such a way that all the modern methods of newspaper publishing could be incorporated into it and also, space was provided for CJBQ Radio Station and the company's commercial printing operation.

Essentially, the newspaper you will be reading from the new home of The Intelligencer will be the same one you have come to know over the many years it has served the community.

Due to unavoidable delays, the press room and commercial printing operations will be continued in the old building at 168 Front Street for a short time. The old office will be open and accepting calls for the commercial printing department until further notice. The radio station, CJBQ, is expected to move into the new building in July.

The business office, newsroom, circulation and advertising departments will be located in the new building at 45 Bridge Street, and a new telephone number will be in effect. The new number, 962-9171, will have six incoming lines.

The reason that the management of The Ontario Intelligencer has chosen the long weekend to move is so that the move can be completed without missing an edition of the newspaper.

Due to the holiday, there will be no edition Monday, but regular editions will resume on Tuesday.

Child Leads Police to Escapees

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — A pair of eyeglasses found by a child in a derelict car led police to the capture Thursday of four escapees from the Prince Albert penitentiary.

Claude Pitre, 31, Maurice Gosselin, 37, Yvan Lamarche, 28, and Roger Albert Savard, 37, were apprehended cold, hungry and tired 10 miles west of here near the hamlet of Crutwell, Sask.

Eyeglasses identified as Gosselin's were found Wednesday evening in a car rusting in a field four miles from the penitentiary.

The find drew attention to the search bank of the North Saskatchewan River. Prince Albert and the penitentiary are on the south bank and the search had been concentrated there for three days after the Sunday midnight escape of the four men.

RCMP with three tracking dogs and an aircraft pressed a determined search in the Buckland District Thursday on the north bank west of here after citizens reported seeing four strangers in the area.

4-Day Gemini Space Flight Starts June 3

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. space agency announced officially today that Thursday, June 3, is the target date for the four-day space flight of Gemini astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White.

Officials have said previously that the flight was scheduled "in the third quarter of 1965," which begins July 1. However, news services have listed the June 3 date for several weeks, based on unofficial sources.

The agency had listed the later period to provide time for preparation and to avoid criticism if the target day missed.

NASA said McDivitt and White are to circle the earth 62 times in 97 hours, 50 minutes to evaluate the effects of extended space flight on crew performance and physical condition.

The agency said it had not yet determined whether White would be the first American astronaut to expose himself to the elements of space from a spacecraft. It reported that the space suit and hatch opening procedure had not been fully qualified. A decision might not be made until a day or two before launching, the agency said.

If the go - ahead is given, White will open the hatch and poke his head into space for a 15-minute look-around.

Red Cross, UN Arrange Truce To Move Dead

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—A 24-hour ceasefire between junta and rebel forces was scheduled to start at noon today to permit removal of dead and wounded from Santo Domingo's battle-torn northern suburbs.

The Red Cross and the United Nations negotiated the agreement to suspend the five-day-long battle which has caused a death toll estimated at more than 100.

"I have every hope that this 24-hour ceasefire will be permanent," Dr. Luis F. Fernandez-Martines, president of the Dominican Red Cross, told a reporter.

But the junta president, Brig.-Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, whose forces have cut deep into rebel positions in the northern part of the capital, vowed to carry his attack into the main insurgent stronghold in downtown Santo Domingo. He hinted this would happen next week.

MARINE KILLED

U.S. military authorities announced that a marine was killed by rebel fire Wednesday night after he and another marine accidentally drove their truck into insurgent territory.

The marine's death brought to 19 the number of Americans killed since U.S. forces landed in the Dominican Republic more than three weeks ago.

The New York Times said in a dispatch from Washington that President Johnson's administration was reported to have decided not to hinder the junta drive to take the rebel positions in the north.

However, the Times report said administration officials said the United States "does not intend to let the junta forces cross the U.S.-held international zone shielding the rebel stronghold in downtown Santo Domingo on two sides. The Ozama River is on the other two sides.

SEE RED RISE

The decision to tolerate the advance by Imbert's forces also resulte from the opinion in Washington that left-wing extremists are said to be the rebel forefront, the report said.

The junta's seizure of the Ozama rebel radio and TV centre also was welcomed by U.S. officials afterhoods by the Caamanist broadcasting station of the junta, the Organization of American States and the United States, said the report.

The Johnson administration decked reports in news dispatches from Santo Dominigo that U.S. troops have been actively helping the junta forces crush the rebels.

Johnson's special mission to Santo Dominigo headed by Presidential Adviser McGeorge Bundy was reported still searching hard for Dominican

Minister Denies Tax Hike

TORONTO (CP)—A Liberal member of the legislature said Wednesday he suspects the government plans to increase the tax on cigarettes sometime during the next few years.

Robert Nixon (L—Brant), who represents a tobacco-growing area, questioned Provincial Treasurer James Allan during second reading of a bill to replace the three-per-cent sales tax on cigarettes with a tobacco tax.

Mr. Allan denied the government was seeking a new source of revenue in the new tobacco tax. He said the sales tax was being replaced with the tobacco tax for administrative reasons only.

By collecting the tax at the wholesale level, he said, many small businesses would be exempted from having to obtain sales tax licenses and from returns each month for sales tax on cigarettes alone.

Mr. Allan said the legislature Ontario's public debt will cost the province $146,700,000 in principal and interest charges this year.

GIVES CHARGES

He said interest charges on the $1,423,000,000 net debt would be $105,200,000, and the sinking fund payment for retirement of the debt would be $200,000.

The treasurer said debt costs would be offset by receipts of $33,700,000 from loans, advances and investments, leaving an estimated net cost of $71,500,000.

Farquhar Oliver (L — Grey South) urged Mr. Allan to seek more revenue from race tracks in the province through a higher betting tax.

Mr. Oliver said betting in Ontario was increasing and could continue to increase even if the existing six-per-cent tax was raised.

Education Minister William Davis introduced a bill to transform Lakehead College into a full-fledged university.

WILL GIVE DEGREES

The bill, under which Lakehead College of Arts, Science and Technology in Port Arthur would become known simply as Lakehead University, would provide for the institution to offer full-degree courses in arts and science as well as first-year programs in applied science, commerce, dentistry,

Oxford Reverses 1933 Decision, Would Fight for Queen, Country

OXFORD, England (Reuters) — Cheers broke out when Oxford University's debating society decided by a midnight Thursday night they would fight for "Queen and country"—reversing a famous resolution passed in 1933.

Policemen surrounded the hall of the debate, which lasted the four-hour debate which excited controversy throughout Britain and brought threats of assassination to speakers.

But the debate itself was sober, sometimes light - hearted and free of incident.

Undergraduates rejected by 27 votes the motion: "That this House would not fight for Queen and country."

There were 466 for the motion and 493 against. A similar debate 32 years ago ended with voting in favor of the motion 275 to 153, a decision said to have influenced many of the young men who tried in November and again in February to take power.

The leaders of those attempts already are under death sentence but are at large. They are Gen. Nguyen Lam Van Phat and Col. Pham Ngoc Thau. Both are believed hiding in the Saigon area. Thau's brother, Pham Ngoc Thuu, was among those arrested.

Today's Chuckle

The worst unemployment area is often between the ears.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: By Saturday morning a low pressure area is expected to be near Moosonee with showers and thunderstorms extending as far south as the North Bay - Sudbury area. Increased cloudiness and warm temperatures followed by scattered showers and thundershowers are forecast for the lower lakes region Saturday.

Outside the hall were rival demonstrations — by Nazis, against the motion, and by anarchists, for the motion.

Proposing the motion, Union Treasurer Rip Bulkeley said: "We do not say we will never go to war . . . we ask that each individual should be asked to give his life or take his only for some principles he believes in, not because he has been asked by flatterers for national prestige or overseas commercial interests."

Maudling said: "The motion really asks whether this country is worth fighting for. I cannot think of any other country in the world where this discussion could take place."

He was cheered when he said Britain, by standing firm for Queen and country, was in fact fighting for the peace of mankind.

Brisk Progress Being Made In Redrawing Political Map

OTTAWA (CP) — Brisk progress is being made by the 10 provincial commissions assigned the sensitive task of drawing Canada's new political map, shuffling the boundaries of the 263 federal ridings to match the shift of population.

Initial work has already been completed on five provinces — Quebec, British Columbia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island. The Nova Scotia report is scheduled Saturday, Ontario's on June 15 and the others late in the summer. All will be law within a year.

The new redistribution system was approved by Parliament last December, taking the job out of the hands of politicians for the first time. It formerly was done by a Commons committee dominated by the government of the day, leading inevitably to accusations of political rigging.

The four - member commissions were set up in January. In each case two members were appointed by Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton and one by the chief justice of the province. Nelson Castonguay, the veteran chief electoral officer selected unanimously by Parliament to be the federal rep-

Two Canadians Among 121 Dead In Desert Air Crash Near Cairo

CAIRO (CP)—Five Pakistani experts drove today to the scene of a desert air crash Thursday near Cairo airport to investigate one of the world's worst air disasters in which 121 persons, including two Canadians, were killed. There were six survivors, all from Pakistan.

Police identified the Canadians as George Henry Terry and his wife, Flora Elizabeth. No age or hometown was available.

The Terrys boarded the flight at Karachi, Pakistan. Identification was made from a charred passport found on the scene which tallied with the manifest listing.

Four Americans also were among the victims including Donald Love, 45, of Riverside, Calif., who studied and worked in Canada, and served with Canadian army engineers during the Second World War and was wounded.

Love, whose mother lives in Winnipeg, was manager of the technical services division of Esso International's aviation department. He was in the Far East on business.

Witnesses saw a ball of fire in the sky when the plane came down. The pilot reported a few minutes earlier trouble with the wing flaps.

Aboard the aircraft were 22 newspaper men and newspaper executives from Pakistan, including Abdu Khaliq Qureshi, administrator of The Associated Press of Pakistan.

In all, there were 62 invited guests for the flight, inaugurating a new route from the Far East to London.

Also on board were a half-dozen Japanese, three were uninjured but terrified. They screamed hysterically in their language.

The death toll fell 17 short of the worst disaster in the history of civil aviation, Dec. 16, 1960, two-plane collision over New York that killed 136 persons.

Police said they were investigating a movie film found scattered around the scene in an effort to establish whether probable security areas were being photographed prior to the crash.

The prosecutor - general said this was a priority project.

Two Toronto Men Given Jail Terms

Two Toronto men, Frederick William Leyton, 31, and Donald Elmer MacDonald, 30, were sentenced to 18 days in jail and are required to post a bond to keep the peace, following conviction yesterday of housebreaking.

The pair were charged with breaking and entering the William Street apartment of Mrs. Ramona Parmalee last November 19th.

They appeared yesterday before County Judge J. C. Anderson who gave them the jail terms and called for each to post a bond for $1,000 to keep the peace for two years.

If the bond is not posted inside 15 days, the two will remain in custody for nine months.

"Better move over, here comes a long weekend."

Beginning May 25, a bright new daily feature will be added to The Ontario Intelligencer to shed a shaft of humorous light on the news headlines of the day.

The new daily feature is First Call, a laughable but pointed cartoon that comes from the pen of Ben Wicks.

Ben Wicks is a Calgary cartoonist. He will arrive in Port Hope to a keen edge in England, where he was hired as a political cartoonist for the Socialist Leader, when he was only 18 years old.

He was later hired as cartoonist for the London Daily Mirror during the 1920s.

He came to Canada eight years ago, working as a commercial artist, then in 1963 joined the Toronto Star, but switched to the Calgary Albertan, where he started his caustic cartoon comment feature, Hot Call.

His feature is now syndicated across Canada by the Toronto Telegram News Service, and his cartoon commentaries on the news now come to the pages of this newspaper, starting next Tuesday. Don't miss it!

Authority Hears Report On Convention

The Belleville Retarded Children's Education Authority met Wednesday night held its last scheduled meeting before the summer recess.

Bruce M. Kerr, vice-chairman, presented a comprehensive and interesting report of his attendance at the conference held at Barrie on April 24, sponsored by the Ontario Association for Retarded Children in co-operation with the Department of Education. Mr. Kerr reported that Mr. H. R. Beattie, director, Special School and Services Branch of the Department of Education, was the main speaker. During a question and answer period it was intimated that, within five or ten years, the Province of Ontario would probably assume all costs in connection with schools for the retarded. Regarding teachers of the retarded Mr. Beattie pointed out that present teachers would be encouraged to increase their qualifications with the goal of placing education of the retarded entirely in the hands of the normal.

Mr. Kerr reported that today there are 336 teachers in 36 schools. Of this number 119 hold Ontario Teachers' Certificates and 9 hold Provisional Certificates from other jurisdictions. One hundred and twenty-six have taken the department's five week summer course and between forty and fifty have also no training whatever. The importance of encouraging teachers to attend the summer course commencing July 5, 1965, was stressed and it was pointed out that the persons attending need not hold an Ontario Teacher's Certificate.

Mr. Kerr's report greatly enlightened members of the Belleville Authority and chairman J. R. Blackmore requested that copies be furnished to every member.

Other business at the meeting of the Authority included the awarding of a fuel oil contract to Murphy Oil Company who submitted the lowest tender for the 1965-66 heating season.

Insurance coverage and the present staff situation was reviewed. It would appear that there will be a swing to an increase in the number of students, to employ a full time principal for the coming year. Teachers' contracts were discussed and will be signed shortly with salary increases to take effect next term.

Salute Will Be Fired to Open Festival

TORONTO — On May 24th, Historic Fort York, Garrison Road (east of Strachan Avenue off Fleet Street), Toronto will be the scene of another festival of the fort.

"Lieutenant - Governor John Graves Simcoe" will arrive at the fort at 11 a.m. to open officially the 1963 Festival. He will be met by the Fort York Guard dressed in their uniforms of the 1812 period, and a salute will be fired.

Demonstrations showing skills of yesteryear will provide interest for the full time the Festival is in progress. There will be soap making, basket weaving, Scottish country dancing, bread baking (in brick ovens), candle making, "The Gleaners" Folk Singers, log hewing, shingle making cooperage, apple butter making, taffy pulling, and a display of antique arms. Articles made by the craftsmen will be available at a central store in the centre blockhouse.

Early Canadian refreshments will be available, including oven brick bread with Canadian maple syrup and ice cold cider, and barbecued beef cooked by Martin the genial innkeeper of The Ship Inn.

Children will revel in its old-world atmosphere and find the displays of craftsmanship, the exhibits, and the Fort itself full of interest. There is ample parking or with convenient street-cars to the site.

Admission is 50 cents for adults, accompanied children free.

REWRITERS AT WORK

LONDON (CP)—The Francis Bacon Society is planning a new campaign to prove that Shakespeare did not write the plays attributed to him. A will now being probated bequeathes £8,500 ($19,500) to the society, which members will use to search for documents showing Bacon to be the playwright.

Boy, 6, Drowns In Mishap at Victoria Park

Believed either to have fallen from a boat or a dock at the foot of Victoria Park, a six-year old Belleville boy drowned in the Bay of Quinte early last evening, despite two hours rescuitation given in a vain attempt to revive him.

Details of the accident were still sketchy at noon today, but it is believed the boy was playing with other boys at the end of the park when he fell into the water.

He was pulled from the water by an unidentified Bell Telephone employee, and was taken to Belleville General Hospital where resuscitation efforts were continued for two hours by city firemen and doctors.

City police this morning were still unable to pin point the exact time of the accident but firemen said they got the call at 7:04 p.m.

Gordon was a Grade 1 pupil, at Queen Mary Public School and had lived in the city since his birth.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Ronald and Randall, and a sister, Joanne.

The funeral will be held Monday from the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

Convention Held at Camp Ground

A church - wide youth convention was held at the Ivanhoe Camp Ground, May 14 - 18 by the Standard Church.

Rev. Eldon Craig, Bowmanville Quebec was guest speaker. Mr. Dugal Sharpe, Bracebridge was leader, and Mr. Keith Lohnes, Kingston, was pianist.

The full program consisted of a quiz, a dance, films on a fine variety of musical and vocal numbers and the message by Rev. Mr. Craig. Of special interest on Sunday was music and singing by the missionary gospel team of Kingston.

An estimated 600 people from the Belleville District, and Moose and Watertown in New York, Shawville, Ottawa, North Gower, Kingston and many other places were in attendance.

Rule

first of two resolutions on rule changes. The first proposes limits on debates and allocation of time.

Mr. Knowles, member for Winnipeg North Centre, said his group agrees with the principle, better use of available time, but wants some modifications.

PROPOSES AMENDMENT

He proposed an amendment to eliminate two of the four categories designated for discussion in a 36-day period that would be set aside for debating money bills. Interim supply and main spending estimates would be left in. Withdrawn was the supplementary spending estimates and motions for the Speaker to leave the chair.

The second resolution would eliminate appeals of Speaker's decisions and lengthen sitting hours.

Mr. Knowles said the rules changes would likely go through and it is necessary to protect Parliament by reducing the amount of endless talk, which was becoming a threat to it.

The 36-day proposal also drew a subamendment from the Social Credit spokesman, H. A. Olson (Medicine Hat). He asked for a provision to allow debate on extra spending items brought in after the 36-day period. Otherwise important items might be approved without any debate.

He also said the "guillotine rule" is a refined form of closure and needs changes to protect the rights of the Opposition.

MAKES APPEAL

Mr. Diefenbaker, in an hour-long speech, appealed to Prime Minister Pearson to refer the "guillotine" resolution to a committee for the addition of safeguards to protect Opposition rights.

"This will make Parliament a rubber stamp of the government and the bureaucrats," he said. "This is a design to prevent full discussion of controversial legislation."

He asked the Liberal government not to "destroy this institution and its independence by making it a puppet."

The basic weakness of the Commons is the lack of a permanent Speaker, Mr. Diefenbaker said. A permanent Speaker would do a great deal to allay Conservative fears of the rules changes.

He suggested the present Speaker, Alan Macnaughton, be given the appointment. If so, the Conservatives would not oppose him in his Mount Royal riding.

"I have the highest admiration for the manner in which he has tried to do his duty with dignity and impartiality." The House would never be closer to agreement on such an appointment.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that if a permanent Speaker is appointed, many of his party's fears about the "package-deal" rule changes would be greatly lessened.

He also criticized absenteeism among MPs.

Right of Hospital Board To Turn Down $100,000 Bequest Fully Discussed

TRENTON — Portions of the will of the late Senator William Alexander Fraser were read aloud at last night's annual meeting of the Trenton Memorial Hospital Board, by board chairman S. O. Graham, as a means of justifying the board's action in turning down a $100,000 bequest to the hospital.

The senator allowed for a $100,000 donation to the hospital in his will, provided the money were used towards the building of a nurses' residence . . . and for no other purpose. Another stipulation was that Eben James or, in the event of his death, D.R. "Nick" Fraser sit on the board for a period of 15 years after the bequest was accepted (in writing) by the board, Mr. James and Mr. Fraser are nephews of the late senator.

A photostatic copy of Senator's Fraser's will be produced from a brief case by Mr. Graham after Grant Rathbun had questioned the right of the board to turn down the $100,000

Mr. Graham contended that a nurses' residence would have cost $450,000 to build and would have been of very little use to the hospital once it was built. Teaching facilities and teaching personnel would have had to be provided, and Mr. Graham said there was very little interest evinced by staff to enter into such an arrangement. The Ontario Hospital Services Commission had advised the board not to accept the bequest, he said. Mr. Graham claimed the $450,000 building would have had to be built before the $100,000—under the will would have been made available to the board.

Mr. Rathbun and Mr. James claimed that the will contained no such provision. They said the board would have accepted the bequest, invested the $100,000 and drawn interest on the money until such time as it was feasible to use it for a nurses' residence.

CHAIRMAN CENSURED

Mr. Rathbun further objected to the fact that the bequest was not reported at last year's annual meeting. He said the chairman had been remiss in not reporting the bequest and how the directors had dealt with it.

Kenneth Couch, a director, explained to the meeting that the directors had thought "the less said about it the better . . . out of respect to an honored citizen".

"The board did not advertise this will," said chairman Graham, "we could have made a very big issue out of it."

"There's not very much gained in trying to cover up when it comes to public business," retorted Mr. James.

Mr. James asked permission to address the meeting and explained that his late uncle had left the $100,000 to the hospital with the best of intentions. He said the senator had been very much impressed with the nurses' residence in Kingston and had thought it would be a very good idea for Trenton. Mr. James said his uncle had left around $300,000 for such charities as the Robin Lake Salvation Army camp for youngsters, the YMCA in Belleville, the Cancer Society and the CNIB.

"The onus was on the board members to approach the senator and ask to have a donation left in any way they wanted it." he said.

Mr. James also pointed out that the senator, who was one of the controlling interest at Central Bridge when the hospital was built, had supplied steel for the structure at cost.

MINUTES QUESTIONED

Last night's meeting of around 50 persons, (board members and their wives, doctors and their wives and hospital personnel), was off to a controversial start with the reading of the minutes of last year's annual meeting by the board secretary, George Williamson.

Dr. W. A. I. McDonald and Dr. J. V. Byrne objected to the phrasing of Dr. Byrne's contention last year that the meeting was illegally called because the meeting had not been immediately preceded by the advertisement of the meeting "once a week, for two successive weeks immediately preceding the annual meeting, as to quote from the by-laws.

According to Mr. Williamson's minutes, Dr. Byrne had said the meeting had not been advertised "in two successive issues of the local paper." The minutes also recorded, "in fact, the meeting was advertised in three successive issues."

Dr. Byrne and Dr. McDonald claimed the advertisements in three successive issues of the tri-weekly Trentonian only covered six days, and did not comply with the by-law's term, "once a week, for two successive weeks." They asked that the minutes be changed to clarify Dr. Byrne's objection last year. Mr. Graham said he would not agree to the changing of the minutes until he had checked back copies of the Trentonian and established that the terms of the by-law had been contravened.

Mr. Rathbun then brought Mr. Graham to task for not providing a complete financial statement, approved by an auditor, for last year's meeting. He claimed that last year's meeting had been illegally constituted because of this.

Mr. Graham contended that the 1963 financial statement had been "on the table," and available to Mr. Rathbun or anyone else.

Mr. Rathbun denied this statement.

The audited 1964 financial statement was not only available "on the table," but copies of it were distributed to those attending the meeting by Miss Hazel Naudette, hospital administrator.

Three directors, whose terms run for three years, were elected last night. These were Kenneth Couch, (21 votes); Douglas Kinney, (18 votes) and Clarence Saylor, (18 votes). Defeated were Jack Vanaistine, Gregory Butler, and H. B. Simmons. The names of all other candidates were proposed by a nominating committee, set up by the board. Mr. Simmons' name was proposed by Dr. McDonald, mover and Dr. Harry Hutchinson, seconder. Voting were those who have paid a $100 life membership or $25 thirty-days prior to the annual meeting.

"How many new members are there this year who have paid the $100?" Mr. Rathbun wanted to know.

"About four," replied Mr. Williamson.

"How many have died?" Mr. Rathbun, "one of these days us paying members will find ourselves talking to ourselves."

Mr. Rathbun then proposed that anyone who paid $5 a year be permitted to vote, in order to "stimulate interest in hospital affairs."

Dr. Hutchinson then proposed an amendment, "anyone paying $10 a year."

Dr. M. A. Bishop, who said he was afraid of making the board business a "political issue" if the fee were made too small, brought forward a further amendment, "anyone who pays $25 a year."

The second amendment to the motion was voted upon and won out by a small margin.

Dr. Byrne then claimed the amendment to the motion advanced by Dr. Bishop was illegal, since Dr. Bishop was a non-member of the corporation, not having paid his $100.

BORROWED MONEY

Dr. Bishop then took what money he had in his pocket . . . borrowed the rest from his neighbors and proceeded to pay the $100, which gave him the right to vote and to propose the winning amendment to Mr. Rathbun's motion. (If Dr. Bishop's amendment had not been allowed to stand, G. M. Newton, another board member, said he was prepared to make the same motion).

Echoing Dr. Bishop's fear that letting those persons vote on board issues, who would only contribute $5 a year might turn hospital business into a political issue, Dr. Graham said "many people would rush in to jump on the bandwagon of a well-run organization."

Mr. Simmons, who is chief personnel officer with the RCAF at Trenton, said he took exception to Mr. Graham's remarks.

At one point in the proceedings, Mr. Rathbun referred to the board's handling of Senator Fraser's bequest as "stupid."

O. M. Newton belatedly jumped to his feet and objected to this phrasing, demanding an apology, which Mr. Rathbun offered before the meeting came to a close.

Board reports were heard last night from Mr. Graham, Miss Naudette, Mrs. L. H. Bearne, the president of the Women's Auxiliary and Dr. Bishop, chairman of the medical advisory committee.

Trenton Memorial Hospital is "big business" with $1,104,322 having been received in last year, and $1,104,865 having been spent . . . a deficit on operations for the year of $543.

Will Extend Hydro Services To River Park

TRENTON — Frankford village council, meeting Wednesday night, voted to extend hydro facilities in the Frankford waterfront park for the convenience of trailer owners and campers this summer. Councillor G. Gilmour, chairman of the parks' committee, will arrange with the local utilities to have the necessary work done.

Council also approved the erection of an equipment shed on the sewage treatment plant property. Hones, lawn mowers and other equipment will be stored here. The necessary money, approximately $495, will come from council's reserve fund.

Council voted a few weeks ago to transfer its operations to the community hall, rather than continue to rent the present municipal office, and it had been thought that the move would be made by June, but the date for moving has been extended to the end of July. Village clerk, Glen Mintz and his secretary, will be moved and council meetings and committee meetings will be transferred to the community hall.

The library, now in the basement of the hall, will be moved upstairs, and council and the clerk will take over the downstairs. The takeover affects a kindergarten class, which has been held on the upstairs floor.

Mrs. Hubble, the teacher, came as a delegation of one to the council meeting to suggest she might hold her classes in the town council chambers, when they were not in use. Council will have to consider this from all angles, and has promised Mrs. Hubble an answer in a week or so.

VETERINARIANS HOSTS

Wednesday night, around 70 veterinarians and their ladies from the area bounded by Cobourg, Napanee, Picton and Peterborough, held the Quinte Veterinarians' annual ladies' night at the Trenton Country Club. Association president is Dr. Bruce Parliament of Belleville. Trenton representative on the association is Dr. Clynne Jones.

Body of Youth Found in River,

TRENTON — The body of 17-year-old Stanley Treloggen of R.R. 2, Carrying Place was taken from the Trent River by Trenton police around 12.45 p.m. yesterday, after an unidentified person had called the police station to say a body was floating in the river.

The youth, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Treloggen, had been missing since last Saturday night. OPP from Brighton detachment had notified other departments in the area.

Young Treloggen was a non-swimmer.

Two Views on Education

"The School Guidance Worker" is published monthly from October to June by The Guidance Centre of the Ontario College of Education.

The May number contains two articles which would justify any magazine's existence.

One is an address given by J. R. McCarthy, Deputy Minister of the Ontario Department of University Affairs, to the annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Labor.

Some quotes:—

"Any school system that might be considered adequate by almost any set of criteria today is bound to be inadequate tomorrow morning. So rapid are the changes all about us that every school system must consciously be working at improvement and innovation all the time."

"Today - - - it is essential that the school system have a philosophy to give direction to the whole educational enterprise and to prevent it from becoming the victim of pressures of one sort or another."

"One other area about which no school can be neutral is that of values. It is useless to develop highly knowledgeable people if they use that knowledge to subvert the aims of society. In any judgment, our schools devote too much time to the teaching of facts without the corresponding emphasis on the way in which the facts are to be used."

Altogether, Mr. McCarthy's address is an informative, interesting and stimulating discussion on what might, perhaps, be termed the orthodox view of education in today's world.

This contrasts the succeeding article, "Superintitions in Education" by George Boas, Professor Emeritus of Philosophy at Johns Hopkins University, all the more enthralling. The contrast in outlook is so vivid.

"The only excuse for elementary education is that it teaches the children things which they have to know if they are going to secondary school. And the only excuse for most of the teaching in the secondary schools is that the young people must know these things if they are going on to college."

"I can see no more sense in telling a person that the reason he is studying two foreign languages is to improve his mind than there is in telling a carpenter that the reason he has to learn to saw a straight line is to improve his mind. You learn a language in order to speak or read it, and it is sheer mystification to try to endow the procedure with some higher value."

"Learning is like the drug habit; the more you give in to it, the stronger is its hold on you. So my point is that the value of these things is in the things themselves and is determined by the individuals engaged in them, and not by others. Fundamentally, the only reason for doing anything, where choice is possible, is that you find it interesting, though one is seldom willing to admit this."

"The kind of character which education builds is left pretty vague, but anyway is supposed to be good. Now anyone who has ever studied or taught in college for any length of time knows that the students and teachers have exactly the same kinds of character as other people."

"To maintain that education in general is training in citizenship is far from true. Many a man is very well educated and is a bad citizen. - - - Many a good citizen has very little education."

"The price you pay for a state in which educated citizens are plentiful is disagreement and debate."

"A fourth superstition is that education is to adjust students to society. This is one of the worst. What society is he to be adjusted to? Society is a collective group of smaller social groups, churches, clubs, business firms, schools, political parties, learned and non-learned societies. - - - People not only belong to these organizations—and the word 'belongs' is sinister — they pay dues to support them. No one lives in all of society; no one could."

"Education is in the name of learning things, and teaching is the teaching of what you learn. All the rest comes by the way, if it comes at all. Most studies do us no good in any down-to-earth sense of good. But as Cicero said in a somewhat different context, 'they are a stimulus to youth, a diversion for old age; they adorn success, provide a refuge in adversity, are a delight at home and a companion in our travels.' And what in the world is wrong with that?"

France's Unique Role

Montreal La Devoir

It has been precisely since 1958, with the return to power of General de Gaulle in France, that we have heard from that country rather eloquent expressions of a doctrine of international independence and a desire for international co - operation. The world has felt a unique presence. France has regained a place as the chief exponent of nations which it had ceased to occupy before the Second World War.

The Gaullist Fifth Republic has accomplished in block Africa an enlightening form of decolonization. It has found the best panacea for solutions to the sad and complex problem of Algeria. It has given back to French science and technology the prestige it had previously enjoyed. It has developed improved ideas of peace for nations and an co - operation to embrace Latin America and the Middle East, as well as their point of origin, Africa. It has opened new avenues of approach to the Soviet bloc, and finally it has established regular diplomatic relations with Communist China. General de Gaulle was right to say in a recent speech: "Certain circles are, on all sharp-cut over isolation, but in face of facts have already been a great overdoing in of discussion about us."

The principal advantage of the Gaullist grand design probably lies in the chance it offers the world to free itself from the deadly split between the great blocs and the formidable burden that Russian and American supremacy of power imposes on so many countries. It also offers a chance for peace, perhaps in southeast Asia this opening will begin soon to pay off in terms of a diplomatic settlement.

Against a variety of political and economic imperialism, against concentrations of power East and West, de Gaulle wants France to propose and inspire another order, another sort of balance of power. Or he desires that expression should be given to what he calls the liberty, equality and fraternity of all peoples based on the principles of national independence, vigilant solidarity and unconditional aid to the less favored nations.

It's hardly likely that in the immediate future this concept will gain the enthusiastic support of Eastern or, more especially, Western Europe. But Gaulle doesn't count on it anyway. He speaks to the people and keeps his eye on history. For the present, it's enough that his ideas should inspire new confidence and hope throughout much of the world, including Latin America. — Jean-Marc Leger.

Leisure: A Latter-Day Illusion

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking, as I was a few weeks ago, of the elusive nature of "statistics," and of the difficulty in isolating and studying seemingly solid subjects as "marriage," "unemployment," and "delinquency," I was reminded of a study conducted by the Twentieth Century Fund a few years ago.

Dr. Sebastian de Grazia, a professor of political science at Rutgers, undertook an analysis of the term "leisure," so widely used in current American society. He began by questioning the ordinary assumption that we have much more "free time" than our counterparts a century ago.

His closer examination of the statistics," he concluded, "indicates that the image of greater leisure is largely an illusion." This is how the illusion operates:

Our figures that calculate the present work week at slightly under 40 hours include not only th. hours worked by full-time employees, but also those of millions of part-time workers (about a fifth of the labor force), whose average work week is only 25 hours.

If part-time workers are excluded from the calculation, the average for fulltime employees rises to 46 or 47 hours a week. This figure has remained about the same in recent years, and "there is no evidence for any appreciable trend toward shorter work weeks."

Moreover, Prof. de Grazia points out, in the last decade, multiple job-holding, or moonlighting," has greatly increased. "Since many multiple job-holders appear twice in the statistics typically with one full-time and one part-time job, their added hours do not appear in the calculated average work week," he observes.

Another factor that reduces "free time" is the increase in time devoted to transportation back and forth from work. "A century ago, the overwhelming majority of city workers lived in areas immediately adjacent to the factories in which they were employed. Farmers, who then constituted a much larger percentage of the labor force, spend no more time traveling than the time needed to walk from the dooryard to the barn.

Also, the fact that repair and service around the house are harder (and more expensive) to come by, plus the higher participation of the housewife in household chores formerly done only by women, mean that the time allocated to "leisure" is still further reduced by factors that do not show up in statistical treatment. The executive, particularly, may nominally work a 40-hour week, but actually he may be closer to 60 hours.

In the Middle Ages, we often forget, periods of all days were devoted to feasts and festivals. People worked longer days, but not so many of them; and their "leisure time" was not exhausted in performing the odd jobs they had put off under pressure of their regular work.

To Your Good Health

Cerebral Palsy Is Not The Handicap It Once Was

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I noticed the letter from Mrs. J.A., whose son has cerebral palsy.

I am a 23-year-old C.P. victim. I attended college and am now operating a travel agency. (1) graduated from Syracuse University in 3½ years.)

When I was a baby the doctors told my parents to put me in an institution and to forget about me. I tell you this because I think it shows (1) the advances made by medicine; (2) that doctors are not always right. — R. J. D.

I don't know of anybody who is always right, but I'm sure that a great deal has been accomplished in the last 20 years in making cerebral palsy less of a handicap.

Definitely children with cerebral palsy should have the benefit of some of the things that have been learned, which brings us to another letter:

Dear Doctor: I read about the woman who has a small boy with a mild case of cerebral palsy. Maybe she worries too much or is overprotective.

I have a mild case. It affected my right side. I couldn't walk very well as my right heel would not go down. My parents took me to several doctors and found the right one.

When I was five, a night brace was put on my leg and foot. I also had to learn to eat left-handed. I was a right-handed child, but couldn't do much with my right hand.

I wore the brace until I was 13 and saw my doctor only once a year. This past summer he discharged me. I have my 100 percent all right.

I am now 21, a senior in high school, and having loads of fun. I can go out, do things that others do, even in sports, and in fact sometimes I can outdo others.

I used to hurt me to have people say, "Harriet can't do that." They didn't know me too well. Right now I'm playing basketball in my gym class and really enjoying it. — Miss H. T.

Miss H. T. I hope a lot of people have been reading today's column!

Dear Dr. Molner: Please send me your booklet on "Enuresis: Ten Ways to Stop Bed-Wetting." I enclose the required 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. My granddaughter is 10 years old and wets the bed every night. I have kidney trouble. Could she inherit bad kidneys from me? — S. A.

It's highly doubtful that she could inherit bad kidneys. If this condition were hereditary, your daughter (rather than granddaughter) would have had this tendency. I'd suggest looking for simpler solutions — as outlined in the booklet.

Dear Dr. Molner: In your discussion of smallpox vaccination, you said nothing about the danger of having a child with eczema vaccinated. I have been told by three pediatricians that to have a child vaccinated before he has outgrown this eczema is very dangerous, or at least risky. If this is not so, why are parents told that? — Mrs. R. G. S.

I've said often that this vaccination should be postponed if there is any active skin condition. I can't give all of the related requirements every time I write about vaccination, because I would use up more than my share of space. Besides, the doctors who give the vaccinations know about this. All three of your pediatricians know it. Children frequently outgrow this skin disorder and then vaccination can be done.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it harmful to eat uncooked oatmeal? — Mrs. M. S.

No.

Drunken Hazards

Brockville Recorder and Times

As though the problem of drunken drivers on the road was not enough, in recent years we have come to know another menace, the drunken driver on the water. Not that this is any part of it. Drunken pilots are now joining their pals on the land and water in menacing others as a result of their thirst. In 10 surveys conducted on pilots involved in crashes in the U.S. last year, drinking was discovered as a possible cause of the crash. Those involved were private pilots, however, not airline pilots.

Cruel to Keep Dog in Town

Guelph Mercury

Of all the many cruelties inflicted by unthinking man upon helpless animals, possibly none is worse than the well-meaning affectionate enslavement of the dog as a resident of the urban household.

Dogs need legroom in which to roam. It is fractional to the average lively dog to be kept in a city home, or in an average city yard. And if by-laws are spurned and he is allowed to roam, he becomes a neighborhood pest.

No matter how much they love their dogs, many of us do — citizens of the human species which modern cities have become might consider it a greater kindness releasing the dog from his urban bondage. A dog is at home on a farm or on a good - sized plot of even half an acre, but in the suburbs. Bring him to town, imprison him within the framework of civic life and he grows fat, indolent and lethargic or, in the case of the more active breeds, overly chesty, neurotic and snappish because his killing and the mysterious, shrinking values of the city.

After several years of wrangling Toronto Council is, in the best Toronto tradition, trying the dog - catching experiment. It will keep dogs room a bit in public parks. The likelihood is that few owners will apparent to most dog owners this scheme won't work. How much better it would be to do dumb beasts in the long run if they were banned out of the city.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

May 31, 1985 . . .

Government soldiers entered Paris to suppress the Commune, the first modern socialist experiment, 64 years ago today—in 1871. After the defeat of France in the Franco-Prussian War, the citizens of Paris seized the opportunity to set up the Commune, looking back perhaps to 1789 and the later military defeat and Russia. The government attempted unsuccessfully to disarm the national guard, and then fled the city in panic. After 10 weeks the Commune was broken up. About 20,000 Parisians were shot and many more deported to New Caledonia.

1471—Henry VI of England was murdered.

Russians' Memory Long

London Free Press

Genuinely spontaneous outbursts of applause are as scarce in Moscow as blizzards in the Sahara, but the unexpected ovation accorded the name of Josef Stalin in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses Wednesday during a speech by Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev has provided proof that Stalin is attached to brainwash an entire nation.

Stalin has been an 'unperson' since he was virtually deposed by Nikita Khrushchev nine years ago. A whole generation brought up to revere his name present image had to start believing that the leader who brought his country through its bloodiest war must be erased from Russian minds and memories.

Stalin's name and fame were further downgraded when Leningrad his body from the Red Square tomb it shared with the remains of Lenin. History books were rewritten under Khrushchev; "de-Stalinization" became the new ideology and Stalin's Day But in Sunday's celebration of VE-Day, a public mention of Stalin by Brezhnev brought a sudden and embarrassing 'tribute from the audience.

Equally remarkable was the presence of another former "unperson," Marshal Georgi Zhukov, the conqueror of Berlin. Glorified and later demoted under Stalin, Zhukov returned to eminence under Khrushchev, only to be dismissed as being too popular. Now, at 70, he is a hero once more.

Shakespeare is widely revered in the Soviet Union; Messrs. Khrushchev, Zhukov, Bremev and Kosygin must know by heart the words uttered by Henry IV: "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 31st, 1915

The Quinte District Druggist Association in semi-annual session at the Hotel Quinte on Wednesday afternoon, unanimously supported a resolution sponsored by the Ontario College of Pharmacy Council, calling for increased legal status and raising of the school educational program for future pharmacists. The resolution embodies a request for a four year course of study at the college and 18 months apprentice work in a retail store in regard to the present system of two years at college and two years apprenticeship.

The Association also endorsed a resolution requesting the Ontario Retail Druggist Association to ask Ottawa to change the regulations regarding the sale of sulfa drugs to farmers for veterinary purposes. Under present procedure, farmers must secure a doctor's certificate in order to purchase the drugs.

Missed Point

Sudbury Star

History teaches us that nations rise to pinnacles of power and then descend "the other side of the mountain." The Greeks and Romans considered the "savages" who were not part of their civilization. But the "savages" eventually ate the conquerors in the end. People have not learned their history lesson who think that some form of "white supremacy" is a God-given right to suppress the black and yellow races.

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials inched lower in moderate morning stock exchange trading today. The speculative list, both mines and oils—was dull.

In the main list, Du Pont fell ¼ to 61¼ and Husky Oil ¼ to 13¾. CPR declined ¼ to 63¼ and Canada Cement and International Utilities each fell ¼ to 37¼ and 33¾.

Burns fell ¼ to 21 and Consolidated Paper ¼ to 43¾.

Among specialties, Banff rose 10 cents to $7.90 and Anglo United Development fell 7 cents to $1.28, each in relatively light turnover.

Hoth Rentrew gained 3¾ to a high of 23¾ among winners and traded 1,170 shares.

Indeed, Ltd. fell ¾ to 79½ among senior base metals and Inco dropped ½ to 99¾. Noranda rose ¼ to 55¾, Giant Yellowknife rose ¼ to 13 in slow gold trade.

On index, industrials fell .10 to 176.83, the Toronto Stock Exchange index .09 to 186.33 and base metals .29 to 85.86. Golds rose .32 to 154.37 and western oils .26 to 110.48. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,197,000 shares compared with 847,000 shares traded at the same time Thursday.

Lawn Bowlers Delay Opening For a Week

Due to circumstances beyond the control of the directorate the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club will not be able to open their season over the holiday. It has been customary to have a mixed jitney on that day to welcome new and old bowlers, but a wet, soft surface and general rain not acquainted but due to the cold weather of the spring season has not come along as expected and when everything was ready to progress rapidly, the big mowers started to act up with the result the grass could not be properly cut.

Jack Smith, the greenskeeper, has done an excellent job and has the greens in almost perfect condition but they cannot be mowed to the proper height on account of the trouble. The progress would not be as great had it not been for the courtesy of the Golf Club, who have on occasions lent a mower and attendant to help keep the grass cut.

It is expected the club will be officially opened on May 29th when the first tournament of the season will be played. The Trenton club, sponsor of the tournament, who has become associated with the local club will hold a men's double tourney. There is a possibility the greens will be available early in the week for a little practice before the tournament.

Appeal Now Half Million Closer to Goal

TORONTO — Jack in the Beanstalk climbed another half million dollars closer to his goal today in front of the Hospital for Sick Children, and the total collected in the $13,900,000 building appeal now stands at $8,500,000. With the $500,000 advance chalked up last Friday, today's advance added up to $1,000,000 gained in less than a week.

Leading a number of generous personal donations has been the contribution of the "Hospital Family" — comprising the staff and Board of Trustees of the Hospital — whose donations today reached a grand total of $526,985. A considerable part of this total was contributed by the 32 members of the Trustees group, which includes many prominent Toronto business and financial men. The Hospital Family includes active and consulting medical staff, nursing staff, all employees of the Hospital, the Auxiliary of the Hospital, as well as former doctors and nurses now stationed elsewhere.

Despite a definite upswing in the number of donations now reaching the Hospital by mail, Fund Chairman C. L. Gundy was not optimistic about the chances of the Fund reaching its objective on schedule. He pointed out that, with business and individual canvassing half completed and no door-to-door canvass planned, a total of over $8,000,000 is still needed.

"But miracles have happened at Sick Kids before," he added, "and we haven't stopped hoping for one in this case."

Alouette Club Bowlers Enjoy Dinner, Dance

The Alouette Club five pin bowling league honored its champions at a banquet held in St. Joseph's Parish Hall last Saturday evening.

Mr. James Hultquist, president of the Alouette Club and its bowling league, presided with Mrs. Hultquist. About 50 members and friends attended the activity to close the 1964-65 bowling season.

The league championship and the Alouette Club trophy were won by the "Aces" team, captained by Francois Duclos and team members consisting of Rejeanne Morin, Margot Leclair, Huguette Boisvert, Mickey Buckley and Gilles Morin.

The roll-off champions included the same team and players and were all awarded a personal trophy.

Individual winners were as follows: high average, Gloria Barnett and James Hultquist; high triple, Ann Chlasson and Ray Sullivan; high single, Blanche Sullivan and Doug Hingley.

Special prizes were also given to Louise Hullquist and Germain Pilon. Cuff links were presented to Mr. J. A. C. Berube, secretary and treasurer of the league, as a token of appreciation for the services rendered. Best attendance records were given to Claire Hall and Rejeanne Morin.

Dancing and entertainment rounded out the evening under the direction of Mr. Merril Gordon as master of ceremonies.

Home, School Associations To Hold Dinner

"P. R. Looks at Home and School" will be the topic when Mr. George Gray, Richmond Hill, addresses the annual dinner of the Belleville and District Council of Home and School Associations on May 27 in Tabernacle United Church.

Mr. Gray is a man well known in the field of industrial public relations and has been a Public Relations Director of the Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd. in Toronto for the past twelve years.

Mr. Gray has been a dedicated supporter of Home and School for much longer, starting in Association work in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, before moving to Ontario. Here in Ontario he again assumed executive responsibility in Association work in Richmond Hill.

Mr. Gray has served on the Board of Directors of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations for four years and has just completed a term of office as Public Relations Chairman for the Ontario Federation.

Reservations for this dinner are being received by Mr. J. E. Welch (968-7543) and all interested persons are urged to contact him immediately.

Moira Maths Team Visits RCM Today

KINGSTON — A group of forty students and twenty teachers representing twenty-three Secondary Schools in the Eastern Ontario area visited the Royal Military College today. The students were participants in the intermediate level province-wide mathematics contest sponsored by the University of Waterloo and Ontario High School Mathematics teachers. The contest, inaugurated in 1963, is designed primarily for grade ten and eleven students.

Each school was represented by a team of three students, and the winning teams in each district of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation is presented with a shield and special prizes, along with awards to the best student in each district. Almost 7,000 students, representing 260 Ontario schools, participated in the contest.

The top teams in OSSTF Districts 23 and 24, from the Trenton to Brockville area, were from the Loyalist Collegiate and Vocational Institute, Kingston and Moira Secondary School, Belleville. Moira SS stood 33rd in 360, the best school team in district 23.

The Belleville group consists of Tawni Meades, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Meades, R.R. 3, Belleville; Cheryl Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Smith, 317 MacDonald Ave., Belleville, and Jim Mayhew, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mayhew, 157 Hastings Drive, Belleville.

The Belleville winners were accompanied to RMC by Mr. Harry Birkenshaw, head of the Mathematics Department at Moira SS. Miss Meades, ranking in top one percent of contest entrants, will attend a one-week seminar at the University of Waterloo this summer.

NOEL D. BRYAN-JONES

WILL GIVE LECTURE

The power of God and its effects on man will be explored at a one-hour public lecture here on Monday by Noel D. Bryan-Jones of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

The lecture is being sponsored by Christian Science Society in Belleville, and will be given at 8:15 p.m., in Corby Library auditorium. Title of the lecture is "God Omnipotent Makes Man Triumphant."

Mr. Bryan-Jones is from Worthing, Sussex, England, and was formerly a Council member of The British Optical Association. For the past few years, he has been devoting full time to Christian Science practice, and is currently on an extensive lecture tour.

Senior Citizens Honor Couple

The Senior Citizens held their mid-month meeting in the Recreation Centre on the evening of May 10th with an excellent attendance.

President Mrs. M. Clapp welcomed all members and visitors. Mrs. L. Adams presided at the piano.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of a silver tray from the Senior Citizens and the Recreation Centre to Mr. and Mrs. J. Bone on their 50th wedding anniversary. Mrs. J. Calbury presented the tray with an interesting speech of their wedded bliss.

Mr. Bone responded and Mrs. Bone cut the anniversary cake.

The annual picnic will be held in Coboorg Park on July 14th, and on August 26th the members are planning to spend a day at the C.N.E.

Mrs. J. Bone was the recipient of the lucky door prize.

The evening was spent in playing euchre. The winners were: men's 1st, Mrs. R. Fox playing as man; 2nd, Mrs. M. Taylor playing as a man; 3rd, Mr. Brennan. Ladies — 1st, Mrs. Trotter; 2nd, Mrs. Wasnamaker; 3rd, Mrs. M. Simpson.

Mrs. M. Taylor and committee served refreshments.

Spring Concert Given by H. S. Band

CAMPBELLFORD — Musical interest has grown sharply in Campbellford during the past year especially in the high school group under the direction of Mr. B. Devereaux teacher of music at the High School.

On Wednesday evening a spring concert was given in the High School auditorium by C.D.H.S. Band and directed by Mr. Devereaux, and C.D.H.S. choir directed by Mr. J. Cheynoweth.

Last September when Mr. Devereaux came to Campbellford High School, band music had not been stressed, this year with new uniforms, many new instruments and Mr. Devereaux's teaching the band has become an important part of C.D.H.S. program.

SOLO NUMBERS

Soloists in Wednesday night's concert were Judy Hutchinson and Steven Wood on clarinet solos, also Bill Bennett of Campbellford with clarinet solo. Both of these C.D.H.S. pupils were first in their classes at the recent Northumberland Music Festival.

A piano solo was given by Maria Battaglini, a difficult number by Chopin. Miss Battaglini displayed color and drama beyond her years and was also first prize winner at the Festival. Mr. John Battaglini was also a soloist.

The choir under direction of Mr. J. Cheynowith rendered choir numbers and also a double trio.

A combination of drama club and band gave a resume of the life of Stephen Foster singing parts of his well known songs and dressed in the costumes of that era.

Accompanists for the evening were Miss Kathy Dart, Miss Maria Battaglini, Mr. D. D. Bennett and Mr. B. Devereaux.

Work of Assoc. For Retarded Is Outlined

CAMPBELLFORD — Mrs. William Hoey, teacher at Merryvale School, and Mrs. F. M. Rutherford of Campbellford and District Association for Mentally Retarded were guest speakers on Thursday afternoon at Percy W. I.

Mrs. Rutherford spoke on the organization and administration of the school and outlined the new government legislation which came into effect on January 1st, 1965.

Mrs. Hoey gave a comprehensive report of the teaching curriculum and program showing some articles of work and outlining one day's activities in a school such as Merryvale.

The speakers were introduced by Mrs. William Honey and the appreciation was expressed by Mrs. Pollock.

The law calls for ridings to be reshaped after each national census, taken every 10 years. It was last done on the 1951 count and many of the ridings are far out of line with the "representation by population" principle.

The commission has the job of dividing a province's population by the number of Commons seats allotted to it and coming up with a map on which no riding has a population more than 25 per cent above or below the provincial average.

After a map is published, public hearings are called to hear views on it. Then the commission meets again to make a final decision to be sent to Parliament. It can be debated in the Commons but not changed unless the commission agrees. The whole procedure could take until next April to wind up.

Some major changes have already been made in the present shape of ridings, partly due to the new distribution of seats among the provinces in this census based on a constitutional formula.

Quebec drops to 74 seats from 75, the axe falling on Iles-de-la-Madeleine which had the smallest population of any riding in the country, 12,479. This island chain in the Gulf of St. Lawrence has been grouped with a riding on the Gaspe Peninsula.

British Columbia goes up one seat to 23. This was done by carving heavily - populated Fraser Valley into two ridings to be known as Fraser Valley East and Fraser Valley West.

The P.E.I. commission set up four single - member constituencies to replace the former three, one of which—Queen's—elected two members. It also produced four new names, Cardigan, Hillsborough, Malpeque and Egmont.

Big revisions are expected in Ontario, which is to get three additional seats for a total of 88, Saskatchewan, due to drop by three to 13.

The Commons membership will remain at its present 265—there now are two ridings that each elect two members — despite provincial changes. New totals, with former figures bracketed: Newfoundland 7 (7), Nova Scotia 11 (12), New Brunswick 10 (10), P.E.I. 4 (4), Quebec 74 (75), Ontario 88 (85), Manitoba 13 (14), Saskatchewan 13 (16), Alberta 19 (17), British Columbia 23 (22).

Cost of Transportation For H. S. Pupils $73,599

Within a policy framework determined by the board, the lowest tender in each grouping was accepted at an overall cost of $4,000 below the aggregate of the lowest bid on each individual route.

Cost of pupil transportation for the next school year is estimated at $73,599. Tenders accepted were: Larry Bond, Route 2, East and West Lakes, $8,433. Harold Harrison, route 3, North Marysford, $8,905. Donald McDermaid, route 5, Wellington, Green Point and High Shore, $3,920. Earl Burris, route 6, Consecon, Hillier, $6,460. Donald McGinnis, routes 1,2,,6 and 7, $40,891.

Mr. McGinnis also submitted a tender of $70,870 for all the routes, including a four bus run for students staying after school.

By vote, a motion to give McGinnis all routes was defeated 6-5, with chairman Murney Parks casting the deciding vote (three board members were absent).

Mr. Parks said that while there would be a saving of almost $3,000 on the package deal there could be problems. Having one firm might not be able to adhere to the agreement for a whole year. He also felt it unwise to put a number of bus firms out of business, especially as they had given reliable service.

Some tenders did not set a time limit on the contract with the board. The board will sell its three school-owned buses at the end of June, the bids now being left to the county operators. These late buses, advertised by administrator Gilbert Platt, cost the board about $8,000 a year to maintain on a mileage basis.

Skating Club Had Surplus

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward Skating Club enjoyed a very successful season, reports given at the annual meeting last week revealed. It is expected that the second year will be even more successful as increased interest has been shown.

Officers selected for the 1965-66 season are: President Ed Bailey; Vice - President Eric Peterson; Treasurer, Mrs. P. Parker; secretary, Mrs. Keith Nelson; Directors Mary Lou Duffy, Don Hobson, Ruth Walmsley, Mrs. Ed Bailey.

The following financial report (prepared by Mrs. P. Keyes, R. Com.) was presented: receipts — membership dues $1,503; test fees $131; costume rentals $116.50; carnival receipts $473.45; total receipts $2,102.95. Disbursements — ice rental $400.50; fees - professional $697.50; stationery and postage $13.53; carnival expenses $358.74; telephone $26.40; CPSA fees and expenses $67.91; music $31.90; miscellaneous $11.25; total disbursements $1,318.82.

Excess of receipts over disbursement and cash in bank May 16, 1965 — $284.13.

Bishop Will Dedicate Sunday School

PICTON (Staff) — The new Sunday School hall at St. John's Church, Wesgate, will be dedicated Sunday morning by Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans, Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario at the 11 a.m. service, the rector, Rev. F. C. Bell will present a class of thirteen for confirmation by the Bishop.

After the service, the hall will be dedicated and there will be a reception and open house.

The hall is being named after Rev. Rolfe Seaborne, who was rector of the parish, 1901-1913. The public is invited to attend.

WILL CALL TENDERS

Norris Whitney, M.P.P., has been advised by the Ontario Minister of Highways that tenders are to be called next week for a contract for grading, drainage, granular base and hot mix paving of the park access road to Sandbanks Provincial Park. This section is nine-tenths of a mile and gives access to the parking area at the south end of the dunes. This is the start of the development of the Sandbanks as a large park. Mr. Whitney includes those for conservation of the natural attractions.

The tenders are to be by the Highways Department on behalf of the Department of Lands and Forests which is developing the Park.

115 Grade 8 Pupils Will Visit Ottawa

PICTON (Special) — This year the annual trip to Ottawa for grade 8 students of Picton's public schools will be the largest ever. Approximately 115 youngsters depart from Picton by McGinnis coach lines on Friday for the Capital city. The trip is sponsored by the public school Home and School Association and is financed from funds raised at the annual fun fair, a public school carnival and bazaar.

First stop for the enthusiastic youngsters will be at the new parkway. The children will be taken through the experimental farm then will eat lunch in Rockcliffe Park. A one hour tour through the National Gallery begins at 1.00 p.m. and the grade 8 students will then leave for the Parliament Buildings and a 90-minute guided tour. The group will meet at the Wesgate shopping plaza for supper and will leave Ottawa about 6.30 p.m. Vice-principal of Queen Elizabeth school, Arthur Jackson, will be in charge of the tour.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Many readers have complained of penalties exacted when they paid off the mortgage either because of a sale or because of good fortune. The penalty, if any, is always written into the mortgage contract and should be carefully considered at the time the mortgage is created (as our correspondent is doing) and not when it comes time to pay off (as is the usual case).

Dear Mr. Meltzer: It is the policy of my company to keep its junior executives no more than four years in one location. I have just been transferred for the fourth time in 10 years and am buying a new house.

The mortgage being offered contains a penalty clause of 180 days interest if the mortgage is paid off before maturity. A half year's interest appears to be a rather unfair penalty. What do you think? — Mr. J. T.

ANSWER: I agree with you! A penalty of a half year's interest is too high.

The terms of a mortgage are negotiable. It is not a take it or leave it proposition. The fact that the lending institution is asking for this penalty does not mean that it won't settle for less. A fairer penalty would be one percent or even up to 90 days interest.

In the current mortgage market there are many lenders who want mortgages to a good risk under the above conditions. At present, some lenders are even willing to waive such out penalty clause for pre-payment. Remember, there are other fish in the mortgage pond besides the lending institution with whom you are now negotiating.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Please explain any importance I know about real estate and you are the only person to whom I can turn for good advice.

Over the next two summers I plan to build a cottage strictly on a do-it-myself basis. I was going to do it by buying material as required from various lumber yards. But a salesman for a pre-cut housing company says that I can save thousands of dollars if I buy from him. He says he has the figures to prove it. Is this possible? — Strictly a Novice.

ANSWER: I'm afraid the salesman is the more enthusiastic. You should, however, save considerable time and your job will be easier. The package economatically includes plans and technical advice on construction and is usually part of the arrangement.

Since you have no experience in building, I recommend that you use the pre-cut or pre-fabricated method for building your cottage. Even though it will probably cost more — not less.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A municipal plant was built less than 500 feet from my home. To get city water I had to have it. I sold my house in a hurry and lost $2,000. Will I be able to claim this capital loss when I prepare my income tax return next year? — Mr. T.

ANSWER: The Government will not participate in your loss — in all ways. You cannot claim a loss from the sale of your home as a tax deduction. Your home is classified as a personal asset.

To pinpoint the unfairness of the Government's attitude towards — if the converse had been true, and you had sold your house at a profit, and had not bought a new one, you would have been obligated to pay a tax on your gain.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Every winter I go through a constant siege of hoarseness and coughing. My doctor tells me it is due to the dry air in the house. Please tell me what is the proper way to heat a house with hot air heat to avoid this condition. The worst is over for this year but I dread looking forward to next winter. — Choked — Up

ANSWER: You are doing nothing wrong but apparently you are sensitive to dry air. The relative humidity in the Sahara is about 25 percent — in the American home it is about 15 percent. The maximum comfort level is 35 percent to 45 percent.

You can solve the problem either by installing a humidifier attached to your heating system or using a portable unit. Portable units typically cost about $25 to $50. The installed humidifier will cost from $80 to $100. Installation costs $25 to $35 extra. My experience has been that the latter, although slightly more expensive, does a much better job. Keep in mind, however, it conditions the air in the whole house — a portable unit will serve only a small area.

had developed an effective government and they were going to turn their attention to fighting the Viet Cong.

It was not known whether the coup attempt would delay the cabinet changes.

RAISES ALERTED

Saigon got its first indication that trouble was brewing Thursday night when South Viet Nam's three main air bases—in Saigon, Bien Hoa, and Da Nang—were put on a state of alert. An air force spokesman insisted the state of alert was "merely to enable the government change to go through peacefully."

Saigon was quiet today with no unusual numbers of troops in sight.

Earlier, informed sources said six of the arrested officers were Roman Catholics.

Some Catholics long have evinced dissatisfaction with the Quat government and said it was disposed to accept a neutralist solution to end the war with the Viet Cong.

Meanwhile, U.S. Navy planes off the Communist stronghold of Haiphong harbor pedo boat "burning fiercely" and another smoking in the fourth day of a renewed air strikes against targets in North Viet Nam.

Radio Hanoi said North Vietnamese militia and defence forces are undergoing intensive training in air defence techniques throughout the Communist nation. The Communist radio also accused the United States of dropping bombs and spraying toxic chemicals on the village of Ninh Binh, killing and wounding many people.

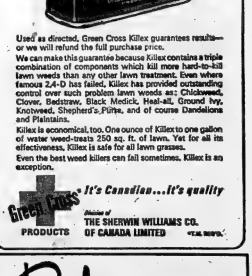
leaders who would be acceptable to both sides in forming a moderate civilian regime. Such a regime would be designed to hold office until a government could be chosen in free elections.



WAS A PROSPECT

Authoritative sources in Washington said Col. Rafael Fernandes Dominguez, one of the moderates in the rebel leadership, had been viewed by the U.S. emissaries as a prospective candidate for a coalition. But Fernandez was killed Wednesday during a rebel attack on the National Palace held by Imbert's forces close to the U.S.-controlled neutral zone.

Informants said the rebels fired on the American troops who fired back. Whether U.S. or junta troops fired the round that killed Fernandez was not known. Three U.S. paratroopers were wounded in the shooting.

Killex kills more lawn weeds than any other lawn treatment

We guarantee it.

Used as directed, Green Cross Killex guarantees results—or we will refund the full purchase price.

We can make this guarantee because Killex contains a triple combination of components which kill more hard-to-kill lawn weeds than any other lawn treatment. Even where famous 2,4-D has failed, Killex has provided outstanding control over Dandelion, Creeping weeds as: Chickweed, Clover, Bedstraw, Black Medick, Heal-all, Ground Ivy, Knotweed, Shepherd's Purse, and of course Dandelions and Plantains.

Killex is economical, too. One ounce of Killex to one gallon of water weed-treats 250 sq. ft. of lawn. Yet for all its effectiveness, Killex is safe for all lawn grasses.

Death Penalty for Crime Long Contentious Issue, Has Stirred Bitterness

The death penalty for punishment of crime has been a contentious issue in Canada. A Canadian Press reporter discusses the latter arguments that have arisen over the issue since early in the 19th century.

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—The issue of capital punishment has agitated Canadians for more than a century and stirred up bitterness matched by few other subjects.

The "free vote" on abolition of the death penalty scheduled for this year in the Commons is at least the eighth attempt to settle the question.

Abolition of hanging has been debated hotly in Parliament at frequent intervals since 1914. In the 19th century, public executions generated controversy and "political" hangings split the country along ethnic and religious lines.

There have been 703 hangings since Confederation, including 12 of women convicts. Six other condemned killers committed suicide in jail.

The rate of executions reached its peak in the early 1930s, when murderous bank robbers terrorized sections of the United States and Canada. Twenty-two men went to the gallows in 1931. During the next four years another 17 were hanged.

The execution of Wilbert Coffin in 1956 sparked a controversy that is still raging and marked a turning point. After 1958 successive cabinets exercised the royal prerogative of mercy in more and more murder cases.

DOUBLE HANGING

Two men convicted of capital murder in Toronto were the last to be hanged, 14 days before Christmas, 1962. They were Ronald Turpin of Toronto, found guilty of shooting a policeman, and Arthur Lucas of Detroit, accused of carrying out "underworld executions."

Three days after the double hanging and the attendant public uproar, two policemen were riddled with sub-machine-gun fire when they tried to foil the notorious Santa Claus bank holdup in Montreal's north end.

Georges Marcotte was convicted of killing one of the two policemen and sentenced to death but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment last December. He still awaits trial on a charge of murder in the slaying of the second policeman.

The case gave rise once more to the central question in the capital punishment debate: Does the death penalty deter potential killers?

Most political parties and religious bodies are sharply divided over the issue. Both the abolitionists and the retentionists quote profusely from the Bible to justify their stands and accuse the other side of being morally wrong.

Agitation against capital punishment began early in the last century, when British laws provided for death in more than 200 cases, including pickpockets. The laws were brought into contempt because juries acquitted suspects regularly. Capital punishment was eliminated gradually for all offences except murder, treason and piracy.

In the years following the rebellion of 1837-38 in Canada's province, feeling remained high between French- and English-speaking settlers because the rebel leaders in Upper and Lower Canada were dealt with in different ways.

In Lower Canada, 12 French speaking "patriotes" were hanged for murder and treason and 60 were exiled to the Australian penal colony and elsewhere. They were allowed to return home about 10 years later.

In Upper Canada, the English-speaking rebel leaders were deported to the United States and 12 rebels charged with treason were acquitted. The only executions involved Americans who had taken advantage of the rebellion to carry out armed raids.

Public hangings were discontinued after 1869, when a Fenian terrorist named Patrick Whelan was executed in Ottawa for the assassination the previous year of D'Arcy McGee, Irish - born cabinet minister and one of the Fathers of Confederation. Whelan protested his innocence to the end.

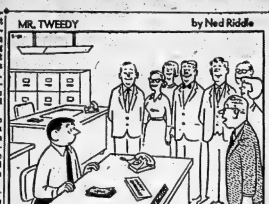
POISONED RELATIONS

The hanging of Louis Riel in 1885 remains the most contentious in Canadian history. The French-speaking Metis leader, at one time elected to Parliament though he never took his seat, was convicted of murder for ordering the "execution" of Thomas Scott in the 1870 northwest uprising.

His execution after the second Metis revolt in 1885 poisoned English - French relations for years. The Quebec legislature and Quebec MPs appealed repeatedly for the commutation of his sentence, while Ontario and the West pressed the government to let the death sentence stand.

The complete abolition of capital punishment was first proposed in Canada in 1914 by a Montreal Liberal MP, Robert Bickerdike. In several sessions beginning with that year his private member's bill was "talked out" after lengthy debates. The same thing happened in 1924 on a bill sponsored by Rev. William Irvine, Labor MP for Calgary East.

In 1937 a special committee studied a private member's bill to replace the gallows with a gas chamber but reported against it. The sponsor was Dr. John Blair, then Liberal MP for Wellington, North. The CCF came out for abolition and several of its members, including Rosa Thatcher, now Liberal premier of Saskatchewan, introduced bills in 1950 and 1952.



FOUND LITTLE FAVOR

In 1960, still another abolition bill was introduced by Frank McGee, then Conservative MP for York-Scarborough. In a two day debate that filled Commons public galleries, 20 MPs spoke against abolition, 12 in favor and two said they were undecided. No vote was taken and the bill died on the order paper.

Of the 13 Quebec MPs who entered the debate, only Marcel Assalin, then Conservative MP for Charlevoix, favored abolition. Opposition to the bill was led by rural backbenchers and such so-called "old guard" Liberals as Yvon Dupuis, Guy Rouleau and Adrien Mercier, subsequently named to the Quebec Superior Court.

Alexis Caron not only urged retention of the death penalty but asked that it be extended to apply to narcotics racketeers and men convicted of raping children.

An abolitionist bill by Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) was "talked out" March 24, 1964, after only one hour of debate. Creditiste Leader Real Caouette and Guy Marcoux (SC — Quebec - Montmorency) opposed the measure, while two Liberals (Robert Temple and Hubert Badanai) supported it.

"We started to buy a gift but decided you'd prefer cash in case you ever want to get a nose job."

Cheese and Ice Cream to Absorb Increase in Production of Milk

Total milk production for the first six months of 1965 is forecast at 8,900 million pounds compared with 8,821 million pounds a year earlier. A large part of the additional milk is expected to be used in the manufacture of cheddar cheese and ice cream. The substantial increase which occurred in cheese production during the first quarter is not expected to be of the same magnitude during the second quarter. The seasonal rise in creamery butter production for April and May of this year is likely to be greater than last year.

The quantity of milk going into fluid trade during the first half of 1965 is expected to show a slight increase of about one or two per cent over the previous year.

Record creamery butter consumption of 307 million pounds, or 18.5 pounds per person, was reached in 1964. It is likely that a similar high consumption may prevail in 1965.

MORE CHEESE EATEN

Strong demand for cheddar cheese pushed consumption to new heights of 122 million pounds or 8.8 lbs. per person, in 1964, reflecting a further rise in per capita consumption. These trends are expected to continue in the current year.

Based on the production and export trends apparent in the first quarter of 1965, the export market for dry skim milk and dry whole milk is likely to take about ten per cent more product during the first half of 1965 compared with a year earlier. With domestic powder consumption continuing at record level in 1965, the production of dry skim milk and dry whole milk is likely to rise in 1965 over last year.

The new interim dairy program, beginning May 1, 1965, and ending March 31, 1966, is expected to provide producers a national average return of $3.50 per hundred pounds for domestically - used manufacturing milk. The creamery butter support price remains at 64 cents per pound. Farmers' returns will continue to be supported at the 64 cent level through the Stabilization Board's purchase price of 55 cents per pound creamery butter and a payment to producers of 12.5 cents per pound on butterfat used in the manufacture of creamery butter. During the last dairy support year, the Board's buying and selling price was 53 cents. This change benefits part of the cost of the program from the general taxpayer to the consumer of creamery butter.

Under the 1965-66 cheddar cheese support program, the A.S.R. is authorized to offer to purchase cheddar cheese at 32 cents per pound, basis delivery Montreal and Belleville. This is 2.5 cents per pound higher than in 1964-65.

Lists Officers At Arts and Crafts Club

The annual meeting of the Belleville Arts and Crafts Club was held on May 13th in the Recreation Centre in the form of a pot luck supper.

Mr. L. J. Doran installed the following officers for the 1963-64 season: president, Mrs. O. Baumeister; past president, Mrs. C. Gardner; 1st vice-president, Mrs. G. Davies; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Nederhoed; secretary, Mrs. J. Miles; treasurer, Mrs. P. Geisthorpe; program, Mrs. A. Pedersen and Mr. J. Layton; publicity, Mrs. T. Brown; membership, Mrs. Dingman; house, Mrs. R. Diamond; and social, Mrs. R. Williamson, Mrs. E. Bland and Mrs. B. Blake.

The guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Walter Sunahara, Art Director, continuing education program Planning for the Province of Ontario.

Mr. Sunahara reminded the group of the materials and facilities available to them such as films and summer courses. He also mentioned a craft directory which is being compiled prior to 1967, in which will be listed names and addresses of anyone whose work meets certain standards.

To then gave a demonstration of batik, a process of Indonesian art whereby fabrics are colored by covering part of the material with melted wax so that only the uncovered portions will take the dye.

Mrs. C. Summers thanked Mr. Sunahara for his interesting talk and demonstration.

NEW ART GALLERY

In Kingston last Friday evening a new Art Gallery, the Irene McKim Gallery of Art, was officially opened at 102 Princess Street by His Worship Mayor Robert Fyne.

Mrs. McKim is a well known Kingston artist who is also concerned with the Agnes Etherington Art Center at Queen's University. She is showing work by many professional as well as non-professional artists from Toronto, New York, Kingston and Belleville. The Belleville artists, Muriel Andrews and Dorothy Brown, were invited to exhibit at the opening.

Cold Climate May Produce Bachelors

OSLO (Reuters)—A Norwegian professor believes northern bachelors are the "frozen" into their unmarried state.

Prof. Johan Vogt, head of the demographic institute at Oslo University, believes that a cold climate may produce many bachelors—and vice versa.

In support of his theory Vogt, who has married twice, points to the abnormal number of bachelors in Norway, Sweden and Finland.

In Norway, there are nearly twice as many bachelors as in Britain, the United States, Denmark, West Germany and France, and almost four times as many as in southern European countries.

"I am unable to explain why we have so many bachelors," Vogt said. "Maybe the social scientists and psychologists can.

"The fact is that our studies of the married rate show that in Norway between 10 and 15 per cent of all men do not marry at all, and there is nothing to indicate an imminent change in the situation.

"In Britain, the United States, Denmark, West Germany and France between six and eight per cent of men remain unmarried, while in southern European countries only three to four per cent remain unmarried. In Egypt, only two per cent remain bachelors."

"It might be that the great number of bachelors in the land of the Vikings has something to do with our cold climate. It is quite abnormal that one in every six Norwegian men does not marry at all."

Vogt said studies show a great change in the marriage rate in the post-Second World War years.

Almost 15 per cent of all women now marry before they reach the age of 20. This is three times as many as in the years after the First World War, he said, and the chance is just as great for the men.

Almost 30 per cent of women and about 40 per cent of men marry before the age of 30. This means that Norwegian women have children much earlier than a generation ago.

U.C.W Meeting

EVENING GROUP U.C.W.

DESERONTO — The evening group of the Deseronto United Church Women met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Ivan Hall.

Mrs. G. Gould opened the meeting by reading an appropriate message.

Mrs. S. Knapp led the devotional service which carried the theme "Called to Serve Man," and was assisted by Mrs. W. Higgins.

Mrs. H. VanVlack, Mrs. V. Boomhour and Mrs. W. Higgins were appointed a committee to prepare plans for a strawberry social to be held in June, a bake table and fancy work table will be in charge. An announcement was made of a rally to be held in Empey Hill Church in the fall. It was decided by the group to pay the expenses incurred by sending church bulletins to the members of the church who are residents at the Hastings County Home.

The program for the evening included a humorous reading on spring housecleaning read by Mrs. R. Kimmett, a vocal duet by Mrs. W. Higgins and Mrs. V. Schell and by a contest, won by Mrs. W. Wood.

Prison Superintendent Visits Girls at The Corner

VANCOUVER (CP) — Isabel Macneill went for a walk recently to The Corner gathering place of Vancouver drug addicts.

She was greeted with stunned surprise wherever she went. Girls pointed her out to their friends, then crowded around to stare closer. Many expressed delight at seeing her. One hugged her.

And as she walked, or sat in a restaurant, Miss Macneil freely-quoted some of "my little girls."

Miss Macneill is superintendent of the prison for women at Kingston, Ont. She was here in connection with a new federal narcotics penitentiary being built at Matsqui, 30 miles east of Vancouver.

Sixty-three per cent of the prisoners at Kingston last year were serving time for narcotic offences. Miss Macneill is known for the help she has given addicts and cases over that she has helped more than any other single Canadian.

She spent seven hours on The Corner in two trips.

As she met "my girls" she would exchange news of others.

There was 37-year-old Vera, a graduate who said she had been off drugs since October because she was afraid of a "hitch" — habitual criminal charge. Later she turned up obviously "high" on drugs.

They argued the fate of another girl who was supposed to be off drugs.

HELP NEEDED

"But you know she'll never make it, that she'll be back here," said Vera.

"She'll make it," replied Miss Macneill.

"They shouldn't be here," she commented. "They shouldn't be in prison either.

"We have not prepared them for living. We have not provided enough for them in their communities—not enough education, skills or preparation for independence.

She visited two restaurants—haunts of addicted pushers—and talked to male and women who were "high" from having a fix.

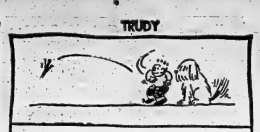
Afterwards, she said: "Horrible—worse than any corner I have seen, in many ways.

"It is concentrated in so small an area, so terribly drab. It is the true addict society, a lonely, lost society. They come here to associate, not for friendship but for drugs.

"They have no comfort greater than addiction. They cannot find comfort in society and we seem unable to find it for them.

"What is so tragic—indeed horrifying—is that I knew them when they are productive people who can do well. They could all be useful people.

"We cannot pull them out of this. None of these people are going anywhere except to their own destruction."



MAKE NEW CAMERA

LONDON (CP) — BBC engineers have developed a new type of television camera which overcomes one of the main arguments against televising parliamentary debates. Smaller than the ordinary model, its main advantage is that it does not need extra lighting.

City Woman Is Spending Her Life Working for Rural Women of India

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Womens Editor

TORONTO (CP) — A city woman, Aroti Dutt of Calcutta, India, is spending her life working for rural women in India and throughout the world.

She says she married into the work, while she was still an undergraduate in 1933 her late mother - in - law, Saroj Nalini, founded a countrywomen's organization. She was 16 and her name since 1955. Its work is similar to the work of women's Institutes.

Although she never met her mother-in-law, Mrs. Dutt says she found, shortly after graduation from Calcutta University, that she was expected to take an interest in the association.

"They expected me to be on committees and to distribute prizes. Instead, I became a worker."

Mrs. Dutt is Asian vice-president of the Associated Country Women of the World and slated to become its first Asian president in September.

She was in Toronto Thursday to address the Provincial Conference of Women, sponsored by the women's advisory committee of the Ontario department of economics and development.

At home Mrs. Dutt runs a training institute and teachers' training college operated in Calcutta by her association and is chairman of a pilot project which is taking training to women in rural areas.

The three - year program is being subsidized by the Women's Institutes of Great Britain and is aimed at taking training to women who are leaders in 18 communities.

Mrs. Dutt says she considers nutrition and literacy the two most urgent problems in developing countries.

After-Care Services Outlined At Hospital Auxiliary Meet

A patient discharged from hospital needs extensive aid in returning to normal living, Miss Kathleen A. Abbott, Supervisor of Public Health Nursing for the city of Belleville, told the May meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary in Education Hall.

After-care can be considered as the care needed by patients recovering from a disability such as a stroke, a new baby, mental illness, an amputation or disease. Some medical authorities feel that undue emphasis has been placed on the number of hospital beds and insufficient attention given to good after-care policies, the speaker said. Total recovery occurs most often when the hospital stay is short, and the patient is referred by his doctor to the after-care facilities existing in his community.

AFTER CARE FACILITIES

In some cities excellent after care facilities exist but too often they are not used to advantage. Among after-care resources are nursing or convalescent homes, VON home nursing, White Cross centres to help rehabilitate mental patients, occupational therapy, Sheltered Workshops, physiotherapy treatment in the home, out-patient clinics and homemaker services to assist in the patient's own home. Before discharge from the hospital, a patient can be made aware of his community's after care services and be directed to them by the Public Health nurse in the community can aid in informing citizens of these available services. In Belleville excellent facilities exist to assist the ex-hospital patient and an effort is being made to use them to the best advantage.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. T. N. Davidson and the thanks of the meeting were expressed by Miss Abbott to Mrs. F. A. Beeby.

Mrs. William Dafoe, president of the Auxiliary, presided over the business meeting at which convenors' reports were read. Mrs. W. J. Musgrove, convener of the Opportunity Shop, where the Auxiliary's most important money - raising projects, informed the members that the shop is well stocked with used clothing and household articles. Since the store will close for the summer at the end of June and must be cleared of merchandise, bargains exist for thrifty Belleville shoppers at the present time.

Plans were discussed for the Auxiliary's Mother and Daughter tea to be held on May 22 in honor of the nurses' graduating class at the Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. William Dallas, Mrs. F. A. Beeby and Mrs. Herbert Brown, who represented the Belleville Auxiliary at the recent Regional Conference of the Ontario Auxiliaries in Brockville, reported on the conference.

Ann Landers

Subsidized Escort Makes Birds Sing 'Cheap-cheap'

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've known Warren a long time but he never asked me out until two months ago. On our first date he suggested that I meet him inside the movie because he might be late. He said, "I hope you won't mind buying your own ticket."

A week later Warren invited me to a concert and asked me to pick up a pair of tickets because my office is next door to the ticket agency. He said "I'll reimburse you, of course." Somehow it slipped his mind.

He asked me to select a birthday gift for his mother. I spent $15. He keeps saying, "I must pay you for Mother's gift" — but I've yet to see the money. Twice I have been stuck for taxis because he didn't have anything smaller than a $20 bill. Last night he asked me to bring an extra pack of cigarettes because he hadn't had time to buy any.

I've never known a fellow who behaved this way but when I am with Warren the skies are blue and I can hear the birds sing. Any advice for me? — DEFICIT DONNA.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR DONNA — Have you listened to those birds carefully? I think they are saying "Cheap-cheap."

Put an end to the bumming routine. If Warren disappears you haven't lost much.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Why do people who write a daily column insist on putting in a picture of themselves — and a picture that was made 20 years ago at that? No columnist whose mug shot I've seen in the paper could be recognized from his picture.

The space your picture uses up could accommodate about 85 words. I would rather read what you say than look at your face. I suggest you drop the picture, Miss Landers. Thanks a lot. — PHOTOPINISH.

DEAR PHOTOPINISH — The mug shots which appear with columns are printed not because the writer thinks he is beautiful, but because a picture helps the reader find the column immediately.

When my column first began no picture was used. After several readers accused me of being a cigar-chomping male I asked my staff if they would run my picture.

Now, aren't you sorry you said all those mean things?

DEAR ANN LANDERS — If you can tell me how to free myself of my step-children without losing my husband you are a miracle worker.

We have been married 18 months. My husband's sons have borrowed money which I'm sure will never be repaid. They come over and drive his car out of the driveway without asking. They borrow his fishing equipment, walk off with his golf clubs, then complain because his golf balls are old.

My husband's daughter carried off my steam iron last week. When I asked her to return it she said, "I thought it was my mother's." I told her the iron was mine and she replied, "I dropped it and it's not worth fixing."

Saturday she brought her three children over and said they'd be back for them Sunday afternoon. (They had made plans to go to the mountains and the sitter fell through.)

My husband says I have to get along with them because they are his kids. How can I — and still keep my sanity? — S-BALL.

DEAR S — You can't do anything about a father who is a shmook, but you don't have to be one, too.

Tell your husband's daughter to keep her pea-pickin' hands off your appliances. Refuse to allow her to dump her children on you. Let your husband know you will not allow his children to use you so shamelessly.

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony in home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

READERS' COLUMN

LETTER:

. . . please keep your casserole and oven dishes coming — anything which can be prepared in the morning and popped into the oven in time for supper. You are truly a godsend with these . . . meanwhile I am enclosing my Hamburg Chop Suey . . . Molly V. R.

ANSWER:

I tried your Hamburg Chop Suey and it is fine. What .follows is according to your recipe and my method.

HAMBURG CHOP SUEY (courtesy Julie V. R.) serves 6 generously):

4 teaspoons butter, 1 onion, chopped (or ½ Spanish onion, chopped), 1¼ lbs. lean hamburg meat, 3 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup celery sliced thinly diagonally, one 20-oz. can mixed Chinese (chop suey) vegetables, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1" to 1½ tablespoon Soy sauce, 1 tablespoon water, hot cooked rice (see below).

Cook 1¼ cups rice at simmering point in heavy pot with 2 cups boiling water and 1½ teaspoons salt, covered, for 30 minutes.

In large frying pan sear the meat with the onion in the hot butter until meat loses red color, turning and chopping with fork to break up lumps. Add the salt, pepper and celery. Drain the liquid from the chop suey vegetables, measure the liquid and make it up to 2 cups by adding boiling water. Add this liquid to pan and simmer 10 minutes. Add drained chop suey vegetables and bring to boiling. Stir the cornstarch into the soy sauce and 1 tablespoon cold water to make a smooth paste and stir in to chop suey until slightly thickened.

Chilled Fruit Juice; Cocktail Wafers; Genuine Italian Pizza (see Thursday, May 30th); Tossed Lettuce, Spinach and Cucumber Salad with Italian French Dressing; Butterscotch Pecan Ice Cream; Orange Chiffon Cake; Tea.

NOTE:

I have a suggestion to make: those of you who are interested in this dish for guest occasions could add ½ lb. sliced mushrooms when celery is added and if desired, strew shaved toasted almonds over top of chop suey just before serving.

HAM AND VEGETABLE SCALLOP (serves 4):

About 2 or 3 cups (at least ¾ lb.) cooked ham, cut into bite-size pieces, 1 tablespoon butter, 2¼ tablespoons flour, one 10-oz. can undiluted mushroom soup, 2 cup milk, 3 cups sliced raw potatoes, 1 cup sliced raw carrots, ¼ cup chopped onion, about ½ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper.

Melt butter, blend in flour and then stir in soup and milk until it comes just to boiling. In a large buttered casserole arrange ham pieces and vegetables in alternate layers, sprinkling with salt and pepper as you layer. Pour sauce over. Bake, covered, at 375 deg. Fahr. for 75 minutes. Uncover to brown during last 15 minutes.

NICHOLSON COLLEGE P.T.A.

The final meeting of the year of Nicholson Catholic College P.T.A. was held Tuesday evening at the college. The president Mr. E. Reed presided and Rev. Father C. H. Gazeley opened the meeting with prayer.

The secretary, Mrs. G. W. Gist read the minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. W. R. Doyle.

Mr. H. Brown, an executive member of the CPTA gave an interesting report on the CPTA convention held in Toronto in April.

Mr. H. Brown on behalf of the nominating committee presented the following slate of officers for 1965-1966:

Spiritual director, Right Rev. Msgr. Sullivan; honorary president, Rev. Sister Mary Teresa; past president, Mr. O. Griffiths; president, Mr. E. J. Reed; secretary, Mrs. G. W. Gist; treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Doyle, and welfare, Mrs. L. Bond.

Rev. Sister Mary Teresa, the school principal, introduced the candidates for uniform for the parents, present by invitation, of students who will enter the college in the fall.

Jewish Folk Open Course In Fall

MONTREAL (CP)—An adult education program to teach its 6,500 members how to take social and legislative action has been drawn up by the National Council of Jewish Women of Canada.

The correspondence course in public affairs, organized by Mrs. M. J. Freiman of Vancouver, will be offered this fall.

"Our ultimate hope is that every member who takes this course will be able to make her contribution to the community by deliberate, thoughtful and active behavior," Mrs. Freiman said in an interview during the council's May 15-26 biennial convention here.

The course is to take the form of study discussion groups in cities from Montreal to Vancouver. Planned in consultation with Dr. Cole Verner, professor of adult education at the University of British Columbia, it is seven sessions long.

The course attempts to delineate the major issues, in Canadian life today, Mrs. Freiman, the mother of two teen-age daughters, said. These issues are grouped under the headings of Canadian unity, economic goals and social organization.

"We are asking a number of questions and we are trying to get Canadian people to face these questions," she said.

Is Canada really a nation or only a phrase? Barriers does bicultural ism really mean? Can the provinces remain sovereign to help weld us into a nation? These are some of the questions to be discussed under the first heading.

C.N.I.B. Advisory Board Elects Officers at Annual Meeting

By RETA LAWRENCE

The annual meeting of the Hastings County Advisory Board, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, took the form of a dinner meeting in the Stirling Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening.

Rev. Thomas Dodds pronounced the invocation and Dr. H. E. Welch, Chairman of the Board, chaired the meeting.

Greetings were brought from Hastings County by Warden Frederick Beckett and from the village of Stirling by Mr. B. Tullis of the Stirling News Argus who spoke on behalf of Reeve Joseph Rogers, who was unable to be present.

Reports were presented by the county representatives, by the campaign convener, Mrs. O. W. Thurston, by Miss M. W. Peck, welfare convener, Miss Myra Vipond, home teacher, and Mr. D. J. McCallum, assistant field secretary.

WORK OF C.N.I.B.

Mr. McCallum spoke at length on the work of the C.N.I.B. in the prevention of blindness and the Eye Bank of Canada. He stressed that eye defects in children, such as amblyopia and crossed eyes, must be treated before the age of seven years or it is usually too late. Fifty per cent of these troubles are preventable and if financial stress prevents payment for treatment, aid should be referred to the C.N.I.B.

Mr. P. I. Timmins, field secretary, read the annual report. He suggested that his report be explained by "vision, eyes" of the Institute, namely "to provide services for the blind and to prevent blindness wherever possible." Since all programs must be flexible and tailored to suit each blind person, the services are many and varied.

Each year, in Canada, more than two thousand people lost their sight. Their individual problems, responsibilities, interests, skills and needs must be assessed. Home teaching, adjustment training, employment, teaching of skills in the home, mobility training, library services, Braille teaching, recreation, welfare, and residential care must all be undertaken.

Miss Myra Vipond, who has been home teacher in Hastings County, is being transferred to London. Her services here have been much appreciated. It is hoped there will be a replacement, though people in her category are not numerous.

MANY PROBLEMS

Miss Vipond spoke of the many problems of placing sighted people in remunerative positions, but in the past year five local blind have been employed through C.N.I.B. Also, many saleable articles are produced in the home, under the guidance of home workers.

C.N.I.B. ADVISORY BOARD

For those who have the accident desire to join the C.N.I.B. has available Braille and tapes of great literature as well as the current publications. There is also instruction in braille and moon type reading. There are seven centres of Hastings County by varolled at the Ontario School for the Blind in Brantford.

Through efforts of the C.N.I.B. and C.C.B., and in co-operation with the Lions Club of Ontario and the Ontario Government, the Lake Joseph Adjustment and Holiday Centre has come into being. Here the blind can holiday in the most delightful surroundings of the Lake of the Woods.

SOCIAL CLUBS

Social Clubs such as the Belleville White Cane Club also afford amusement and recreation.

Pointe-St. Lawrence Hall in Kingston is one of ten C.N.I.B. residences in Ontario. Since its opening in 1959, residential care has been provided for many blind people from this County.

Mr. Timmins said, "It is more humane and more economical to prevent blindness than to provide services after loss of sight."

Due to the higher cost of materials and services the Institute closes the year with a deficit. He urged everyone to support the United Appeal, of which the C.N.I.B. is a participating agency.

NOMINATING REPORT

Mr. M. J. Stoesbury presented the report of the nominating committee and the slate of officers for the following year. Due to the resignations of Mr. Murray Lindsay, Miss Roblin and Dr. Welch, who is leaving for the University of Manitoba, three new members have been appointed to the board. They are: Mr. George O'Brien, Miss Lois Rollins and Mrs. J. W. Lawrence.

Following is the slate of officers:

Immediate past chairman, Dr. H. E. Welch; chairman, Mrs. H. Rollins; 1st vice-chairman, Mr. M. J. Stoesbury; 2nd vice-chairman, Mr. H. P. Wills; 3rd vice-chairman, Dr. E. H. Clarke (Trenton); secretary, Miss Lois Rollins; treasurer, Mr. T. J. Fluney; assistant treasurer, Mr. J. R. Blackburn, Mr. T. Rotherington (Trenton); welfare convener, Mrs. M. E. Peck; public relations, Mrs. J. W. Lawrence.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. G. Wishart introduced the guest speaker, Miss Millie Chisholm, Director of Home Teaching, Ontario Division, CNIB.

Miss Umahara, a petite and pretty brunette, is Canadian born of Japanese parentage. She has lost all sight, for unknown reasons, during her youth, but despite this, she is a charming, humorous speaker.

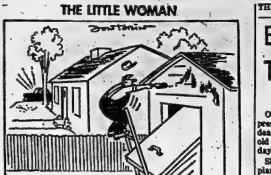
She brought a touch of humor to some tragic situations by telling of the predicaments encountered by the blind when people who take pride in their independence and abilities to look after themselves become bothersome their families and their homes.

Miss Umahara stressed the need for teaching the families of the blind, so that the person so afflicted is allowed to do as much for himself as possible. Children who are born blind must be taught to help occupy as they can be. Their toys must be chosen, not for appearance, but for strength considered for shape, size, texture and sound. Elderly people must be given opportunity to be with those like themselves and young people must acquire attitudes and be given opportunity to put their new-found skills to useful purpose. Also they must learn to adjust and to add to their capabilities. Sometimes even language barriers must be overcome. All these respects the free services of specially trained workers are invaluable.

There are 14 home teachers in Ontario, trained in crafts and psychology, as well as possessing a deep understanding of the blind.

The ultimate purpose of the C.N.I.B. is to serve humanity and help find freedom of destiny.

Mrs. Rollins graciously thanked the guest-speaker, and Mr. Frid expressed appreciation to the City of Belleville, The County of Hastings, the Town of Trenton, for the grants of money, and to all organizations and individuals who assisted or contributed to the work for the blind during the past year.



The in-coming chairman, Mrs. Rollins, adjourned the meeting.

Woman's Place in Economy Discussed at Conference

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Womens Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Woman's place in the economy, as volunteer worker and wife, was discussed Thursday during an all-day Ontario provincial conference for women.

More than 500 women, most representing women's organizations throughout Ontario, attended the conference sponsored by the women's advisory committee of the Ontario department of economics and development. Mrs. G. Lyonnaise of Port Colborne presided.

Economics Minister Stanley Randall urged the women to participate in the "buy Canadian" and "buy Ontario" campaigns.

Ruth Addison of Ottawa, a federal civil service commissioner, asked delegates to think about necessary changes in employment and training practices to meet the changing pattern of the work force brought about by women.

Miss Addison said the 2,000,000 women who hold jobs in Canada now comprise 30 per cent of the work force. More than 80 per cent of them are married and an increasing number are working in their 40s and 50s who have gone back to work after raising families.

APPRAISAL NEEDED

In light of this trend, she said, there must be a careful appraisal of factors involved in combining marriage and a career.

D. E. Williams, chairman of the Ontario Food Council, said women as food buyers should learn about food production from farm to shelf and be prepared to be active in consumer organizations.

Mary B. McRae of Toronto, transfer officer with the Royal Trust Company, said women who have money to invest should be sure to get sound, reliable advice on how to invest it to suit their needs.

SHOW HOSPITALITY

Mrs. Leslie Stuart of Montreal, co-ordinator on women's activities for Expo '67, urged conference delegates to show hospitality to the 10,000 visitors from other countries expected to attend the exhibition.

Aroti Dutt of Calcutta, India, Asian vice-president of the Associated Country Women of the World, talked about women's place in the international scheme. She said:

"The importance of women's influence on different aspects of human life has never been denied in any community or country — only the degree of recognition has differed. Thus it has become an accepted idea that the best way to judge the position of a nation is to find out the status of its women."

U. C. W. Meetings

WELLMAN'S U. C. W.

RAWDON — Wellman's United Church Women held their May meeting at the church with Mrs. Omar Dracup in charge.

Mrs. Burton White and Mrs. A. Akins gave the devotional with readings by Mrs. Douglas Clancy and Mrs. John Carlisle.

Mrs. Fred Beckett sang a solo and the president conducted the Bible study on the theme of salvation.

Refreshments were served in the church kitchen at the close of the meeting.

Empress of Iran Close To Work With Children

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—"Being empress of Iran means a great deal of responsibility," 26-year-old Farah Pahlavi said Thursday.

She said her position means planning her work, sharing her time with official duties, caring for her family, and helping with many Iranian social and welfare organizations.

"I am especially interested in organizations concerned with children," the wife of the Shah of Iran said in a television interview which was video-taped for use on the CBC French network May 26.

The living room was beautifully decorated for the occasion, with pink streamers and white bells. A wishing-well filled with gifts completed the decor.

The evening's entertainment opened with a sing - song followed with a reading by Mrs. Herold Howes. A contest, "Vegetable Courtship" was won by Mrs. J. Lucas and Miss Margaret Carr. Mrs. Olive Clare gave two readings. A contest was won by Mrs. Joan Westfall and Mrs. Della Sleerwin, and Mrs. Harold Howes read a reading.

Mrs. J. Lucas read the address to the bride-to-be and Miss Lois Cooper and Miss Renae Wever assisted her in opening the gifts.

The bride-to-be expressed sincere appreciation.

Japanese Tea Sponsored by Roslin G. A.

ROSLIN — A Japanese Tea was held in St. Paul's Church Parish Hall, on Tuesday evening, sponsored by the Girl's Auxiliary under the leadership of Mrs. Earl Gray, and assistant leader, Miss Dianne Gee.

The hall was decorated with apple and plum blossoms and lit with Japanese lanterns. A table of beach hats were on sale donated by a Belleville firm. Another table displayed the articles made by the girls during the winter months towards their missionary project. Articles included ribbon corsages, felt Bible covers, book - marks, soap satchets and quilt. The first prize trophy for the Diocese of Ontario, won by St. Paul's G. A. girls at the spring festival in Kingston, was on display.

AUTHENTIC JAPANESE RELICS

Another table featured a Japanese silk table cover, photos of Japan, ivory chopsticks, rings, fans, vases, a tea pot and cream and sugar, cups and a doll. Nightwear sewn by the Dorcas group was exhibited.

Mrs. Ray of Holloway won a floral centerpiece donated by a Belleville florist.

Guests entered the tearoom through a white arbor, and the tables were centred with miniature rickshaws. The girls serving the tables and the ladies pouring tea were dressed in Japanese costumes, many of which were authentic gowns from Japan.

Successful Living

Mothers Agree on Need Of Suspendered Slacks

DEAR DORIS — "Mother of Girls" deplores the lack of suspenders on children's clothing. My solution was to sew my own overalls and slacks, equipped with straps, to be worn under pullover sweaters and most overblouses.

My girls dislike suspenders so I did the next best thing; that way tummies are kept warm and neat. — MOTHER OF GIRLS TOO.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I certainly agree with "Mother of Girls." I have been fighting the same problem for years, but because no one else wears suspenders my boys won't wear them either. I am sure this belt business is harmful to the young stomachs; they wear them so tight, yet the shirt tail is always hanging out.

Three cheers to "Mother of Girls." I hope more mothers realize the situation. — ANOTHER MOTHER OF FOUR.

DEAR MOTHERS — Perhaps "M. of G. TOO" has an idea here for "Another M of Four." If these notes echo the feelings of many, how about making contact with the Canadian Association of Consumers?

Manufacturers have been influenced by the Hand That Rocks the Cradle (and Doctors the Sniffles) before this.

DEAR DORIS — To Desperate who was chubby at 12 and being teased, I think I too may have an answer. At 12, I was in the same position.

One day I was out in the schoolyard attempting to throw the discus when I decided: "Say, I like this!" I worked on throwing it after school for many weeks. Soon the other kids began to notice my improvement and encouraged me. Even though some tried to discourage me, I plodded on.

Well, last summer I was a medallist in the British Columbian championships. I am now starting to sprint, and am getting good times. Never more shall I be teased! — AN AMATHUR ATHLETE.

DEAR ATHLETE — Moral: If people tease you, start throwing things — discuses, that is.

(Desperate: Can you, too, find a favorite sport which will exercise off the chubbiness and turn the teasers into fans?)

(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

QUINTE AREA EXECUTIVE

The Quinte Area executive of the Girl Guides met at the camp at Waupoos on Saturday, May 15th, with representatives from the counties of Lennox and Addington, Hastings, Northumberland and Prince Edward present. As well as dealing with the regular business agenda 500 trees were planted, to be used for re-planting during the centennial year 1967.

This Sunday an anniversary tea is being held in the main house on the Waupoos camp site commemorating 50 years of Guiding in Prince Edward County and it is expected that one of the founders of Guiding in Picton, Mrs. Gandier, Past Provincial Commissioner for Alberta, will be in attendance. There will be conducted tours of the camp site and also camps in session.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

The Experts Say

Regular Thorough Cleaning May Lengthen Car's Life

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—Your housekeeping skills and equipment applied to the inside of your car can pay dividends. Regular thorough cleaning may lengthen the car's life, besides cutting repair and replacement bills, let alone clothes cleaning bills.

It may also make your car worth more when trade-in time comes.

"A dealer will pay more for a car when he doesn't have to spend a lot of money cleaning it," says W. E. Johnston, used car manager for Volkswagen Canada.

Detergent, cleanser, upholstery shampoo, water and a vacuum cleaner, together with an eye for detail are the tools you need. Ko Sogawa, service manager for Herb's car rentals, says there are several areas people almost always forget to clean.

"They do not wipe the door jambs and door posts, the dash board and the ledge behind the back seat."

Mr. Johnston says they also forget the head liner—the roof lining—which absorbs all of the odors in a car.

SHAMPOO UPHOLSTERY

All of the upholstery, including the head liner, should be brushed regularly. For a thorough cleaning, Mr. Sogawa suggests using any commercial upholstery shampoo with a soft brush. He says it is effective on any type of upholstery, cloth, vinyl or leather.

"If there is a heavy strain, use any fabric cleaner that does not contain carbon tetrachloride. Carbon tet will leave a mark.

"To do the floor rug use the shampoo without diluting it." Mr. Johnston says, "take it out and wash it, and clean underneath it. Dirt and stones left under matting will split the rubber."

The small-nozzled radiator attachment for your vacuum cleaner will be a help getting into crevices in the upholstery.

The insides of your windshield and windows will discolor, often without your realising it, especially if people smoke in your car. Warm water with a spoonful of vinegar or cleanser should clear off grime both inside and out.

Mr. Sogawa recommends a teaspoon of Ortonol in a warm water for washing the outside of the car and the metal inside, including those door jambs.

He says the water should be warm, not hot, and you should rinse the car afterward.

If you want to polish it, it might be wise to check with the manufacturer's service department first. Some modern finishes should not be polished.

"Cars should be washed once a week in the winter and even in the summer," Mr. Johnston says. "Dust will eventually harm the finish. You should also touch up finish damage such as stone chips as soon as it happens because most used manufacturers have touch - up paint available.".

He suggests also running a hose underneath bumpers and fenders if you can, to keep dirt and salt from down.

Cleansers used carefully will help keep chrome shining, and Mr. Johnston recommends keeping a fairly heavy coat of polish on chrome.

Toys Given To Empress For Children

OTTAWA (CP) — Empress Farah Diba Pahlavi of Iran will be taking a Toronto-made toy back home to her two children when she and her husband the shah complete their state visit to Canada May 26.

The educational toy, a series of foam rubber pieces in geometrical shapes, is used to encourage manual co-ordination in pre-school children. The children learn to fit the pieces together properly and to match various colors.

The toy was given to the empress after she admired one like it at the Ottawa day nursery Thursday. It is likely to go to the royal kindergarten in Tehran which the empress has set up for her son, Crown Prince Reza, 5, and daughter, Princess Farahnaz, 3.

Friends Honor Nonagenarian

STIRLING — Mrs. C. A. MacConnell, Front Street West observed her 98th birthday on May 15th with approximately 25 relatives, friends and neighbors in attendance for the afternoon and evening at her home. She was the recipient of a large selection of greeting cards and personal gifts and a special message from John Diefenbaker. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. MacConnell Beight.

Mrs. Bruce MacConnell of Kingston and her sister Mrs. John McKeown of Springbrook.

Mrs. MacConnell enjoys comparatively good health and has her own special rooms. She is always interested in the village news and hopes to live long enough to celebrate her 100th anniversary.

The honored guest has four sons living, Lorne and Russ, both retired and living at her home in Stirling; Thomas of Stirling who is at present ill in the Belleville General Hospital; Arthur of Brighton; also one daughter Mrs. Lillian Laird of London, Ontario. There is a large number of grandchildren, great grandchildren and great great grandchildren.

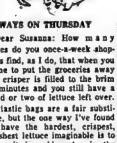
Plan V.O.N. Spring Tea

The regular monthly meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held on Monday with 17 members present.

A letter was read from Belleville United Appeal asking for canvassers for the 1965 campaign. Volunteers from the board are being lined up in the next ten days in order to facilitate a successful campaign.



President, Mrs. J. Nelles and nurse D. Connor gave a report on the recent annual convention they attended in Niagara Falls.

Plans were finalized for the annual spring tea in May.

Mrs. D. Connor reported that Miss Janet McClung, a public health graduate of Ottawa University has commenced her field work in the Belleville district.

Susanna's Family Fare

ALWAYS ON THURSDAY

Dear Susanna: How many times do you once-a-week shoppers find, as I do, that when you come to put the groceries away the crisper is filled to the brim in minutes and you still have a head or two of lettuce left over.

Plastic bags are a fair substitute, but the one way I've found to have the hardest, crispest, freshest lettuce imaginable is to store it in cold water in the fridge — immersed about half way. A covered bowl is best but not necessary. It is wise to change the water daily and to turn the lettuce over when you do. It lasts for ages this way and seems to discourage that ghastly rusting business.

Ideal extra storage for celery and carrots in the refrigerator is in a juice container half filled with cold water. — D. Wamsley

Dear Susanna: Those who have to cook small quantities for one or two persons will find a delight in the new miniature egg beaters — if these aren't available a toy one works every bit as well.

Another advantage is that if you are beating only one egg, you only need to use a tiny bowl and washing up afterwards is so much easier. — Mrs. Wolfe

I.O.D.E. Fair Attracts Many Patrons

MARMORA — Those who attended the I.O.D.E. fair on Tuesday afternoon and evening were offered many worthwhile demonstrations.

The event was held in the town hall. Guests were greeted by the Regent, Mrs. G. J. Meiklejohn and convener of the event, Mrs. Alice Stark. In charge of admission and lucky draws were Mrs. Glen Wentworth, Mrs. Charles Brady and Mrs. Irene Snell.

The hall was beautifully decorated with spring blossoms and flowers by Mrs. Don Marett with the I.O.D.E. standard displayed on the platform.

The art of weaving was explained by Mrs. H. P. Nayler with many articles sold.

Mrs. James Park supervised the hat bar when hats of every variety made by Mrs. Park were shown.

In the flower booth Mrs. Manley Lavender sold bulbs and plants and explained the mixing of soils. Rev. Maurice McLeod also assisted and donated plants for sale. Garden equipment courtesy of Maynes Five-to-a-Dollar store helped brighten the corner.

The cosmetic corner was in charge of of Mrs. Tom Papmulk and Mrs. Beverly Bradford. The bazaar table was convened by Mrs. Leonard Hodgeman and Mrs. John White. Bake table was convened by Mrs. Eugene Brady; art by Mrs. Bob Boriand; quilts by Mrs. Mary Jones; leathercraft by Mrs. Percy Carman and candles made shown by Mrs. C. Rogers and Mrs. Florence Fluhr.

Convener of the coffee bar was Mrs. Mel Borland, Mrs. Howard Bleecker, Mrs. Vaughan Glover and Mrs. Jack Reynolds. A hooked rug donated by Mrs. Wilson Thompson was won by Miss Jean Robson.

It was decided to make this fair an annual event.

Modern Call to Worship

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

When Hitler was the ma d Fuehrer of Germany, he restricted the activities of the churches. They were not allowed to maintain a youth group or a missionary society. The only two things for which they could meet were Bible study and worship. In his abysmal ignorance of religious matters, Hitler considered as harmless precisely the two things most needed for the on-going life of the church. If churches neglect these t w o things, Bible study and worship, they will become just another agency trying to c u r e the world's ills on a merely human level.

Worship has always been one of the major functions of religion. Men have used various means to remind themselves of the presence and activity o f God. Some of those means have been visible, such as altars and symbols. For the people of ancient Israel, the chief visible reminder of God's presence and power was the ark of the covenant. In addition, they o f t e n built altars of stone as reminders of places where they had worshipped, and to remind others of God's providence. (I Samuel 7:12)

It was natural, in a pre-scientific age, that men should fear these symbols. The unrighteous possession of the ark was interpreted as the cause of plagues. It is interesting that, even in those primitive times, men related the presence of rats and mice to disease which, in turn, was considered the result of the wrath of God. (I Samuel 6:4) Even then, however, there were those who doubted the connection between the possession of a foreign religious object and the presence of disaster, and who took steps to see whether the possession of a foreign symbol or mere chance was the cause of their trouble. (I Samuel 6:9)

In many places today, the importance of worship is not being stressed. The emphasis is on action. "Let's get the church out into the world," is the cry. This, of course, is important. If the church is to minister to the world's needs, it must get o u t where the people are. But the church does not go out in its own strength. It goes out in the name and power of God. If people are to minister in God's name, they must be made conscious of God's presence and power. The chief way to do this is through worship.

Worship reminds one to be grateful to God. It reminds one of his need for God. It opens the channel to God's healing a n d power. Through worship, men seek forgiveness and renewal. Worship puts them in touch with a higher power and will than their own.

The Uniform S u n d a y School lesson for May 23: "Worship in Jerusalem," II Samuel 6 through 8.

The purpose of worship is to cleanse and strengthen the worshipper for service and for noble living. Someone has likened the worship service to a rehearsal. The performance is what happens during the rest of the week. In worship one comes under the direction of the great Coach that one may go out to please Him by the way one performs in life. The worshipper comes for guidance. He goes out to live out that guidance. He comes for renewal. He goes out strengthened to live out the purposes of God.

MORE IMPORTANT THAN EVER

If ever worship has been important, surely it is today when one is surrounded on all sides by a material-mad world, and by the frenzied activities of men. Immersion in the everyday world can make one forget the reality of God. One spends so much time earning food for his body, he needs, as Isaiah put it, also to eat that which can "delight his soul "with fatness." (Isaiah 55:2-3) O n e spends so much time seeking financial security, he needs to strengthen his faith so he can enjoy security of soul. In a world of wide-spread loneliness, worship can remind all men that they do not live alone.

When seen in its true light, worship is not a duty, but a privilege and joy. "I was glad," said the Psalmist, "when they said to me, 'Let us go to the house of the Lord!" (Psalm 122: 1 RSV) "My soul longs, yea, faints for the c o u r ts of the Lord." (Psalm 84:2 RSV) Here is no complaint that one is being made to go to church. Here is gratitude that t h e r e is a old, worship still reminds men of the holiness of God. (I Samuel 6:20) It calls them a w a y from their false ways and offers them deliverance and h o p e. (I Samuel 7:3)

One glance at Pontiac's out-and-out beauty tells you why it enjoys so much popularity with Canadian car buyers. But looks are only part of the Pontiac story. Pontiac has a lot more than just glamour. Luxurious comfort, for instance, in the rich fabrics and thoughtful appointments of Pontiac's fashion-plate interiors. Swashbuckling performance, backed by outstanding dependability. And pace-setting Pontiac engineering developments. Like the all-new way Pontiac is built this year, with tough perimeter frame construction and curved glass side windows. Like dramatically improved road-holding ability from the new wider track and Full-Coil suspension. Plus a long list of other fine features and options that easily explain Pontiac's appeal to your practical side. As to how Pontiac gets its special place in your heart... just look at it!

Brief Against Statements To Lawyers and Ministers Being Divulged in Court

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Canadian law should be amended to make statements between accused and his counsel, minister or doctor privileged in court, the Ontario royal commission on civil rights was told Thursday.

J. C. Duthie, president of the Thunder Bay Bar Association, told Commissioner J. C. McRuer that unless the right of privilege is waived, statements made to lawyers, counsellors, physicians and ministers should not be divulged in court.

Amendments would be needed in the Canada Evidence Act and the Ontario Evidence Act to provide the measure, he said.

Mr. Duthie said his association is also opposed to mandatory breath analysis tests for drivers suspected of drinking. He termed such tests a form of "compulsory self - incrimination."

The brief submitted by Mr. Duthie for his association recommended investigation of alleged abuses of police power; screening of police applicants by means of psychological testing; and instruction of police officers on their authority and citizens' rights.

The brief said the recommendations were not meant to be critical of police officers but their implementation might improve relations between the public and police.

The brief said that only persons with legal training should be appointed magistrates, and that magistrates and judges should not be allowed to serve as police commissioners.

The association also criticized the use of "so-called administrative boards which really perform judicial functions"—such as the Workmen's Compensation Board — when their decisions cannot be appealed to the courts. Such boards should "follow rules which ensure full disclosure and impartiality," the brief said.

A further submission by the association said bail requirements when a summons would serve the purpose often result in unjustified detention.

Two cases in which local citizens were jailed overnight on minor charges were cited as examples of unjustified detention.

Mr. McRuer questioned how solicitors about the availability of justices of the peace and was told it often difficult to obtain the services of a justice of the peace after 5 p.m.

Mrs. Constance Pepler, a Port Arthur housewife, told the commission her rights were violated in the expropriation of land by the city of Port Arthur for an expressway.

Mrs. Pepler said that if she and her husband have to relocate they will have to go into considerable debt to do so.

She said the settlement price will be insufficient to relocate in similar surroundings without debt.

The commissioner said he had no jurisdiction in individual cases but the complaint involved a matter of principle which has apparently been affecting many other Ontario residents.

Commissioner McRuer, former chief justice of Ontario, was appointed by Premier Robarts as a one-man commission to investigate civil rights in Ontario. He was holding a one-day public hearing here.

THURSDAY, May 20, 1965

The Commons debated the government's proposals for speeding up House procedures.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the "guillotine" rule for debate time limits would make the Commons a "rubber stamp."

Lack of a permanent Speaker is the basic weakness of the Commons, he added.

The proposed rule changes provide for time limits for debate on bills and an end to challenges of rulings by the Speaker.

Stanley Knowles (NDP —Winnipeg North Centre) moved an amendment that supplementary spending estimates be lifted from a time limit.

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) moved a sub-amendment that extra spending estimates also be taken out.

FRIDAY, May 21

The Commons meets at 11 a.m. to continue debate on the rule change procedures. The Senate stands adjourned until May 25.

Bill to Limit Upper House Power Rejected

QUEBEC (CP) — A bill intended to limit upper house powers continued to occupy the assembly time Thursday even when a vote was taken to support Speaker Richard Hyde's ruling that rejection of amendments equalled rejection of the bill.

The Speaker's ruling was upheld 50-17 by the vote after Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson called for a separate motion to reject the bill.

Mr. Hyde ruled that when the assembly rejected the amendments, it rejected the bill as well.

The assembly threw out the bill because upper house amendments effectively killed the legislation aimed at restricting legislative council powers.

Premier Lesage then drafted an address to the Queen as a means of bypassing the council in order to restrict its powers. SERVES NOTICE

The Union Nationale's upper house leader, J. C. Asselin, served notice the legislative council plans its own address to the Queen calling for rejection of the lower house address.

During examination of the agriculture and colonization department estimates, Yvon Dupuis called on the government to establish sugar price controls and break sugar monopolies.

The large enterprises which control sugar prices have financial interests in the news media, he said.

Mr. Johnson criticized the Montreal Star for what he said was relegation to an inside page of court reports of anticombines act violations while "little scandals about $200 combines [political kick-backs] rated eight-column, front page treatment."

BECOME POWERFUL

SASKATOON (CP) — Universities are becoming powerful influences in their communities, Harrison McCain, John Kenneth Galbraith said Thursday. Dr. Galbraith, giving the convocation address to University of Saskatchewan graduates after receiving an honorary doctor of laws degree himself, said there were a number of recent instances in the United States in which the academic community had influenced community and national decisions.

New Attention to Arms Control and Disarmament Seen After Chinese Blast

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

China's explosion of a second nuclear device is the most spectacular of a number of developments leading to a new attention to disarmament and arms control.

The developments are being discussed in Britain and elsewhere amid suggestions that the 114-nation United Nations disarmament commission take a first step toward getting China into arms negotiations.

The warlike state of relations between the United States and China is frequently cited as an insurmountable barrier to such negotiations. But the other side of the coin is that the U.S. knows perhaps better than any other country how hazardous would be the failure to achieve nuclear control soon.

A high U.S. official told reporters following the recent North Atlantic alliance ministerial meeting in London that the great nations have only three years at the most to check a runaway spread of nuclear weapons.

After 1968 some 20 countries—including such rivals as India and Pakistan, Israel and the United Arab Republic — would be able to manufacture "cheap but deadly nuclear bombs."

China has so far shown no desire for arms negotiations except on terms unacceptable to the West but some London observers recall the time situation may well change.

China, in this view, is being no tougher now than it was when the Soviet Union was only a few years ago at the height of the cold war. Yet the Kremlin and the West have made progress on nuclear control.

Absence of China from nuclear negotiations might impel other countries into the nuclear race, particularly India, in the shadow of Peking power.

Observers recall the seemingly endless wrangling and horsetrading that went on between the U.S. and Russia before agreement was reached even on the shape of a disarmament negotiating body. There were interminable arguments over "parity" between East and West and about which neutrals should be included.

There were also arguments, as the Irish say, about whom the neutrals would be neutral against.

During that long interval, France became the fourth nuclear power after the U.S., Russia and Britain. France has never taken its seat at the negotiating table although it is nominally a member of the 18-country Geneva negotiating body.

Real East-West disarmament negotiations did not begin until 1961 and a partial test ban treaty was signed in 1963.

"In 1965 there is still no disarmament, but the all-out arms race, including the headlong nonsensical building of thermonuclear forces, is over," says Wayland Young in the Guardian.

"Those who cry 'never' to the possibility of talking arms control with China should reflect on this time scale."

WOOLWORTH TO EXPAND

The chairman of the board of the F. W. Woolworth Co. sees record sales and earnings ahead for his company and says it will expand shoe store operations into Canada. Robert C. Kirwan told the annual stockholders meeting Wednesday in Watertown, N.Y., that last year's net earnings of $1.89 a share of common stock represented an increase of 24 cents over 1963. The upward trend would continue through this year, he said.

COMPANY CHANGES NAME

Bathurst Power and Paper Co. Ltd. has changed its corporate name to Bathurst Paper Ltd., the company announced Thursday in Montreal. The company has also formed a new wholly - owned subsidiary Bathurst Paper (Chaleurs) Ltd. to operate a groundwood mill at New Richmond, in Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula.

TO SELL SHARES

The Ford Foundation plans to sell 6,000,000 shares of Ford Motor Co. common stock in a public offering. The stock at present market prices is worth about $366,000,000. The foundation said in New York it has begun talks with Ford Motor Co., and a group of underwriters headed by First Boston Corp. to register the offering with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Shah's Ottawa Visit Ends; UN Problems Considered

OTTAWA (CP)—The Shah of Iran flies to Quebec and the second leg of his first Canadian visit today after adding new strength to political and economic ties between the two countries.

The 45-year-old ruler and his wife, the Empress Farah, are scheduled to leave Uplands Airport after a 48-hour stay heavily accented by the social and ceremonial, but which government officials say should produce some concrete results.

Amid the run of dinners, receptions, wreath - layings and the like, the shah managed to spend almost three hours in informal talks with Prime Minister Pearson, External Affairs Minister Martin and Industry Minister Drury.

Out of these discussions, government sources said, may well come stronger practical ties between Canada and Iran, a Moslem nation of 23,000,000 population generally considered the West's staunchest ally in the Middle East.

The talks centred first on the United Nations and its twin problems of peace-keeping and finances. Both Canada and Iran now are pledged to renewed cooperation in efforts, first, to solve the financial crisis and, secondly, to produce permanent peace-keeping machinery along the lines proposed by the prime minister.

The second main area of discussion and hope is bilateral trade.

As a first step, Canada plans to appoint a commercial attache to its embassy in Tehran.

These points and a few others were expected to get a final airing at a luncheon at the prime minister's residence prior to the shah's departure.

His Ottawa itinerary for the day also included a press conference and a visit to the Northern Electric Company's experimental laboratory.

The Shah repaid the hospitality of his Ottawa hosts Thursday night at an elaborate dinner for 100 at the Chateau Laurier. It followed a reception for some 200 Iranian citizens in the Ottawa area and discussions with Mr. Martin and Mr. Drury.

In a major speech, the Iranian ruler told a Canadian Club luncheon Thursday that Canada could set "a brilliant example" in the field of assistance to under-developed nations.

"This is a very important mission that history has trusted you with, for your high material and social and moral conditions make you proper for it. I feel certain that Canada will accomplish this mission splendidly."

Although stressing his own country is bountifully endowed with natural wealth and should not be considered a have-not, the shah concentrated much of his Canadian Club speech on the need for a more equitable sharing of the world's material benefits.

The existence of poor and rich nations is both "unacceptable to human conscience" and a threat to world peace, he said. International crises will continue unless "sustained and systematic" efforts are made to improve conditions in developing nations.

"On this matter, your happy nation can be a brilliant example for other progressive nations," he told an audience which included Mr. Martin.

Gold Coins To Be Sold By Auction

BUFFALO (AP)—Gold coins valued by collectors at nearly $25,000, will be sold at auction June 8, almost two years after they were seized from a coin dealer accused of smuggling them across the Canadian border.

The U.S. customs bureau said 287 coins with a face value of $5,107 will be sold singly or in lots at an auction in the federal building in Buffalo.

The coins were among nearly 1,000, valued at $30,000, that were seized from Stephen Jaskwycz, 38, of Erie, Pa., Aug. 28,1963. He bought them in Toronto.

The coin dealer was apprehended on the Peace Bridge connecting Buffalo and Fort Erie, Ont., and later charged with smuggling gold coins into the U.S.

Importation of gold into the U.S. is prohibited under the Gold Reserve Act unless the importer has obtained a licence from the treasury department.

Many Resolutions Passed As Mayors Close Meeting

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Mayor Victor E. Copps of Hamilton was elected president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities Thursday, succeeding Mayor Charles Vaughan of Halifax.

Mr. Copps defeated two other candidates, Mayor H. L. Henderson of Portage La Prairie, Man., and Mayor Melvin L. Swart of Thorold Township, Ont.

Mr. Copps was the nominating committee's choice for president while Mr. Henderson and Mr. Swart were nominated for the floor.

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Copps said emphasis on training must be kept out of the federation.

"We must remain aware that we represent people of all political stripes and that we must deal with all governments in power regardless of their political bend."

He said he hopes to induce more municipalities to join the federation and that he will place special emphasis on training Montreal as a member.

Montreal dropped its membership four years ago on the grounds it was a little use in belonging to the association.

The election was the last major piece of business at the four-day meeting—the 28th annual conference of the association.

Next year's conference will be held in Vancouver.

In other action the conference passed the following resolutions, among others:

—That the federal and provincial governments should pay the entire cost of education, relieving the municipalities of their share;

—That the federal and provincial governments should co-operate in establishing an adequate program for developing parks and recreation facilities;

—That postmasters should keep a close watch on third-class mail and on all "date literature" over to the proper authorities, and that the justice department should prepare "effective legal measures to curb the circulation of bigotry and race hatred";

—That the federal and provincial governments should establish an exchange of English- and French - speaking schoolchildren;

—That municipalities should compel persons on welfare to work for their welfare money.

The welfare resolution leaves it up to each municipality to decide whether it wants to put the plan in force.

Two resolutions on cigarettes were defeated. One called for a ban on cigarette advertising on television and radio and called for a warning in cigarette advertisements and on packages that smoking can be detrimental to health.

For next year's conference Mr. Vaughan was asked to study means of obtaining relief for those who pay property tax but who have no representation on the subject.

A similar matter arose out of a Toronto resolution, which was not acted on, asking that provinces give half of their income tax collections to municipalities.

Between now and next year Mr. Vaughan will study the entire question of using income and other taxes to help finance municipal expenditures, reducing property taxes.

Community Colleges Will Be Established, Education Minister Prepares Bill

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis will introduce a bill in the Ontario legislature today providing for establishment of a province-wide system of community colleges, it was learned Thursday.

The junior colleges will offer two-year courses to Grade 12 graduates. Academic courses will lead to university for some students but stress is to be placed on technology and trade courses fitting into the local environment.

A government source said the province will bear the full construction cost of the schools—first of their kind in Canada. The community college system is being patterned in part after the junior college systems of California and Florida.

A main difference will be that tuition fees will be charged by the Ontario schools, whereas the U.S. junior colleges are free.

The first school may be opened in time for the start of the 1966 academic year. Although locations have yet to be determined, the government has already come under pressure from several municipalities to establish community colleges in their areas.

The community college system is to be governed by a provincial board, but local boards will be set up for individual schools.

While exact plans for the college network have not yet been made final, the government is believed to be aiming at a system of 20 schools across the province. The eventual cost could reach $200,000,000.

Establishment of community colleges was called for by the education minister's Grade 13 study committee, which recommended major changes in the senior matriculation year.

Grade 13 is envisaged as a university preparatory year, while a four-year high school course will become standard for most students.

With the weatherman's pretty secretary, Miss Spring, kicking Boss Winter off her lap after one of the biggest "sit-downs" in years, summer should get the big sendoff on one of the once-in-seven "long" May 24th weekends.

The sweet young thing has already laid a carpet of green lush grass, bulips and other harbingers of the vernal season and if this Jasper of the weather bureau will only take off for Ball-Ball or Vietnam, then all should be well for the holiday-makers.

Tackle-tinkerers, golf bugs, softball and baseball buffs, park-hunters and ordinary "blockbusters" should enjoy one of the best spring sendoffs in years.

The lure of fish baiting and jumping in silver streams and placid lakes is strong this year, I'm told, and the "Fishing Widows' Association" will be augmented by a flood of new members.

Several safaris fired with reports that the trout, lake, brown and speckled are in a receptive mood, will exodus for the northern haunts come this evening. There should be some tall tales come out of the lake-dotted North Hastings timber country come Tuesday morning.

The Bay of Quinte Country Club is anticipating an invasion of hole-in-one seekers that will break any former "Victoria Day" record. With the largest membership in years the course is expected to be the mecca for many.

There are no holiday tournaments on the agenda, but the excellent greens and fairways will likely be the need with golfer and champion getting in their early spring swings.

Speaking of the Country Club, I'm told the clubhouse cuisine this year approaches the gourmet platean. Those masters of the culinary art, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Cull, have been augmented with Mrs. Marjorie McInnis, a past-mistress of the art of cooking. She brings not a bit of culinary art but to the best to serve. Club members will get a sample of their fine service Saturday night when the first dinner-dance of the season will get under way.

There will be a touch of oldtime "21th" celebration for softball buffs Monday night when a scheduled Belleville District Softball League game, Juniors versus Trenton, will be followed by a giant fireworks display at the Fair Grounds. Some $700 worth of the pinwheels, rockets, and other pyrotechnics will shatter and illuminate the sky.

On the Commercial League front Black Diamond takes on Belvedere Hotel at Prince Charles and City Hotel tangles with Stewart Warner at Zwick's Island. Both on Monday at 6.30.

The "21 Jour" of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association will kick off the season on Monday with an all-day program. Three games are scheduled at Park Dale. The tykes will usher in the diamond festivities at 9.30; the peewees take over at 12.30 and the bantams round out the day's schedule at 3 o'clock.

The moppets of the Belleville Minor Softball Association will have a big collective inning also on Monday, no less than five games being scheduled for 6.15. One game will be played at the Fire Hall, another at Queen Mary School and three at Pine St. School.

For different diversion the Quinte Western Horse Show is staging its annual field day on Sunday at Bain Park, near Trenton. Some 100 crack saddle horses will take part in the colorful program. The many events provide an afternoon of thrills and enjoyable competition.

Many will seek the crowded highways for spring reunions with friends and relatives. Public parks will be crowded with camper and transient visitors. Roadside tables will be at a premium. Those fortunate enough to own cabin and cottage on fairway or nearby lakes will either be "getting the place ready" or just plain loafing.

And that shatter unlavelled guest, the Grim Reaper, will be on hand to collect his inevitable toll.

Somewhere between fifty and sixty care-free holiday-makers, if past records hold up, will leave their homes for the last time.

Which reminds me of a sign I saw once on the rear of a florist's truck. It read: "Be careful when you pass me—the next load may be for you."

Beats Ullman By 7 ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Second of Season

Bobby Hull Awarded Hart Trophy

He earlier received the Lady Byng Trophy as the NHL player best combining gentlemanly conduct and good play.

The Hart trophy, the final individual trophy to be decided, is awarded to the player "adjudged to be most valuable to his team." Voting is by sports writers and broadcasters.

Hull beat out Normie Ullman of Detroit Red Wings by seven points in the over-all voting for the first and second half, the closest race for any of the trophies for the recently - completed season.

It was the Chicago Jet's great first - half performance during which he scored 33 of his 39 regular-season goals that gave him enough votes to scrape by the Detroit centre.

LOSES BIG LEAD

Hull piled up a 65-point lead over Ullman in the voting at the midway point of the season, but got only 15 in the last half. Ullman led the second half poll with 74 out of a possible 80 votes, but he got only 22 votes to Hull's 86 in the first half.

BOBBY HULL

Gordie Howe of Detroit, a distance winner of the Hart, placed third with 35 points, 7 in the second half when his play sparked the Red Wings to the NHL championship.

Hull, who finished fourth in scoring during the regular season with 71 points, became the third Chicago player to win the Hart trophy since it was first presented in 1923-24.

Chicago goalie Al Rollins won it in 1953-54 and Max Bentley was the 1945-46 winner.

Hull picks up $1,250 for winning the Hart trophy, $1,000 as over-all winner, and $250 as leader in the first half. Ullman receives $500 as runner-up, plus $250 as second-half leader.

IS ULLMAN'S VEST

Ullman, a 10 - year veteran with the Wings, had his best season in 1964-65, finishing second to Chicago's Stan Mikita in the individual scoring race. He led the league in goals with 42 and also made the first all-star team.

Here is the result of the Hart Trophy voting, with figures in brackets representing the points received in the first half, second half and combined total:

Bobby Hull, Chicago (39-15—54); Norm Ullman, Detroit (32-74—86); Gordie Howe, Detroit (9-26—35); Roger Crozier, Detroit (9-16 — 34); Charlie Hodge, Montreal (16-9 — 25); Henri Richard, Montreal (11-4 —15); Stan Mikita, Chicago (1-12 —13); Jean Beliveau, Montreal (7-4—5); Alex Delvecchio, Detroit (0-4—4); Johnny Bower, Toronto (0-4—4); Jacques Laperriere, Montreal (3-1 — 4); Bob Baun, Toronto (0-1—1); Claude Provost, Montreal (1-0—1); Ted Green, Boston (1-0—1); Bill Gadsby, Detroit (1-0—1).

Juniors Nip Madoc 9-8

MADOC (Special) — Single runs in the eighth and ninth innings brought Belleville Ellis Juniors a 9-8 win and D. Softball League win over Madoc here last night.

The home club held a 6-0 lead in the second inning, Ellis' came back with three in the third and four in the fifth for a 7-6 lead. Madoc got single-tons in the fifth and sixth to go ahead 8-7.

Back in the fifth, when the winners scored four runs without a hit, on seven walks, a wild pitch and Muirhead's theft of home, a fight resulted to the ejection of two players.

Madoc pitcher Larry Griffin hit Wayne Woods with a pitch and Woods fired the bat back at him. He missed but the pair fought between the plate and home. Umpires Bruce Nickle and Dusty Miller tossed them out.

Bob Boyle pitched the victory, allowing 10 hits, including three home runs, striking out 11 and walking six.

Darrel Kramp, who took over from Griffin in the fifth, was the loser. They gave up just six hits. Griffin fanned three and walked seven while Kramp struck out nine and walked a pair.

Bob Smith hit a bases empty homer for Ellis Juniors while Bob Moon got two bunt singles. Jim Muirhead's key double and singles by Carl Boomhower and Larry Soule completed the attack.

Clayton Whiteman and Larry Griffin hit back-to-back solo homers in the Madoc second frame while Darrel Kramp also had a one-run homer and a single in a losing cause. Brian Gray got two hits with one each for Harold Bailey, Mel Blackburn, Larry Charlton and Larry Stickwood.

Ellis Juniors' next start will be Monday's holiday special at Belleville Fairgrounds, against Trenton. That game is at 7.15 with the giant Park Dale fireworks display to follow.

They Came, They Saw, But Spahn Lost

Beaten 7-1

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Some 19,000 Warren Spahn fans went to Milwaukee's County Stadium to see a great left-hander. And they did.

His name, however, was Wade Blasingame.

Blasingame was everything Spahn used to be as he kept New York Mets off balance with his breaking pitches Thursday night and allowed only one hit —Ron Swoboda's ground single with two out in the seventh inning — as Milwaukee Braves rushed Spahn's return home, 7-1.

For the first time since opening day, the upper stands at County Stadium were open to accommodate the large crowd that turned out to cheer Spahn, who was unceremoniously sold to the Mets last season after 20 years with the Braves.

Spahn was drubbed in a seven-run fifth inning uprising that included a grand slam homer by Eddie Mathews, his teammate of 13 years.

Meanwhile, unbeaten Bob Gibson won his eighth game to St. Louis Cardinals whipped Philadelphia Phillies 12-2 behind their seventh victory in eight games, Gordy Coleman lifted his average to a National League leading .416 with two hits in Cincinnati Reds' 11-3 thumping of Pittsburgh Pirates and Willie Mays hit home run No. 15 in San Francisco Giants' 2-0 victory over Chicago Cubs.

The Cardinals made it easy for Gibson, shelling five Phillie pitches for 13 hits, including homers by Curt Flood and Phil Gagliano. Flood drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a double as St. Louis Chased Chris Short and pushed across seven runs in the first two innings.

Coleman took over the batting lead from Mays by striking four singles in five trips. Vada Pinson slugged a homer and two singles, drove in three runs, scored three and stole a base as the Reds punched out 16 hits against Bob Friend and 4 successors.

Mays ended a scoreless tie in the seventh inning by leading off with a homer against Cubs' starter Larry Jackson. Juan Shaw got the victory with relief help from Masanori Murakami.

Lombanks Shade Trudeaus

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

A disputed run capped a five-run ninth inning rally and gave Tweed Lombanks a 9-8 decision over Trudeau Motors in B. and D. Softball League action at the Fairgrounds last night.

Down 8-4 going into the ninth, Lombanks promptly tied the bases with none out on two walks and Merav's hit. Pinch hitter Shires drew another free pass to force in one run and Ray LeSage lined a double to plate two more, making it 8-7.

Gore's lost control kept the fire hot and he walked another to fill the sacks again before farming Owens for the second out.

Bill Salmond, ninth batter of the inning, singled to right, scoring the tying run, but the throw to home got R. LeSage bang up easily. The runner fell trying to go back to third but catcher Mavety dropped the ball and LeSage scrambled home with the winning run.

A walk, Gore's single and Beard's ground out had tied the score 4-4 in the seventh; a walk, two bobbles and Sherry's hit had plated two in the fourth and twin errors, plus Sherry's hit, had made it 1-1 in the second.

Trudeaus got a quick 1-0 lead on Zakos' homer in the first, tied it 3-3 with two in the Plane's single and a pair of miscues in the fourth and went ahead 4-3 when Kellar also hit a solo homer opening the sixth.

Mavety slammed a home run blast down the right field line opening the seventh, making it 5-4. Trudeaus opened the what looked like a commanding lead with three in the eighth. Innes doubled, Green singled and Wannamaker singled sharply to centre. The ball went through the fielder and all three men scored.

Lefty Garry Owens pitched the route for the shortstaffed winners. He had a two-hitter for five frames, gave up 10 safeties, fanned two and walked three.

Another youngster, Ken Osborne, started for Trudeaus and gave up three hits before wildness chased him in the fifth. He fanned none and walked four. Bob Green was the loser, touched for four hits and five walks while whiffing five.

Trudeaus got a homer and double from "Pat" Kellar, double and single from Bob Innes, two singles from Bob Wannamakry and homers from Lary Mavety and Paul Zakos. Ralph Plane and Bob Green also hit safely.

Bert Sherry and Paul Merav each had two Tweed singles, Ray LeSage hit key double, Bill Salmond and Garry Gore a single each.

Point Anne Outlasts Belvedere Hotel

The winners had a 5-2 lead after two frames but Belvedere fought back with seven runs during the third, fourth and fifth frames and led 9-8. Point Anne potted three in the sixth and a final pair in the seventh to get the victory.

Vern Whalen was the winning pitcher, taking over from D. Browning in the third inning. They gave up eight hits.

J. King stayed the distance for Belvedere, lagged for 13 safeties.

E. Maher paced the winners with three hits while two each went to D. Maher and J. Hopwood. The others were shared by M. Cook, G. Maher, P. Everett, R. Rosebush, T. MacDonald and V. Whalen.

Jim Bair collected two Belvedere safeties with the others going to Mike Ryan, C. McGrimmon, J. Hughes, G. Perry, J. King and Delaney.

Cassius Taunts Louis

Liston Plans Short Cut To Clay

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Challenger Sonny Liston is taking a quick course in geometry for his May 25 heavyweight title fight: The shortest route to champion Cassius Clay is a straight line.

And Ernie Terrell, recognized by the World Boxing Association as heavyweight king, has mastered the art of mussling into the act by bringing the subject of the much-maligned fight to the attention of another countryman.

"It's all part of the late news regarding the transplanted redskin, banned in Boston, although Terrell says Reddick is "He knows that's how Sonny has to fight. So Cassius probably will be circling at the start, waiting to throw counter punches.

"All I'm trying to get Sonny to do is to use side-steps to get to Cassius quicker. If he follows Clay around in a circle, he could get into trouble."

SAYS THE BOMBER

While Liston took it easy Thursday at his nearby Poland Spring camp, for fear of getting "too fine," Clay played host to heavyweight Kings Louis, Joe Walcott and Jim Braddock at his training quarters in Chicopee, Mass.

"You're the greatest, Joe Louis. The greatest of them all," Clay shouted during his workout. "But give me five years, Joe, and I'll top your record."

Louis only smiled.

Undaunted, Clay moved in again and tried to get Louis to say he—Cassius—was the fastest heavyweight in history.

Louis offered only: "You're fast."

Walcott and Braddock are rumored as possibilities for the job of non-voting referee for the fight with Maine rules calling for three judges instead of two. None would offer a prediction of the fight's outcome.

All indicated they were impressed with Clay's workout, especially the final sparring round with James Ellis who was shaken up by a right to the head.

MOVING SUNDAY

Clay plans to leave for Lewiston by his now famous bus Sunday, End in anticipation of the trip he's having the vehicle painted with red and white metallic paint.

Terrell is backed by the WBA which has members in 47 states and 30 countries.

Terrell asked for a Chicago circuit court order Thursday to stop Clay from claiming the world crown, claiming he alone holds the title and that Clay has disbuted it by using it in advertisements for the forthcoming fight.

The suit asked $1,500,000 damages from Clay and five defendants promoting the fight. Judge Vrnelies Harrington ordered a hearing Friday on the Terrell motion for the temporary injunction.

Terrell has virtually been promised a shot at Liston should the latter win Tuesday night, which would give him the opportunity to test in the ring what he now claims is court.

Flyers Win Over Daubers

A five-run explosion in the initial frame carried the RCAF to a 5-4 decision over Ter-Haar Daubers in Commercial Softball play last night.

The Daubers had taken a 1-0 lead in the top of the first but the Flyers blanked them until the seventh, when the losers netted three to make it a one-run decision.

our new economy Evinrude 33 SKI-TWIN

Skiers need big power. Two skiers need even more. So Evinrude has engineered the new Ski Twin—a 33 h.p. no-nonsense outboard that packs a massive wallop at an economy price. No frills. Just plenty of guts.

And it's versatile. This is the motor for fishermen who want to get away from the skiers. It can tote you to those fishing grounds fast. Troll're nice and slow. All day without a sputter. It's a quiet one.

But then, it should be. The Evinrude 33 has a rubber cushioned powerhead and a sound deadening, tough fibre-glass hood.

There's more. A cushioned slip-clutch propeller and stainless steel propeller shaft and drive shaft. And every part of the new Evinrude Ski Twin is salt water corrosion resistant.

Talk about reliability! The Evinrude 33 develops maximum torque at only 4500 rpm. It'll run like new for years.

All new Evinrudes use a 50-1 gas/oil mixture. It increases engine life, saves wear and expense.

Check your local dealer (in the Yellow Pages) about the 15 year Evinrude outboards for '65. 3 to 90 h.p. ONC three drive power—90, 120 and 150 h.p.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

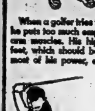
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

MAINTAIN A CONSISTENT TEMPO ON ALL IRON SHOTS

For some strange reason, many golfers seem to think that they must swing harder—and thus faster—on long iron shots than on short shots. Perhaps this explains why so many golfers are best with their short irons and worst with their 2-iron.



When a golfer tries to swing fast, he puts too much emphasis on his arm muscles. His hips, legs and feet, which should be generating most of his power, especially on long-iron shots, remain relatively inactive.

Swing your long irons in the same tempo that you use on short-iron shots. If anything, bring the lower half of your body into more play. (See illustrations) as you progress to the longer clubs.

Your clubs have built-in characteristics that will enable them to perform properly. All you must do is swing them all in the same tempo.

Both Express Satisfaction

Bathgate, Harris Pleased With Trade

TORONTO (CP) — The remark Andy Bathgate says he never made won an endorsement from Billy Harris as both players began adjusting today to their new role as members of Detroit Red Wings.

Traded by Toronto Maple Leafs along with rookie left-winger Gary Jarrett for defenceman Marcel Pronovost and Aut Erickson, and forwards Larry Jeffrey, Lowell MacDonald and Ed Joyal, both Bathgate and Harris expressed satisfaction with the deal, biggest since the end of the National Hockey League season.

"I'm glad the Leafs thought enough of me to give me a chance to stay in the top group," Bathgate said Thursday night. The veteran right winger, a top scorer for 10 years with New York Rangers, slumped badly with the Leafs last season.

"At this particular stage I'd be telling a lie if I said I was unhappy to leave Toronto," said Harris, who was sent down to Rochester Americans of the American League late last season after 10 years in a Leaf uniform.

SUPPORTS STATEMENT

The 29-year-old centre, relegated to fourth - string status by Toronto coach Punch Imlach for years before his demotion, supported a statement attributed to Bathgate that the Leafs work so hard in their practices that they have nothing left for the games.

"If I had been playing regularly I would have had a talk with Imlach and told him it would have been impossible for me to play well after a heavy practice," said Harris. "I can't see going all out for 1½ hours in practice the day before a game. I think it should be left up to the individual player."

Meanwhile Bathgate denied the story, published Monday after the Leafs were eliminated by Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup semi - finals, in which he was quoted as blaming Imlach's strenuous workouts for their defeat. The Canadiens went on to defeat Chicago Black Hawks for the cup.

Bathgate said he tried frequently to reach Imlach by telephone since the story appeared but was unable to talk to him.

"But I don't think that was the reason I was traded. I couldn't seem to go well with the Leafs. I couldn't fit in."

The 32-year-old right winger, the key figure in a seven-man trade between Toronto and New York in February, 1964, figured prominently in the Leafs' Stanley Cup victory that year but finished the 1965 playoffs on the bench after being out for several weeks earlier with a broken thumb.

"I'd be the only weak link on that line right now," he said. "Actually, I broke into the league as a left winger and I always felt it was my best position."

Harris, who was Rochester's leading point-getter in the AHL playoffs, said he thinks he can help Detroit if he is used regularly.

"At Rochester I killed penalties and I was on the power play. I was given a responsibility there and I found myself responding. As a result, I think it brought out the best hockey I've played in four or five years."

Terrell Sues Cassius

CHICAGO (AP)—Ernest Terrell asked for a circuit court order Thursday to stop Cassius Clay from claiming the world heavyweight boxing championship.

Terrell said he alone holds that title, and Clay has diluted it by using it in advertisements for his fight with Sonny Liston May 25 at Lewiston, Me.

The suit asked $1,500,000 damages from Clay and five defendants promoting the Liston bout.

Judge Cornelius J. Harrington ordered a hearing today on the motion for a temporary injunction against Clay's use of the title.

GOBBLES FOR GLORY

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Byron Clement's long-striding bay, Cadenza, from Dobbington, Ont., came from third place in the last quarter-mile to win by two lengths in the junior invitation trot at Mohawk Raceway Thursday.

It was Cadenza's third win in 19 starts this season. He paid $9.10 and combined with second-place Laird McNab, owned by John Findley of Arnprior, Ont., for a quinella worth $20.20.

In the first race, it was the first win for both Donbryn Adios and owner Byron Thorpe of Brantford. The three-year-old posted a neck decision and paid $11.30. Alvin Whitty was Crusader from Hillsburg, Ont., won the second race to complete a daily double of $21.60.

Lawn care is a two-step job: Cutting and raking. A Lawn-Boy Grasscatcher does it in one step; you cut and rake at the same time. Your lawn ends up looking as neat as a new haircut. The Grasscatcher will also collect leaves in the fall and tidy up the lawn each spring.

The Grasscatcher clips on and off the mower in seconds, without tools and is zippered to empty in two shakes. And even wet grass and leaves can't clog it.

FINGER-TIP START makes Lawn-Boy the easiest starting power mower you can buy.

SAFETY—Lawn-Boy exceeds all ASA safety standards. See the 1965 Lawn-Boy soon. It's warranted for two years, twice as long as any other power mower.

WHEN TO ATTACK

A good golfer, like a good general, knows when to attack and when to move with caution. Many factors influence when to take the offense or when to "play for par." These include the situation of the match, the shot at hand, and the player's confidence in his swing at the time. Though I am often regarded as an "attacking" golfer, I seldom gamble unless the odds are much better than 50-50 that I'll succeed.

The Augusta National course, site of the Masters, offers both "attacking" and "defensive" holes. A golfer should not normally attack a hole early in the round – it's better to wait until your swing feels in the groove – but the first hole at Augusta (see No. 1) does pay dividends for an offensive tee shot. Here I like to play over the bunker on the right. This not only shortens the hole, but also opens the green for a fairly easy approach and a possible birdie.

The 11th at Augusta (No. 2) definitely calls for conservative play. A second shot that is hit for the pin may finish in the water that guards the green on the left and in front. Here I prefer to play my second shot to the right in hopes of chipping or long-putting close enough for a par.

Leafs Nip Wings In 17 Frames

Sixteen scoreless innings all in one night is a lot of effort to put into one victory. But even that kind of pitching performance looked less important than one little loop single to Toronto Maple Leafs Thursday night.

The single by second baseman Bill Mlinik came in the bottom of the 17th inning after four hours and 39 minutes of baseball. It scored Bob Sadowski from second base to end the marathon with a 5-4 victory over Rochester Red Wings.

The game-winning hit by Mlinik came after pitchers Gerry Herron, Bob Dubba and Guido Grilli had held the Red Wings scoreless for 16 innings while the Leafs demolished a 4-0 Rochester lead.

The victory allowed Toronto to gain another game on the league - leading Atlanta Crackers, who lost their third straight to Toledo and Red Hens 4-2 in 10 innings. In other action, Buffalo Bisons downed Syracuse Chiefs 8-2 and Jacksonville Suns edged Columbus Jets 6-5.

TAKE EARLY LEAD

Rochester jumped off to the early lead with four runs on six singles in the first inning, but couldn't score from then on.

Toronto countered with two in the bottom of the first and tied the game in the seventh on Tony Horton's two-run single.

LIONS SIGN QUARTERBACK

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions have added a fifth quarterback to their roster. The Lions announced Thursday they have signed Ernie Allen, 23, captain of the University of Utah team which won the 1964 Liberty Bowl. Other B.C. quarterbacks are Joe Kapp, Mel Melin, Pete Ohler and Fred Shafer.

Manager Birdie Tebbetts, whose strong suit with Cleveland Indians this season was supposed to be hitting, has suddenly found some pitching to go with his punch.

Tebbetts' staff has permitted just five runs in the last four games, the latest a 5-2 victory over Baltimore Thursday night that completed a three-game sweep of the Orioles.

Sonny Siebert, whose 4-2 record and 2.43 earned-run average is second-best on the Indian staff, stifled the Orioles on six hits going into the ninth. When Baltimore threatened, Gary Bell came on to strike out rookie flash Curt Blefary with two on, ending it.

Fred Whitfield's two-run homer capped a four-run Cleveland second inning against Baltimore starter Dave McNally. After that, Siebert took over. Elsewhere in the American League, Mel Stottlemyre celebrated the birth of his second son by beating Boston Red Sox 6-3 for New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers shaded Washington Senators 5-3 in 10 innings.

The Indians' off-season trading activity was aimed at getting some hitting to supplement Leon Wagner. They acquired Rocky Colavito and Chuck Hinton and secured set in the power department. Ralph Terry, however, was the only new pitcher on the club. He leads the staff with a 4-1 mark and a 2.57 E.R.A.

Sophomore Luis Tiant started Cleveland's latest surge with a 7-3 victory over Washington Wednesday. Whitfield and Don McMahon blanked Baltimore 1-0 on Tuesday and Sam McDowell shut out the Orioles 2-0 on Wednesday.

Stottlemyre got the news of his son's birth early Thursday and then went out and beat the Red Sox with ninth-inning help from Pedro Ramos.

Joe Pepitone and Tom Tresh tagged two-run homers with Pepitone's shot in the third inning climaxing a four-run burst against Red Sox starter Bill Monbouquette.

Ramos came on with two on and one out in the ninth and got out of the game with a double play. It was his fourth save and only the sixth for the Yankee staff this year.

Dick McAuliffe's two-run homer in the 10th gave Detroit its victory and offset five Washington homers. Don Lock's pinch homer in the 10th had given the Senators the lead before a walk and McAuliffe's shot broke it up in the bottom half.

Cullen, of St. Catharines, received 39 of a possible 45 votes cast by sports writers and sportscasters in the league's nine cities. Jeannot Gilbert of Providence Reds was the runner-up. Cullen, younger brother of former Bison players Barry and Brian, is the fifth Buffalo rookie to win the award since the 1949-50 season. It earned him a $500 bonus and the Dudley (Red) Garrett Memorial Trophy, named for an outstanding AHL prospect who was killed in action while serving Yogi Bear."

Test drive Meteor – its unrivalled performance lives up to its looks!

Most comfortable ride
Most effortless handling
Most impressive power

A test drive in a 1965 Meteor will prove to you that this is positively the best car in the popular-priced field. It has more of everything you're looking for in a fine car. Prove it for yourself. Test-drive the new Meteor today as the guest of your Mercury dealer.

What do you look for when you test drive Meteor?

Meteor's styling is matchless. Note the clean styling coming and going, the precise, just right use of chrome, the bold, wide grille and the slim, graceful tail lights. Only Meteor in the popular-priced field looks so elegant.

Meteor handles, rides like no other car. Meteor has the most comfortable ride and effortless handling in its class. It has the longest wheelbase (123 inches). A new "torque-box" frame and improved all-coil suspension combine to eliminate road shock and vibration. You'll discover the smoothest ride and the easiest handling on the road when you test drive a new Meteor.

Meteor power trains are unequalled. The first thing you notice; Meteor is a very quiet automobile. Yet, you're in command of the most impressive power ever in Meteor's class. Try the new 240 cubic-inch "Avenger" Six, or the big 352 and 390 V-8's. Team your Meteor power with your choice of transmissions. Choose 3-speed dual range automatic. Try a 3 - 4-speed manual; both fully synchromesh in all forward gears.

Meteor has interior elegance beyond compare. You'll notice the elegance in rich carpeting, salon upholstries, padded front and back arm rests and luxurious appointments.

Meteor has more practical features. Meteor's accelerator pedal is suspended so it can't trap dirt or catch your heels. The trunk is deeper with a lower sill that makes it easier to load. And Meteor's key is reversible; works on either edge.

New 240 cubic-inch "Avenger" Six. The world's largest V-8 builders have put their know-how into a hot new "6" to give you the height of performance in an economy engine. The "Avenger" Six develops a full 150 horsepower and 234 pounds feet of torque. It's a smoother-running, quieter "6" with greater economy. Saves like a "6", goes like an "8".

Those are just a few of the things to look for when you test drive Meteor, the only car whose unrivalled performance lives up to its good looks. Ask your Mercury dealer to show you the rest of Meteor's big features for 1965.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Jerry Harrison, a leading rider in Ontario in past and one of the smallest riding in North America, gave notice Thursday at Greenwood racetrack that he's regained his top form.

The 39-pound rider from Orlando, Fla. rode two winners, the first and sixth. Until those two he'd had trouble finding the winning combination.

Riding Gardiner Farms' Honey Blues in the first race, Harrison kept the three-year-old filly striding to the wire in front of favored Greek Tar. Bath Tag finished third. Honey Blues paid $6.50.

With Avalino Gomez sidelined by an attack of flu, Harrison was named on Jack Mackinnon's Bold Master in the sixth. Bold Master paid $3.50. Second was S. A. Boy and third Marvina's Tuxe.

Rookie Blancas Golf Wiz.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Mason Rudolph and Bob McCallister, the first-round leaders in the $60,000 Memphis Open, are seasoned golfers but a lad who has been a pro less than a month had them shaking in their shoes today.

The rookie's name is Homero Blancas and he is the odds-on choice to be golf's Rookie of the Year after just four tournaments.

Blancas, a 27-year-old University of Houston graduate, trailed Rudolph and McCallister by one stroke going into today's second round. Rudolph and McCallister both shot 65s in the first round Thursday, while Blancas and two others finished with 66s.

In his debut as a pro, Blancas picked up $2,425 for a seventh - place finish in the Houston Classic. He then tied for 16th in the Texas Open and won $873. Last week at New Orleans, he was among the leaders all the way and finished in a tie for seventh for $3,200 in prize money.

There has been no man in the history of the professional game who has started so fast.

The Tiger Stops Hurricane

NEW YORK (AP)—Dick Tiger of Nigeria made another strong bid for a middleweight title shot by dropping Rubin Carter three times in winning a lop-sided 10-round decision at Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

The 35-year-old former middleweight champion, a 12-to-5 favorite, floored his 28-year-old opponent twice in the second round and once in the fourth, and had him in trouble in most of the other rounds.

The officials voted for Tiger by the following round scores: Judge Jimmy Riccio 9-1, judge Johnny Draa 8-1-1 and referee Zach Clayton, 6-2-2.

Tiger weighed 163 pounds, Carter 159.

Teen-age Girl

Would Buy Yogi For $1

"I don't know what in the world I'd do with him," Maxine said. "Maybe I'll take him to school and show him to all my friends."

The Mets' management admitted that Maxine's offer put them in an embarrassing position.

"You see," a spokesman explained, "Yogi actually was put up for sale on the waiver list for $1, but it was just a formality."

"We hired Yogi as a coach and then decided to use him as a player. Before the May 11 cutdown, Yogi decided he wanted to stick strictly to coaching.

"To get him off the player roster we had to put him on waivers for $1. Of course, no club would grab him—it's an agreement—and he wouldn't report anyhow. We didn't expect anything like this."

Berra, 40, advised of Maxine's bid and her comment that he'd "make a cute toy," Thursday said dourly:

"That's awfully nice, but she must have me mixed up with that television character, Hogi Bear."

35 New Shows to Open Second Week of September

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. network television will resume regular programming with 58 established shows and 35 new ones when the second week of September rolls in.

Comedy will continue to reign as the most popular form of evening entertainment with 38 shows scheduled.

Second most popular is a catch-all category of "dramatic anthology" containing 33 programs, ranging in subject matter and plot structure from Lassie, one of 11 westerns, to Peyton Place and Flipper, the adventures of a lovable dolphin.

There will be a total of eight prime time hours a week devoted to running old feature movies — four programs spanning all three networks.

Variety and vaudeville programs will fill 21 hours of viewing time.

At least 10 programs will concern men in uniform. Treatment will vary from the sober in Combat and Convoy to a fun-war in McHale's Navy and Hogan's Heroes.

GO SEMI-WEEKLY

Peyton Place this season was successful with two half-hour shows a week. Next season, it will be expanded to three, and two other programs will imitate its semi-weekly form. Dr. Kildare will treat patients in half-hour episodes on Monday and Thursday nights, while the teen-age rock 'n' roll show, Shindig will turn up for a half-hour Thursday and Saturday evenings.

Hullabaloo and The Kinz Family, hour - long programs this season, will return cut to half.

Hazel and My Three Sons will be seen on CBS next season instead of, respectively, NBC and ABC. Senior son Adam will leave Bonanza; Larry (Ball) Carmichael's children will move from Danfield, Conn. to the Hollywood. 1111 1; Gomer Pyle will get his stripe; and Samantha, of Bewitched, will be prevailed with approaching motherhood.

The ranks of cloak-and-dagger boys will be swelled by the addition of The FBI, Amos Burke, Secret Agent, I Spy, and an uninhibited comedy series bidding all of them, Get Smart.

Perry Mason will move in its award-getting season to a Sunday

AT THE PARK — Lee Barker is involved in murder and intrigue, and other matters, in Columbia Pictures' "Code 7 Victim 5", opening Monday with a special matinee at 1.30 p.m., which also stars Ronald Fraser, The new suspense thriller also numbers in its cast such codernates as the bikini-ed Veronique Vendell and Danish blonde Anne Smyrner, above right. On the same program also in color scoring Lana Turner, Cliff Robertson and Hugh O'Brian. Both attractions are first Belleville showings.

evening spot opposite Bonanza. The commander and star of the air squadron of 12 O'clock High, Robert Lansing, will be replaced by Paul Burke, playing a major. The Farmer's Daughter will—finally — marry the congressman.

Death will come to some 30 shows, among them Wagon Train, The Defenders, the Alfred Hitchcock hour, The Jack Paar Show, International Showtime and The Doctors and the Nurses.

At the Belle

Another year, another exciting James Bond thriller. "Goldfinger" this current Agent's 007's adventure, is now attracting large audiences to the Belle Theatre where it is playing an extended engagement, with Sean Connery again starring as the indestructible detective. As usual, he is beset by beautiful women and ugly villains.

The third and most extravagant epic of this popular series, "Goldfinger" in Technicolor, co-stars Honor Blackman as Pussy Galore and Gert Frobe as "Goldfinger," a millionaire obsessed by gold and determined to rob the depity of all gold reserves: Fort Knox!

In the process he kills a girl who befriends Bond by brushing gold paint on her body, thus closing the pores and suffocating her. Then he attempts to end Bond's life with a laser beam: a ray of light that can cut through steel!

Richard Maibaum and Paul Dehn wrote the screenplay, which was directed by Guy Hamilton. Harry Saltzman and Albert R. Broccoli again produced the adventure film, as they did the others in this popular series, "Dr. No." and "From Russia with Love".

Both shows today and Saturday begin at 6.00: 8.00 and a late show nightly at 10 p.m. "Goldfinger" will not be shown on Saturday matinee.

DOG WINS AWARD

The TV dog star Lassie was given an award by the U.S. department of agriculture for contributions to education in conservation.

'Shoes of the Fisherman' Now Being Made Into Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Morris L. West's Shoes of the Fisherman topped the best-seller list for months, film producers considered whether it could be made into a movie.

"Not possible," they concluded. After all, the novel concerned the inner workings of the papacy and centred on the conflict of a Russian-born Pope and his one time tormentor in a prison, now the head of the Russian government.

Film makers doubted that the Roman Catholic Church would ever co-operate with such a movie. Lacking approval, it would face rough going in Catholic countries. And the cost of reproducing papal pomp — and such locales at St. Peter's — would be almost prohibitive.

One movie-maker wasn't discouraged. He was George England, young producer - director whose most notable film has been The Ugly American.

THOUGHT IT GREAT

"I thought Shoes of the Fisherman was a great story," he says, "and I believed it could be made with the co-operation of the church. All that was required was a reasonable approach."

England convinced MGM that such was possible, and negotiations began last winter in Rome. England flew to Australia to confer with West.

"West lives down sydney on the edge of the wild country," said England. "Every day we would walk out to the area where the animals roam free and talk for hours. It was one of the most stimulating experiences of my life."

The pair arrived at a feasible approach to the screenplay, which they met in Rome to labor for seven weeks on a treatment. It was then that Englund made his first approach to the Vatican.

THEY'RE AMAZED

"The officials were amazed that I would come to them for help," said the producer-director. "That had never been done before. Film - makery would come to them with a finished movie and ask for an expression of church approval."

Englund told the pontifical commission for communications media that he was not out "to assassinate or attack the church but portray it as an arena for the exchange of ideas." After the third meeting, he was assigned an adviser—not a priest, but Antonio Petrucci, himself the maker of Vatican documentary films and hence sympathetic to film-making problems.

The current problem is the casting of Kiril, the Russian Pope. None of the big - name stars qualifies, said Englund, possibly excepting Anthony Quinn. Another possibility: England's Paul Scofield. The producer is going to the Moscow film festival in July and will scout Russian actors for the lead.

Englund also has hopes of filming inside St. Peter's.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

A HOUSE WITH CHARACTER AND SPACIOUSNESS

Character in homes is hard to define and even harder to find. But when a home has character this one does, you sense it right away. There's no convincing air about it that's more than brick and timber, stone and plaster and the attractive bay window. It's the spacious feeling of the well-designed home that's filled with natural fireplace to give you the coziness of the family room well plans you, easy to work in, liveable. A comfortable, modern, Lower level combine a 4th bedroom and finished family room and fireplace plus a second bathroom. Carpeted and air conditioned. VERY, VERY, REASONABLE. DON'T PASS THIS one by and you will carry the mortgage. Asking Price $22,900.00.

CONSIDER THE ADVANTAGES

OF ELECTRIC HEAT. Join the happy throng who are glad they bought their home in the PLEASANT VILLAGE where they can enjoy the comfort and cleanliness of Electric Heat. See this larger than normal 3 bedroom, 4 split-level home with carpeted. Very spacious living room, dining room, family kitchen equipped with built-in range and hood. Lots of room in basement for recreation room and 4th bedroom. Priced at $21,900.00. TERMS OUR NHA MORTGAGE. Price $19,400.00.

GOOD-LOOKING! GOOD LIVING!

This home has real style to impress from the 4-foot overhang that protects your entrance to the front door to the attractive foyer that leads on to the living room, dining room, kitchen wing or down a few steps to a panelled family room including fireplace. 3 bedrooms, cozy den or 4th bedroom, 2 bathrooms, built-in garage. Excellent East End location on paved street. Tastefully decorated. GOOD VALUE AT $23,500.00. Asking Price $23,500.00.

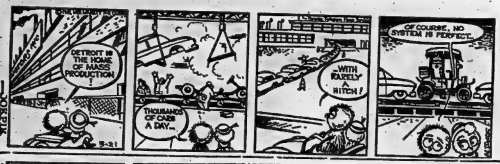
District came upon the escapees in a stand of trees on a grass-covered bluff. Pitre and Gosselin were stretched out lying low in the grass and Lamarche and Howard were picked up after they tried to spring away through the trees.

The men, all transferred here over the last four years from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary in their homemade kit, surrendered unarmed and still in grey bark-cloth prison clothing when caught.



Haggard and unshaven, they had road maps and a little chocolate and other food with them.

Pitre said they had no idea how the escapees crossed the North Saskatchewan, as road-blocks were thrown up on bridges leading across it as soon as the escape alarm was sounded. He pointed out that on the eastern outskirts of this city.

Lamarche, sentenced to life imprisonment for armed robbery and attempted murder, is serving 12 years for armed robbery and attempted murder, and Pitre and Howard, serving seven years for armed robbery, all were sentenced in Montreal.

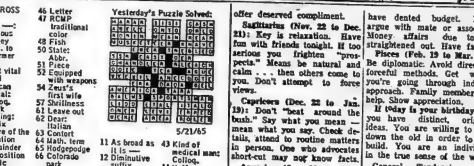
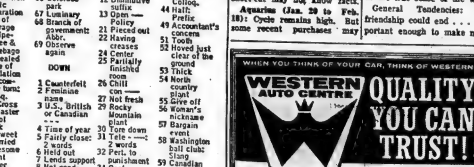
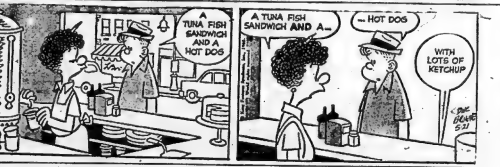
CALGARY, Alta. (AP) — The New York state legislature completed passage Wednesday of a Democratic - sponsored bill that would abolish most capital punishment in the state. The measure now goes to Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, who some legislative leaders believe will veto it.







Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 22

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Key is reasonable attitude. Don't go to extremes. Be calm, but aware of hidden meanings at social affair. Promises made by you could be called in your attention.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Your chance for success depends on versatility. One in authority is observant. Be sociable . . . but make clear your knowledge of the facts. Obtain hint from today's Aries message.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Best to stick close to home ground, remain in familiar areas. Association with strangers could result in unusual situation tonight. But your sense of humor can resolve problems.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Probe deep. No time to be satisfied with superficial answers, indications. Step forward with confidence. Investigate, ask — and get answers. Then your prestige rises.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Hold off on expenditures for now. There are past responsibilities which demand attention. Take one thing at a time. Calm, businesslike attitude prevails. Go slow!

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23): Key is balance. Have fun but also attend to routine matters. Temptation is to throw caution to winds. Wise course is to be thorough, careful. Patience now . . . profit later.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Tendency is to be restless. Be alert to opportunity, new ideas. Some privacy required. Get thoughts on paper early. Avoid individual who attempts to promote bizarre schemes.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Suggestions prove of value. Enlarge, improve — add your own personal touch. Day to experiment . . . but be aware, alert. One you respect due to offer deserved compliment.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Key is relaxation. Have fun with friends tonight. If too serious you frighten "prospects." Means be natural and calm . . . then others come to you. Don't attempt to force views.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Don't "beat around the bush." Say what you mean and mean what you say. Check details, attend to routine matters in person. One who advocates short-cut may not know facts.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Cycle remains high. But some recent purchases may have dented budget. Don't argue with mate or associate. Money affairs due to be straightened out. Have faith!

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Be diplomatic. Avoid direct or forceful methods. Get where you're going through indirect approach. Family member can help. Show appreciation.

If today is your birthday . . . you have distinct, original ideas. You are willing to tear down the old in order to rebuild. You are an individual in the true sense of the word!

The Mother of Parliaments Has Bred Unruly Sons But De Montfort Was Worst

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—The Mother of Parliaments has bred many unruly sons but none more fierce than the men who dared her amid the clash of arms and the curses of jealous kings.

High among these was Simon de Montfort, a hawk - eyed Frenchman who probably never learned English but mastered England briefly in the 13th century and gave citizen-representatives of towns their first say in national affairs.

It wasn't a big say. The newcomers apparently did not thunder out the rights of the common man as romantics now would like to believe. Nevertheless the Commons had arrived. A step was taken toward Parliament as it is known today in Britain, Canada and numerous other countries.

"Not without justification has Simon de Montfort been called the founder of the House of Commons," writes Kenneth Mackenzie in his The English Parliament.

"Nevertheless the claim is a little hard. . . . De Montfort, after all was a revolutionary and a rebel, and the Parliament he called in 1265 was more like a party conference than a relatively national assembly."

ORSERVE ANNIVERSARY

This year Britain's venerable old Parliament on the banks of the Thames marks the 700th anniversary of Simon's Parliament. To honor the occasion Queen Elizabeth will receive addresses by the House of Commons and the House of Lords June 22 in Westminster Hall, whose walls once echoed with de Montfort's oratory, cajolery and commands.

Just seven days earlier the 750th anniversary of another great English constitutional event, the signing of Magna Carta, will be observed. Every schoolboy has learned how the despotic King John bowed to his rebellious barons at Runnymede, on the Thames, June 15, 1215, and accepted principles whose effects were to last until today.

History is full of the groans of common folk who suffered from the cruelty and follies of kings. Yet it also records that the subjects sometimes gained in the long run from the same royal excesses.

Thus it happened that the successive reigns of John and his son, the wilful Henry III, each planted a shining monument—Magna Carta and Simon's Parliament—on the long way to freedom.

And feudal monarchs were not always tyrants—Edward I, son of Henry, also developed the parliamentary idea of Simon, his uncle and one-time mentor.

Simon, for that matter, is not seen by modern historians as a paragon of democratic virtue. Margaret Labarge, Ottawa professor who wrote a biography of de Montfort, portrays him as a proud, ambitious, harsh and greedy aristocrat, unscrupulous in his angling for personal advantage.

KILLED SOON AFTER

But the author says de Montfort, a deeply religious man, stood head and shoulders above everyone else in the England of his day in his attempts to rally round himself a following large enough to give the king's personal rule a restraining influence and creation of parliamentary government.

The concessions wrung by the aristocrats from the king in olden days were gradually grasped and wrested away by the common people. In 1688, the year of the "glorious" and virtually bloodless revolution that ended hapless James II, Parliament finally escaped from the domination of the king in council and established its own sovereignty.

"Thus we had arrived at those broad, happy uplands where everything is settled for the greatest good of the greatest number by the common sense of most after the consultation of all."

Simon, whatever his personal motives, was revered by many citizens as a martyr to Magna Carta when he was defeated and killed only a few months after his Parliament, which ran from Jan. 20 to late March in 1265.

In his History of the English-Speaking Peoples, Churchill terms Henry III's reign the "seed-time" of Britain's system and assesses Simon as an impatient man who "needlessly created suspicion and distrust. "Yet de Montfort lighted a fire never to be quenched in English history."

FATHER OF COMMONS — This is Simon de Montfort who has been called the founder of the British House of Commons. A hawk-eyed Frenchman he mastered England briefly in the 13th century he gave citizen-representatives of towns a small say in national affairs. This is a photograph of an engraving from a window at Charires Cathedral.

Sir Winston's death, incidentally, caused postponement of the de Montfort ceremonies which had originally been set for Jan. 20 this year.

The June ceremonies—may well arouse new interest in the 13th century and its dramas played out against an almost endless clamor of betrayal and bloodthirsty battle. As Churchill wrote:

"The cruel war and anarchy lay upon the surface; underneath, unformulated and largely unrealized by the hard-pressed actors, coursed all the tides which were to flow in Europe 500 years later. . . .

"From out of the conflict there rise the figures of heroes, both warriors and statesmen, from whose tribulations we are separated by long ages, but whose work and outlook unite them to us, as if we read about their acts in the morning paper."

—Immigrant French accused of seducing king's sister, Eleanor, 23.

—Simon calls king a liar; new household hits court.

—15,000 Londoners die in famine; king blamed.

—King and prince captured; Simon rules — calls Parliament.

—Renegade Simon slaughtered.

Simon de Montfort, son of a French soldier-aristocrat, came to England in 1231 at the age of 31 and claimed the earldom and lands of Leicester, once granted to his father.

Henry III, then 24, vain, impressionable, extravagant, took to de Montfort who, however, filled with distrust not only the English barons but the foreign favorites with whom the king had surrounded himself.

Henry waited a discreet nine years before granting Simon the earldom and he also entrusted the Frenchman with important affairs of state, including the governorship of rebellious Gascony. Simon married the king's widowed sister although she had earlier taken a public vow of chastity before the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Victim of intrigue and jealousy, Simon lost the friendship of the king but the brilliant interloper became leader of dissident elements of the English aristocracy, finding followers also among the lower clergy and the lesser classes.

When the king called a Great Council, or Parliament, in Oxford in June, 1258, Simon and 100 barons rode into town in full armor. The upshot was the Provisions of Oxford, a historic document limiting the monarch's power and appointing a 15-man body led by Simon to advise Henry.

This proved intolerable to the court and eventually resulted in a 26-month civil war, culminating in a six-hour battle at Lewes May 14, 1264, in which the king and his son, Edward, were captured.

Simon's star, now at its zenith, was soon to fall and an omen was the desertion from his ranks of many barons who saw his reforming zeal as a threat to their own privileges. Thus he was forced to weight his famed Parliament with county gentry and town burgesses.

CLERGY REPRESENTED

Parliament — the word first appears in documents dating from 1236—had been held in some form since the 11th century. One session called by the monarch in 1254 included for the first time "two lawful and discreet knights of each county."

Simon went one better by calling not only county representatives but also from York, Lincoln and other boroughs "two of the more discreet, lawful and trustworthy of their citizens of burgesses."

He was able to summon only five of 12 earls, 18 of some 130 barons but many bishops, abbots and lower clergy. One authority estimates there were about 160 citizens and an overall total of 410 in the assembly at a time when the country's population was approximately 3,000,000.

The Parliament became famed for its composition, not its achievements, and, anyway, Simon was dead by Aug. 4 of the same year, slain when his army defeated by Prince Edward—now free of rebel restraint—at the Battle of Evesham.

"Then Montfort died a hero on the field," Churchill records. "The Marchers (royalists) massacred large numbers of fugitives and prisoners and mutilated the bodies of the dead.

"The old king, a pathetic figure who had been carried by Simon in all his wanderings, was wounded by his son's followers, and only escaped death by revealing his identity, with the cry, 'Slay me not! I am Henry of Winchester, your king.'"

Thunder rolled across the battlefield as jubilant royalists chopped off the head, hands and feet of Simon, ending the strange story of the alien soldier who arrived a penniless and became, however briefly, the most powerful noble in the land. Among common people he was for many years worshipped as a saint, and miracles were attributed to his relics.

Historians differ on the complicated question of whether the essentials of Parliament were present in de Montfort's time. Recent discoveries among records at Westminster confirm, however, the importance of the idea of calling town citizens became virtually a continuous tradition. The representative element in Parliament was paramount, Stubbs, the 19th century historian whose views form the point of departure for most modern discussion about the origins of Parliament. In his opinion, Parliament did not come into being properly until the 14th century when the "Commons" was summoned regularly although its recognized the novelty of Simon's assembly in summoning citizens.

One modern view is presented by R. F. Treharne who sees Simon's "contemporaries as all changing Parliament from an occasion to an institution" which they used as a fundamental source of authority for government.

He considers that although Simon's conception was too far in advance of his time to have been successful, it was his achievement to stamp the idea of Parliament as a primarily political assembly upon English political consciousness forever.

BIG BEN GETS A HOME — A contemporary magazine drawing shows Big Ben, the 13½-ton hour bell, being drawn across the still unfinished Westminster Bridge in London by 16 powerful horses on May 28, 1859. To the right are the newly-rebuilt Houses of Parliament. The bell was named after the first commissioner of works, Sir Benjamin (Big Ben) Hall whose department was responsible for the bell's installation.

Security Chief Under Arrest At Saigon

SAIGON — Col. Ho Tieu, head of South Vietnamese counter intelligence, has been arrested in connection with a reported plot against the government ,informed sources here said today.

Earlier, military security chief Col. Trang Van Chinh was also reported arrested, but the sources later said this was uncertain although he had definitely been replaced in his post.

His arrest apparently was connected with an alleged plot to overthrow the government, announced Friday by Prime Minister Phan Huy Quat.

The sources said the plotters enlisted the support of some of Quat's bodyguards in their plan to assassinate or abduct him.

They also planned to kidnap Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, commander of the First Corps, and Air Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky, air force commander, the sources said.

LED OPERATIONS

The sources said that when Quat got wind of the plot, he went with several aides to the marine headquarters in Saigon from where he was understood to have directed police operations against the conspirators.

The man behind the plot was said to be Col. Phan Ngoc Thao, a shadowy figure who led the abortive Feb. 19 coup along with Brig.-Gen. Lam Van Phat, former interior minister.

In the ground war, U.S. marines carried out a scorched earth operation in a Viet Cong hideout area south of Hue. Communist guerrillas fled after token resistance when marines with flame throwers burned huts, many containing ammunition.

Communist Viet Cong guerrillas inflicted heavy casualties on a South Vietnamese special forces company about 30 miles north of Saigon today.

A massive force of U.S. Air Force planes slammed bombs into the Quang Binh military barracks, destroying 37 buildings 55 to 60 miles south of the North Viet Nam capital of Hanoi. All planes returned safely.

Visit Paid To 'Inlaws' By Queen

By IAN MacDOWALL

SALEM, West Germany (Reuters)—Britain's Queen visited with her inlaws here today after a glittering night at the opera and the most uninhibited day of welcome so far in her state visit to West Germany.

The Queen and Prince Philip arrived here by special train for a private weekend with the duke's widowed sister, the Margravin Theodora of Baden, whose 17th - century baroque castle overlooks this picturesque hamlet near Lake Constance.

The train was drawn to the castle along a normally-unused branch line, past patrols of green - uniformed police and blue-clad railroad police.

Several thousand persons, including members of a sword-dancing troupe in three-cornered black hats and ancient frock coats, cheered the Royal Couple.

About 250 policemen crowded the town of only 1,000 inhabitants.

CARS BANNED

Visitors' cars were banned around Salem School, where British and German newspapers have specialized Prince Charles, the 16-year-old heir to the British throne, may come to study.

His father attended the school before Hitler's rise to power, and it is the predecessor of Gordonstoun School in Scotland which the prince now attends.

The Queen and Philip will rest in Salem until Sunday night, after four full days of enthusiastic welcome by the people of West Germany.

Friday's tour of Munich, culminating in a diamond-studded performance of Richard Strauss' opera Der Rosenkavalier, provided the noisiest and most uninhibited day of her visit.

Wild cheering and clapping broke out when the Queen paused to wave to a crowd of 8,-000 as she left the opera house.

Although she looked happy, she also showed signs of strain and fatigue.

Toronto Air Is Tough On Stockings

TORONTO (CP) — While they were enjoying the noonday sun on University Avenue Thursday a group of Bell Telephone girls noticed little holes begin to dot their nylons.

The holes rapidly lengthened into unsightly runs. One operator said she soon had 12 runs in her sylons.

Fisher Fights Judases

OTTAWA (CP) — With his sights set on mutual-fund management, Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) took his judas-tree amendment back into the Commons Friday and the measure was "talked out."

That means it was not voted on and is unlikely to come up again this session. The same thing happened last session.

The judas - tree amendment, as he calls it, is designed to prevent persons from doing business with others when they have a conflict of interest. He cited the administrators of mutual funds, who also belong to the advisory firms that plan investments.

"Now this is a pretty nice business . . . if you can take your share as a manager and your cut as an adviser." It was important that this be checked because of the rapid growth of mutual funds through high-pressure salesmanship.

He said the measure would allow those persons with conflicting interests to hang themselves — that's why it was named after the tree on which Judas allegedly took his life. The amendment would provide a 10-year term.

EXPLANATION ASKED

The actual amendment as proposed, in technical, said J. J. Greene (L — Renfrew North) complained—that the explanation given Commons—it was not even more difficult to understand "for a backwoods boy like me from Ontario, eh?"

This was the explanation:

"For the -January of Mammon who has everything, the con-man confiscador of the Bay Street boardroom: for the investment double dealer in coss, nostrums, surecurities, salves qui-pest, and pink pep pills for the anemic income ills of widow and pensioner, this bill provides a judas-tree."

Mr. Fisher said that with all the information now available to investment buyers there is no excuse for the funds being connected with a captive management group. He said his constituency is swarming with mutual - fund salesmen. And you never know whether it's going to be a corporal in an air force uniform or a service station attendant.

Mr. Greene said the amendment touches on one point of a much wider problem — protecting Canadian investors. He said it is the responsibility of the government to see that the free - enterprise system works better for the consumer. There was a tendency for corporations to work too hard for the corporations.

SENTENCE GANGSTERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Two members of a looded gang that terrorized customers of western Quebec and eastern Ontario for several months in 1963 were sentenced Friday to 10 years each in penitentiary. Jean Guy Darveau, 30, and Jean Rosaire Falardeau, 29, were sentenced for beating Emile Sauvageau, 54, of St. Marc de Carrieres, Que., and robbing him of $15,-200.

Two Quebec Separatists To Be Hanged for Murder

MONTREAL (CP)—Two members of a Quebec separatist organization were convicted Friday night of capital murder and sentenced to be hanged Oct. 22.

A 12-man jury found Francois Schirm, 33, who claims to be a former French army paratrooper, and Edmond Guenette, 20, guilty after deliberating less than 45 minutes. They did not recommend mercy.

Schirm and Guenette were charged in the fatal shooting of Leslie MacWilliams, 56-year-old vice-president of Dominion Fireams Co. during a raid on the downtown gunshop May 4 last. 29 by five members of the Armee de Liberation du Quebec.

The attempt to seize weapons for the terrorist group also resulted in the wounding of gunsmith Alfred Pinsech, 27, who, an autopsy disclosed was killed by a police bullet during a gun battle with the bandits.

House Faces Long Talks Over Shortening Debates

OTTAWA (CP) — A long, tedious debate is shaping up in the Commons over new rules designed to shorten debates.

All members who spoke in the first three days of the debate agreed in principle that their deliberations could stand certain limits, but most of them used up an hour to say it.

Speeches now are limited to 60 minutes, but the rule usually is waived by unanimous agreement.

The discussion will continue Tuesday with two amendments formally before the House and more being prepared by the government and the Creditistes. The House will not sit Monday in observance of the Queen's official birthday.

All opposition parties have expressed reservations about the two major proposals in a government resolution introduced Wednesday by Prime Minister Pearson. The proposals are:

—A limit of 36 days each session on all appropriation and supply debates. (This type of business took up 90 days last session.)

—A "guillotine" rule to cut off debate on controversial legislation at an arbitrary time to prevent filibusters like the 33-day flag debate last year.

Government House Leader McIlraith said Friday he will meet representatives of the opposition parties Tuesday in an attempt to soften both proposals. He would then introduce amendments to the resolution. He indicated the government is willing to spell out minimum debating periods in the guillotine rule to protect the right of every party to be heard on each piece of legislation.

As it stands now, the proposed guillotine rule could be invoked by any cabinet minister to set any time limit he chose to impose on a bill he sponsored.

An all - party business committee would try to agree on a time limit and if it failed the minister involved would propose one to the Commons. The motion would come to a vote after one day's debate.

Gerald W. Baldwin (PC — Peace River) said there are "many dangerous traps" in this proposal. The guillotine rule in the British Parliament was applied rarely and only by the permanent Speaker after an extended debate.

Gilles Gregoire, Creditiste House leader, said he intends to introduce amendments next week to make exceptions to the 36-day limit on appropriations debates.

Two such amendments were submitted Thursday night by the New Democratic and Social Credit parties.

Mr. Gregoire opposed three other government proposals.

These call for a 30-minute limit on the daily question period, extending sittings through the dinner hour and abolishing appeals from the Speaker's rulings.

Mr. Pearson opened Friday's sitting with the traditional motion to the Queen, extending birthday greetings and a declaration of loyalty and devotion from her Canadian subjects.

Protect Pension Rights

TORONTO (CP)—A pension bill carefully tailored to fit into future federal plans and to parallel Quebec legislation was introduced in the Ontario legislature Friday.

Premier Robarts, who introduced the bill, said: "Our goal of uniform rules regarding pensions across Canada is in sight."

The bill requires private pension plans in Ontario to be portable — payable if the employee moves to another province — and sets standards of solvency for pension plans.

Mr. Robarts said the bill will protect Ontario employees from any loss of pension rights when the federal government's Canada Pension Plan goes into operation. Mr. Robarts committed Ontario last January to take part in the federal plan.

He said he had consulted with Quebec before introducing the bill and Quebec will pass legislation paralleling the Ontario bill and taking effect on the same date.

U.N. Endeavors To Turn Truce Into Ceasefire

SANTO DOMINGO (CP) — The United Nations sought today to extend the 24-hour truce in the Dominican Republic into a lasting ceasefire.

Before the shooting stopped at noon Friday, the military situation had developed into a standoff between the two warring factions. This made diplomats optimistic on the ceasefire prospects.

The civilian - military junta fought with tanks and machine-guns right up to the deadline Friday and was reported to have crushed rebel resistance in northern Santo Domingo. This left the rebels with their downtown stronghold, which is sealed off by U.S. troops who have strict orders not to allow armed forces from either side through their lines. The area is about eight city blocks wide and 12 blocks long.

There is an enclave of junta troops within an area sealed off by Americans. This is the site of the National Palace, where fierce battles raged on two consecutive nights this week.

The truce, scheduled to end at noon today, was negotiated by the Red Cross and the OAS to evacuate the dead and wounded. Secretary-General U Thant told the UN Security Council Friday that his representative in Santo Dominico, Jose Antonio Mayobre, was trying to extend it another 24 hours.

Meanwhile, Jordan and several other nations were working on a resolution which would have the 11 - nation Security Council call for a lasting ceasefire.

In Washington, U.S. strategists said prospects for a solution to the Dominican crisis have taken a turn for the better and chances for a permanent ceasefire are brighter. But they cautioned that much remains to be done.

The U.S. announced Friday it will withdraw some 1,700 of its 23,000 troops in the Dominican Republic. The number of those to be pulled out is about equal to the number of troops being sent in by Latin American nations under the auspices of the Organization of American States.

U.S. officials said a sizable U.S. contingent and some inter-American forces may have to remain on the Caribbean island for months.

The U.S. has been pressing for a coalition government which would run the country until a permanent government is elected.

WORLD STEP ASIDE

Both rebel President Col. Francisco Caamano Deno and junta chief Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera would be asked to step aside under the plan. Imbert rejected the idea. Caamano has rejected some of those proposed to serve.

The ceasefire was being observed except for a few sporadic shots as Red Cross teams moved in to haul out the dead and wounded.

Reporters touring the four-square-mile battle area in the north of the city said they saw bodies being burned in the streets, apparently to prevent the spread of disease.

No Threat To Others In Biracialism

By KEN KELLY

SUDBURY (CP) — Current emphasis on the two founding races of Canada is not a threat to Canadians of other ethnic origins, Prime Minister Pearson said Friday night.

He told the convocation of Laurentian University that he is aware "of the seriousness of the debate among Canadians of other ethnic origins as to where they fit in, with all this emphasis on the founding 'partnership.'"

"I am also aware that some have felt anxiety," he said after receiving an honorary doctor of laws degree.

It would be unwise to read into references to the two founding races anything more than recognition of the historical fact that French and English were the predominant language groups at the colonial fron'a-tiers of Canada and at Confederation.

It would also be unwise "to let the impression that there are grades of citizenship in Canada; that there are Canadians who, because of a different ancestry and a different historical relationship to Canada, should be considered to regard themselves in any way whatever as outside the original partnership."

WON'T HAPPEN

"That must not, and will not happen. For in a very real sense, the partnership of Canada today is a partnership of all Canadians of every origin and racial background."

The prime minister's four-hour visit here was a purely non-political one. He received a degree from the university, a composite of Roman Catholic, Anglican and United Church colleges.

But at an airport press conference he had to answer at Opposition Leader Diefenbaker who had charged during a visit to the west last month that the government is trying to gag the Opposition in Parliament with proposed rule changes.

"That's a pretty silly explanation of what we are trying to do," Mr. Pearson said. "Most of the (rule change) proposals we made this week we supported when in opposition.

"They are designed to make Parliament more effective, not to prevent Opposition discussion."

WANTS TO TALK

Mr. Pearson also said he wants to consult Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton before saying anything about Mr. Diefenbaker's suggestion that Mr. Macnaughton become the Commons permanent Speaker. He said Mr. Macnaughton indicated earlier he doesn't want to continue as Speaker beyond the life of the present Parliament.

Nanny Murmured 'Do Not Cry' Then Used Gas As a Lullaby

LONDON (AP)—The British nanny Mrs. John F. Kennedy hopes to find for her children is one of a disappearing breed.

"A really good nanny is as rare as a warm, sunny English day," said a titled mother of two young children.

Lady X—"If you used my name, I'd never get another nanny and I'm looking again"—has had 200 nurses for her children in the last nine years.

Of the 200, only seven were British. Lady X tried Germans, French, Belgians, Poles, Italians, Spaniards, Austrians, Swiss, Swedes, Danes, Finns and one Russian.

Two turned out to be alcoholics. One tried to stab the butler. Another turned the gas heater on in the nursery and didn't light it. "She told me a little gas would make the children sleen better "

Other than those still in service and growing old," she said, "I'm convinced only a few exist."

Here for the dedication of the Runnymede memorial to her husband, Mrs. Kennedy advertised last week, for a British or French nanny to replace Maud Shaw. Miss Shaw, an Englishwoman, is retiring after nursing children for more than 40 years. She has been with Mrs. Kennedy for more than seven years, since shortly after Caroline was born.

Why do Mrs. Kennedy and other mothers want British nannies?

"Because they're so good, reliable and I'm worthy," said Lady X. "Of course, some people have them as status symbols. But if you're lucky, the good one stays with you most of her life."

In London, a nanny's pay is £6 or £7 $18 to $21) a week. The employer also supplies the standard uniforms, nanny's food and her room in the family home.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Fair and cooler weather is forecast for all regions tonight and Sunday as a high pressure area currently over southern Manitoba moves eastward into the Great Lakes region Sunday.

Sunny Skies After Rain Today Weatherman's Holiday Recipe

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A touch of rain today and sunny skies for the rest of the weekend will make good celebration weather in Ontario for the Victoria Day weekend.

The Toronto weather office predicted late Friday night that showers and thunderstorms will hit Northern Ontario this morning and move south in the afternoon.

Sunny skies and slightly cooler weather will follow the rain but the temperatures—70s in the south and 60s in the north—shouldn't hinder any outdoor activities.

The sunny weather will continue Sunday and most of Monday, they said, unless otherwise predicted, but another disturbance over the Great Lakes could dampen fireworks displays in the southern section of the province.

Traffic, very heavy Friday night, may claim at least 20 lives during the weekend, the Ontario Safety League said.

Provincial police will have all cars on the road in an effort to cut this toll.

Ice has gone now from all lakes and rivers in the province, and trout and pickerel fishermen should have good pickings, a Department of Lands and Forests official said.

Although the warm weather will bring many of the insects out, they of course, have their peak numbers until late June.

The Algonquin Park area is free of them, so we don't expect too large a quantity anywhere north of there.

Beaches along Lake Huron north of Sarnia have another problem—dead sharp.

Officials of resorts in that area say the fish are dying by the thousands. As fast as the bodies are cleared, more fish are washed ashore, leaving unsightly beaches and an unmistakable odor.

Victoria Day Traffic Toll Expected to be Over 60

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While most Canadians will explode $1,500,000 in firecrackers during the Victoria Day holiday weekend, at least 60 persons are expected to die in traffic accidents.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council predicts that total will be killed on Canada's roads during the 78-hour celebration from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday.

The council said last year's total of 64 during the holiday weekend was a record. Previous high was in 1957 when 50 were killed.

But the festive days will be bright for many — particularly fireworks manufacturers.

The expected $1,500,000 spent on fireworks, combined with sales from events such as the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto and the Calgary Stampede, will bring the total to about $3,000,000 for the year.

WEATHER MIXED

The over-all weather picture across the country calls for warmer weather today with showers and thunderstorms Sunday and Monday followed by cooler weather.

Seasonable temperatures will send hundreds of thousands to the highways, which will keep safety officials and police hopping in an effort to reduce fatalities.

No special ceremonies or celebrations are planned for Newfoundland, but the day holds special significance for a large segment of the population—the trout and salmon angling season opens. Weather is expected to be generally cloudy with temperatures in the low 40s—perfect for trout fishing.

Special road safety programs have been set up on major Quebec highways, with the Canadian Army operating first-aid posts along the main and secondary routes.

FLAG RALLY

Montreal ceremonies will include a rally at the Lafontaine Park monument to Adam Dollard des Ormeaux, killed in 1660 when a fort he was defending was overrun at Long Sault Rapids by hundreds of Iroquois.

Officials are hoping there won't be a repeat of last year's demonstration that ended in the arrest of 28 persons. Flags were burned, fires lit through its park and traffic was blocked by demonstrators.

In Ottawa, one of seven scarves crocheted by Queen Victoria for heroes of the Boer War at the turn of the century will be turned over in a ceremony to Governor-General Vanier for display in the Canadian War Museum.

Fireworks At Pt. Anne, Fairgrounds

Quinte skies will be set aflame by at least two large fireworks displays on Monday night, the May 24th holiday.

Here in Belleville, Park Dale's giant display will be held at the Fairgrounds this year, slated to start at 8:45. Clown bands, majorettes, etc plus $700 worth of fireworks, will provide the show.

Earlier, a Belleville and District Rotary sponsored league, between Trenton Commercial Printers and Ellis Juniors, will be played at the same park. That starts at 7:15 and one ticket gets the holder in to both the game and the fireworks.

And at Point Anne, that centre's Fire Department is again sponsoring a large display, slated to commence at dusk.

Door prizes and refreshments will be available, with children admitted free, at the Point Anne ball park.

Large crowds are expected to attend both Victoria Day displays.

Police Plan Full Patrol Of Highways

This is the 24th of May weekend and district roads will be crowded with cars as Quinte area residents and tourists take to the highways.

It is to ensure that provincial police will be out in force and a 24-hours-per-day patrol of highways will be in effect in order that accidents may be kept to a minimum.

District Inspector A. McDougall said today that all traffic officers will be on highway patrol throughout the holiday weekend and will keep a close watch on traffic offenders.

"The co-operation of the motoring public in keeping within posted speed limits, and in observance of all traffic regulations is necessary if accidents are to be avoided," he said.

"Keep your eyes on the road and on the speedometer," the Inspector urged.

H. J. BENNETT POSTE

Hector J. Bennett Poste, 19 Paris Street, passed away at Belleville General Hospital Friday night. He was 79.

A native of Belleville, Mr. Poste was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bennett. As a boy he worked for the Thomas Ritchie Company and became manager of the carpet department. When the firm was taken over by the Canadian Department Stores, he became manager of the furniture department. Subsequently it was taken over by the T. Eaton Company. Mr. Poste remained with the firm until his retirement in 1950. Even his retirement he remained active; he worked for a while in the drapery department of the McIntosh store.

A resident of Belleville all his life, Mr. Poste was a member of Tabernacle United Church and was active in the men's club.

Four sisters survive, the former Mary Twilliger, predeceased him in 1954. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Donald (Doggby) King, Ottawa; Mrs. Douglas (Gertrude) Jordan, Whitby; Mrs. Kenneth (Ruby) Lighthall, Toronto, and Mrs. Jeanne B. Poste, Belleville and seven grandchildren.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon from the Thompson Funeral Chapel to Belleville Cemetery.

ROBERT FISHER JOHNSON

Services for Robert Fisher Johnson were held at the Thompson Funeral Chapel, Canon R. S. D. Wright officiated.

A memorial service was held by the Belleville branch of the Royal Canadian Legion Wednesday night, under the direction of the president, Richard Kirby, and the chaplain, Bram Hemmeyes.

Interment will take place in Mountain View Cemetery, Fort William.

MRS. HARRY W. ACKERMAN

The funeral for Mrs. Harry W. (Lucentia) Ackerman of 284 Ann Street was held yesterday from her home to the Belleville mausoleum. Rev. Harry M. Davis of Bridge Street United Church officiated.

Honorary bearers were W. H. Finkle, Judge J. C. Anderson, W. J. Morrison, John Deacon, C. R. Hunt and T. K. Pringle. Active bearers were Douglas Burr, Bruce Lattimer, William Hurst, Ralph Graham, Dr. Austin Walters and Fred B. Deacon.

Mrs. Ackerman had lived in Belleville for the past 57 years.

She was a member of Bridge Street United Church and an honorary member of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

MABEL TERESA O'HARA

At Niagara Falls, Ontario, on Friday, May 21, 1965, Mabel Teresa O'Hara, of R.R. 4, St. Catharines, beloved wife of the late Robert James O'Hara, formerly of Belleville, died, in her 78th year.

She was the mother of Mrs. John (Margaret) Delisse of Niagara Peninsula; sister of James Waddell of Syracuse, N.Y., and Henry of Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. O'Hara is resting at the Darte and Son Funeral Residence, 39 Court Street, St. Catharines until Tuesday morning, May 25, at 8.30 o'clock. A High Mass of Requiem will be sung in St. Thomas Aquinas Church at 9 o'clock. Interment in Victoria Lawn cemetery.

Award Certificate to PUC For 3 Accident-free Years

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission has been awarded a certificate of merit from the Electric Utilities Safety Association of Ontario for the periods 1963, 1963 and 1964 without disabling accident. The announcement of the award was made by utilities manager James Page at Thursday's meeting of the commission.

The Board voted to spend $34 on supplying 2,000 safety book covers for public students from Grades Three, Four and Five in Trenton schools. The covers, printed by Charlie Ryden, display safety rules for the children.

The commission members were cautious about spending an estimated $6,100 to install activated carbon in the filtration plant in an attempt to improve the taste of the water in east Trenton. It would cost the $6,100 to have the carbon installed on a trial basis. To install the system on a permanent basis would cost around $16,000.

The consulting firm of Gore and Storrie has recommended the trial procedure, while not guaranteeing results, as has the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Commissioners Charles Hilton and (Mayor) D. J. MacDonald felt $4,100 was too much to spend on a trial. Commission chairman, Clifford Baker thought the investment would be justified, but was over-ruled.

Mr. Baker explained his stand by saying there were so many types of algae which affect the taste of water, he felt the type found in Trenton river water might respond to the activated carbon treatment. The other two commissions have, however, agreed to meet with Gore and Storrie to discuss the matter.

Mr. Page read a report from the audit analysts concerning soil condition at the Murray Townsite. In the area where the commission plans to build a water storage pond. The report was satisfactory.

Hospital Administrator Submits Annual Report

Protect

gave details of the plan to the Quebec house Friday.

The Ontario bill requires employers who maintain pension plans for their employees to provide vested benefits in the form of deferred annuities for employees who leave work after reaching age 45 and completing 10 years service.

The bill, coming into effect on the same date as the Canada Pension Plan, Jan. 1, 1966, is regarded as the first step toward setting up a large provincial regulation of private pension plans.

Mr. Roberts committed Ontario to the Canada Pension Plan last January.

Mr. Roberts recalled that Finance Minister Walter Gordon had said that, following agreement, the provinces would be federal legislation will be brought in to cover employees under federal jurisdiction.

AIMS AT STRENGTH

Ontario's new legislation aims to strengthen the position of private pensions in the province. No employer is required to have such a pension plan for his employees, but there are 8,100 private pension plans in Ontario covering an estimated 1,000,000 persons.

Mr. Roberts said that while many plans (53,000 employees had been found not to entitle those covered to full vesting of benefits until more than 10 years' service.

In addition, 36 plans were completely unfunded and operated on a pay-as-you-go basis and 76 plans were unfunded except for persons already retired. Many other plans were not funded to the required level.

Under the new legislation, the Ontario Pension Commission will be able to make arrangements with other provinces to allow any employer with employees in several provinces to register his plan in one province — probably where he has most workers — and still qualify in all.

NEEDN'T RE-REGISTER

The new act will not require employers to re-register their pension plans.

The definition of employer will be expanded to prevent expansion of liability through corporate reorganization. Municipalities are named as employers.

An employee will be able to work for several employers while coming under one multi-employer pension plan.

Temporary suspension of employment will not interrupt continuous service needed under the act for benefits.

Employees of pension plans will be able to designate beneficiaries in case of death.

Employees will be able to withdraw up to 25 per cent of the value of their deferred life annuity before normal retirement age.

Aside from this exception, employee contributions made after Jan. 1, 1965 will be locked in.

TRENTON — Trenton Memorial Hospital administrator, Miss Hazel Naudett, in making her report at the annual meeting of the hospital board Thursday night, said close to 5,000 patients had been taken care of during the year. More than 800 babies were born in the institution, and average stay per patient was 9.2 days.

There were 110 deaths in the hospital last year and ten babies were stillborn. There were no maternity deaths.

Miss Naudett commented that salaries of the 216 persons employed at the hospital accounted for 63 per cent of the hospital's expenses.

Mrs. L. H. Bearne, president of the Women's Auxiliary, said the auxiliary had a membership of 412. Around 100 of these ladies attend volunteer duties, such as taking around a library cart, playing with the children in the pediatrics department, helping out at blood donor clinics and arranging to have flowers delivered to the chronically ill and lonely patients.

During the year the auxiliary raised $2,000 which was used to supply toys for children in the hospital, comforts for adults and gifts for all at Dr. M. A. Hall's admittance to the medical report, said all departments of the hospital had been running very smoothly except the maternity department which had shown a decline.

IN MEMORIAM

BROWN, Ida Cooley — In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away May 22nd, 1964. We little know when we kiss that morn.

The sorrow the day would bring. For the call was sudden, the shock severe,

To part with one we loved so dear, And the grief lasting, weary, and deep

Of life it shall be thought best, He has gone and left us to weep and whisper "Come home."

You wished no one a last farewell, Not even a goodbye;

You had gone before we knew it, And only God knew why.

—Sadly missed by daughters Gladys, Peggy, Faye Hirt, and son Willard Cooley.

BRADSHAW — In loving memory of a dear father and brother, Wesley Bradshaw, who passed away May 22nd, 1964.

Sadly missed and sister, Stella Casey, who passed away June 22nd, 1964.

Just a prayer from us who loved you

Precious memories, kind and true, In our hearts you'll never leave, Despite the passing of the years. —Ever remembered by mother and family.

JOHNSON — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Melissa Johnson, who entered into rest May 22nd, 1964.

Her life is also God's memory, Her absence a silent grief, Always in God's beautiful garden,

In the sunlight of perfect peace. —Lovingly remembered by daughter Helen, son-in-law Harvey, granddaughter, Joan and family.

GRAY — In loving memory of my dear husband and Wesley Gray who passed away May 22, 1964.

Silent though, a silent heart, Keeps his memory ever dear, Time takes away the edge of grief, But memory turns back every leaf. —Never forgotten by son Wesley and family.

PACK — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Leslie E. Pack, who passed away May 23, 1965.

His weary hours and days of pain, His troubled nights are past, And for aching head and heart, He has found sweet rest at last. —Sadly missed but never will be forgotten by his wife Stella and family.

GRAY — In loving memory of a dear father George Wesley Gray who passed away May 22nd, 1964.

Nothing can ever take away, The love a heart and mind can say, Fond memories linger every day, Remembrance never dies. —Ever remembered by daughters Vera and Hazel and families.

Find Body Of Unknown Man in River

The body of an unidentified man — believed from Toronto, was taken from the Moira River at Victoria Park this morning.

An intensive police investigation was underway before noon into the man's identity and the background of his death.

The body was discovered near the east retaining wall of the river immediately above the CPR bridge.

It was spotted before 8 a.m. by three young boys awaiting delivery of a Toronto newspaper for their routes.

The trio—Gord Bridge, 13, of 38 Alexander Street; Arthur Bridge, 12, of 33 Woodland Acres, and 13-year-old Bill Anderson, of 444 East Bridge Street —said the body was floating face downwards and at first they thought it was a giant turtle.

The body was taken from the river by police and firemen. One fireman said pressure showed the victim may have been in the river from last night.

Police said he was aged about 50 years. They were checking city parking lots in the possibility he may have left a car somewhere in the city.

TWO PERSONS — driver and passenger — were hurt when this automobile was truck in rear on Highway 2 east of Bay of Quinte Country Club.

DRIVER WAS INJURED when tsiscar, say police; was involved in rear-end collision and rolled over on Highway 2.

Harvard Training Plane 'Grounded' for Last Time

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The full-throated Harvard, once a source of acute political embarrassment for Prime Minister Pearson, ended its role Friday as an RCAF training plane. The last group of student pilots to fly the Harvard — commonly known as the Yellow Peril for its tendency to ground-wheel on landing — was graduated at the RCAF station at Penhold, Alta.

In early 1956 Mr. Pearson, then external affairs minister, was under Opposition attack in the Commons for Canadian arms sales to Middle East countries.

These sales included 15 Harvards following Mr. Pearson said that, even if armed, these planes could under no circumstances be considered combat weapon. Unwittingly, the RCAF on the same week issued a photograph of a Harvard weapons trainer loosing a salvo of rockets. There haven't been any Canadian armaments shipped to the Middle East since.

More than 25,000 Canadian and foreign pilots have been trained in Canada by the RCAF in the Harvard.

Now, after almost 26 years of RCAF service, the Harvard is being replaced by the Tutor jet trainer.

The RCAF took delivery of its first Harvard July 19, 1939. This original aircraft survived the flying of student pilots until May 9, 1946, when it was wrecked at Aylmer, Ont.

The first 165 Harvards came from North American Aviation Company of the U.S. In January, 1940, 100 Harvards were ordered from Noorduyn Company of Canada. By the end of the war nearly 2,000 had been supplied by this firm.

Three Hurt In Rear-end Collision

Three persons were sent to hospital and two cars wrecked in a rear-end crash on Highway 2 east of the Bay of Quinte Country Club last night.

Both drivers, Charles Sulkki, 19, R.R. 2 Brighton and Colin Allenby, 21, 220 Farley Avenue, Belleville, were released after treatment for cuts and shock.

Marilyn McFarlane, 21, 178 Bleecker Avenue — daughter of Rev. M. G. McFarlane, Tabernacle United Church, was admitted to hospital with cuts and bruises.

She was a passenger in the Allenby car, rammed from behind by Sulkki's vehicle.

Dominion Drama Festival Will Open at Brockville Monday With Behan Play

BROCKVILLE (CP)—A new Ottawa drama group which entered its first adult production in a regional festival and won is to open the annual Dominion Drama Festival here Monday night.

Before a formally - dressed audience which will include Prime Minister Pearson and his wife, members of Lakeside Theatre Productions will stage Brendan Behan's hit comedy The Hostage. The group will be the first of seven to perform in the festival.

Director Joe O'Brien says the biggest problem about the Behan play is understanding what the author was trying to say.

"It's a bitter comedy," he says. The plot concerns an innocent British soldier who is taken as a hostage by the Irish Republican Army. He has a romance with a barmaid in a Dublin bar, and she tries unsuccessfully to arrange his escape. He is killed during the attempt, and rises from the ground and sings a requiem to himself.

The lakeside group was organized to do children's plays. The Hostage is the first full-length adult play it has attempted.

The Behan play will be preceded on festival program by Il (He), a two-act drama for one actor by Denys Saint-Denis which is to be performed Sunday night by l'Atrium Company of Montreal. It is not competing in the festival, but was invited to participate as a guest company. The festival will stage five English - language plays and three French - language plays.

The adjudicator is Guy Beaulne of Quebec City, director of theatre for the Quebec cultural affairs department. He is the first Canadian to judge the week-long festival in recent years, all adjudicators have come from outside the country.

All performances will be held in the 1,000 - seat Brockville Civic auditorium, a municipally - owned theatre.

The seven theatre groups in the week-long festival will compete for nine major awards, with the top prize being the Dominion Drama Festival Trophy for the best presentation. It is accompanied by $1,000 from the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, main sponsors of the festival since 1962.

Here is the program:

Monday, May 24: The Hostage, by Brendan Behan, Lakeside Theatre Productions, Ottawa.

May 25: Les Nouveaux-Dieux (The New Gods) by Jacques Ducheune, Theatre de la Place Ville Marie, Montreal.

May 27: A Man for All Seasons, by Robert Bolt, The Players Guild, Hamilton.

May 28: Le Barbier de Seville by Beaumarchais, le Troupe de l'Echiquier of the University of Sherbrooke.

May 29 (matinee): The Wakefield Cycle, adapted by Frank Canino, the Xverian Players, Antigonish, N.S.

May 29 (evening): The Firebugs, by Max Frisch, Little Theatre Group of Vernon, B.C.

All players were selected at regional drama festivals held across Canada earlier this spring.

Recover Goya In British Railway Office

LONDON (Reuters)—A valuable Goya painting of the Duke of Wellington, stolen from a British art museum four years ago, has been recovered in a railroad baggage office, police announced here today.

The painting was sold at Sotheby's auction rooms in London to an Argentinian lawyer in 1961, for £140,000 ($420,000) but was later bought for the nation after a public outcry to keep the treasures going to the United States.

It was stolen the same year.

The painting was found at Birmingham railroad station early today by detectives in the Midlands industrial city, where a letter and a luggage ticket yarder were sent to a Birmingham newspaper office.

The package, wrapped in burlap, measured about two feet by two feet and had a name as smooth administrator in running the International Jesuit province in Japan the last seven years, was chosen in a secret vote at the headquarters of the Society of Jesus, the Jesuit order, at the edge of Vatican City.

A majority of the 218 electors representing Jesuit provinces around the world elected him on the third ballot in a half-day voting session.

LETTERS SIMILAR

The letter sent to the Birmingham newspaper office was unsigned, but appeared to be in the handwriting similar to that which appeared in other messages to news agencies since the painting disappeared.

Detectives believed the letters were written by someone who either stole the masterpiece or had it in his posssion.

A joint statement by Scotland Yard and the National Gallery said:

"The portrait appears to be in good condition but will not be exhibited until it has been subjected to expert examination."

Thant Cancels Planned Visit To Queen's

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Secretary-General U Thant "regretfully" cancelled a scheduled visit to Canada today because of an urgent Security Council meeting on the Dominican crisis.

The secretary - general had been scheduled to fly to Ottawa for private talks with Prime Minister Pearson. Later, the two were to have driven to Queen's University in Kingston to receive honorary degrees.

The change of plans came after the Security Council decided Friday evening to continue its meetings today because of the danger of renewed fighting in the Dominican Republic.

A UN spokesman said there was no plan for a substitute UN official to go to Kingston to read the speech Thant had planned to deliver there. But he said the text of the speech would be released at 4 p.m. EDT as a statement.

The Dominican situation, and the Vietnamese war, were to have been among topics for discussion in Thant's discussions with the prime minister. They had planned to have informal talks at the prime minister's residence.

Spanish Priest Named Head Of Jesuits

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Very Rev. Pedro Arrupe, a Spanish priest who is also a medical doctor, was elected general of the Jesuits today at a secret session of the Roman Catholicism's biggest and most influential religious order.

Father Arrupe, a 58-year-old Basque who earned a name as a smooth administrator in running the multinational Jesuit province in Japan the last seven years, was chosen in a secret vote at the headquarters of the Society of Jesus, the Jesuit order, at the edge of Vatican City.

A majority of the 218 electors representing Jesuit provinces around the world elected him on the third ballot in a half-day voting session.

Fitness and All That

An insurance company advertisement which appeared in a Toronto newspaper recently caused us some distress. It said in effect that chaps who have passed the age of 40 should be more solicitous of their health.

Surely this is a bit early in the scheme of things. After all, does life not begin at 40? And is it not a fact that people are living longer and that unless a fellow is burning the old candle at both ends he may live until he is 70 or thereabouts?

Pie on the insurance company. The advertisement even speaks of such nasty things as ulcers and blood pressure. Maybe some people do suffer from such maladies by the time they are 40, but it is partly their own fault.

More people are coming to the realization they are working too hard and too long. And some heretics—columnists mainly—have been suggesting quietly they should ease up, take more time to stand and stare, or mess about in boats fishing and the like.

Many of us could take a leaf out of the book of soccer star Stanley Matthews. Sir Stanley (he was knighted recently) is still playing soccer —and he is 50 years of age. He is now in Canada, doing a stint with Toronto City in the Eastern Canada professional league. Then he goes to Lisbon and Copenhagen, for exhibition matches in those cities.

Here is a tip on fitness from Sir Stanley. His father had strong views on physical conditioning. He made his children perform deep breathing exercises, no matter what the weather was like, and he thought the world of vitamins A and B and carrot juice.

Like the rest of us hardworking beings, let us get rid of the idea that the forties are a time to spend only in the armchair with our feet up.

A Dog's Life

Our four-footed canine friends tend to have a raw deal in Canada—and particularly at this time of year, when the weather is sunny and hot. Too many of them are left at home, secured by a chain because their owners are at work or out shopping or visiting.

To compound this refined form of cruelty, owners may forget to leave water for the dog. This causes real discomfort to the animal, quite apart from the distress it experiences from being chained. Dogs need food and drink—and above all exercise. Some owners make a sincere effort to provide all these things, but there are many who do not bother and do not care.

The other day a citizen phoned to tell us of a pup left chained in a garden near her home. It had no water and its barking disturbed the neighborhood.

Last week a young couple drove into a supermarket lot and left a pup in the car with the windows closed. Nearby a huge German Shepherd looked uncomfortable as it straddled the back seat of another car.

Dogs deserve better than this. They are hemmed in enough by the law without their owners neglecting to look after them as well.

Mirage!

Somebody at Victoria, B.C., or even at Ottawa, ought to call out the pony express and despatch it to intercept that wagon train winding its way through Kansas. Common decency demands that somebody distribute Wagon Master Don Cunningham and the dozen other souls who have trustingly put their future in his hands.

In Dodge City, where Wyatt Earp once reigned, Cunningham's wagon train was stopped —by a truant officer. "He (Cunningham) said they were going to Canada where they could do as they damned pleased," said the officer, Norman J. Abbey, after the encounter.

It is a long, long way by wagon from Kansas to McBride, B.C., the wagon train's destination. To allow this company of adventurers to make the trip in the fond belief they will find at the end of the journey the land of rugged individualism of which they dream would be cruel in the extreme.

Somebody ought to tell them, fast, that despite the way Wacky Bennett talks and Phil Gaglardi drives, there's book larnin' in them thar B.C. hills. And the eight children in the wagon train's company are heading for school, as any Doukhobor could tell them.

Many brave men lived before Agamemnon; but, all unwept and unknown, are lost in the distant night, since they are without a divine poet (to chronicle their deeds).—Horace in Odes.

Ottawa Offbeat
Pleasant, Popular; Whatever Happened to Leon Balcer

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Never mind about Baby Jane — whatever happened to Leon Balcer?

You must remember something of him.

It seems like only yesterday that he was stealing all the headlines, getting a bigger Front Page play than almost every thing else political, except maybe the Great Flag War.

There they were, the banner lines:

BALCER OUT TO GET DIEF
BALCER FORCES TORY MEETING
BALCER SAYS DIEF MUST GO
IT'S DIEF OR I, SAYS BALCER
BALCER QUITTING IF DIEF STAYS

Then there were press conferences, statements, denials, ultimatums, secret rendezvous, threats and counter-threats.

Finally, on the dais might be allowed to settle, the party's top brass met here in Ottawa behind closed doors for the confrontation of Dief and his disaffected Deputy.

Dief won.

But whatever happened to Leon Balcer?

It was only little more than a year ago that he was such a power in the party.

Great things were said by him and promised by him.

Remember the night in the Commons when Leon Balcer, lashing out against the narrow Quebec nationalism of Real Caouette and his Creditistes, spoke up for national unity and Canada?

GREAT WORDS

It was a rallying cry for all MPs of goodwill from Quebec:

"I am not here to legislate only for the province of Quebec," he my own province.

"I am here to take an interest in the affairs of our whole nation.

"I know for a fact that the province of Quebec will be strong and prosperous only as the whole of Canada is strong and prosperous.

"I am here to lend a hand to all MPs, be they French or English, who want to work for the good of our country. Indeed, such are the basic principles of the Conservative Party which led to the birth of Confederation and our nation as we know it today."

Whatever happened to Leon Balcer?

Well, he's still here. An independent MP. This, after 15 years in Parliament as a Conservative, six of them as a Cabinet Minister and one as the party's Deputy.

Now he is alone.

Perhaps lonely.

His friends are scattered to the din it used to raise, is all but silent.

Now there is only one secretary.

Visitors are few.

Speaking engagements that used to come from all over the country, come now only from Quebec.

It is sad, if sad is the word for a politician willing to work for the benefit of the community in which we live. With a little help and co-operation from the citizens, merchants and city officials we will complete this project and transform an eyesore in the downtown area into a pleasant park.

Commonwealth

Halifax Chronicle - Herald

Whatever the future may bring in the way of world co-operation and federation, there will ever be place for Commonwealth policies and practices. This 21-country partnership can mean much for mankind's progress and stamina. The prime ministers should give consideration to a Commonwealth parliamentary assembly.

Letter to the Editor

Jaycees Explain Their Plans for Park

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I read with interest your editorial on May 19th regarding the proposed park in the vacant lot on Bridge Street, and I feel compelled to set the records straight on behalf of the Belleville Jaycees.

We took this project on in the hope that with a lot of work on our part and some financial assistance from the citizens and downtown merchants of Belleville, we could transform an eyesore in the downtown area into an attractive park where shoppers or strollers could rest awhile in pleasant surroundings during the course of their business downtown.

As you pointed out in your editorial, we have spent considerable money and much time on this project. However, we have encountered several stumbling blocks which have delayed the completion of this park.

The Belleville Horticultural Society has graciously consented to furnish the park with flowers, provided an adequate water supply is available at the park site. Although you did not mention it in your editorial, I am sure you must have noticed the miles of red tape which surrounds the planting areas. Once we have cleaned up the red tape and water becomes available you will see the park begin to take shape.

In response to the statement that the Jaycees have used very little imagination in the beautification of this area, let me point out that we are not landscape gardeners or professional park planners, we are merely a group of young men interested in and willing to work for the benefit of the community in which we live. With a little help and co-operation from the citizens, merchants and city officials we will complete this project and transform an eyesore in the downtown area into a pleasant park.

Belleville Jaycees
Don Dafoe
President.

Kennedy Cuts Ties to LBJ

Montreal Gazette

Senator Robert Kennedy has recently been disengaging himself from the foreign policy of over Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic. He is not going so far as to lead a campaign against Mr. Johnson. He is merely making sure that if anyone reads the record a few years from now, they will find that Senator Kennedy had reservations.

At the same time, President Johnson is disengaging himself from the foreign policy of former President Kennedy. This was particularly evident in his recent remark that "we do not propose to sit here in our rocking chair with our hands folded and let the Communists set up any governments in the Western hemisphere." This has been universally interpreted as a criticism of President Kennedy's policy towards Cuba.

From Senator Kennedy's point of view, this is not only being consistent and defending his brother's record. It is also helping his political ambitions, which are, undoubtedly, to try to succeed Mr. Johnson as President.

At the moment, the most serious rival to Senator Kennedy is Vice-President Humphrey. Mr. Humphrey has always been associated with the most liberal wing of the Democratic Party. As such, he can hardly approve of Mr. Johnson's swift action in the Dominican Republic. Yet, as Vice-President, he must either keep silent or resign. By keeping silent, he is cutting himself off from his liberal background, and hurting his prospects.

Senator Kennedy, by his recent statements, is making Mr. Humphrey seem opportunistic by comparison. And he is also building a position of responsible critic of President Johnson. Both developments should help his Presidential ambitions.

Insurance men say increases in the price of automobile insurance are to a considerable extent due to the rise in repair costs following a crunch. There is a way to overcome this burden on the insurance buyer. Simply revert to the long discarded custom of putting bumpers on automobiles, front and back, instead of free-form sculpturing.

To Your Good Health
Nervous Tension May Be Behind Physical Problems

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can extreme nervous tension or fatigue cause dizziness, sweating and shortness of breath? I am 23 and have had this for over a year. My doctor can find no organic cause. It is getting worse instead of better. — Mrs. D.A.C.

Let's put it just a bit differently: Tension can cause all of those things, and cause fatigue, too. Sheer fatigue is not likely to cause any of them, except briefly, and that's understandable. If you exhaust yourself from physical exertion, you'll sweat, run out of breath, and may even have some dizziness. But you soon get over them.

When these symptoms develop without exertion — then look for nervous tension. Don't ask me why our nerves have such strong effects on us. We don't know why. But we know it is so. And if we can relieve the nervous tension, our bodies go back to normal functioning.

Your letter, Mrs. D. A. C., didn't show any return address. I don't know whether you live in a big city, or a small town. But I suspect, whether from good reason or just intuition, that your doctor has suspected that your trouble is emotional rather than physical. After all, he has said he can't find any organic cause.

So what do you do now?

First you talk to him on the basis of looking for an emotional cause — in the argot of the 1960's, what's buggin' you?

Under what circumstances do you feel tense, trembling, no dizzy spells, no shortness of breath, no feeling of being "wound"?

And under what conditions do you have these symptoms?

Your first sensible step is to talk this out with your doctor. Let him give you an appointment at a time at which he can sit and listen to you as you tell him what really bothers you. What are your anxieties and fears, frustrations that get you all wound up in a tense, emotional knot?

After all, tension comes from something. It may not be easy to find the source, but there has to be one. See if, with your doctor's help, you can find a clue.

Sensitive and tranquilizers help in many cases, but remember that they are just that: a help, not a cure.

In your case the doctor may feel that a psychiatrist will be invaluable in identifying the basis of your tensions. But in other cases, many, many times you can get at them yourself with the help of your doctor, who can look at your problems from the outside instead of from the inside as you must.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between rectal polyps and hemorrhoids. After having two children I find that sometimes it is painful when I move my bowels, and when it is painful I usually have a little blood showing. — Mrs. J. B.

Polyps (rather small growths) aren't usually painful, don't usually bleed, but may be potentially dangerous. Polyps are something your doctor will have to deal with.

Hemorrhoids, on the other hand, are enlarged (varicose) veins in the rectal region. While not as dangerous, they are much more annoying. And they don't get better; they get worse. Childbirth may or may not have had anything to do with your problem, but there is only one answer: Go to your doctor and find out what is wrong and what needs to be done. I guess that your difficulty is hemorrhoids (conceivably fissured) but if I had this intermittent pain and bleeding, I wouldn't guess. I'd consult a doctor.

Who Killed Gen.Delgado?

New York Times

The brutal murder of the Portuguese opposition leader, Lieut. Gen. Humberto Delgado, and the mystery with which the Spanish and Portuguese Governments have surrounded the incident, have stirred up world-wide comment. As Lisbon and Madrid must realize, there is a continuing interest in this extraordinary case.

General Delgado was the army officer who had the temerity to run for the Presidency of Portugal in 1958. It was a hot campaign, with public meetings accompanied by riots, shootings and police repression. The General lost to the present President, Admiral Americo Tomas, by a landslide margin. He claimed that the election had been fixed, soon took political asylum in the Brazilian Embassy and ended up in Brazil.

The sensational hijacking of the Portuguese liner Santa Maria took place while the General was in exile in Algeria in 1961. He claimed to have planned and directed the stunt, as well as the sanguinary attack on the Beja barracks that same year. He quarreled with other members of his exile group last autumn, but remained a formidable enemy of Premier Salazar.

Last February, General Delgado was seen in Badajoz, Spain. He had told friends in Algiers that his object was to contact opponents of Dr. Salazar and of Generalissimo Franco somewhere in Spain. Then he disappeared. Last month his body and that of his Brazilian secretary were found by chance in a shallow grave just inside the Spanish-Portuguese border south of Badajoz. They had been bludgeoned to death.

What happened in the more than two months between General Delgado's entry into Spain and the finding of the bodies? Why did the Spanish authorities spend two whole weeks before identifying the bodies? And, most important of all, who killed Delgado and his secretary? These are the mysteries to be solved.

General Delgado was a brave and distinguished officer who, from 1952 to 1957, was military and air attache in the Portuguese Embassy in Washington. He was a difficult, temperamental, flamboyant personality, but he was also for many years the outstanding opponent of the Salazar dictatorship. He deserved a better fate.

Bahamas' Isle of Eleuthera Most Secluded, Chic Resort

by SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

ELEUTHERA, The Bahamas — From the air, this 125-mile-long spit of land in the South Atlantic 60 miles east of Nassau appears to be uninhabited. On the ground the mysterious impression is modified a bit. It seems, well, closed.

In a sense, it is. A mere 10,000 souls inhabit the flattish, dry, brushy strip lined with powdery beaches, eroded coral, and an emerald ocean. Nearly all are descendants of slaves. They live in half-abandoned villages of shuttered shacks and pastel frame or concrete homes behind white picket fences reminiscent of New England seaport towns.

In the 19th century Eleuthera was the pineapple capital of the world, but the American market shifted to Cuba and Hawaii, and that was the end of that. Today's meagre populace subsists on scattered citrus and vegetable farms . . . and memories.

Except, of course, for the work they can get on some of the Western Hemisphere's remotest, plushest, most exclusive most expensive, and least known resorts.

The entire southern third of the island, from Tarpum Bay south, including the entire village of Rock Sound — 27,000 acres in all — belongs to South Eleuthera Properties Ltd. It is a spin-off of the interests of the late Arthur Vining Davis, the fabled American multi-millionaire who died in 1963, and is operated today by a syndicate headed by Juan Trippe, chief executive officer of Pan American Airways. Pan Am brings a daily jet into Rock Sound, giving it what is probably the best airline service of any village in the world.

SUNNY SIDE OF RICH

In the winter the jet may bring in 80 or 90 people a day, nearly all of them on the sunny side of being rich. Rock Sound is the site of the Rock Sound Club, a hotel which started out as accommodations for visitors to Davis' citrus plantation (now gone) and today sports the most elegantly decorated cottages in the islands, an Olympic pool, a Viennese manager, and four French chefs who earn their pay.

Five miles away, on secluded Winding Bay, South Eleuthera Properties is constructing the Cross Beach Colony. Its clubhouse will be the home Davis built but never slept in. A plain wood sign up the road reads simply "A. V. Davis."

Posh as the Rock Sound Club may be, it hardly holds a candle to the Cotton Bay Club, a private millionaire's retreat at the end of a palmetto-lined road which contrasts sharply with the wild, untended look of the rest of the landscape. Clients of the Rock Sound Club may use Cotton Bay's Robert Trent Jones golf course for $10.00 a day, and take lessons from Ralph Hutchison, a pro among pros. But otherwise the unostentatiously luxurious facilities of Cotton Bay are for the exclusive delectation of the major corporation presidents who constitute most of its membership.

HAUNTED QUALITY

The desolate middle third of the island has a haunted quality. Loxley signs announce the locations of developments with names like Eleuthera Island Shores, where all the plots have been sold but only two homes built, and the Eleuthera Island Club, where only a lavish but empty clubhouse stands, forlorn as the statue of Oxymandias in the desert.

In the middle of the island, Governor's Harbour once was choked with American schooners waiting to take away the pineapple crop. Just a sleepy village today, its chief claim to fame is the oasis known as French Leave, a casually elegant resort fronting on a pink sand beach that is one of the most lovely in the islands. It is owned by former Hollywood actor Craig Kelly and also has lots for sale, though trading is not very active.

The metropolises of northern Eleuthera, each less than a thousand strong, are the offshore islands of Harbour Island and Spanish Wells. Each considers the other spoiled by tourism, and the rivalry measures up to that between Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard.

On Harbour Island, the rustic but discreet Pink Sands Club has a devoted following and a lovely beach. The fishing and water sports are first rate, and Dunmore Town is a captivating and colorful colonial backwater that lives happily in the past. The island is full of salty characters, and a few score Americans have found permanent escape here.

U.C.W. Meeting

(CENTRE ST. U. C. W.)

The general meeting of Centre Street U.C.W. was held in the Sunday School recently, with a good attendance.

The worship period was conducted by Mrs. A. Longhurst. The theme was based on the Psalms, with Mrs. D. Hodgins and Mrs. W. Ward taking part.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. D. Hodgins.

Invitations to attend Catmillion U.C.W. on June 2, and Front Road U.C.W. on June 9, were accepted.

Mrs. D. Hodgins was in charge of the program, and spoke about the Canadian Indians. She told how the United Church and other churches are trying to help the Indians, both spiritually and educationally.

The president, Mrs. E. Elliott, closed with prayer, and a social half hour was enjoyed over refreshments, served by Mrs. M. McMechan and Mrs. E. Elliott.

Judo, Karate Different In Intent and Intensity

DEAR DORIS — Could you give me some information on Judo or Jiu Jitsu or Karate? Just what are these things? Are they different? — DICK.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DICK — Judo is a "modern, refined form" of Jujitsu or Jiu Jitsu or Jui Jitsu, "utilizing special applications of principles of movement, balance and leverage." It was a traditional form of Japanese wrestling. Blows are delivered by the side of the hand to vulnerable parts of the opponent's body.

As a sport it amazes the onlooker, who finds it tough to credit the fact that sheer brute strength is laid low by what looks like little more than sleight of hand.

Karate, which is a more violent version, is not even thought of as a sport, but as a means of self-defence, and is studied by policemen and soldiers. Soldiers in World War Two were trained at what was called Jiu Jitsu for purposes far more lethal than sport and no tactics barred.

Separately I am sending you the names of books which have been published about this ancient technique.

The Golden Years

Retired Couple Uses Money To Keep the Children Close

By THOMAS COLLINS

It involves bribery, dishonesty and the crass business of buying your children's attentions—if you want to regard it so. Naturally you wouldn't stoop to such things. And you don't have to. So there!

The story involves a pay by which one retired couple has achieved what nearly every retired couple yearns for: more loving visits by their children.

The couple, who will be called the Smiths, don't think they have done any slooping. They would indignantly deny they are bribing their children. They believe their plan is a realistic and unemotional approach to human nature.

The Smiths started their plan two years after they retired. Until then there had been no visits made by their children. There were three of them, all married and with children, and all living in different parts of the country.

LIST GOES OUT

The Smiths wrote the children duplicate letters. Next summer, they said, they would like to have the whole family together for once. On a specified date they wanted each child to bring his or her family back home for four days. There wasn't room at home for all of them, so the Smiths would reserve six rooms (two for each child's family) at a nearby motel for this period. And the Smiths would pay the bill. Also for the four days they would provide picnic or buffet dinners for the clan.

The children came, and a lovely time was had by all. Total cost to the Smiths: $562.

Three months later the Smiths wrote another duplicate letter to the children. It was time they began disposing of some of their household things they no longer needed, they said. Anyway, they might eventually move into an apartment. So, starting January first, they were making three equal collections of the first things they wanted to distribute — china, linens, vases, silver, and things like that. The collections would be placed in the attic and the children could pick them up if they were able to come for a visit next year. They also explained that if the children came separately the two extra bedrooms in the house would accommodate their families, with no motel and restaurant costs.

The Smiths said they planned to make their collections every year on January first, until their treasures were gone.

SWEETENED THE POT

The following year the Smith children all picked up their collections. They weren't too large because the Smiths intended that the loot last for at least five years. So, on the last night before each child and family left, the Smiths gave him or her an envelope containing $200. Not a cheque but 40 five dollar bills. The child would be inclined to board the cheque for some purpose back home, but would spend the five dollar bills for some fun on the way back. The Smiths thought the fun would be the better mental association for a trip to visit "The Old Folks."

That first year a lovely time again was had by all. Total cost to the Smiths: $850.

The third year of the Smiths' plan is now under way. By the year's end they figure they will have spent about $3,100 with the $200 cash for each visit. In two more years the total cost will be around $3,600. By then, the Smiths reason, the habit of visiting their parents will have become so established with the children that the visits will go on.

The Smiths reason also that the costs are slow. They aren't rich. Their savings, at the start, were $14,000. But they have an adequate retirement income and their home. To take $3,000 out of the $14,000 won't hurt. They don't need the $14,000 anyway. And they know nothing more meaningful that $3,000 would get them.

Quemoy Not Forgotten By Communist China

By SPENCE RHOOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Whatever attention Communist China is paying its other frontiers, it is not forgetting Quemoy, the Nationalist island just off the Chinese mainland.

Peking's forces ordinarily bombard the island on odd-numbered days and refrain from shelling it on even-numbered days, in accord with an announced pattern. But over the years there have been nearly 500 lapses from shelling on odd-numbered days.

Whatever attention Communist China is paying its other frontiers, it is not forgetting Quemoy, the Nationalist island just off the Chinese mainland.

The Communists have made no new attempt to crush Quemoy since their massive effort in the summer of 1958. Since then, Communist shelling of Quemoy has had two main objectives—harassment and propaganda.

In the first four months of this year the Communists, by Nationalist count, have fired an average of 600 shells a month at Quemoy and its satellite islands.

PROTECTED BY TROOPS

Upward of 70,000 troops garrison the Quemoy islands, which have a total area of about 37 square miles and a civilian population of about 80,000.

Quemoy, which the Chinese call Kinmen, meaning Golden Gate, accounts for 30.5 square miles of the area.

Quemoy in 1949 had to import practically all its food. It still has to get rice from Formosa but is self-sufficient in vegetables, fish, poultry, fruit and pigs.

In 1949, Quemoy was mostly desert. Since then millions of trees have been planted.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

BAYSIDE BROWNIES

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Flying-up ceremony for Bayside Brownies was held on Monday evening at Bayside School, with the Brownies as guests of the Bayside Guides. The Guides entered singing their Guide song and formed a horseshoe at the back of the room. The Brownies came skipping in and formed a fairy ring.

Guide Captain, Gladys Langley gave permission for Brown Owl Jean Millar to take over. All the mothers were welcomed. Tawny Owl Marion Ackerman called on Debbie Harding, Glenna Batton, Pauline Yool, Cheryl Barr and Christine Jones to demonstrate what they had learned to receive the Golden Hand. Brown Owl Jean Millar had the Brownie Pack give the five Golden Hand Brownies the Grand Howl. The Brownie Pack made the magic tunnel three times at a time the Golden Hand Brownies passed through the tunnel with big wings pinned on the back of each. Brown Owl Jean Millar met each Brownie at the end of the tunnel and the entrance to Guide Land and pinned a wing on each uniform They were met at the side of guide land by a guide and patrol leader and can be now taken to the Guide Captain, Gladys Langley and were introduced to the Guide Company.

After the ceremony games and a sing-song were held and Guides. The meeting closed with the Brownie Tag and the Guides sang their closing song.

Women's Institutes

CHATTERTON W.I.

The May meeting of Chatterton W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. D. Little with a good attendance. The meeting opened in the usual manner.

The business included a reminder of the district annual May 20th at Walbridge with Mrs. W. Dixon voted as delegate; cards of thanks were read; letter from the Home Economics service providing the opportunity for a short course which will be decided at the next meeting.

Mrs. D. Little reported from Canadian Consumer booklet which included a warning to would be buyers of freezers through freezer food plan methods. to check carefully before buying; different types of furniture polish which are best for use and detergent liquid bottles and their proper use and best buy.

The program committee provided the following program based on agriculture. A reading by Mrs. MacInnes, "Tips on Planting of Corn" by Mrs. Lorne Reid; piano solo by Joyce Little; Mrs. H. Reid, a reading; Mrs. Carson read two articles.

Mrs. W. Dixon read an article on pesticides found in milk throughout the U.S.A. but notes that in the Ontario district it accounts for very little or nothing. Mrs. Roy Ross read about a new variety of cucumbers; Mrs. G. Irvine read an article on sheep farming with the Peterson sing song was enjoyed by all and Mrs. Dellmile closed with a reading.

The hostess and her assistants served donuts and coffee to close an informative meeting.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Don Smith with a miscellaneous auction to follow this meeting.

Miss Carol Blackburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Blackburn, Eldorado, who was graduated from Carleton University, Ottawa, with a Bachelor of Arts degree at the spring convocation held on Friday, May 21.

U.C.W. Meetings

(RYLSTONE U.C.W.)

RYLSTONE — Rylstone United Church women met at the home of Mrs. Will Rutherford on Wednesday afternoon for their May meeting. There were 17 ladies, several children and the minister, Mr. Gordon Apps, in attendance.

The devotional part of the meeting was conducted by Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, president. Scripture selections were read by Mrs. Ross Sheikleton, Mrs. Will Rutherford and Mrs. Cecil Finch. A meditation on Pentecost was given by Mrs. W. Spencer. Short prayers were offered by Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, Mrs. Ross Williams and Mrs. Clarence Thomson. The Bible study period on the subject of "Sin" was conducted by Mr. Lloyd Anderson.

Invitations were received to a Geranium Tea at Hoard's United Church, to the regular meeting meeting at Stanwood United Church, both in May, and to an afternoon meeting at Spiesbank United Church early in June.

Arrangements were made for cleaning the church on the last Wednesday in May, and for a Spring Tea early in June. Donations are being sent to the surrounding organizations and there will be a special speaker.

Mrs. Wilfred Spencer read a short address and Mrs. Ellis Jones presented the hostess, Mrs. Will Rutherford, with bronze plaques illustrating the Ten Commandments and the Twenty - third Psalm. Mrs. Rutherford thanked the ladies for the gift and said she would always treasure her association with the church and ladies of Rylstone. Ag ift card with signatures of the U.C.W. members accompanied the gift. Mrs. Rutherford and her husband will be leaving Rylstone for their new home in Campbellford in some time in June. She is a staunch supporter of the U.C.W. and will be sadly missed.

Mrs. Ellis Jones gave a reading and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Apps sang a duet, with accompaniment by Mrs. Clarence Thomson. Mrs. Rose Dickie, Mrs. Jack Spencer and Mrs. Ray Stewart gave readings and Mrs. Spencer conducted an Alphabetical Bible names contest.

Used clothing was handed in for a bale to be sent to the United Church Supply Depot in Toronto. Mrs. Austin Dunk was chosen to buy some clothing for children to be sent to a U.C.W. orphanage.

GAVE DAY AS PRESENT

EGGLETON U.C.W.

MADOC JUNCTION — Mrs. William McMullen was hostess for the May meeting of Eggleton United Church Women on Thursday afternoon with 15 ladies in attendance.

Mrs. Harlow opened the meeting by reading a poem and presided over the business period.

Plans were discussed for holding a flower sale in Stirling soon.

Committee appointed to make arrangements for the annual cemetery bee dinner to be held on Eggleton church lawn in June.

Mrs. Bruce Stapley reported, visits on sick, and the sunbox of fruit sent out during the month. An invitation from Moira Presbyterial Church Women was read for members to attend their meeting on June 9th.

Mrs. Keith Johnson offered her home for the June meeting on Monday of "Mrs. Day" and pointed to prepare the program.

The president welcomed the visitors present, and thanked the hostess and program conveners.

Mrs. Murney Kirkey took charge and presided over the program, which she said was Mrs. Charles—Stapley had prepared and based on "Mothers".

Devotional period was conducted by Mrs. W. McMullen, assisted by Mrs. Russell Stapley; Mrs. Charles Stapley and Bruce Stapley and Mrs. Sea born Frost.

STUDY ON TRINIDAD

Mrs. Maurice Clancy introduced the study on Trinidad, using a map of Trinidad and Tobago and also short reading which described the people of the Christian community in Trinidad. Several ladies assisted in the study when Mrs. Kirkey read about the estate worker; Mrs. Johnson a woman teacher; Miss Stapley, a young patient; Mrs. Harlow, a layman; Mrs. B. Stapley, an ambitious student; Mrs. F. Stapley, a girl student and Mrs. C. Fitchett, a minister.

The study on Trinidad will continue in September.

RIGHT WOMAN FOR JOB

MONTREAL (CP)—The special investigator for the newly-set up safety research committee of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) is Pauline Letendre, who was for several years a cook on a Montreal harbor tugboat. She says she will visit all incapacitated sailors in her attempt to find out why accidents on Canadian ships are so frequent.

Second Glance

A MEMORIAL PAGEANT

"What is past is prologue." — Shakespeare.

Each year now, on a certain day in May, the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte gather about a spot marked by a cairn, close to the sparkling shore of their Tyendinaga Reserve.

On the curved surface of the canoe, communion silver is placed, and service is held. Someone says in hushed tones: "It is a service commemorating the arrival of the original Mohawk band on the Tyendinaga Reserve way back in 1784."

As this re-enactment of that day's service continues, in imagination, the swish of oars cease as the brave little band scramble ashore. The grass rustles with swift stride of bare feet in the preparation of this event. Then a stillness in worship. The birds' songs above mingle with the murmuring voices as do the sighing breeze and the gentle lap, lap of the water. It is done so simply, beautifully, for the moment one is unmindful that "these natives of the woods" are following a religious ritual of long standing in the civilized world. How can this be?

As the service continues, a voice of The Past whispers in answer:

"Towards the end of the 17th Century under the inspiration of the Jesuits a considerable group of Iroquois Indians settled near Montreal.

"When they were reproached by English traders for deserting their British allegiance and turning their backs on tried friends, one of their Chiefs said to the Government Commissioners at Albany:

"All the while before I went to Canada I never heard anything talked of religion, or the least mention made of converting us to the Christian Faith; and we shall be glad to hear of it but you are so grossly inclined to take some pains to instruct your Indians in the Christian Religion: I will not say but it may induce some to return to their native country."

In consequence of this searching and unexpected criticism the Commissioner of Trade and Plantations addressed Archdeacon Tenison and Queen Anne with such success that on April 3, 1703 an Order in Council was passed providing that two Protestant ministers should be sent to the "Five Nations" to instruct them in the true religion . . .

"The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel (which had its beginning in the days of Cromwell and was continued after the Restoration) was consulted and missionaries were sent.

"A church was built for the Mohawks and Queen Anne sent out in 1712, a communion service of silver.

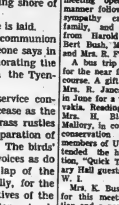
"Sixty years later the American Revolution began. The resident missionary, Rev. John Stuart of Pennsylvania, the chief, Joseph Brant, and the whole of the Mohawk tribe took the Royal side. His allegiance proved to be the cause was lost, came to Canada.

"The story of their two settlements, one on the Bay of Quinte and the other near Brantford, with the silver which Brant brought with them Queen Anne's Communion Service, and divided between the two villages . . ."

The service is over, but his heard-hearted listener was in such dangerous times, was it not difficult to bring the silver? We make enquiries and learn that "When the Revolution began, the Mohawks were driven as you know from their Mohawk valley and fled at once to Lachine, Quebec.

"But before they left, five men were chosen to bury the silver in a secret place. They selected five trees, marked them in a special way and within their radius, dug a hole buried the silver, and covered the places with leaves. Then later, when the Mohawks decided to leave Lachine for Brantford and the Bay of Quinte, the silver was recovere dand brought to the Mohawk band. . . ."

On each piece this inscription is enscribed:



"The Gift Of Her Majesty, Anne, By The Grace Of God, Great Britain, France and Ireland, And Of Her Plantations In North America, Queen To Her Indian Chapel Of The Mohawks 1712."

John Plumpton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Plumpton, Corbyville, an honor graduate in history received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Queen's University at a ceremony held yesterday afternoon. John who is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School, Belleville, previously taught at Queen Alexandra and Prince of Wales Schools in Belleville and is now on the teaching staff of North York Township school, Metropolitan Toronto.

Bleecker, Mrs. M. Mallory, in connection with the conservation program. Several members of Uniondale W. I. attended the hydro demonstration, "Quick Tricks" at Centenary Hall guests of Sidney South W. I.

Mrs. K. Bush gave the topic for this meeting on conservation and a paper on the Moira River Conservation Authority, was read; The Moira River Conservation Authority was established 1946 to 1947. Considerable progress has been made in these past years, the chief credit must go to a few dedicated individuals who contributed their time and talent through the first difficult years. The late Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater pioneered conservation in this area and was the first chairman of the authority.

The 1,060 square mile Moira watershed lies chiefly in the county of Hastings but includes a small part of the county of Lennox and Addington. Water control is one of the most important functions of the Moira River Conservation authority, the responsibility is assigned to the water control advisory board and their objectives are eto prevent floods by spring, to increase the summer flow and reduce pollution.

In 1960 the authority built a dam on the Moira River, one mile north of Deloro. This dam created a 23 acre reservoir and aids in maintaining down stream flow during the summer.

The authority owns three areas that are in operation, O'Hara Mill; Prior; and the Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater area this area is the largest and potentially the best of the authority's conservation. It is located 17 miles north of Belleville and is 600 acres in acres and extends along a scenic section of the east bank of the Moira River for a distance of four miles. This area was officially opened in August 1960. the highlight of the ceremonies was the unveiling of a granite plaque inscribed "This Conservation area was named in grateful appreciation of the contributions to conservation by Eastern Ontario by Colonel Vanderwater."

Further the road is being extended and a suitable area has been allotted to the Boy Scouts association for camping, fishing and swimming. Reforestation and pure bred demonstration plots have been established at the south sortion and 80 acre block of trees have been planted by the authority and the Department of Lands and Forests with the assistance of the school children, Boy Scouts, Sea Cadets and 4-H club members.

There is a television station in the watershed, Kingston and Peterborough are the closest stations and only limited use can be made of them.

Mrs. Mallory was thanked for opening her home for the meeting.

A report of the district annual will be a feature for the June meeting.

FIND CARS OVERSEAS

MONTREAL (CP) — Cars stolen in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Vancouver have been seized in Switzerland, uncovering a Canadian racket described as an international ring in stolen automobiles. Police said the thieves fly to Canada, steal the car and then fly to New York where they are taken by ship to Europe. Freight costs about $300 for each car. They are sold to Europeans as used cars for about $3,000.

DR. ALLAN F. KEMP AND MRS. KEMP

Kemp — Seymour

A lovely spring wedding was solemnized in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on Saturday May 15, at 4 o'clock, when Julia Elaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. James Seymour of R.R. 2, Stirling, was united in marriage to Dr. Allan Edward Thomas Kemp, son of Mr. Thomas Kemp, Scarborough, and the late Mrs. Kemp. Rev. W. M. Davis officiated. The church altar was decorated with baskets of white mums, white gladioli and pink carnations.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon, organist of the church, played the wedding music and accompanied the bride's cousins Miss Leslie Gardiner and Miss Nickie Gardiner in a duet before the processional.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor - length gown of white silk with a fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline and long sleeves ending in points over her hands. A long silk train embroidered with lace fell from each shoulder. Her shoulder length veil of white silk illusion fell from a crown of white blossoms and pearl tear drops. She carried a cascade of white daisies, mingled with pink rosebuds and trailing ivy.

Miss Patricia McKibbin, Kingston, maid of honor, was gowned in pastel pink taffeta with fitted lace bodice and full organza skirt. Matching shoes and headdress with white daisies completed the ensemble. She carried a colonial shaped bouquet of white stasis daisies centred with pink roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Ian Steward and Miss Jean Lofthouse, classmates of the bride, and Miss Debbie Grant, friend of the bride, were identically attired in pastel maid of honor but in coral and rose-red crescents, of white shasta daisies.

Mr. Robert Kemp, brother of the bridegroom, attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were Dr. William James of Toronto, and Mr. James Seymour and Mr. Thomas Seymour, Belleville, brothers of the bride.

The reception after the ceremony was held in Bridge Street Church hall. The bride's table was centred with a three - tier

How to Care for Teak Wood Furniture

C.W.L Parish Council Holds Spring Tea

The annual spring tea of St. Joseph's Parish Council of the C.W.L. was held at the hall on Herchimer Avenue on Wednesday.

The stage was attractively decorated with standards of spring flowers. The individual tables held bud vases of tulips. The tea table was appointed with a white lace cloth underlined with a pretty shade of yellow and centred by an artistic arrangement of yellow and orange 'mums flanked by tall tapering candles of yellow and pale green in bi-branch silver candelabra. The gleaming heavy silver tea services and pastel yellow confections completed this attractive setting. Presiding at the tea-table were Mrs. C. Murphy, Mrs. E. O'Neill, Mrs. L. Briand and Mrs. Donati. Guests were invited to the tea room by Mrs. P. Mercier.

SALES TABLES

The home bake table was convened by Mrs. W. Reid assisted by Mrs. M. McGee, Mrs. A. McCarthy and Mrs. E. Labelle.

A miscellaneous booth was convened by Mrs. J. Panting.

Mrs. J. Anton sold tickets on a chesterfield, the winner being Mrs. E. Brown, 337 Dufferin Ave.

Mrs. G. Marta treasurer was at the door. The tea was convened by the hospitality committee convener Mrs. H. Carr-Brainf with members Mrs. W. Lynch, Mrs. H. Park, Mrs. J. Keeley, Mrs. T. Clancy, assisted by Mrs. J. Hanley, Mrs. P. Beary and Mrs. B. Beehler.

The centrepiece was won by Mrs. Beehler.

New Sardine Recipe Booklet Is Available

One of the most versatile seafoods, yet one of the most "unsung," is the Canadian sardine. This inexpensive food product can be used to make a wide variety of hot and cold main dishes and in-between snacks. To tell you how, a brand new 20-page recipe booklet entitled Let's Serve Canadian Sardines has just been issued by the Department of Fisheries of Canada.

Beginning with party appetizers, this generously illustrated little book takes you through salads, sandwiches, hot snacks, top of the range dishes, and casseroles. In all, it contains more than two dozen choice recipes which have been selected and kitchen-tested by the home economists of the Department.

There's a recipe for an easy casserole dish which can be adjusted to serve any number of guests from one to one hundred. For teenagers there is a recipe for a submarine sandwich will quickly appease ravenous appetites. Delightfully attractive for a cool summer lunch are the recipes for prize sardine salad and Danish style open sandwich.

As the booklet points out, Canadian sardines are a bargain in food value. One 3¼-ounce can will provide more than one-third of an adult's daily protein requirements at minimum cost. In addition, sardines supply certain needed minerals and vitamins. Folk on a diet low in saturated (hard) fats will be interested to learn that the fat contained in these little fish and the oils in which they come packed are poly-unsaturated.

For new, attractive ways to serve this familiar food, write for your copy of Let's Serve Canadian Sardines. Single copies are available upon request from: Consumer Branch, Department of Fisheries of Canada, Ottawa.

BEFORE you start to feed your tiny baby, do a quick check to make sure of your own comfort. Perhaps a pillow for under your arm, or possibly a stool at your feet would help you relax. Feeding time is one of the few moments a mother gets to sit down, so take advantage of it!

(Thanks to Grace Dane, Boston, Mass.)

READERS' SATURDAY COLUMN

LETTER:

. . . in my own generation, our first cooking attempt was "Aunt Janet's Soft Gingerbread" . . . my mother, being English, did not then know cookies. At a very tender age we were allowed to to try our hand at this gingerbread, which was baked in medium-sized black Janet's Soft Gingerbread perfasses — black strap, ½ teaflour two eggs.

ANSWER:

Thank you again, Muriel. Readers may recall that Muriel contributed the recipe for Everton Toffee which I gave here Friday, May 14th.

Your description of Aunt Jane's Soft Gingerbread persuaded me to put aside all other cooking projects and make it. It was exceptionally easy to make, and showed that any of the ingredients you gave, but have changed the sequence in which they were added. I hope my adjustments have your approval, for I want it to be as simple as possible for amateurs.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Hamburg Chop Suey (see Friday); Fluffy Rice (see Friday); Cabbage and Green Pepper Salad; Canadian Canned Pears; Hermits; Coffee.

AUNT JANET'S SOFT GINGERBREAD (courtesy Muriel R.):

1 teaspoon baking soda (ever so slightly scant), 1 cup boiling water, ½ cup soft butter, 1 cup light brown sugar, 1 cup molasses — black strap, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon ginger, 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 eggs.

Into a large mixing bowl measure the baking soda and pour boiling water over. Add the butter, brown sugar and molasses. Sift and measure flour and sift it with the ginger and salt. Stir cooled liquid ingredients to mix in the butter, then add the sifted dry ingredients and unbeaten eggs and stir vigorously until smooth. (I did this for 30 seconds in my electric beater.) Have ready a square pan 8¼ x 8½ x 2," lined with buttered wax paper and turn batter into it, smoothing top to make it run into corners of pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 40 minutes, or until when gently tested with fingertips back springs back.

NOTE:

Because the batter contains 1 cup each molasses and sugar I was afraid it might burn easily, so after I put it cookie sheet under the shelf it was on to baffle the bottom burner heat somewhat.

NOTE:

Muriel went on to say "This gingerbread is very nice just sliced and buttered" — also spread with cottage cheese and a sprinkle of orange rind — or a little canned orange section on top". I would like to add my suggestions: 1) Serve it with a little sweetened whipped cream for dessert. 2) Serve squares of warm gingerbread, sprinkled with a little icing sugar, with bowls of warm applesauce or canned peaches. 3) When the gingerbread is cold it is delicious spread with butter or white cream cheese accompanied by marmalade.

The interest in the iron content of molasses is justified for in very dark or blackstrap molasses (recommended in above recipe) there are 11.2 milligrams iron to each 100 grams.

Rich, Refined Ladies Dislike Ancient Advice

ANN LANDERS — We are not calling you Dear Ann Landers because we don't think you are dear. We think you are just rotten.

This letter is being written by three 12-year-old women who will never meet your crummy column again as long as we live. Your advice to the mother who wrote and asked if her 13-year-old daughter should be allowed to go to a dance with a 16-year-old boy has made you a lot of enemies.

Don't you know that some 13-year-old girls are very mature and have a lot of sense? Age isn't everything. My cousin is 16 years old and she has been in trouble with a boy already. I know better than that and I want to be 13 until July.

ANN LANDERS

We think you should get your brains out of mothballs and catch up with 1965 activities or turn your job over to a person who is living in this century. And just in case you think we are cheap, hoody girls we would like you to know that we are all refined young ladies who come from very rich families. — EX-READERS.

DEAR REFINED LADIES FROM RICH FAMILIES — Since you are no longer reading the column I don't expect you to see this, but perhaps someone will tell you about it.

I want to thank you for the ladylike manner in which you expressed yourselves. I could tell from the very first sentence that you girls were the last word in refinement. The advice stands.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a widow 47 years old. Four months ago I answered an ad in the newspaper and found heaven. I am now the housekeeper for a widower and his three children. The youngest is under school age and the oldest is 13. I love these children with all my heart and I'm sure they feel the same about me. In all my life I have never felt so needed and so appreciated.

The problem is this: I'm afraid I may be falling in love with their father. I've had an opportunity to observe him under a variety of circumstances and he is the most wonderful man I've ever known. Ann X is two years younger than I am. He treats me with respect and kindness, but I see no sign that his feelings will ever go beyond that.

Should I stay here and risk being hurt or should I leave and try to get over this? The man is invited out often but refuses to be "fixed up."

I need your clear-eyed advice. — NEVER THOUGHT IT COULD HAPPEN.

DEAR NEVER THOUGHT — Accept the realities and make a social life unrelated to your employer.

If you leave this home you might deprive yourself of the most rewarding years of your life. Stay — for the children's sake as well as your own.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Since lots of people write to you about whatever is on their minds I think I will do the same.

I am 13 years old now. When I was younger I used to lose things all the time and I was always looking for something. My grandmother, who was a very wise woman, said to me, "I'll bet you'll find it in the very last place that you look."

She was right. I'd look everywhere and then in the very last place I looked there it was. Can you explain why it always happens that way? I have tried many times to figure out the answer. — POOKIE.

DEAR POOKIE — When you find what you are looking for you stop looking. So — the place you found it was the last place you looked.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For the Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

ST. JOHN'S FRIENDSHIP GROUP

POINT ANNE — On Tuesday afternoon the St. John's Friendship Group held a bake sale. Three cars were used to take the confections from house to house. In a short time the cars returned to the hall and the Group held its regular monthly meeting. The president, Mrs. Doris Mollins presided and led the opening prayers.

The card committee reported cards had been sent to several members who had been ill. The treasurer, Mrs. Clara Green gave her report.

The president reported that the Group had been asked to cater for a wedding on Friday evening and for the Mother and Daughter Guide banquet next Wednesday evening.

The interior painting is completed and the Group made plans to make the drapes on June 1st. Rerooting is now in progress.

Mrs. Vina Ellis presented Mrs. Mollins with a gift from the Friendship Group. Doris, who has been transferred with her family to Port Colborne was presented with a gift on behalf of the Group, Mrs. Nina Fournier also presented her with a gift of Blue Mountain pottery.

After thanking everyone and expressing her appreciation for the gifts, Mrs. Mollins closed the meeting with prayer.

The hostesses for the month of May were Mrs. Christabelle Chisholm and Mrs. Doris Colden, who had prepared and served a dainty lunch.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Smith in Belleville.

Free Housefull Of Furniture

Toronto — A "Housefull of Furniture" will be given away by Canadian furniture manufacturers in May this year and additional household will be presented in all regions across the country.

This part of a program planned by the Canadian Home Furnishings Institute to stimulate consumer interest in Canadian designed and manufactured furniture and furnishings.

Contests are win the "Housefull of Furniture" and visiting a furniture retailer who is participating in Home Fashions '65—May 17th to 30th.

"We want to encourage more customer awareness of the vast Canadian furniture industry which ranks in size with the aircraft and steel industries. The style trends, colors and quality of furnishings made in Canada will be shown in windows and room-settings planned to guide both the novice and experienced decorator" said Mr. Joseph Frieberg, chairman of the Institute.

All sections of the industry are involved in the Home Fashions '65 project. Furniture dealers across the country will be displaying Canadian furniture, the manufacturers have donated the furniture for the contest and many have designed special pieces.

The Housefull of Furniture is being co-ordinated by the Society of Interior Designers and special events will be placed on the theme for the Home Fashions '65 — "Your Home Reflects Your Personality."

WASHING ANTIQUE TEXTILES

No woman, pestered daily with radio and T.V. detergent commercials, would seem to need clothes washing advice. But at the Hastings County Museum we are often queried about the care and cleaning of old samplers, baby clothes and embroidery.

If the washing of old materials "frightens you, have a talk with your dry cleaning plant manager. These men welcome the challenge of a difficult cleaning job, and have turned out beautiful work for the museum. We advise professional cleaning for silks and multi-colored needlework.

Surprisingly, all old natural-fibre textiles can be washed, if you go about it with knowledge and care. Early Ontario cotton, linen and woolen materials are rugged, and home methods work well with them.

If your old fabric is still in good condition, treat it to the same care you give woolen blankets or fine sweaters. If you are washing a frayed, tattered sampler, whose fibres seem weak and fragile, try this method.

Use only commercially softened water in a glass enamel or porcelain container. The bath tub is fine for large items. Never use soap on fine materials. As you know, it leaves a curd deposit on cloth. We can supply the name of a pure detergent sold by a Canadian drug chain, and used around the world for museum work. It forms the main ingredient of most commercial detergents, before the formula is hopped up with softeners and bleaches. And after all, who wants 20 mules and a tiger tearing around among her fragile old textiles?

Old fabrics must be washed flat and unfolder in water at room temperature. Sandwich the sampler between two layers of fibre-glass screening, and tack the sampler loosely in position with terylene thread. Then immerse your textile sandwich in the bath and jiggle it around to loosen dirt. You can rub stains gently with your fingers through the screening.

Leave textiles in the wash no longer than ten minutes and rinse three times. Then lift out the fabric sandwich and blot between bath towels. Remove the stitching and top layer of screening. Flop the textile over on a smooth plastic covered surface, just as you invert a cake to remove a cake.

Block out the sampler on the plastic, and coax stray fragments into position. When the sampler dries it will peel off the plastic smooth and wrinkle free, just as a wet ribbon, spread over the edge of the bath tub, dries and irons itself in one easy step.

Next week, strengthening and storing textiles. Send any questions to the Curator, Hastings County Museum, telephone 962-3731.

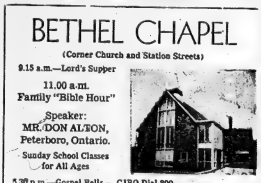
FAITH PLUS WORKS EQUALS SUCCESS

In one of our largest cities, a restaurant which did not sell liquor, was almost forced out of business by the rivalry of liquor-selling competitors in the same area. This restaurant was owned and operated by a married couple who approached a clergyman whose church was nearby, about their problem. They told him they were being driven to the decision that they would have to apply for a liquor selling license, if they were to survive, but this was something they did not want to do. .



The minister contacted his leading members. They gladly rasied enough money to underwrite the business. Then they undertook in a quiet way to inform their friends in the area of their new project. As a result, the restraunt gained many new customers quickly, and the business was saved.

A faith that doesn't cost us something is not worth anything. If we would accomplish positive good in this world, there's a price to pay, but it's worth it. There are various needs all about us. We can do something about them if we truly believe. God Himself will help us, and the world will be a better place in which to live.

TEXT FOR THE DAY: "Faith without works is dead . . I will show thee my faith by my works." (St. James 2:17-18)

A Lift for Living

Faith in Human Potentials Often Pays Rich Dividends

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Just before dusk last evening, my wife and I took a stroll through the lengthening shadows among the birches, hemlock and spruce that grace the land between our house and the front gate. We were looking for one of May's most winsome gifts to the world, wild violets.

A few steps off the trail we came to the grassy knolls where violets have flourished in other years. There they were again last night, violets in three hues; white blossoms as pure and delicate as a bride's veil, enchanting lavender petals that give the color "violet" its meaning and glory, and small flames of yellow that warm the month of May.

Many months ago, the ancestors of these violets held wedge-shaped seeds in their pods. As the pods matured and dried, they shrank and finally burst, throwing seeds several feet away from the parent plant. There, where they fell, the seeds laid slept, cradled among the roots of towering evergreens and graceful birches, blanketed by fallen needles and leaves.

And, while the seeds slumbered, they changed from hard-shelled, unpromising, hopeless, lifeless-looking things to tender sprouts and, finally, to blossom-bearing plants.

FEELING OF MYSTERY

It is always with a feeling of mystery that I see the first spring violets and recall that one day they were unlikely-looking seeds, bearing not the slightest resemblance to the flowers now shyly nodding to spring breezes.

And what is so of violets, is true of countless forms of plant life. Carrot, radish and lettuce seeds look nothing like carrots, radishes and lettuce. When you plant them in your garden you expect that the unpromising appearances of the seeds will prove deceptive, and, b uth the death-mask, life will faintly stir and finally burst its bonds.

The best things in life are seed-like. Wherever you find goodness and greatness, you can be certain there was a time when they did not look in the least like what they finally were. Once they were but seed - like possibilities, small, unimpressive, with all their latent splendor hidden. God's good sometimes seems so ittle in a big world, so negligible, so hopelessly weak and inert, that we overlook it altogether, or refuse to put much faith in it. We recognise God's gifts only when they are plainly manifest, radiantly obvious and in full bloom.

RECOGNIZE QUALITY

Especially is this true of people. We can often identify a good or a great person when he has achieved stature in the world, but how difficult it is to recognize such quality when it is still but a seed.

As a youngster, Thomas Edison was told not to return to school because he was too stupid to learn. His schoolmaster described him as "addled" and declared that it was a waste of time to keep him in school. But Tom's mother believed in him, patiently taught and encouraged him, convinced that there were seeds of usefulness in him. And all the world has benefited from her faith in her son's unfolded genius.

One spring day, some time before the Civil War, a lad came to the door of Worthy Taylor's farmhouse in Portage County, Ohio. The boy asked for work. Although he knew nothing about the lad, the farmer decided to take a chance on him and gave Jim a job doing general farm labor. Jim met stewwood, brought the cows in from pasture, helped with the milking and haying. He slept in the haymow.

As summer wore on, Jim fell in love with Taylor's daughter. But Worthy Taylor refused to let Jim marry her, pointing out that Jim was without money, without a name that commanded respect and without prospects of ever making a name for himself or a decent living. So Jim packed his few possessions and left the farm.

Worthy Taylor prospered, and, after the passage of 35 years, tore down his barn to build a new and much bigger one. He then discovered on one of the haymow-rafters that Jim had carved his name, 'James A. Garfield.' Jim was, at that moment, the President of the United States.

Keep faith in human possibilities under God. Many an unlikely-looking lad near you is more than he appears to be. The future man is there; God's man to serve God's purposes in a needy world is there, even though veiled beneath a boyish swagger. Those possibilities deserve the homage of our medi-tive eyes and of our faith in what God can do with human seed. No "mere child" is "mere" in God's sight.

Furthermore, be trustful of what God can do with and through you. You don't think you amount to much? Neither did Christ's disciples feel they were of much account. Yet, they were the seeds of future Christianity. Christ nurtured their incredibly small potential into miraculous power. They were like Marquis wheat, all the seeds of which, a few decades ago, could be held in your hand. But Marquis wheat now feeds the world.

When Napoleon was told that one of his projects was impossible, he replied in distain, "Impossible? That is not good French! It isn't good religion either. One far greater than Napoleon told His followers, "With God all things are possible."

All the wonders God has wrought were once unpromising little beginnings.

WELLINGTON — The Wellington A.O.T.S. Men's Club enjoyed an informative evening on May 13, when Mr. J. H. Syrett, Supervising Principal of Prince Edward Collegiate was the guest speaker. He related how the encouragement and proper control of extra-curricular activities develop students and prepare them for future participation in community responsibilities. The speaker told of several interesting case histories which indicated that more consideration should be given to this aspect by educational authorities in the future.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. C. M. L. Snider and the devotions were conducted by the Reverend J. M. Soutter.

Unit 3 of the U.C.W., under the direction of Mrs. Keith Hubbard served a delicious supper assisted by the girls from the R.C.I.T.

BIRTHS ARE DOWN

OTTAWA (CP)—Births, marriages and deaths were all lower in number both in April and in the first four months of this year as compared with 1964 figures, the bureau of statistics reported Thursday. Cumulative figures for January through April were: Births, 141,819 (153,901); marriages, 28,673 (29,901); and deaths 50,894 (51,432).

Lines on Life

Teenagers' Ideals Are an Example to Elders

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

One wonders if our young people have not a right to suggest that we, their elders, often let them down in the things that matter much. Often, we are so intent on telling them what "not to do" that we forget that our own lives are insufficient, unheroic examples for them to emulate. From their elders, often, however, they learn precious little about "what to do!"

The violent hatreds which soak up our adult world, the maddening and vicious appeals to emotional barbarism which we spew forth are often sickening to many teenagers whose stars still shine brightly in their eyes.

In one Canadian school a group of teenagers got together to establish a working philosophy for their social program. With painstaking care they spelled out a program and a platform which their elders would do well to emulate. Here is their magnificent credo:

"1. We believe that all people — no matter their religion, color or nationality — belong equally to the brotherhood of mankind.

2. We believe that we should be willing to share our time, and our money or belongings, whenever we can help others by doing so.

3. We believe we should do this, not out of pity, but out of charity, for the true meaning of charity is love. To love your neighbor is to realize that he is a human being like yourself to be respected not pitied; to desire to help."

For those who prate about our youth ("Lord! What'll become of them!"), these profound lines have much to teach older but not always wiser heads. The only trouble with some young people is their parents!

We, their elders, preach at them about some worthy achievement, but refuse to invest any real effort at making the ideal real.

Before long we transmit puns and unadulterated cynicism to our younger ones; but they easily see through our transparent syllables. We talk about the kind of life they should lead, but, by our own actions, make it quite clear that they don't belong to the same world as we.

"Castor-oil ethics" won't do. You can't kid kids into believing that you wish them to taste a life when you "don't touch that stuff" yourself.

All hail the starry-eyed, the unblemished in our midst!

Max Gordon writes: "We haul Ready-Mix Concrete from our plant to sites within a 50-mile radius. Included in our truck fleet are four Chevrolet M-80 Tandems. These are heavy-duty-equipped throughout, with 409 V8 engines, 34,000 lb. bogies, 5- and 4-speed transmissions.

"From our experience, I would say that these Chevrolets are tough trucks, built to handle one of the toughest hauling jobs in the construction business.

"The 409 engine gives us all the power we need. From frames to brakes, our Chevrolets have given us trouble-free service on a year-round operation which calls for top reliability."

V. B. Humphrey writes: "We are in the general construction business. We frequently set up new mining operations where roads are practically non-existent.

"We have changed our fleet to Chevrolet because of the excellent service and the reliability of the trucks. We recently traded in a 1963 pickup with 45,000 real tough miles on it and no major expense.

"We buy Stepside boxes, with four speed transmissions and the big 292 cubic inch 6 cylinder engines for maximum performance with minimum down time.

"We find Chevrolet pickups provide a very good ride even with heavy duty springs and we feel this is part of the reason the cabs and sheet metal stand up so well."

Gordon A. Cooper writes: "We are sand and gravel suppliers and use two M-80 Chevrolet tandems to haul from our own pits.

"Over the years we have been well satisfied with the performance of our Chevrolets. The engines are good with plenty of power to handle our loads and are good starters all year round.

"We find Chevrolet's choice of options in engines and power train components allows us to get the right kind of truck we need for our job.

"Our relationship with our Chevrolet dealer has been most satisfactory during the years we have done business with them."

CROWDED SHIPS REACH BRITAIN — British ships, all shapes and sizes, reach Britain loaded with soldiers evacuated from Dunkerque. How the Royal Navy and dozens of privately-owned ships saved the British army and inspired the Allied war effort has come to be known as the Miracle of Dunkerque and many Britons think of it as a triumph rather than a defeat. (CP Photo)

AWAIT RESCUE — A snake-like line of British soldiers awaits rescue at Dunkerque 25 years ago. A vast armada of British ships — including small pleasure and fishing craft — saved 338,266 men from the onrushing German armies. Some soldiers reached Britain after being shipwrecked two or three times by enemy air attacks or mines. (CP Photo)

On 25th Anniversary

Alexander Recalls Dunkerque

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—It started, as so many things did in wartime, on the BBC news at 9 o'clock.

In bland accents on the night of May 14, 1940, this announcement came into British homes:

"The admiralty have made an order requesting all owners of self-propelled pleasure craft, between 30 and 100 feet in length, to send all particulars to the admiralty within 14 days of today. . . ."

This was the first public whisper of what became, 25 years ago, the Miracle of Dunkerque, the fantastic story of how the Royal Navy and the "little ships" saved an army and inspired Britain and the free world.

Winston Churchill had just become prime minister on the promise of "blood, toil, tears and sweat" and Britain was in the depths of her darkest hour, her army soon to be hurled into the sea by Adolf Hitler's exultant troops.

France was falling before the onslaught and, as Churchill put it:

"Within a few weeks we were to find ourselves alone, almost disarmed, with triumphant Germany and Italy at our throats, with the whole of Europe in Hitler's power and Japan glowering on the other side of the globe."

That was the setting for Operation Dynamo, the Dunkerque evacuation which was signalled at 6.57 p.m. May 26, 1940, and formally ended at 2.23 p.m., June 4.

During roughly nine days 338,226, men, including 139,911 French and Belgian soldiers, were rescued from a maelstrom of shells and bombs and the closing armored jaws of Hitler's trap—easily the greatest such escape in history.

VICTORY TO SOME

It was drama on the grand scale and one of the strangest outcomes was the "Dunkerque spirit," still invoked by politicians as the stuff of victory, not defeat.

"We must be very careful not to assign to this deliverance the the attributes of a victory," Churchill warned June 4. "Wars are not won by evacuations."

Yet he later chronicled in His Finest Hour:

"When it was known how many men had been rescued from Dunkerque, a sense of deliverance spread in the island and throughout the Empire. There was a feeling of intense relief, melting almost into triumph."

This feeling persists until today but it is deplored by some who saw the humiliation of the army at Dunkerque.

Field Marshal Earl Alexander, who was there—who was, in fact, the last to leave—spoke with reserve when he was asked for comment by The Canadian Press on the eve of the anniversary.

"Why on earth should we celebrate a defeat and a disaster? I think it's something in the character of my countrymen. They love to celebrate defeats. After all, we awarded ourselves a medal for retreating from Mons."

There is no Dunkerque medal —although some such decoration has been proposed from time to time—to match the First World War's Mons medal and, anyway, the legend has been debunked that all men were heroes in the terrible days of the evacuation.

RIFLES THROWN AWAY

Alexander, former governor-general of Canada, says flatly: "The heroes were the Royal Navy and the little ships. The RAF did what they could but they were weak at that stage, as we (the army) were."

Then a major-general, Alexander commanded the 1st Division in tough, dangerous rearguard action as the British Expeditionary Force fell back on Dunkerque, where he was placed in charge of remaining forces for the final four days of the evacuation.

The men of his division—which admittedly included superbly - trained guardsmen—still carried their weapons after arriving in England.

"But I saw a lot of rifles and revolvers littered on the Dunkerque beaches," says Alexander. "Why would a soldier throw away his rifle? A soldier without his rifle is no good."

"However, I will say this: After that awful disaster, which I personally would much prefer to forget, I did not think when I came back to England that we as a country would be defeated. But I didn't know how we would avoid defeat."

The Flanders disaster that led to Dunkerque came after Hitler had already mastered Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Norway and Denmark and, in a two-week period, conquered The Netherlands, most of Belgium and much of Northern France.

Practically the whole of the British Army had been sent to join the French and Belgians in opposing the still - advancing Germans. At the end of the fortnight, nearly all the BEF and the French 1st Army were virtually surrounded, except for the Dunkerque coastal strip, and the Belgian defence on the northeastern flank was collapsing.

After knifing through to the sea farther south at Abbeville, the German armor struck with terrible speed up the coast, taking Boulogne, enveloping Calais and arriving within 10 miles of Dunkerque.

The 1st Canadian Division, based in England, missed by a whisker being drawn into the vortex. Part of its 1st Infantry Brigade had already been embarked at Dover and Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian commander-in-chief, went by destroyer to Calais and Dunkerque to study the situation.

Col. C. P. Stacey, Canadian war historian, notes that what McNaughton saw and heard "produced in his mind the conviction that the Dunkerque area was already quite sufficiently congested; what the troops there needed was not reinforcement but organization."

Yet there was still talk among British military leaders of sending Canadians to the Dunkerque area until May 27, one day after the general evacuation began. Angel Move, as the proposed Canadian operation was called, was finally abandoned.

By May 27, the vast surging movement into the Dunkerque perimeter, squeezed by the German encirclement, had begun, accompanied by a flood of terrified refugees.

STRANGE ARMADA

There was no escape for the hapless civilian multitude but desperate efforts were being made in Britain on behalf of the soldiers.

The May 14 BBC broadcast, although couched in polite language, amounted to an order, not a request, but it was on a voluntary basis that an avalanche of letters descended on the admiralty's small vessels pool.

Many of the owners also offered their own services so that by May 26, when Vice-Admiral Bertram Ramsay, Dynamo commander, made an urgent demand for small ships the job of evacuation was already under way.

Almost at once it was realized, however, that motor yachts and small pleasure craft were not enough—boats were needed to go up on the Dunkerque beaches.

Naval officers stripped ships in the port of London of lifeboats, tugs were requisitioned. The strangest armada in history converged on Dover and began the gallant ferry job, sometimes as long as 170 miles in the hope of eluding attack.

Destroyers and channel steamers sped past barges, cockle boats, drifters, trawlers and tugs.

There were minesweepers, paddle steamers, hospital ships, Clyde passenger vessels, isle of Man ferries, colliding in the darkness, easy marks for the Stukas, the Junkers and the Messerschmitts. Sometimes soldiers reached England after two and even three sinkings.

NAVY ROLE BIGGEST

The exploits of the little ships, more than 600 of them, gave rise to such vivid tales that many readers formed the impression they did the job virtually by themselves.

This was one of the myths of Dunkerque. More than two-thirds of the stranded soldiers were lifted by the Royal Navy and larger vessels.

The rescuers found Dunkerque, France's third largest port, bombed to ruins, its five miles of quays devastated.

Yet most of the soldiers were rescued not from the beaches, as is popularly supposed, but from the harbor's East Mole, a wooden breakwater 1,400 yards long and five feet wide which had never been intended for embarking passengers.

"Where is the RAF?" was the enraged cry of the soldiers under the dive-bombing Stukas.

"Many of our soldiers coming back have not seen the air force at work," Churchill said. "They saw only the bombers which escaped its protective attack. They underrate its achievements."

On June 1 alone 31 ships were sunk and 11 damaged at Dunkerque but in the overall Dynamo period 234 German planes were destroyed for the loss of 114 RAF aircraft.

Soldiers were frequently strafed as they waited neck-deep in water for boats, and incidents of panic are recorded in the book, Sands of Dunkirk, published to severe criticism in 1961. It tells of drunkenness, debauchery and fights at pistol-point for places in the boats.

So fantastic was the scale of the evacuation that the question has been asked through the years whether Hitler deliberately stopped his Panzer divisions—they did pause for three days outside Dunkerque—to allow the British Army, for some deluded reason of his own, to get away.

The American author, William L. Shirer, in his Rise and Fall of the Third Reich, concludes that Hitler may have restrained his armored forces to spare Britain a worse humiliation and thereby facilitate a peace settlement, leaving him free to fight the Soviet Union.

Churchill and Maj. L. F. Ellis, British war historian, saw no ground for the theory. "Neither the orders of Hitler nor those of anyone else 'allowed' the BEF to escape," Ellis wrote. "The plain truth is that the German army and the air force did their utmost to prevent it but failed."

The German command had concluded that the Dunkerque country was unsuitable for tanks and anyway they felt the tank crews needed to rest and make repairs for the final assault on the French army, which still had 60 intact divisions. The German Navy was crippled after the Norwegian campaign and, besides, the Germans underrated British prowess in such a sea operation.

Lord Alexander, questioned on this point, said he doesn't know whether Hitler may have had hopes of a deal of any kind but if he did "he was certainly very wrong."

"I have heard stories that Field Marshal von Rundstedt wanted to hit harder but Hitler told him to keep his eye on the ball, which was the undefeated French army to the south.

"The Germans pressed us, but not so much as to make things absolutely impossible. They didn't throw their full weight on us, or we would have been in the bag, or dead."

CHINESE LIKE BOMB

TOKYO (AP)—Successful Explosion of China's First Atom Bomb, a color documentary film, is a hit with Chinese audiences, reveals the Communist Chinese news agency. It said the movie of the test last Oct. 16 was first shown May 2 and "by popular request many cinemas are giving several shows daily, always to full houses."

NEW FLAG FLIES — Ontario's new flag, aided by a healthy breeze, was raised over Queen's Park in Toronto Friday morning. The flag is the Red Ensign bearing the shield from the province's armorial bearings. (CP Wirephoto).

90,000 Toronto Commuters To Be Given Their Choice Of Rail or Road Travel

TORONTO (CP) — The free-way or the railway?

That will be the choice given 90,000 persons who commute daily to Toronto from points east and west along the shore of Lake Ontario.

The province plans to begin a rail commuter service late next year along a route paralleling four- and six-lane freeways which carry thousands of cars into the Metropolitan Toronto area each day.

To pit the advantages of rail commuting against those of driving to work from suburbia is a main reason the government chose this 32-mile lake-shore right-of-way from among the 250 miles of "rail which feed into the city along 15 different lines.

Only about 90 miles of the total 250 was estimated to be capable of handling more than one or two trains daily, without resorting to major capital investments in new trackage and other facilities.

FOUND SUITABLE

Soon it emerged that the 32 miles between Burlington, a town of about 25,000 just east of Hamilton, and Dunbarton, a CNR junction point just west of Ajax, would be most suitable for the commuter experiment.

A feasibility study was begun over the lakeshore right-of-way to determine public acceptability and what facilities would be required. Results learned from the study also would appeal to planning committees.

Summed up, the replies said the service would have to be fast, frequent and dependable. Rail fares themselves apparently were not a major consideration.

The so-called lakeshore corridor, with an estimated population of 870,000, already has extensive transportation facilities.

On the western section between Burlington and Toronto, the CNR operates a rush-hour commuter service using conventional railway equipment, but it has never proved too popular with commuters.

PREFER ROADS

Most commuters from the west favor the Queen Elizabeth-Dixie G. Gardiner Expressway and Queen Elizabeth Highway, which take them from the Hamilton-Burlington area into Metro Toronto in about 45 minutes.

Long - distance buses also serve the area, and at the western outskirts of Metro Toronto—Long Branch and Mimico —the Toronto Transit Commission offers street car service.

Freeway transportation is not as accessible in the eastern sector and railway commuter service exists. However, private bus transportation is available.

Commuters from downtown area may enter the city along the four-lane Macdonald-Cartier Freeway, which parallels, over the top of Metro, or may feed into a number of major city arteries.

The rail service is being designed to handle up to 6,000 passengers an hour and 15,000 a day. It would take the equivalent of four freeway lanes along the entire 32 miles of the proposed rail service to handle that many auto commuters.

FEELS COST LIGHT

Ontario's department of highways feels it is getting off easy by making a capital outlay of $7,500,000 for coaches, diesel engines and right-of-way improvements to inaugurate the commuter experiment. In comparison, the cost of freeway construction has hit a peak of $15,-000,000 a mile in Toronto.

The annual operating cost of the commuter service will be an estimated $3,500,000 of which $1,500,000 or $2,000,000 will be recovered through fares. That means the government will have to subsidize the service at up to $2,000,000 a year.

Exact fares have not yet been determined, but it is reported the cost of a ticket for travelling the entire length of the commuter right-of-way will be no more than the $1.50 cost of parking an auto for a day in downtown Toronto.

The service will be the first in Canada tailored to commuter specifications. The government shortly will call tenders for 48 light - weight, fast - unloading coaches with a seating capacity of 125 each.

Ten diesel locomotives will be of a fast-accelerating design to reach maximum speeds of about 60 miles an hour between the 14 stops along the route.

To further step up the speed, some existing stations will be eliminated and new ones built in the eastern sector. Feeder bus services will be provided for areas affected by station changes.

All stations will have extensive, low-cost parking facilities.

Trains will run every 20 minutes during rush hour, and hourly at other times. Sundays and holidays, they will operate on a 90-minute schedule. The service will start at 6:45 a.m. and end at midnight.

Will Double Grants for Institutions

TORONTO (CP) — Government grants are to be doubled for the construction of children's institutions and homes for retarded children.

Welfare Minister Louis Cecile announced today the province will pay up to $5,000 a bed for construction of new buildings or additions.

The province now pays 50 per cent of the latest per bed up to a maximum of $2,500.

Grants also will be increased for the purchase of existing buildings for use as children's institutions. The old maximum of $1,000 a bed will be raised to $1,200.

The grant for maintenance of children in an institution or home for the retarded will be raised to 75 per cent of the net cost from 50 per cent. The $3 daily maximum will be eliminated.

Mr. Cecile said in the legislature the government is "assuming a greater portion of the costs in order to give greater encouragement to the chain of local associations for retarded children across Ontario.

"We are satisfied that these generous grants will be most acceptable to local organizations and will stimulate an expansion of the accomodation available for retarded children," he said.

BOY KILLED

IMPERIAL IN HUNT

Imperial Oil Ltd. announced in Montreal Friday that Imperial and Pan American Petroleum Corp. will carry out exploratory operations this summer on the Grand Banks, off the Newfoundland coast. Drilling programs will be carried out on a 32,000,000-acre block of offshore petroleum and natural gas rights now held by Pan American. The announcement said that its participation will entitle Imperial to one-half interest in the Pan American acreage.

REPORTS LOSS

Brazilian Traction Light and Power Co. Ltd. had a net loss in 1964 of $442,541 or three cents a share in United States dollars, compared with a net loss of $1,234,012 or seven cents the previous year, says the company's annual report, signed by President J. Grant Glassco.

MILK SALES RISE

Commercial milk sales rose five per cent in the first three quarts in March this year from a year ago, bringing sales for the first three months of 1965 to 377,160,000 quarts, up two per cent from the first quarter of 1964. The bureau of statistics report covered sales of standard milk, skim and two-per-cent milk, but excluded skim milk, buttermilk and chocolate milk drinks.

Indonesia Takes Over Bata Plant

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said today the Indonesian government has taken over operations of the Bata Shoe Co. of Canada in Indonesia but the ownership of the firm is not changed.

It was the last foreign-owned company in Indonesia to be placed under government control, he said. Negotiations were proceeding normally.

Mr. Martin was replying in the Commons to Robert Temple (L—Hastings South) who asked whether Canada had protested "seizure" of the firm's Indonesian branch.

Iran Empress Purchases Canadian Spinning Wheel And 7-foot Narwhal Tusk

OTTAWA (CP)—What would an Iranian empress buy if she went shopping in Ottawa?

An early Canadian spinning wheel.

Hand - made Eskimo trinkets and toys.

This was only part of the shopping list when Her Imperial Majesty, Empress Farah Pahlavi, 26, wife of the Shah of Iran, visited an Ottawa shop Friday.

Apparently along the way she expressed an interest in Canadian handicrafts and the culture of Canadian Indians and Eskimos.

Someone suggested visiting The Snow Goose, a shop specializing in such wares recently opened in new quarters on Confederation Square.

The fleet of limousines carrying the empress' party, led by motorcycle police, threaded its way through Ottawa traffic and drew up in front of the shop. Sales clerks were caught completely by surprise but quickly recognized the royal visitor.

They went immediately to the second floor mezzanine, while other shoppers busied themselves around the store. Soon the word spread, and a crowd gathered outside while tourist shoppers waited inside for a glimpse of her.

A Canadian army aide came downstairs with his hands filled with small, delicate eskimo stone carvings.

"These are to be boxed right away," he said.

Back he fled upstairs, and down he came again with the narwhal tusk—a thin, straight tusk from a rare arctic white whale.

"Put this away, and it will be picked up later," he told the spinning wheel," he said.

Then the empress came downstairs. She wore a green-and-red wool suit, red silk blouse, white hat, gloves and shoes, and diamond and pearl jewelry.

EXAMINES WARES

But her shopping wasn't done yet. She examined the wares on every counter, buying some of Indian and Eskimo arts, and some post greeting cards, birch - bark toy tents, Indian masks, a five foot totem pole.

Price did not seem to matter.

Why should it to the empress of oil-rich Iran?

"I'd like that," she'd say with a smile, and the clerk whisked the object off to the back of the shop.

"I'm really terribly sorry, but we must watch the time," said Mme. Vanier to her, as aides in the background nervously looked at their wristwatches.

"Yes, yes," said the empress, and went on shopping.

Indian books embroidered with porcupine quills, brooches carved in wood, printed handwoven textiles, furry Ookpiks were shown to her and some selected.

"Send it all to the embassy of Iran," said the aide as he dashed out to join the cavalcade.

Press Efforts For Accord In Bolivia

LA PAZ (Reuters) — The chief of the ruling Bolivian junta was in Cochabamba for possible contacts with peasant union leaders today as the government pressed efforts to settle a week-old labor crisis it claims is Communist-inspired.

Gen. Rene Barrientos Ortuno, the junta leader, left La Paz unexpectedly Friday to spend the weekend in Cochabamba, Bolivia's second city.

The general strike continued, although a government official said many miners were willing to return to work.

The armed forces commander, Gen. Ovando Candia, meanwhile showed reporters weapons—most of them Czech made—that he said troops seized here.

The military commander said a street demonstration by 1,000 students and workers Friday—which soldiers used tear gas to break up—was part of a subversive Communist plan to be carried out in Bolivia.

The demonstrators stoned vehicles and looted stores as unrest continued following the banishment to Paraguay last week of miners' leader Juan Lechin Oswuendo, a former national vice-president.

Waiting for H-Bomb?

Viet Nam War Sideshow Between Two Main Acts Of Dramatic Chinese Tale

WASHINGTON (AP)—Do you ever get the feeling that at this moment you're standing in the lobby of history, just chewing the fat, between acts in one of great dramas?

The world now is in the period between the Chinese conquest of their poverty-ridden land in 1949 and the time less than a decade away when they will have H-bombs and can deliver them.

The United States at present is taken up with its troubles in Viet Nam, trying to prevent a Communist victory in the belief it would lead eventually to Chinese domination of all Southeast Asia.

Recently the Chinese had two atomic explosions. Dr. Ralph Lapp a nuclear physicist who worked on the first American A-bomb but no longer is with the government, guesses China will have the H-bomb in two or three years.

For China to get this far so fast has required fierce concentrations of energy and resources and perhaps explains why it has avoided conflict over Formosa or direct involvement in Viet Nam.

MAY FORCE ISSUE

Why be distracted if, within a few years and with nuclear power, the United States can be confronted with the grisly choice of atomic war or pulling out of Asia?

It is not stretching the imagination to think China, will in time try to dominate all South-east Asia, or all Asia. Just remember the attitude of the United States toward Latin America, past and present.

Even in the early 19th century, a weak and new United States warned Europe to stay out of the Western Hemisphere, and that's still U.S. policy.

The Chinese would run contrary to the nature of nations and their own nature if, once they had the power, they did less than try to extinhe the influence of the West from Asia the ire colonialism has left a legacy.

At one time China held Viet Nam for 1,000 years, lost it because of internal anarchy in China and then pecked away at it over the centuries. Later it controlled Viet Nam again.

For anyone with a knowledge of history and the national use of power it would be a dreamy condition to think the Chinese in Asia would act differently from the United States in the Western Hemisphere, either big powers in the past, and even Russia with its satellites now.

It was President Eisenhower who enunciated the falling domino theory: That once communism dominated Viet Nam, its neighbors would topple in time. President Johnson shares the theory, as he shows with his efforts in Viet Nam now.

The Japanese sought Asian domination and as a result drove the British and French out of their colonial holdings on the mainland and tried to eliminate the U.S. from the western Pacific

By their reckoning they could turn it into a Japanese lake. But the Chinese would have even stronger reason for attempting the same. They have more than just national ambitions.

Their ideology calls for the spread of communism everywhere until it dominates the world. They have denounced the Russians for even mentioning the possibility of "peaceful coexistence."

If the time comes when a new and powerful China tries domination, the U.S., even though resisting, could hardly condemn it, in view of its own actions in the Western Hemisphere.

When some of the old and original leaders of Chinese communism, like Mao Tse-tung, pass out of the picture and the Chinese society becomes more affluent, the Communist missionary fervor may lose some steam, as it seems to have done in Russia.

But the national interests of China will not diminish under a new leadership or under lack of ideological zeal. They are basic and will remain undiminished, as they have in the U.S.—keep outsiders out.

For these reasons the present U.S. activity in Viet Nam, and its sacrifices and anxieties, intense and important as they seem now, may turn out to be only an intermission before the big act.

GIVE RABIES SHOTS

KINGSTON (CP) — Doctors administered the first in a series of anti-rabies injections Friday to Mrs. Norman Le Blanc, her five children and another child after a rabid skunk bit Peter Le Blanc, 5.

Sees Nothing Govt. Can Do For News Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree said Friday he sees no further steps the Ontario government might take to settle the Toronto newspaper strike.

However, he said the government will not give up trying to solve the dispute between the three daily newspapers and the International Typographical Union (CLC).

Mr. Rowntree said the ITU's international president, Elmer Brown, refused an invitation to meet with him last month.

When the local union asked him to set up a meeting with the newspapers to discuss a new proposal, Mr. Rowntree said, the meeting was vetoed at Colorado Springs, Colo.

He said the ITU international threatened to suspend the officers and members of Toronto local if they went ahead with the new proposal.

"There is general agreement, even amongst the parties themselves, that the government has exhausted every means at its disposal to assist them in resolving this dispute," Mr. Rowntree told the legislature.

"Under these circumstances, I cannot at this time see any further steps that can be taken by this government to effect a settlement."

The ITU strike against the three Toronto dailies—The Star, The Telegram and The Globe and Mail—began last July 9.

Subway Strike Appears Likely

TORONTO (CP)—A strike by about 250 workers employed on the excavation and construction of Toronto's east-west subway appeared imminent Friday after failure by union and management negotiators to reach agreement in a wage dispute.

Members of Local 183 of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union (CLC) are refusing to work overtime until the dispute is settled and are legally free to strike at any time, Gerald Gallagher, local secretary, said Friday night.

He reported that the union negotiating committee had rejected a final offer of a 35-cent-an-hour pay increase for a two-year agreement, but that a walkout might be delayed for a week pending a special meeting of all members of the local.

FISH RETRIEVER — Jack is a bird dog but the end of the quail-hunting season doesn't bother him. He just starts fishing. The brown and white setter, which does most of his fishing in a lake near Hamilton, Georgia, does not actually hook the fish. But once it is on the line he is in the water and a dream or bass in his mouth; climbs upon the bank; and deposits the catch near the feet of his owner, John Hood. (AP Wirephoto).

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Today we learn the tar-roofed, stone-walled river-bank landmark that for many years has housed the editorial rooms of the newspaper.

We leave to their lonely haunting, the ghosts of editors and printers who wrote their copy longhand and set type without benefit of machinery.

We're moving to the beautiful new newspaper-radio "Taj Mahal" that rises in its warm-grey beauty on the southwest corner of Pinnacle and Bridge Sts.

Symmetrically perfect, the new building is a decided architectural asset to the downtown section of the city which in recent years has been pockmarked by fire.

From the modern editorial rooms of the new building we shall look down on the humdrum workaday activities of busy city streets.

From a window near my office I shall watch streams of traffic, shoppers, workers, tourists, people on their way to various destinations.

From the window near my desk in the "old house" I looked down on a peaceful scene: on an old friend, the Moira flowing gently to the bay.

Many dawnings I have seen the pink glow of a new morning color her drab waters. I have watched the early sunlight glint off her rippled surface. Only the staccato of the teletypes shattered the quiet peace-fulness of the scene.

I've seen her reluctantly overflow her banks sending water cascading over downtown streets.

I've seen her in summer drought, her gravelly bosom exposed when her tributary children of the northern areas were unable to support her.

I've seen her quietly subside when winter clothed her in icy habiliments. I've seen her mantled in mowsy ermine until the warm spring rains caused her to heave in protest and shake her icy shackles.

In her corridored throat between the lower city bridges I've seen her welcome her flimsy spring visitors.

I've seen the silvery sheen of the smelt schools brighten the drab of her spring waters. I've seen the dark shadows of pickerel move slowly, mysteriously "upstream" looking for piscatorial maternity wards.

And under cloud-shadowed moons I've seen the dark [illegible] of spear-armed midnight marauders haunt her banks.

I've seen the lethal weapons flash swiftly into her dark waters and return with a quivering fighting "catch."

On her rocky narrow balconies on the east side directly below and southerly from the "old office" the "Ancient Order of Wine-Bibbling Cavefolks" held daily and nightly semesters, to do homage to the grape.

Her gently flowing water provided the funeral cortege for many departed "soldiers." The "dead" were buried without ceremony to the accompaniment of raucous laughter and befuddled quip. The victims submerged to the necks, bobbed gently in the rippled water on their way to the Cemetery of the Bay.

Many strange objects have been excepted by the Old Lady to the oblivion of whatever lies beyond the CPR bridge. Her bottom is freckled with the non-floatable debris of years. She provided sanitation transportation for the city a long time.

But in her upper stretches she is, in places, a thing of slowly moving beauty. She passes slowly through the idyllic scenery of rural South Hastings. She is generous in spots to the ubiquitous angler.

So today we of the editorial staff say farewell to the old order and look confidently to the new.

I do not know what our "old home" will house in the future in a physical sense. It will retain a lot of memories for us who wear the chevrons of long service.

But no matter who comes and who goes, one thing is sure, my office window buddy, the Old Lady Moira, will go on forever.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Ardee, a gelding which was the bettors' choice, got its first victory of the season Friday night when it outdistanced the pack to win the $3,000 Van Riddell Invitation trot at Mohawk Raceway.

The win, in 2:07.4 was worth $1,500 for White Stable of St. Marys, Ont., and boosted Ardee's lifetime earnings to $33,996. Ardee paid $2.70 and was bined with Betsy Herbert for a $9.60 quinella.

Sonny Mac, winner of the first race, and Prince Cope, victor in the second, combined for a daily double worth $181.60.

MANAGER FIRED

SWINDON, England (AP) — Bert Head was fired Friday as manager of the Swindon team in Division II of soccer's English League.

Armed Men ★ ★ ★ Fight Looks Like Mystery Thriller ★ ★ ★ Police Everywhere

By BOB HOOBING

LEWISTON, Me. (AP) — "It be come to fight, it'll be a short one," challenger Sonny Liston said of Cassius Clay.

"If he come to run, I'll have to track him."

Liston admits he's known gnawing loneliness since he lost the heavyweight championship to Clay a year ago February in Miami, and is determined to redeem himself in their rematch Tuesday. He discussed his feelings at his camp nearby Poland Spring Friday.

"Clay will open the door and I'll get to him," Liston said. "I got to get to him. I let down a lot of people. I never realized how much I could hurt inside doing that. . ."

There are plenty of other things Sonny could worry about. The threat of possible violence, the uncertainty of anticipated Clay antics and a controversy over Liston's condition are among them.

Liston, however, is thinking only of proving to "everyone I'm not a quitter and the only reason I didn't come out for the seventh round in Miami was because I was in such great pain and couldn't throw my left hand.

MUST WIN

"The only way I can convince people is to beat Clay this time.

"I've been thinking over the mistakes I made in the first fight. There will be absolutely no excuses in this fight. My shoulder is healed. I won't say what round I'll knock him out. But I'll get him sometime."

The camp buzzed with a report that the New York State Police had informed their Massachusetts counterparts that a carload of armed men, possibly of the Black Muslim faith of which Clay is a member, may be heading for the fight.

Local police — there will be 300 added to the normal 70-man force for the bout — expressed confidence that they can handle all eventualities. Liston was asked if he were apprehensive of the reports.

"No, I'm not," said Sonny without changing expression.

"Clay wants to convert you into a Muslim," said one spectioner. "What do you want to convert him into?"

"A stiff."

Liston said he has been constantly accompanied by two state policemen.

"I've been treated very good here, just like home," said Sonny. "In fact a little better here than in Denver. The police walk beside me here instead of behind me."

Some observers feel Liston has looked dull the last couple of days. Some contend he's so fine he's been saving off.

"I'm ready," Liston says. "I'm in the best shape of my life, better than at the time of the postponement."

The fight was postponed last November because of Clay's hernia operation.

Contender George Chuvalo of Toronto comments:

"I don't know whether Liston is good or not. I haven't been impressed with what I've seen. I don't think he's trying."

Cus D'Amato, longtime fight manager, shrugs and says: "Sometimes he looks good and other times not so hot."

Liston was asked about the possibility of an additional rematch.

"After I get through whipping him, Clay won't want no more fights."

Then Sonny took a different tack.

"No more fights with Clay. There's been too much stink the second time from the WBA and whomsoever."

Liston referred to the World Boxing Association withdrawal of recognition of Clay or the coming fight and the unsuccessful attempt by WBA champion Ernie Terrell to get a court order restraining Clay from using the term world champion.

Breaks Out In Pinch

Surprise Pitcher Surprises Team, Self

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

All Ron Herbel needed was a rod over his head.

Once he got it, he erupted with the first hit of his major league career and helped San Francisco Giants clobber Houston Astros 8-1 Friday night.

Herbel, 27, was a surprise starter for the Giants in place of Astrodome, replacing Juan Marichal who was suffering with a cold. He responded both with the hit and his first complete game of the season.

The right-hander never had a hit since joining the Giants late in 1962. He didn't get to bat that season but went 47 games at bat without a hit last year and eight times this year, making him 0-for-55 in 53 games.

Herbel was by no means the worst hitting pitcher in the majors. Bob Bolin of Chicago Cubs failed to hit safely in 85 trips to the plate from 1961 into the 1963 season.

Herbel, determined to fall short of that streak, lashed a single in the first frame off Don Nottebart, scoring Hal Lanier, and the Giants were on their way to a five-run inning.

PIRATES DOWN BRAVES

In other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Milwaukee Braves 6-5 and Cincinnati edged New York Mets 4-3 in 12 innings. Philadelphia Phillies 6-5 and Chicago trimmed Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3.

Besides his own support, Herbel relied on Willie McCovey's ninth home run, which took care of the other three runs in the second inning, to back up his five-hit pitching. McCovey also drove in a fourth-inning run with one of his two singles.

The Pirates ended an eight game losing streak while Vern Law ended a give-game losing string. Bill Mazeroski led the attack against the Braves, driving in three runs with a single, double and sacrifice fly.

Tom Seaver fanned 13 in his 5-3 victory until shortstop Roy McMillan threw past first base attempting to complete a game-ending double play. Julian Javier and Lou Brock raced home on the play.

Two-run homer by Vada Pinson and John Edwards' solo blast, both in the sixth inning, powered the Reds past the Phillies.

Dick Ellsworth gave up 14 hits, but the Cubs still defeated the Dodgers. Ron Santo cracked a solo homer in the fourth, and Vic Romovsky connected with one in the sixth.

WAS MARATHON

ATHENS (AP) — Josef Sotu of Hungary won the sixth international marathon race from Athens Friday, running the 26 miles, 385 yards in 2 hours, 30 minutes, 42.4 seconds. There were 33 starters in the event, run from the site of ancient Greece's famous victory over Persia in 490 B.C. to the white marble Panathonian Stadium in this Greek capital.

Boros Shoots A '64'

MEMPHIS (AP) — Julius Boros, 45, who was playing golf before most of the game's current names were born, struck a blow for old age Friday when he shot a six-under-par 64 for a 36-hole score of 130 and a four-stroke lead in the $60,000 Memphis Open.

Three strokes back in second place was George Archer who came in with a 68 for a 36-hole score of 134.

†The only Canadian entry, Al Johnston of Montreal, failed to survive the second-round cut-off. He shot a 74 Friday for a two-round total of 145.

Bobby Hull Is Truly 'Golden' Hawk

Awards Total $7,750

MONTREAL — Based on the award money he received from the National Hockey League this season and the 39 goals he scored in the regular schedule, Bobby Hull's goals were worth $800 each to him.

The Chicago Black Hawk left winger led all individuals in total award money received from the League. He collected $750 as his share for Chicago's third-place finish; $2,500 as a member of the Stanley Cup finalists; $1,500 in All-Star awards; and $3,000 as winner of the Hart Memorial Trophy and the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy. His total $7,750 in award money boosted his career total from the League to $27,050 in seven years in the NHL. He did not collect any bonus from the NHL in 1957-58, his first season.

Of the $257,000 in individual and team award money distributed by the NHL, the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens received $91,750. They collected $63,000 as Cup champions ($1,500 per man for winning the semi-final series against Toronto and $2,000 per man for defeating Chicago in the Final); $22,500 for their second-place finish in the regular season ($1,250 per man); $4,250 in All-Star awards; and $2,000 in Individual awards.

The League's cash awards in 1964-65 were distributed in the following manner: $144,000 to the four teams in the Stanley Cup playoffs; $81,000 to first four teams in the final regular season standing; $18,000 to the players selected to the First and Second All-Star teams; $14,000 to the players winning individual trophies and the runners-up. Each of the team awards is based on 18-player units, meaning that each of 18 players on a team winning a monetary award must receive a full share.

Behind Hull among the individuals collecting award money were rookie Detroit goaltender Roger Crozier and Montreal defenceman Jacques Laperriere, each receiving $7,000. Norm Ullman of Detroit, Pierre Pilote of Chicago and Claude Provost of Montreal each received $6,500.

Gord Howe of Detroit received $4,750 in award money, bringing his total amount received from the NHL in his 19-season career to $68,300. This does not include bonus money he has received from his own club.

The NHL champion Red Wings received $250,250 in award money; Chicago $68,750; Toronto $28,250; New York Rangers $750 (Harry Howell, Rod Gilbert and Camille Henry — before being traded to Chicago—each received $250 as Second-Team members of the All-Stars in one of the halves); and Boston Bruins $250 as a result of Johnny Bucyk being named to the All-Star Second Team in the last-half vote.

Including their share of team awards, the 23 players who received monetary awards for individual trophies and All-Stars collected a total $91,000 of the entire pool.

BRITISH TAKE PART

LONDON (Reuters)—A group of British school athletes will fly to Canada Aug. 19 to compete in the Canadian national age-class track and field championships at Saint John, N.B. The athletes chosen to compete in the Canadian championships Aug. 26-27 will be between 15 and 20 years of age.

Breakdown Of Awards

Following is a breakdown of the award money by the 23 players who received monetary awards in the individual trophies and All-Star selections. Included in the total are the players' shares of team awards:

Two Softball Players Get Suspensions

Two players were handed suspensions yesterday, according to a statement issued by the Belleville and District Softball League executive.

The pair fought during a game at Madoc Thursday night. Woods was hit by a bases-loaded pitch thrown by Griffin and threw his bat at the Madoc pitcher. A fight followed on the diamond and plate umpire Bruce Nickle put both players out of the game.

Griffin will miss tonight's game against Trenton, while Woods will sit out games against Trenton on Monday and Wednesday and against Tweed on June 1.

VOTE FOR UNITY

LONDON (Reuters) — The "parliament" of the Anglican Church, the 18th convocations of Canterbury and York, voted overwhelmingly Wednesday in favor of unity with the Methodist Church. The decision will be followed by negotiations on how to integrate the episcopal state church with the independent Methodist ministry.

Hits Homer, Double, Sing's

Cleveland 'Mouse' S ets Game RBI Mark

By MIKE WATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mighty Mouse is the correct again—only this time swathed in bandages.

Mighty Mouse would be Vic Davalillo, the five-foot-seven, 150-pound package from Venezuela who became the first player in the majors to drive in six runs in a single game this season while leading Cleveland Indians to an 11-6 victory over Boston Red Sox Friday night.

He left thumb, left hip and right ankle taped to ease a variety of bruises, the 25-year-old outfielder lashed a homer, double and a single, and moved within one point of Willie Horton of Detroit Tigers in the American League batting race with a .364 average.

Not bad for a little guy whose main claim to fame three years ago was his collection of Superman, Supboy and Mighty Mouse comic books in Spanish.

He brought his RBI total to 19 against the Red Sox, smacking a two-run double in the first inning, a three-run homer in the fifth and a two-run single in the eighth as the Indians extended their winning streak to five games.

He also added to his bruises when he crashed against the left field fence making a brilliant catch of a long drive by Rich Rollins in the fifth inning to end a three-run Boston rally.

Elsewhere in the AL, Los Angeles nipped edged Chicago White Sox 1-0, Minnesota Twins defeated Kansas City Athletics 4-3, Baltimore Orioles whipped Detroit Tigers 5-2 and Washington Senators downed New York Yankees 4-3.

Davalillo's second homer of the season gave the Indians a 5-5 tie before they moved ahead on Rocky Colavito's two-run freewheeling homer off starter Dave Morehead in the seventh.

Sonny Siebert, 6-3, was the winner in relief help from Bill Fiels and Al Worthington.

Bill Pappas, also unbeaten, also won his fifth as the Orioles defeated the Tigers.

Detroit pulled out to a 1-0 lead on Dick McAuliffe's homer in the first but Baltimore moved ahead to stay with a three-run fourth built on doubles by Chet Blefary and Jackie Brandt plus singles by Charlie Lau, Bob Johnson and Russ Snyder.

The Senators went into the ninth inning trailing the Yankees 4-3 but Willie Kirkland rapped a two-run homer and Ken Hamlin tripled and scored on Don Blasingame's single.

Minor Baseball Opens Monday At Park Dale

The Belleville Minor Baseball Association, with 250 boys playing on 15 teams, will open the 1965 schedule with three games on Monday, the May 24 holiday.

Three games are slated for the Park Dale diamond on opening day. Boiler's Little Giants clash with the Lions Club'ub at 9.30 a.m. fixture: Fountain Park and the B.M.B.A. team meet in Fe-wer series at 12.30. Barriges and Jaycees tangle in the Bantam tilt at 3.00 p.m.

Special opening ceremonies will be held just before the bantam game, at 3.00 p.m. with representatives of the Minor Sports and Minor Baseball Associations taking part.

Belleville will also have tyke, peewee, bantam and midget teams taking part in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association play, against teams from Trenton, Kingston and Frankford this season. Schedules will be prepared shortly.

EAGLES SUE CITY

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles sued the city Friday over exclusive professional football rights in a proposed new Stadium. The action could scuttle the $25,000,000 project. The Eagles asked common pleas court either to force the city and Mayor James Tate to honor an alleged 1963 agreement giving the National Football League team exclusive rights in the stadium, or rule against all action on the project and declare as invalid the public vote approving financing.

Leafs Edge Bisons 3-1, Suns Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookie manager Dick Williams didn't want to break his pitching rotation so he let a reliever do the job for Toronto Maple Leafs Friday night.

Williams used two regular starters Thursday night in a 17-inning International Ri-a-gue baseball game and was forced to call sinkerballer Mickey Ritchie from the fifth inning pen for Friday's game with Buffalo Bisons.

Sinks replied in perfect style, giving up seven scattered hits and striking out seven before leaving way to Lindy Guido Grill in the eighth inning as the Leafs won the Bisons 3-1.

Sinks, running his season record to 1-1, also collected two singles and a walk and scored two Toronto runs.

Grifill was sensational in relieving Sinks with four of the six batters he faced and allowing just one single.

In Friday's other games Jacksonville Suns edged Toledo Mud Hens 6-5 and Syracuse Chiefs defeated Rochester Red Wings 2-1. The Columbus Jets - Atlanta Crackers game was rained out.

Tom Matchick collected two of three hits for Syracuse but singled home runs both times. Ed Rakow, who arrived just before game time from Detroit Tigers of the American League, won his first start with a four-hitter.

Jacksonville used the squeeze play to advantage, scoring two runs including the winner in the seventh, with the so-called suicide play. They scored four runs in the sixth inning to overcome a 2-1 Toledo lead.

Louis Thinks So

Jersey Joe To Referee Bout?

Editors Note: Staying close to the scene, ex-heavyweight champion Joe Louis today continues his sizing up of Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston. In his final pre-fight article Monday, he will pick the winner.

By JOE LOUIS

LEWISTON, ME., May 22 — They are going to bring in a former heavyweight champion as the outside referee in the Clay-Liston match Tuesday because Maine never has had enough big-time fights to qualify anybody for this important job.

Right now I'll rule out one fellow for referee — Joe Louis. I feel fine for a bid of 51 but I'm not in shape to go 15 rounds and the third man has to be ready to go the route, just as much as the other two.

Besides, I've been writing things about Cassius and Sonny and some people might think I'd be going to the fight with a set opinion . . . what am I saying? I certainly will have a set opinion in my mind by the time before the fight I'll pick the winner.

But whoever is selected — and I hear it will be Jersey Joe Walcott, the man I knocked out — is going to be helped to do a good job by a different deal; he won't have to vote.

The rules in Maine, and in a few other spots, like Montreal or Cincinnati, have three judges voting, instead of two, which leaves the ref free to concentrate on running the fight.

Don't let anyone tell you it's easy either. When you have two big men in there, each looking to get an edge, you've got to be on the ball to keep everything moving as fair for one as for the other.

I can tell you from my experience it means something to the fighter to know he can count on an even break. In my 25 fights at champ, I had the same ref around 20 times, Arthur Donovan, and he was nearly as a clock, couldn't be bullied, couldn't be conned.

I think Walcott would be like that. He's an honest man and he has been around.

It's interesting that he should be stepping into a no-scoring deal, after what happened to him in Panama, where he worked the lightweight championship fight in which a local boy, Ismael Laguna, got the title from Carlos Ortiz on a split vote.

Walcott was one of the two Laguna voters and, when his card was announced, I was grieved as tabbing Laguna by 10 or 11 points. But, as he remembered it, his margin for Laguna was no more than two or three.

Well, that's over with and anyway the three judges' votes, if they're needed, will be counted in English, not Spanish.

But I was talking about the things a ref will have to look out for with Clay and Liston. Clay is not the type you don't have to worry about him holding or hitting on the break, he does not use leing which is against the rules - he did it at Miami Beach—he slants his glove out from the arm and covers the opponent's face while looking for a spot to throw the right.

Sonny likes the inside, which means you have to look out for roughing Joe—know, leaning in on the stomach at the same times shoving in. And then there are times up close when he may throw an elbow to the head which could be low. That was Eddie Machen's beef against Liston when they fought.

The thing is that either fighter could do something wrong, not intentionally, just in the heat of battle, and the ref must be on the alert to catch it and warn him. If he doesn't, one foul will be countered by another and, before you know it, you have a roughhouse instead of a fight according to the rules.

There Is Nothing Sexy About the Mad Munsters

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Pat Priest comes by her interest in macabre quite naturally. Her mother used to make it.

Mother is Ivy Baker Priest, treasurer of the United States during the Eisenhower administration.

Pat now is making a goodly amount of her mother's product as Marilyn, the wide-eyed niece of The Munsters television series.

This week Pat was doing the CBS series in tight blue jeans and checked shirt—the mad Munsters had moved out west to a ghost town.

"This costume is a bit extreme for me," she admitted. "Usually I am stuck with Paisley prints, checks and stripes. I've worn so many full skirts you'd think I had a hip problem.

"I'm not allowed to wear any solid colors—nothing that might outline the figure. Sweaters? Are you kidding?

CAN'T LOOK SEXY

"I'm not allowed to wear anything that might be the least bit sexy. Once in a while I tell them, 'Look—if you wanted someone in this part to look like a boy, why didn't you hire a boy?'"

The production thinking here seems to be that The Munsters is a family show and any notion of sex is to be eschewed.

The show's other stars are Yvonne de Carlo, Fred Gwynne and Al Lewis.

Pat is not the first of the Priests to enter acting. Her sister Nancy, was under contract to 20th Century-Fox for a year, but didn't take to the settled life.

The wife of a navy officer, Pat moved from one city to another, doing little theatre work, television and modelling at each stop. When her husband was assigned to nearby Point Mugu, she was able to pursue a Hollywood career in earnest.

Now she's aiming to earn more money during the series' summer hiatus, and she's hoping for a movie in which she can wear something beside a full skirt and shapeless blouse.

At the Belle

"Goldfinger" Most elaborate Production of James Bond's Adventure Pictures

"Goldfinger," the third James Bond adventure story to explode on the screen, is also the most expensive. Budgeted at $250,000 more than "From Russia with Love", and $300,000 more than "Dr. No", the first of the popular series.

"Goldfinger", now showing Today, and all next week at the Belle Theatre in Belleville, through United Artists release, had an expensive fell from the day screenwriters Richard Maibaum and Paul Dehn delivered the gold-covered shooting script. Again starring Sean Connery as the suave, indestructible agent 007, this newest Bond-Sardonnet features a villain obsessed with gold to the point where he is determined to rob all the gold bullion from - of all places, Fort Knox.

This immediately posed a problem. "Goldfinger" was filmed in England, where nothing looks like Fort Knox. Therefore, the Virginia colonial structure was erected on five acres north of Pinewood studio, at a cost of over $100,000.

Other Adam sets includes lush recreations of Miami's Beach's Fountainbleau hotel and another way-out laboratory, with highly dramatized equipment - including the latest weapon, a laser beam, which is a ray capable of slicing through steel. It's inventor, Dr. Charles Hard Townes has recently awarded the Nobel prize for his work.

Against the expensive trappings of Florida's pleasure coast, the baronial manors of England's verdant countryside and the scenic splendour of the swiss alps, "Goldfinger" unfolds the brilliant story of Bond's most exciting adventure.

Guy Hamilton directed and the Technicolor film was produced by Harry Saltzman and Albert R. Broccoli, who now have Sean Connery under contract for one James Bond picture a year. Also under contract is Honor Blackman, who co-stars as the newest James Bond girl, Pussy Galore. Star of the top-rated British television series, "The Avengers", Miss Blackman is only one of the beautiful women in Bond's life during the hour and a half of excitement in "Goldfinger." Starting on Monday, "Goldfinger" matinees go back to the regular schedule of, Matinees daily at 2.00. Evenings 7.00 and 9.10, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

UN MOVE DISCUSSED?

MONTREAL (CP)—The Gazette says it is firmly understood that international discussion is going on aimed at transferring United Nations headquarters from New York to Montreal.

HAS NO EFFECT

OTTAWA (CP) — The recent Chinese nuclear bomb explosion has had no apparent effect on the level of radioactivity over Canada, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh told the Commons Friday.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — This might seem like a strange time to play a violin concerto, but then again Peter Sellers is known to do strange things. The rather punned lovely lady is Capucine, and they both appear in the delightful comedy, "The Pink Panther," which opens tonight at the Belleville Drive-in Theatre. The Mirisch Company presentation of Blake Edward's Technicolor-Techniscope picture is being released through United Artists. 2nd feature attraction, also in color "Woman of Straw" stars Gina Lollobridgida, Sean Connery and Ralph Richardson.

AT THE PARK — Lana Turner is romantically pursued by Hugh O'Brian in Jarry Bresler's production, "Love Has Many Faces," opening Monday at the Park Theatre, new Colorfilm Pictures release in color. Cliff Robertson, who also stars, plays Lana's husband and others in the stellar cast are Ruth Roman, Stefanie Powers as the outsider," Virginia Grey and Ron Husmann. On the same program "Code 7 . . . Victim 5", in color, starring Lex Barker and Ronald Fraser. Both attractions are first showings. Complete shows 7.00 and 8.45 p.m.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Sean Connery, Honor Blackman, Gert Frobe in "Goldfinger," 2.00 - 6.00 - 9.30 - 12.50.

AT THE PARK — "Carry On Spying", Kenneth Williams, Barbara Windsor, 2.25 - 6.25 - 10.30. "The Flaming Star", Elvis Presley, Barbara Eden, Steve Forrest, Dolores Del Rio, 4.45 - 8.50.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Peter Sellers, Capucine, David Niven in "The Pink Panther," United Artists, Technicolor, Robert Walker, Cinerama - "Woman of Straw", color, Gina Lollobrigida, Sean Connery, Ralph Richardson.

There Is Nothing Sexy About the Mad Munsters

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Pat Priest comes by her interest in macabre quite naturally. Her mother used to make it.

Mother is Ivy Baker Priest, treasurer of the United States during the Eisenhower administration.

Pat now is making a goodly amount of her mother's product as Marilyn, the wide-eyed niece of The Munsters television series.

This week Pat was doing the CBS series in tight blue jeans and checked shirt—the mad Munsters had moved out west to a ghost town.

"This costume is a bit extreme for me," she admitted. "Usually I am stuck with Paisley prints, checks and stripes. I've worn so many full skirts you'd think I had a hip problem.

"I'm not allowed to wear any solid colors—nothing that might outline the figure. Sweaters? Are you kidding?

CAN'T LOOK SEXY

"I'm not allowed to wear anything that might be the least bit sexy. Once in a while I tell them, 'Look—if you wanted someone in this part to look like a boy, why didn't you hire a boy?'"

The production thinking here seems to be that The Munsters is a family show and any notion of sex is to be eschewed.

Pat is not the first of the Priests to enter acting. Her sister Nancy, was under contract to 20th Century-Fox for a year, but didn't take to the settled life.

The wife of a navy officer, Pat moved from one city to another, doing little theatre work, television and modelling at each stop. When her husband was assigned to nearby Point Mugu, she was able to pursue a Hollywood career in earnest.

Now she's aiming to earn more money during the series' summer hiatus, and she's hoping for a movie in which she can wear something beside a full skirt and shapeless blouse.

I

Am a spacious three bedroom brick split-level with family room for a good sized family because I have a big kitchen and a dining area. Each is divided basement just ready for a rec room plus a utility room. It's on a quiet paved street with a fenced in yard and I have garden. I've got lots about everything except an owner. They say I'm selling good but buy and I heard one salesman say they're looking for offers on me. I do hope you'll look at me this weekend. I know you won't be disappointed. Call that nice salesman.

DOCTORS ENJOY A DRINK

MONTREAL (CP)—Before a group of doctors began their conference on problems of alcoholism, a fruit punch and five types of liquor were served at a meeting here. A spokesman explained that alcoholism is a matter of degree and that a sociable drink in moderation can be a good thing.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 23

Aries (Mar. 2 — Apr. 19): Analyze emotional currents. Welcome chance for seclusion, rest. Ideas abound. . . but may require added effort. Appreciate home surroundings. Be a good listener.

Taurus (Apr. 20 — May 20): Need for diplomacy now is obvious, especially in dealing with friends. Lace opinions with generous portion of tact. Then you avoid arguments.

Gemini (May 21 — June 20): Many bright opportunities due to materialize. Show you are not afraid of responsibility. Be analytical. Make suggestion. Display confidence, knowledge.

Cancer (June 21 — July 22): Be receptive. Older person may have right answer. Don't let false pride hamper you. Your fine sense of family is repaid. Attend church of choice.

Leo (July 23 — Aug. 22): Friends who request money may only be "testing." No time to mix business with social activity. Avoid time-wasting complain, argue. Investigate alternate methods.

Virgo (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Overcome tendency to be critical. Key is awareness. Time to fulfill obligations. Get routine affairs out of the way early. Then relax with family and friends.

Libra (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your intuition now rings bell of wisdom. Gain indicated if you are perceptive. Take notes. Add to knowledge. Catch up on reading.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Pursue educational projects. Young person may offer extravagant plan. Be charming, but use discretion. Quiet meditation nurses confidence.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23—Dec. 21): Some projects may be outmoded . . . so make necessary changes. Excellent time for intelligent discussion with one close to you. Be alert, cautious and fair.

Capricorn (Dec. 23—Jan. 19): Be hospitable to family members. Don't become involved in disputes. One who appears hostile is merely uncertain. Understand this and act accordingly.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): In discussions about money . . . explain position clearly. No time for extravagance. Be tactful and frank. Special attention to children now important.

Pisces (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Cycle high. Accept personality. Stress independence of thought, action. Maintain sense of balance. Be gracious to those who serve you. No day for demanding.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . you are active, alert, and would make an excellent writer, reporter. You explore, question, and decide. Once decision is made — you carry project through to completion.

Cycle high for Pisces, Aries. Special word to Sagittarius: Don't be stubborn. . . you gain only through charm and patience.

For May 24

Aries (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): If disturbing conditions exist where job and family are concerned, use tact and patience. Do not be blunt if you desire harmony and progress today. Try to see other points of view.

Taurus (Apr. 20 — May 20): Time to be analytical. Seek those where atmosphere is harmonious. Avoid arguing. Jealous individual hurts only himself. Push ahead diplomatically with your plans.

Gemini (May 21 — June 20): Surprises may be coming in connection with career or home. . . you may be asked to handle added responsibility. Cooperate. A gracious attitude now is a may means "promotion" later.

Cancer (June 21 — July 22): Time to maintain calm and think. Don't skip important details. Finish projects. Impress others with sincerity. Perceive long-range indications. Be mature.

Leo (July 23 — Aug. 22): Look for new ways of doing things. Invest in ideas and talents. Lead the way. Others observe and gain inspiration. Watch for opportunities to make personal appeal, perhaps a special sales trip.

Virgo (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Avoid flashy appearance. Be aware of public image. Many look for ways to criticize. Be neutral in dispute. Try to absorb knowledge — it's informed, quiet skepticism.

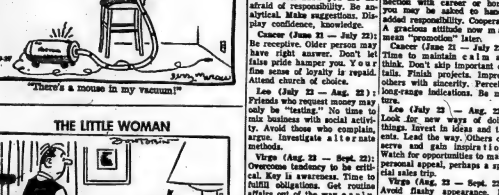
Libra (Sept. — Oct. 22): Time to stress truth, accuracy. Trying to hide essential information is mistake. Forthright attitude pays off. Act accordingly and adhere to highest principles.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): You can now cement ties of affection. Avoid jumping to rash conclusions. Sudden actions and wrong decisions might be costly. Try to learn to analyze and understand motives.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22—Dec. 21): Watchful, intuitive mood is indicated. You "find things out." Delve deep, ask questions, obtain answers. Heart-to-heart talk with right person could help.

Capricorn (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Concentrate on work program. Value your time. Avoid one who gossip. Listen — but don't become involved. Outline plans, but anticipate changes.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Dynamic approach serves best purpose now. Don't beat around bush. Offer plans. Be economical. Streamline methods. Get things in order. Be frugal with money question.



Pisces (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20.): Time to be very diplomatic in dealing with partners. Day when others burden you with complaints. You can accomplish more if tactful. Offer cooperation and be considerate.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . you love the "good life." Money matters can be favorably resolved. But don't rush into new project. Examine prospects. Realize some associates are likely envious. Continue policy of tact, diplomacy.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . you tend to be introspective. You analyze, often place yourself in role of underdog to see how others will react. You are sensitive and would be a good actor, writer, or artist.

Cycle high for Aries, Taurus. Special word to Aquarius: An associate may need aid. Be fair!

as they exist. Dispel illusions. Be cautious in reality . . . look to future instead of worrying about past.

Taurus (Apr. 20 — May 20): Privacy required. Take time to collect thoughts. Be specific. Avoid scattered forces. Accept challenges. Older individual can provide sound advice.

Gemini (May 21 — June 20): Complete assignment. Finish what you start. Don't be satisfied with halfway methods. Your influence spreads . . . for the good. Act accordingly!

Cancer (June 21 — July 22): Advancement due. If you utilize creative resources. Find better ways of serving the public. Good lunar aspect highlights new ideas, recognition of efforts.

Leo (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your sense of showmanship comes to fore. Excellent for contacts. Be as good as you are. You are a host. Obtain valuable hint from today's Cancer message.

Virgo (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Time to be versatile. Try various methods. Key is willingness to experiment. Your enthusiasm impresses people. Don't use excessive criticism. Be lenient!

Libra (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Check details and facts carefully . . . then proceed to handle trouble spots. Have courage of convictions. Your sense of justice shines and impresses others.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Good lunar aspect now stresses romantic interests. Be considerate of children and keep promises. Change, travel, variety are in spotlight.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Recent restrictions lift. Opportunity is accented. A sweet prove helpful. Don't let false pride upset plans. Time to be practical.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 — Jan 19): Some confusion of recent days evaporates. Utilize knowledge gained in past. You are now able to see goal. Take steps to achieve it by probing deep.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Agree to certain changes but hold off on complete revisions. Be perceptive. Added work may be necessary. Realize one with experience is on "your side."

Pisces (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Money matters can be favorably resolved. But don't rush into new project. Examine prospects. Realize some associates are likely envious. Continue policy of tact, diplomacy.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . you tend to be introspective. You analyze, often place yourself in role of underdog to see how others will react. You are sensitive and would be a good actor, writer, or artist.

COIN STILL WANTED

LONDON (CP) — Officials at the Royal Mint are baffled by the demand for the British half-penny coin. Nothing can be bought for such a small sum and few prices still feature a halfpenny. However demand for the coin is such that the Mint may well turn out more halfpennies this year than ever before.

NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR

In addition to a tribute to Winston Churchill, housed in the Fair's own pavilion near the main gate, and the Hall of Presidents located in the U.S. Pavilion, several other pavilions have added new attractions this year. The three-tiered Jewelled Tiara worn by Pope Paul VI will be on display in the Vatican Pavilion. The Greek of the Acropolis, using taped voices and coed lighting, tells the story of Athens' Golden Age. The Venezuelan Pavilion contains a replica in a jungle setting of Angel Falls, the world's highest waterfall.

Two interesting large attractions that opened late in '64 are the Belgian Village and Burden Street. The state of Florida will present a water ski and boat show free four times a day in the amphitheatre on Meadow Lake. The porpoise show in the main Florida Pavilion is offered to fair visitors free of charge this year. The Feltman Carousel, said to be the world's largest has been added to the amusement section. Many exhibitors have taken steps to speed things up so the long lines, a headache last year, are on the way out.

MAP FOR COLLECTORS

PETERBOROUGH — A handguide map for antique collectors has been published for a number of years by Dominic Unitt, a Peterborough antique dealer, showing areas of interest in Ontario and the location of many antique shops. The latest issue will be off the press about mid-May and may be obtained by writing to Mr. Unitt at 715 Water Street, Peterborough.

RECORD SEASON

TORONTO — Ontario's 90 provincial parks re-open this month and a record-breaking season is anticipated. Attendance is expected to exceed the 10 million mark — a 10 percent increase over the 1964 figure of 9,140,000 visitors, itself a record despite poor weather which prevailed during most of the summer.

PARKS BARGAIN

TORONTO — U.S. visitors to Ontario will find fees for use of recreational facilities less than at home. A Seasonal vehicle permit costs only $5 in Ontario Parks and a daily permit $1. Serviced campsites are available at $1.50 a day or $9 a week. In Quetico Park only, there is a $5 entry fee for boats entering the park by water — there is no charge for craft trailered to the park.

STIRLING

Les Rawlings Heads Chamber Of Commerce

STIRLING — Mr. Les Rawlings, manager of the local Bank of Montreal, was chosen president of the Stirling Chamber of Commerce for the ensuing year. The annual dinner meeting was held at the Sterling Hotel with president Don Williams in charge. The guest speaker was Mr. B. J. Deale Stefanick, Toronto. He suggested ways of bettering the community and said the chamber should provide leadership. He urged the retail merchants to always have fair prices and thus attract the shoppers.

The speaker stressed that a good Chamber of Commerce organization was composed of forward looking citizens, who were conscious of the needs of the district.

Mr. George Noble introduced the speaker and the president voiced thanks for the timely message.

Other guests were in attendance from Toronto and Tweed.

Marmora

MARMORA — Mr. Clare Campion is a patient in Civic Hospital, Peterborough.

Mrs. Bob Maynes has returned home from hospital with their new baby daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Campion visited the former's sister, Mrs. Goldie McInroy in Kingston General Hospital.

TROUSSEAU TEA

Mrs. Roy Frost held a trousseau tea on Monday afternoon in honor of her daughter Madeline who is to be married on Saturday to Richard Mocon in St. Paul's Anglican Church. Approximately 50 guests attended. Pouring tea was Mrs. Harry A. Seeley of Montreal, Mrs. Frost's mother. Assisting with lunch were Miss Edith Trueman, an aunt of Mrs. Frost, Mrs. Floyd Loveless, Mrs. Frank Bird and Mrs. Jack Reynolds. Trousseau and wedding gifts were shown by the bride to-be.

City Council Encourages Artistic Law Defiance

By GERARD McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—With one of Quebec's top criminal lawyers and more than 50 businessmen behind them, seven art students are counting on being allowed to go on painting outdoors and selling their sketches to tourists this summer.

They're involved in a controversy over whether they should be permitted to operate without paying a business tax.

Last spring police charged them with "illegally practising their trade on the street." Convicted, they refused to pay their fines.

A sympathetic city council adopted a resolution calling for the suspension of legal action against the students and allowing them to sell unhindered on tiny rue du Tresor, near the Chateau Frontenac and just off charming Place d'Armes.

Despite the council resolution, however, four students were required to pay $5 fines and one $10. Noel Dorion, former federal secretary of state, and Raymond Maher are two criminal lawyers who volunteered to defend them.

The students have formed an association and have asked the city to let them work from May 1 to Oct. 31 this year, not only on rue du Tresor (sketching the Chateau several hundred times gets boring, they say) but in other picturesque spots in Quebec City as well.

COUNCIL DIVIDED

Aldermen polled were divided on the request. Some said the students should have a chance to earn a few dollars for their education without being classified as businessmen.

Others said they should pay a business tax, just as art shops do, and should be confined to one area off the streets.

One thing the aldermen did agree on was that artists from Montreal and the United States should be kept from moving in.

The students themselves don't like the idea of paying a tax. They explain that they sell their sketches for less than $5 usually and that a full summer's work barely gets them enough for tuition and self-support.

They say they think the art shops are behind police action. One artist said he sold a sketch to a gallery for $2 and it was resold for $12. He added that he prefers to sell to tourists for $2.

Marius Dubois, who has painted in the streets for three summers, says: "Everytime we saw the police we ran for our lives. Finally we went to see Mayor Willrid Hamel. After that we had a trouble-free summer."

One reason the artists have received support is that they represent a tourist attraction themselves. Visitors like the slightly bohemian, slightly separatist generally amiable youths. And their bargain-price sketches decorate many a room from Nova Scotia to Texas.

Jacques Brousseau, who depends on selling art to tourists to get him through school, has a problem because he wears a beard and doesn't want to shave it off.

"With my beard," he says, "I haven't the slightest chance of finding a job in a store."

Pearson Sees Public Opinion Forcing Peace

By CLAIRE HOY

KINGSTON — Prime Minister Lester Pearson, though decrying the lack of solid UN role in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic, declared Saturday we should not become pessimistic about the chances for peace in the world today through the existence of the UN.

Mr. Pearson, addressing a packed hall at the convocation ceremonies for the School of Graduate Studies, Queen's University, gave three reasons for his optimism.

"People everywhere now have an opportunity to make their wishes felt as they never had before. This remains true whether democracy as we understand it is present or not: for everywhere, including countries governed by communist governments, there is an appreciation that the leaders know they cannot ignore the expectations for a better life of their peoples.

"Knowledge cannot be suppressed in any country and knowledge of how to improve the material conditions of life is available to all through education."

The Prime Minister said his "feeling of optimism for the better life would be even greater if people do not think in terms of colored television in every house and a second car in every garage, but rather of general prosperity and understanding between all men."

He gave as his other reasons for optimism, the intermingling of peoples made possible by improved methods of transportation and communication, and the spreading of technical knowledge and the exchange of people to impart such knowledge. He credited the UN with doing much to organize and expand these conditions.

WILL BE DECISIVE

Mr. Pearson said these hopeful elements will "be decisive in tipping the balance towards some system of world order providing we have not already blown up our world by nuclear war or so mismanaged our affairs that famine and poverty destroy the basis for peaceful relations between peoples and races."

He said Canadians have a special responsibility to be concerned because "we are neither inhibited by great power responsibilities nor discouraged by poverty from giving a lead."

He said Canada has played a major part in the UN by urging the greater use of, and by contributing to, international forces to keep the peace.

However, he cautioned there was much more to be done in this area and that the United States had to intervene unilaterally in the Dominican Republic and Vietnam because there was not a UN police force to stand between warring enemies.

"In Vietnam, the UN has not been able to intervene, although I wish it were able to," he said. "In the Dominican Republic it is intervening with difficulty, although I hope the difficulties will be removed."

Mr. Pearson made his comments while receiving an honorary law degree from Queen's University. He assured report-

Debate May Run For Days

OTTAWA (CP) — With two amendments already proposed, and the likelihood of more to come, the Commons today enters its fourth day of debate on the controversial rules reforms proposed by the government.

There are indications the debate will continue for many more days, although there has been some speculation that any opposition blockade could prompt the government to dissolve Parliament and call an election. But there appears to be a general belief that the proposals will not be held up to that extent.

The proposals include limiting to 36 days the time spent each session on all appropriations and supply debates. Ninety days were devoted to this last session. A new rule would be inserted to allow for an arbitrary time limit on debates, and the question period would be regulated to 30 minutes a day.

TWO INTRODUCED

The two amendments already introduced, but not yet voted on, came from the New Democratic and Social Credit parties.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) proposed that only interim supply and the main spending estimates be included in the 36-day debate limit. Debate on other spending programs, such as supplementary estimates, should not be included.

A sub-amendment from H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) also carried the same message. He said that otherwise extra spending estimates brought in after the 36-day period could be approved without debate unless there was a specific provision for such debate.

Meanwhile, the Creditiste party has served notice it also will introduce amendments after the government has indicated it may "soften" some of its proposals.

Tin Miners Agree To Ceasefire

LA PAZ (AP)—Bolivia's military junta agreed to a ceasefire with striking tin miners after heavy fighting took many lives Monday.

The ceasefire called for an end to the strike, now in its eighth day, and withdrawal of troops from the mines.

The truce was signed after a battle between government forces and workers in the industrial suburbs of La Paz which continued far into the night Monday. At least 19 persons were killed and more than 70 were wounded.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Slowly rising temperatures and increasing cloudiness should occur today, particularly in the western region.

Scattered showers or thunderstorms may drift into southwestern Ontario. More frequent showers are expected in Northern Ontario tonight as a weak disturbance moves across the area.

Foil Plot Against DeGaulle

From AP-Reuters

PARIS (CP)—Interior ministry officials announced today that another extreme right-wing plot to assassinate President de Gaulle had been thwarted with the arrest of six secret army members.

The latest attempt to take the life of the French president was to have been made with a booby - trapped statue of the First World War Premier, Georges Clemenceau, during de Gaulle's tour of western France last week.

The six arrested men, ranging from a school teacher to a doctor, were part of the same gang that tried to kill de Gaulle last August with a booby-trapped flower pot.

An ornamental flower pot at the foot of a staircase leading to a military museum at Mont Faron had been loaded with four pounds of explosives which were to be touched off by a radio signal. The fusing system failed to function.

Interior ministry officials said today that the secret army gang had fashioned a new electronically - controlled bomb which they planned to hide in or near a statue of Clemenceau at Sainte Hermine, in the Vendee department of west-central France. The explosives were to have been fired as de Gaulle placed a wreath at the statue.

SECRETLY JAILED

DAR ES SALAAM (AP)—The Tanzanian home minister, Job Mwakangale, reported he has arrested 125 people, including 30 foreigners, are being held under the Preventive Detention Act without intention of bringing them to trial. He declined to identify them.

Big Move Goes Smoothly, Intell Is in New Home

The long-looked forward to move is over and today The Ontario Intelligencer is being published from its new home at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets.

And as every member of the newspaper staff hoped, the move went off without a hitch.

Even before Saturday's papers was off the press "operation change-over" was underway.

More than a dozen big linotype machines, weighing well over a ton each, along with cumbersome mat rollers and dozens of other heavy machinery units, were lifted from positions, hauled out through the roof of the old Intelligencer composing room, placed on trucks and then hoisted by crane into the new building.

The move got underway before nine in the morning and by 5.30 Saturday evening all the composing room machines, advertising alley equipment, and business and editorial office desks were in their new positions.

And today the composing room boys, along with the editorial staff and business office personnel went to work amid strange surroundings.

Actually there was a bit of confusion this morning as staffs of the various departments, always working against the clock, had a bit of difficulty in finding familiar working tools. But any strangeness will soon wear off and a week from now the move will be all but forgotten.

It will be two or three weeks before the press in the new building is ready to roll and in the meantime the press at the former Front Street location will be used to run off the papers.

And the move for the Job printing department is also a bit in the future. Until the printing department will also operate at the Front Street location.

Skiing Ends, Boating Begins As Victoria Day Observed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

All the contrasts that make up Canada seemed to choose Victoria Day 1965 to emphasize themselves.

Thousands streamed to beaches and resorts to soak up fresh spring air. The yachting season opened in British Columbia, the harness racing season began in the Maritimes—and the ski season closed with the last event of the year—a giant slalom—at Banff, Alta.

In Montreal, separatists demonstrated, and more than 100 were arrested during a rally in Lafontaine Park in which two policemen were injured. Others were blamed for two bombs found in the city, and still others for defacing three statues —including that of General Wolfe—with green paint in Quebec City.

While Montreal was coping with demonstrations, Indians on the six Nations reserve near Brantford, honored Queen Victoria's birthday with the traditional distribution of bread and cheese, a ritual dating back to the 18th century monarch's reign.

Most Canadians, though, used the weekend to try out the golf clubs, the fishing rods and the new boat. The drowning and boating accident fatality rate rose to at least 28.

Many creaked open the door of the cottage for the first time this year and at least 54 of them were killed trying to get there and back home.

The Canadian Highway Safety Conference had predicted that 60 would die on the roads in the 72-hour holiday period.

In Ontario the traffic tie-ups were so bad that one Toronto radio station was moved to declare "Ontario — one massive traffic jam."

At Greenwood Raceway in Toronto, a horse named Queen's Birthday won the fifth race, paying a few lucky bettors $11.10.

Plan Sit-ins In Montreal Restaurants

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's largest separatist movement plans a campaign of sit-ins starting next month to force bilingualism in restaurants and public places where only English is in use.

Pierre Bourgault, president of Le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale (RIN), told a press conference Monday the sit-ins will last until they get results, even if that takes a week.

Speaking after a three-day convention at which he was re-elected president, Mr. Bourgault said the RIN will put pressure on the government to make Quebec a unilingual French-speaking province.

Many Arrested In 10 Hours Of Demonstrations

By TIM PETERS and MICHAEL BLAIR

MONTREAL (CP) — Squads of billy-swinging police waded into separatist demonstrators and "hooligans" Monday night to end 10 hours of violent Victoria Day celebrations in the downtown area.

Police said 154 persons, including 15 juveniles, will face charges today for disturbing the peace, resisting arrest and assault on police officers. In addition, 59 others have been released after questioning.

By midnight Monday when the demonstrators had been dispersed, 14 police officers, including an RCMP plain clothes officer, had been injured by flying rocks and other debris, none of them seriously.

Seven police cars and a police ambulance suffered minor damage and scores of windows were broken near east-end Lafontaine Park, where the demonstrations were held.

SEIZE FIRE BOMBS

Five Molotov Cocktails were seized from youths as more than 1,000 massed in the park around the park. Police tried to keep them bottled up with flying squads which were constantly forming 30 man wedges to disperse large groups.

The day began with a bomb blast in the downtown area, continued with protest marches and rallies and ended with acts of hooliganism

The demonstration brought a stern warning from Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner, who said further incidents by "misguided extremists" will receive harsher treatment from police than in the past.

It was the second consecutive year of serious separatist Victoria Day outbreaks.

In 1964, 85 persons were arrested when mounted city policemen were called in break up a crowd of firecracker and missile throwing demonstrators in the Lafontaine park.

THOUGHT IT OVER

Following separatist rallies at Lafontaine Park in the afternoon police thought they had the situation under control and Police Director Marcel Robert said: "It turned out to be much less than we had expected."

However, reports of police were rushed into the park area at nightfall as leaderless "hoodlums" and a sprinkling of separatists milled about.

Shortly before midnight police with megaphones began clearing demonstrators and spectators out of the park. The crowd strolled down Cherbrooke Street, lying up traffic.

Before police could control the spillover, a group of 300 marchers, led by youths carrying a Quebec flag and another with a "Quebec libre" (free Quebec) sign, were marching along Sherbrooke Street, a main traffic artery.

Police cars came from several directions and drove a wedge into the marchers, who ran back to the park.

They reformed in the park shortly before midnight but police waded into the crowds and made dozens of arrests, throw-

Mishaps Take 85 Lives

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents during the long Victoria Day weekend took the lives of at least 85 Canadians, with highway fatalities accounting for 54 victims.

A survey by The Canadian Press also showed 27 persons drowned, one woman killed in a fire and three persons killed in accidents of miscellaneous origin.

The Canadian total fell short of last year's mark of 94, the highest since 1952 when a record 100 persons died in accidents. The number of road deaths this year was also less than the 66 deaths predicted by the Canadian Highway Safety Council and the 64 recorded in 1964.

Ontario had the worst record. During the survey period, from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday, local times, the province reported a record 26 deaths—25 road deaths, 12 drownings and one man apparently asphyxiated. The previous Ontario high total was 23 deaths last year and in 1962.

COUNT IT DEAD

Quebec reported 17 deaths, including nine on the road, seven drownings and a woman killed in a fire.

Two provinces reported no fatalities at all—Prince Edward Island and Alberta.

British Columbia reported nine road deaths and three drownings, while Saskatchewan had six traffic deaths, with five persons killed in a single accident. Manitoba had one traffic death and two drownings.

In the Atlantic provinces, Nova Scotia reported two traffic fatalities, three drownings and two persons killed in other accidents. Newfoundland and New Brunswick each reported one traffic death.

The survey does not include industrial or natural deaths, some suicides or slayings.

Rebels Optimistic But Americans Dubious About Dominican Accord

From AP-Reuters

SANTO DOMINGO (CP)—The Dominican rebels were optimistic today and the Americans pessimistic about prospects for a coalition government. The junta showed no sign of giving way.

A rebel spokesman said negotiations to form a government headed by Antonio Guzman Fernandez, agriculture minister under deposed president Juan Bosch, were "very advanced." Other rebel sources said the talks were nearing "a successful conclusion."

But a U.S. spokesman, noting strong opposition to Guzman from the junta, said prospects for a quick settlement were still dim. U.S. officials would only say that "a number of conversations have taken place and are continuing."

Sources close to the junta president, Brig. - Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, said Imbert had not been consulted on the coalition government. He called in U.S. Ambassador W. Tapley Bennett Jr. and Jose A. Mora, secretary-general of the Organization of American States, to ask them for an explanation of the negotiations.

Bennett was reported to have told Imbert that the U.S. was not trying to impose a government. However, the U.S. is known to favor Guzman as a compromise choice.

Imbert has been demanding that the rebels surrender and has refused to step aside in favor of a coalition. The rebel chief, Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, has said he would resign if an agreement is reached on the coalition.

In the meantime a 24-hour truce between the insurgents and the junta forces, arranged last week to remove the dead and wounded from the streets of the capital, has been extended informally.

Both sides indicated that they would not initiate renewed fighting while negotiations for a permanent settlement of the month-old civil war continued.

Despite the outward calm, however, it was learned that supporters of Gen. Imbert in an enclave around the national palace had been secretly reinforced to between 300 and 800 men.

It was understood that the reinforcements, dressed in civilian clothes, had infiltrated through the U.S. lines. Rebel sources charged that arms had been dropped to the palace forces by helicopter.

Holiday Weekend Passes Without Serious Accident

Police in the Quinte district were handing out bouquets this morning — because there was no reason for wreaths.

The area — from Kingston to Trenton and north to Bancroft — came through the Victoria Day holiday weekend without a single serious traffic incident.

There were no deaths and no serious motor vehicle injuries in the accidents investigated by both municipal and provincial police during the two - day holiday.

"We didn't have a single serious mishap in our whole area," OPP District Superintendent A. McDougall said this morning. His "beat" covers the counties of Frontenac, Lennox-Addington, Hastings and Prince Edward.

"And we greatly appreciated the co-operation of all motorists on the highway in this respect.

In Belleville, city police spent the early hours of the holiday probing two drownings in the Moira River. Police surmise they both occurred about the same time Friday night — on opposite river banks.

The victims were Alexander Barr, 46-year-old unemployed Toronto man, and George Keller-Cook, 55, of Belleville.

CAUSED SOME CONCERN

The discovery of Barr's body at Victoria Park, north of the CPR Bridge about 8 a.m. Saturday, caused police most concern.

There were marks on his forehead and no wallet was found on his body. However, an autopsy at Belleville General Hospital showed the marks were not caused by violence before death.

Cook's body was found about 6 p.m. near boathouses on the point across the river from Victoria park.

He was spotted floating in the water by two youths — Peter Smith, 368 Bridge Street, and Raymond Smith, 85 West Bridge Street.

Firemen Had Busy Day, Six Alarms

Belleville's Fire Department had a busy day yesterday, answering six alarms and providing service at the fair grounds during the fireworks display.

A television set transformer set on fire at 20 Edward Street and caused very little damage. A chicken brooder house on the 10th concession of Sidney burned down at noon hour.

Early in the afternoon the department put out a fire on the back porch of the Toronto Star building on Bridge Street and later, they put out a stump that had caught on fire in front of Sir William Churchill School.

Early in the evening, the Department was called to stop a rubbish fire at the rear of the new hospital wing.

The final call was to put out a fire in the bales of hay at North Front Street and Highway 401. The fire was started by improper use of firecrackers.

Municipal Workshop Will Be Convened

A municipal workshop sponsored by the Department of Municipal Affairs will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, May 26 and 27, in the County Building.

The Hon. Mr. William Spooner, Minister of Municipal Affairs will speak at the Quinte Hotel at 12.30 p.m. on May 27.

CARDS OF THANKS

The brothers of the late Frederick Louise of Trenton, wish to thank many friends and neighbours for their kindness and sympathy in the loss of our brother. Special thanks to the doctors who sent flowers and sympathy cards, the staff of Trenton Memorial Hospital, doctors, nurses, Trenton Royal Canadian Legion and the Weaver Funeral Home.

For a speedy recovery from my recent accident I wish publicly to thank God and the following people. Mr. Jerry Nicholson of Belleville for their visits and prayers, Mrs. Annie Banks and Rose Van Luven for keeping me alive until the ambulance arrived at Belleville Hospital; the nurses in Intensive Care, the staff in first-floor for their excellent care, patience and wonderful back rubs, those who visited and sent flowers, my customers at Wray's for their kindness while I was away. Thank you.

Charles Bristol.

I would like to express my sincere appreciation to relatives and friends for their prayers, cards, flowers, money, other gifts, also for prayers, cards, gifts and personal visits. Thanks to the nurses in intensive care, nurses and nurses' aides on second West and first West for their excellent care and kindness while I was a patient in Belleville General Hospital. Special thanks to Rev. Father Boyle, Dr. Douglas, Dr. Totten, Dr. Ross and Dr. Potter.

Irene Conoreux.

Fireworks Drive 'em Crackers

Whatever happened to the days when firecrackers could be exploded in peace and quiet?

Incidents around Belleville yesterday as the city hailed Victoria Day not only brought out bad tempers, but the fire department said the police — over and over again.

Fire reels were rushed to the Lower Bridge at noon when smoke was seen curling from a building on the west bank of the Moira.

Firemen doused the outbreak handily and blamed it on fireworks. Youngsters had earlier been playing with crackers in the vicinity.

It was the city's police department that ran the biggest barrage, however.

As the holiday reached a supper-hour peak, complaints started flowing into headquarters. Youngsters were throwing firecrackers on lawns, verandahs — even on people.

Sidney Twp. Council

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP — A special meeting of the Sidney Township council members was held recently and the mill rate was determined for the different areas of the township.

The county rate is 20.6 mills. Township commercial and industrial is 18.2 mills and township farming and residential is 4.4 mills. These rates are exclusive of drainage assessment, frontal assessment, Federation of Agriculture, library rates and sewage rates. The county levy is up from the 1964 levy of 19.3 mills, 9.9 for township. Mill rate in 1964 shows a slight decrease for 1965.

The total general mill rate in the Bay of Quinte High School is 77 mills for commercial and industrial and 67 mills for farming and residential. The Quinte High School board mill rate is 17.8 for commercial and industrial and 18.9 for farming and residential. This is a reduction of approximately two mills from last year.

Sidney Township Public School rate under the new area board for the 21 schools is 29.6 for commercial and industrial and 26.6 for farming and residential. The average mill rate for the old system last year was approximately 23 mills.

Sidney township residents in the Stirling-Rawdon area will be assessed 16.8 mills for farming and residential, and 18.7 for commercial. The Union public school rate is 66.8 commercial and 58.3 farming and residential.

Residents of the township who send their children to school in Foxboro which is in Thurlow township will be assessed 35 mills, while the commercial rate is 63 mills.

Man Produces Receipt for Ticket Payment

Magistrate T. Y. Wills dismissed a $4.50 summons after Gilbert Campbell produced a receipt supporting his claim the 50-cent ticket had been paid.

The ticket—Belleville parking authority uses an envelope for deposit in street boxes—never turned up at city hall.

The inference was it may have been pilfered since Mr Campbell said the deposit box he used "was pretty full."

Woman Hurt In Collision

NAPANEE — A two-car accident took place Friday afternoon at the corner of Bridge and John Street, Napanee.

A car driven by Mrs. Harrison, Toronto, southbound on John Street, rammed into the side of a car driven by Mrs. E. C. Daverne, Napanee, which was eastbound on Bridge Street.

Mrs. Daverne was the only injured person and was sent to the hospital to find she had a broken shoulder. Mrs. Daverne was en route to the hospital with a patient when the accident occurred.

The car belonging to Mrs. Daverne was considered a write off, while the other vehicle was slightly damaged.

Dispute Over Car Bill Aired in Police Court

Belleville night-club entertainer Floyd Turcotte today was fined $10 on what was described in court as a "technical matter" of joy-riding.

For the young ballad singer, the charge arose out of a dispute with a city car dealer, who was billing him over $1,500 for car repairs.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills was told the chain of events started back in February when the entertainer purchased an automobile and had it overhauled at Stevenson Ford Sales Ltd.

The bill came to more than $1,300 and was disputed by Turcotte, in the meantime he had been driving cars loaned him by the dealer. By April 7 —with the bill still in dispute— Turcotte decided to raise the money through an Ottawa finance company office. However, the dealer demanded back a car he had been loaned.

Turcotte told the court Stevenson's service manager came over to the adjacent motel where Turcotte entertains and demanded the car.

"He said I couldn't take the car but I took it anyway because I didn't have any other way to get to Ottawa," admitted the singer.

CAR RETURNED

Later that night he returned the car — together with a $1,500 cheque to clear the company repair claims and other bills.

However, Stevenson's moved to press charges of theft against him.

Turcotte's own testimony proved the charge against him.

"There's nothing I can say," said defence counsel Tom Lally, "except I think Stevenson Ford were a little hasty."

"Well, that's not my business," replied the magistrate suggesting a small fine would look better for Turcotte's record than a suspended sentence.

Crown Attorney John Pringle agreed, "It's a very technical matter," he added.

Tom Farmer New President RCAF Assoc.

KINGSTON (CP) — The Ontario branch of the RCAF association Sunday passed a resolution deploring "the loss of military leaders because of dissatisfaction with the low morale caused by the integration of the armed forces."

About 200 members attended the association's three-day annual convention in Kingston.

The resolutions will be forwarded to the association's national executive.

Another resolution asked the federal government to delay further integration of the armed forces until results of experiments already made have been assessed.

The association asked that no steps be taken to integrate Canada's cadet corps. The national executive was asked to continue to ask that an over-all plan for integration of the armed forces be prepared and published.

OTHERS ELECTED

Other members of the executive elected were: First vice-president Robert Mills, 404 Wing, Kitchener-Waterloo; second Vice-President Fred Brown, 445 Wing, Toronto Treasurer William Cherry, 419 Wing, Kingston; Women's Representative Murial Boyle, 408 wing, Toronto.

Second place went to 404 Wing of Kitchener-Waterloo and third to 444 Wing of Scarborough.

Two Drivers Hurt

The drivers of two vehicles involved in a rear-end collision on King Street at Catherine St., around 10 p.m. last night, suffered injury, but did not require hospitalization.

One driver, Mary H. McDonnell, 31, of 158 Dundas Street West, suffered a sore back and a sore neck while the other driver, Hubert Knapik, 43, of 21 Fraser Dr., Batawa, suffered a cut upper lip.

Damage to the two cars was set at $225.

No Job for Juveniles

A teen-age jury in Hot Springs, Arkansas, seems to be a big hit with officials there.

The jury, composed of six teenagers, presides over cases of juvenile crime. The jury does not have the power to issue a verdict, but it can, and does, recommend a verdict and punishment. The judge has not yet failed—in four months—to go along with the jury's recommendation.

In order to qualify for jury duty, a juror must be a high school student, must make passing grades and must have a driver's licence.

Former baseball great Lon Warneke is presiding judge. He thinks the plan is "the greatest thing that has ever happened to a juvenile court." Maybe it is, but his reasons for saying so are strange.

The first advantage of his teen-age jury is that it gets the judges "off the hook" with parents of the juveniles convicted of offences.

He goes on to say, "If the jury recommends a punishment and I deliver it, then it works out with the parents. If it hadn't been the jury's sentence, I'd have been in a fight with the parents as soon as the court was over."

It may be an admirable thing that Judge Warneke no longer fights with parents, but his scape-goat philosophy does him no credit as a judge. His consideration should be one of guilt or innocence, not one of "What will the parents think of me?"

The next advantage of the teen-age jury accordingly to the judge is that it deters crime because the jurors, once they get back to school, "spread the word" about who the convicted juvenile was.

The judge said, "You can bet by the time those jurors get back to their schools and talk about their cases, half the county knows what happened and who was being tried."

Well, his-de-dah for Judge Warneke and his band of tale-spreaders. It may deter crime all right, but in the process it makes a mockery of the purpose of juvenile courts.

The names of juveniles charged or convicted of crimes are protected by law in Arkansas and in most places. The purpose of this law is to protect juveniles who have made a mistake so they will not be stuck with the stigma of their mistake for the rest of their lives. The whole-sale spreading around of the juveniles' names that the judge is so pleased about, though it may deter crime, strips the juvenile offenders of the protection they are given by law.

A final observation . . . one must question the maturity of a jury whose members are just chewing at the bit to run out and spread their little gossip around the county. Jury duty, especially in cases of juvenile offenders, requires responsibility, a characteristic not being shown by the Arkansas tattle-tales and the judge.

Roebuck Will Not Resign

Senator Arthur Roebuck, who is 87 years old, says he will not retire if and when Parliament approves a government bill providing for the retirement of future senators at the age of 75.

Present senators will be given a year from the passing of the bill to decide whether they will retire on pensions of $8,000 a year, or continue to discharge their duties as senators at $15,000 a year.

Senator Roebuck says most of his close associates in the senate will not retire. They will not stay on because of the $7,000 difference between the salary as a senator and the proffered pension. They will remain because "we think we are doing a job here and we want to continue in it."

In Senator Roebuck's case, at least, there is no real doubt but that Canada will be getting much better value for its money if he remains than if he retires. Despite his age, he is still one of the country's ablest politicians. In the future, he will have to leave the senate years before their usefulness has ended. That, however, is one of the penalties we are forced to pay, in many enterprises, for the necessity of making a general rule which is applicable not only to ordinary men but to the exceptional ones as well. The proposed change is a wise one. For every man who, like Senator Roebuck, retains his vigor of mind and freshness of outlook at 87, there are two whose mental powers, though once great, have been dissipated by the time they reach 75.

Solitude is as needful to the imagination as society is wholesome for the character.—Lowell in Among My Books.

Low Blood Pressure Helps: But Strokes Still Possible

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Doctor: I've been told that people with low blood pressure don't have cerebral vascular accidents or blood clots in veins or arteries. Is this true or not, and why?

Does it mean that a person with low blood pressure won't ever be paralyzed in that way? What is normal blood pressure for age 60? —N. M.

No, you are being unduly optimistic in thinking that . . . w blood pressure prevents C.V.A.'s (cerebro-vascular accidents, also known as strokes.) There are two main forms of C.V.A.: A blood vessel ruptures and blood leaks into the rest of the brain substance; or, the other form, circulation through a vessel is shut off or extremely reduced.

Either way, it is a stroke. Whether paralysis follows depends on the location and severity of the interference with normal circulation.

It stands to reason, of course, that a person with low blood pressure will be less likely to have a blood vessel rupture, simply because it is not exposed to as much continued strain. This is not 100 percent safety, however. An artery may be excessively brittle, or have a flaw which gives way even with the reduced pressure.

As to the other kind of stroke or C.V.A., that is, a clogging of an artery, blood pressure has relatively little to do with it in that case, you see, the trouble is caused by a clot forming and becoming lodged somewhere in the artery. This tends to happen at some point at which the artery has gradually become narrower. Or, indeed, an artery may become so narrowed that circulation is too restricted even if no actual clot is formed.

Some strokes are caused by interference with circulation in the neck rather than in the brain itself. The result is the same: Interference with circulation to the brain. This type of trouble sometimes can be detected and corrected in advance, whereas it is rather difficult to do much if the problem lies in the brain itself. Some precautions can be taken, but not nearly as much as possible in the neck) repair a narrowed artery surgically.

With some C.V.A.'s, trouble comes on gradually, with warning symptoms: in other cases there is no warning. As for the aftermath there may be severe paralysis, or there may be little stroke; causing only transient loss of ability to move, dizziness, speech disturbances, etc.

A normal blood pressure for a person of 60 would be — and this is a very rough figure — 160—80, although many folks manage to keep pressure lower at that age. (More power to them!) Of the two figures, the "80" is of more critical importance than the "160". The larger number representing the pressure when the heart is pumping; the other indicates the resting pressure between heartbeats. This is an oversimplification, since the actual relationship is quite complicated, but two people may both have blood pressure of 160, with one of them having a healthy 90 for the second number, and the other a dangerous 115. See the difference?

Dear Dr. Molner: I read your column on gout and uric acid. My husband had uric acid stones in his kidney, and one kidney was removed. Will this new drug you mentioned, probenecid, help in his case? He is 65 and has diabetes. — Mrs. M. S.

Yes, if the level of uric acid in his blood is high, probenecid will help rid his system of the excess and thus tend to prevent formation of that type of stone in his remaining kidney.

Millionaire, Prince Joust

Milwaukee Journal

A strange struggle for power is gathering steam in Monaco. Prince Rainier is jousting with Aristotle Onassis. The prince is flanked by Princess Grace and Onassis by Maria Callas, the opera singer.

The prince runs the country but Onassis runs almost everything that makes the country tick — the huge gambling casino of Monte Carlo, five deluxe hotels and most of the bars, night clubs and restaurants around. He rules his domain by virtue of having bought 230,000 shares of stock in the society that runs the luxury complex. Rainier owns only 25,000 shares.

The society has the lengthy title of La Société Anonyme des Bains de Mer et du Cercle des Etrangers. The society pays the government a share of its income. Once this amounted to 50 percent of the principality's budget but of late years it accounts for only 2.5 percent.

Prince Rainier thinks that Onassis should provide more activities — sports, festivals, theatricals — to attract more visitors and make more money. Onassis says he will if the prince will renounce his power to veto the society's activities — in other words, give Onassis full control.

The prince's answer is to threaten to nationalize the society. He says he is no Nasser or Ben Bella, but his people are demanding action — all 3,000 of them. There have been sitdown picketing with signs reading "Vive le Prince! Belzebuth dehors!" "Can One Stockholder Defeat One Government?"

Onassis angrily charges that while Monaco was once a haven for millionaires with money to spend, Princess Grace has alienated them by coming out against big-game hunting and similar diversions.

No one yet can tell whether the prince will eventually bring or force Onassis to spend more money on new attractions to draw tourists. Or whether Onassis will wreck everything, as one comedian has put it, by untying his yacht and letting the principality drift away.

Old Team Reunited

So Ike and Monty have appeared together on television without an argument. The two wartime commanders took part in a special trans-Atlantic program via the Early Bird satellite to celebrate VE-day. Their disagreements have been more a result of what they have written than what they have said. Which may be further evidence that the pen is mightier than the sword and that TV will never replace books or newspapers.

Fit One Day, Heart Victim A Day Later

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Some friends at lunch were telling about a man they knew who, only the day before, had gone to his doctor for a check-up. He was pronounced — as the sports writers say —in good health, walked out on the street, and fell dead of a heart attack.

These friends were angry and contemptuous at the diagnosis of "good health." They seemed to feel, as most people do, that medical science can predict the future much more accurately than it really can. But, actually, medicine is a lot better at a diagnosis of the past than at a prognosis of the future.

In the last decade or two, our techniques and instruments have been made immeasurably more precise and refined. Much more can be done than in even the recent past; but prophecy is still the least exact part of science, and instruments are better at telling us what happened than what will happen.

A few years ago, indeed, I recall a report from the California Medical Association on a study of heart disease. It showed that the best available techniques can spot only a small percentage of the seemingly healthy people who are about to develop that trouble.

Among 1000 persons found to be "normal," heart disease developed within 30 months in 57 of them, and potential heart disease in 46 others. At the same time, 30 out of 80 persons who originally showed suspicion of heart disease had no cardiac symptoms after the 30 months. Furthermore, 11 out of 185 persons thought to have cancer in initial test turned out to have normal hearts 2½ years later. The layman is prone to place the same reliance on instruments and "tests" that the primitives placed on beads and burnt chicken bones. An electrocardiagram and fluoroscope shows how's the heart is performing now: it says absolutely nothing about an hour from now, or a day from now. Its field is history not prophecy; it can only look backwards.

This is the element of mystery, part pazsu, in the field of mental illness. Society is shocked and outraged when a charged mental patient repeats an offense; but patients cannot be kept shut away forever, when their symptoms have disappeared, and a discharged patient may suffer a relapse just as a heart patient may have another coronary.

The future is statistical, not individual: we know that so many will die from such-and-such a cause, but not who will be. Medical science may be blamed for many things in life, but not for its shortcomings among others), but not for failing to predict who will still be walking the streets tomorrow morning.

Unhappy Omen

New Statesman

When the Americans first arrived, they used to say that they were going to make the French comfortable, unlearn the French tactics of sitting in the trenches and teach it to get out and fight the enemy in his own backyard. Now they are adopting French tactics themselves by withdrawing to the cities and citadels and leaving the countryside to the enemy. This is the tactic that ended for the French in Diem Bien Phu.

Strange Political Alliance Puts R.C.M.P. in the Hot Seat

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A strange political alliance is getting set in Parliament to give the Royal Canadian Mounted Police the well-known "bum's rush."

And for wildly different reasons. The line-up:

1. Real concern's highly vocal Creditistes who still burn over what they say is the RCMP "outrage" of arresting their gadfly Deputy, Gilles Gregoire, for failing to pay parking and speeding fines.

2. The hard nationalistic core of the Quebec Liberals who privately ponder what they term the "brutality" of the RCMP in handling rowdy Separatists who booed and hurled vile obscenities at Queen Elizabeth in Quebec city last fall.

3. The Quebec Conservatives — "Separatists" among the Liberals and the Quebec Conservative "Rabbits" who "disclosed" only this week the RCMP failure to become instantly bilingual.

4. The private Democrats who always seem to have regarded the RCMP with a singular lack of admiration, tinged with more suspicion and even slight hostility.

The only Parliamentary defenders the RCMP have had so far have been Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker, who informally warned that such dissension and downgrading of the RCMP could destroy this great and historic force, and Social Credit Leader Real Thompson, who has suggested that this is hardly the time to disparage the agents of law and order.

PUBLIC APPEAL

Perhaps the critical voices in Parliament have been unwisely echoing the capital punishment abolitionists; the advocates of a softer line with prisoners; promoters of easier paroles and other assorted reformers who, in the process, have made criminals have seemed more concerned over the law-breaker than over the law he breaks.

It has got to the point where several times in recent months, RCMP Commissioner George B. MacClellan has found it necessary to appeal from public platforms for the law-abiding hearts, to the simple self-interest of their own protection, not to be in such a hurry to consider the welfare of the criminal more that of the police and of society.

The attacks on the RCMP so far in Parliament have been based on some pretty questionable grounds.

Gilles Gregoire assumed that being a Parliamentarian gave him an immunity from traffic and speeding laws, as it does from repeated summonses from the court.

It escaped him that only foreign diplomats — but never the taxpayers, not even those elected to Parliament — have such handy dandy privileges.

And again, Gregoire used what he obviously thought was the effrontery to take him bodily to jail, he arrested and then preferred charges of "brutality."

The "brutality" charges of the Quebec Separatists against the RCMP for the well - deserved bums'-rush police gave them when they tried to insult the Queen were equally cock-eyed.

There was no "brutality" in the fact that the police, skilful, no-injuries-done-sweeping of the hooligan riff-raff from the streets, engineered

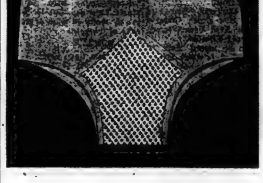
Quinte Area Guide Camp Honors 50th Anniversary

PICTON (Staff) — The Picton Girl Guides held their 50th anniversary ceremonies at the Quinte Area Guide Camp at Wampoos. About 480 Guides and Brownies took part in the ceremony with a large crowd of about the same number were in attendance for the occasion. A number of women who were formerly active in Girl Guide work were present, many of them were from great distances and there were also a large number from the area.



The ceremonies were opened with the unfurling of the flag following which all round cords were presented to two Guides, Gloria Pearson and Lynne Reid. Mrs. G. Wright presented the cords to the girls and Mrs. E. Perry presented two thanks badges to those who were not in the Girl Guide movement but who had done great service for them. Recipients of these awards were Mayor and Mrs. H. J. McFarland and William Strachan of Picton. Mayor and Mrs. McFarland have donated the use of the swimming pool in their home for a number of years for the instruction of swimming. William Strachan has been responsible for conducting the swimming classes and teaching thousands of children how to swim. Following the cord presentations demonstrations were given by 10 of the various troops represented.

Displays by the various troops were also set up in tents around "Wampoos House" and Guides were trying for the Camper's Badge Test in the field.

Tours were arranged through Wampoos House, where a display of Picton Guide History was shown in the Prince Edward Division room. Tours were also conducted to the campsites on the waterfront. Much improvement has been shown in this camp over the past few years and facilities for Guide and Brownie camping are excellent.

Young People Hold Meeting

PICTON (Staff) — About 200 young people also gathered in Picton on the weekend to attend the huge Youth Convention sponsored by the United Pentecostal Church. They came from as far west as Leamington, Hamilton and Toronto and East to Pembroke. This is the third year the conference has been held here and it is grown

Boy Suffers Fractured Ribs In Mishap

PICTON (Staff) — John Fox, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fox of Bloomfield was severely injured about 5.30 p.m. Saturday afternoon when he was struck by a car in front of his home. Driver of the car, John Head of Picton, evidently did not see the child run on to the road as the road is a steep dip at this location. The child apparently ran onto the road to get a ball. The boy was treated at the scene by Dr. K. E. McQueen of Bloomfield and rushed to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital where he received further aid. His injuries included three fractured ribs, multiple skin abrasions about the head and face and possible internal injuries. He was transferred from Picton to Kingston General Hospital later by Bond's Ambulance of Picton.

Divers' Clubs of Ontario Hold Rally at Lakeland

PICTON (Staff) — Many activities heralded the arrival of the first long weekend in Prince Edward County. The divers' rally sponsored by the Ontario Underwater Council, was a great success due to fine weather and an exceptionally large turnout of contestants. In all 12 clubs participated in the weekend events with a total of approximately 50 divers.

On Saturday divers were to inspect the wrecks of the "Florence" off Timber Island or the "Olive Branch", off False Duck Island. Sunday the day was spent competing in a number of competitions held at Long Point (Point Traverse.)

Among Sunday's events at Long Point were a compass course, Skin Divers race, Skin diving treasure hunt, Scuba and boat race, and a skin diving log race.

First place for the compass course were the team of Al Johnson and Ken Warren of the Canadian Sub-Aqua Club, Scarborough. First place for the Skin divers race was Dennis Grant of Petawawa Divers' club.

Sharing honors for first place in the skin diving treasure hunt were Bill Todd, and Jim Simpson of the Manta Ray Divers' Club, of Scarboro. In the Scuba net and bolt race first place team was Bill Petch of Hamilton Buccaneers club, YMCA, Hamilton, and Bud Ackerman of the Canadian sportsmen club of Scarboro, Ont.

The winning team of four contestants for the skin diving log race were Bob Hobson of Peterborough, Dennis Grant, Petawawa, Ont. and Jerry Conteil and Maurice Titmus, both of Peterborough.

According to Al Hocking, vice president in charge of the competitions, this is one of the largest outdoor outing the Ontario Underwater Council has in the course of the year. It is made possible, he said, through the extensive co-operation of the two prominent diving clubs in the area, the Flying Frogmen of Trenton and Quinte Aqua Divers' Club of Belleville. This is the third consecutive year the events have been held in Prince Edward County and plans are being made to hold further rallies here.

Divers brought their families with them for the weekend of events and the Lakeland Lodge near the Outlet beach was crowded to capacity. Many of the contestants brought camping equipment and stayed at the Outlet Park campsites. Approximately 300 persons in all, crowded the area for the events, which lasted until late Sunday afternoon.

Following the day's activities at Long Point, participants returned to Lakeland Lodge with their families for the presentation of prizes and trophies. The club winning the most points in all of the events was Canadian Sub-Aqua of Scarborough, with a total of 56 points. The trophy presented by Al Hocking was received on behalf of the club by Al Johnson and Ken Warren.

If you're asking yourself can I afford it?

This message might provide a positive answer.

If a major purchase costs more than you want to spend, the Bank of Montreal Family Finance Plan might well be the difference between having it to enjoy and going without.

YOU CAN PURCHASE WHAT YOU WANT, WHEN YOU WANT IT.

Do you have your eye on a new automobile? A new washing machine? A new TV set? Or a new wardrobe for the family? The Bank of Montreal Family Finance Plan enables you to take care of all your credit needs without putting a heavy strain on your pay-cheque. This simple, comprehensive plan is the modern, economical way to buy the things you want, when you want them. And you enjoy them as you repay the loan arranged to suit your needs.

YOU CAN BRING ALL YOUR CREDIT NEEDS UNDER ONE ROOF.

Medical and dental expenses. Fuel and tax bills. Insurance and mortgage payments. Tuition fees for college. Emergencies and recurring commitments sometimes take quite a bite out of your budget. The B of M Family Finance Plan puts cash in your hands to help you meet these and other eventualities.

YOU CAN BORROW UP TO $3500.

It's surprising how many people don't know you can walk into any branch of the Bank of Montreal and arrange a large personal loan. Depending on your income, you can obtain up to $3500, or even more, and arrange the payments to avoid a strain on your income.

YOU CAN TAKE UP TO THREE YEARS TO REPAY YOUR LOW-COST, LIFE-INSURED LOAN.

When you take advantage of the B of M Family Finance Plan, you can repay your loan in regular monthly payments geared to your salary — and take as long as three years. A B of M loan saves you money on two counts: The interest is low, and you can take advantage of cash prices for your purchases. All FFP loans are automatically life-insured, an important feature that protects your family.

You can learn all about the Family Finance Plan from the manager of your nearest B of M branch. See him today. And be sure to ask him for the free booklet: "How to Live on Your Income and Enjoy It".

Capacity Crowd Attends 1965 Nurses' Graduation Exercises Held in Belleville Collegiate

By RETA LAWRENCE

Adventures into the depths of human tragedy and up to the soaring pinnacles of human joy, through three years of difficult and exact training, once again produced a beautiful and responsible graduating class from Belleville General Hospital's School of Nursing, on Monday evening.

The stage of Belleville Collegiate Auditorium never presents a more pleasing and colorful cast than at the Nurses' graduation. This year 43 young ladies and one handsome young gentleman took their places to receive diplomas, awards and the admiration of a capacity audience of friends and relatives. Accompanied by organist, Mrs. S. Alec Gordon, and the flashes from hundreds of cameras, the graduates, in their gleaming white uniforms and carrying bouquets of red roses, proudly took their places, each aglow with the realization of having successfully completed the arduous preparation and of having finally reached the goal for which they have been striving.

Rev. N. W. Hutchison pronounced the invocation.

Chairman for the program was Mr. A. H. Haig, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Hospital.

OFFERS CONGRATULATIONS

In his remarks Mr. Haig offered congratulations to each graduate on behalf of the Board, for their dedication and high efforts in one of God's noblest professions. He also outlined extensive plans for enlargement of the hospital, changes in administration and closer relationship between all departments.

On completion of work now underway, Belleville General Hospital's capacity will be increased by fifty percent and improvement in basic facilities and services will be such that the hospital will be excelled by no other.

The chairman also expressed regret that Miss D. H. Smith and Miss M. L. Kilpatrick are leaving the hospital for the purpose of continuing their education.

Greetings to the graduating class were brought by His Worship, Mayor J. R. Ellis, on behalf of the City of Belleville; by Dr. J. R. Richard, President of the Medical Staff Association; by Mrs. W. G. Harvey on behalf of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary and by Miss D. H. Smith, Director of Nursing.

Miss Smith cited the fact that the Nurses' Training School at Belleville General Hospital was one of the earliest set up under the Florence Nightingale System. After commending the students for their accomplishments of the past three years, she wished them lives full of health, good fortune and much joy.

GUEST SPEAKER

Warden F. Beckett introduced Monsignor L. A. Wemple, Ph. L., who gave the graduation address.

The Rt. Rev. L. A. Wemple, D.D., was born in Chicago but moved to Sarnia, at the age of seven. His education was acquired at Catholic Elementary Schools, Sarnia Collegiate Institute, Assumption College, Western University and St. Peter's Seminary in London.

Monsignor Wemple chose as his topic, "Human Rights and Nurses." He encompassed all phases of civil and human rights from every angle and concluded with the following articles from the Declaration of Human Rights:

1. Everyone has the right to life, liberty, and security of person.

2. Men and women of full age, without any limitation due to race, nationality or religion, have the right to marry and found a family.

3. Everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion.

Mr. Haig thanked the speaker for his enlightening remarks.

During the evening the audience was favored with a selection by the School of Nursing Choir under the direction of Mrs. D. Reilly, as well as two well chosen numbers by Dr. H. F. Williamson.

Awards were:

Names of graduating class are as follows:

Joan Brake, Gravenhurst; Gail Brick, Campbellford; Doreen Broadworth, Bonarlaw; Isabel Broadworth, Madoc; Elizabeth Cameron, Perth; Enid Cooper, Belleville; Carol Denyes, Hallaway; Donna Dereveno, Port Hope; Maria Anna Drake, Burlington; Beverley Farrow, Brighton; Shirley Floud, Stirling; Jane Foster, Kendall; Joan Fraser, Stirlin; Carol Gibson, Euglehart; Diane Gill, Trenton; Grace Graham, Port Hope; Elaine Halvorsen, Trenton; Sandra Hauraney, Brockville; Helen Hiltner, Keene; Jean Holland, Crookston; Ruth Hunter, Sault Ste. Marie.

Ruth Ingram, Hilton; Judith Jeffrey, Tweed; Patricia Lemoire, Trenton; Brenda Lightle, Cobourg; Elaine Lindenfield, Stirling; Lynda Longden, Brighton; Jane Mawby, Belleville; Carol Milligan, Picton; Audrey Mounzney, Belleville; Carolyne McBride, Port Hope; Lynda McCredie, Campbellford; Agnes McKeown, Campbellford; Carol Nelson, Codrington; Joy Randal, Cobourg; David Schleger, Trenton; Sharon Schleger, Trenton; Judith Sim, Belleville; Mary Simpson, Belleville; Maureen Smith, Weston; Margrit Uebele, Oshawa; Karen Wickens, Frankford; Doris Woods, Thomasburg, and Vera Youker, Trenton.

Following graduation exercises a reception was held in Education Hall by the Board of Governors for the Graduating Class and their families and friends.

Miss Cameron Valedictorian At Graduation

Miss Elizabeth Cameron delivered the Valedictory Address for her class, after which she dedicated the 1965 edition of "The Torch," to Mrs. Shirley Ackerman and Dr. Robert Allore.

The following is Miss Cameron's address:

"Mr. Chairman, Honored Guests, Miss Smith, Parents, Teachers, Head Nurses, Supervisors, and Friends:

This is indeed both an honor and a privilege for me to speak to you tonight on behalf of the Graduating Class of 1965. I would like to thank my Fellow Classmates for this privilege.

You see us here tonight, for the most part, still in disbelief that our Graduation night has arrived. When we came in training, almost three years ago this was but a dream.

RECALLS TRAINING

First of all, I would like to recall our years of training, then I would like to look forward to the future.

On September 10th, 1962, Mary Ritchie Hall and Education Hall became our home for the next few years. When Miss Smith first spoke to us she told us that the next three years wouldn't be easy and that a nurse is not, as most people visualize, "a dream in white floating down the corridor," but rather a down-to-earth, hard working person. However, her rewards are rich and fulfilling for a job well done. As the weeks and months went on we found this to be quite true.

We have gone through our training with never a dull moment. Each day held its own surprises—some were good, others were bad, but the bad merely made us more appreciative of the good.

PASS QUICKLY

The past three years have passed quickly, sometimes too quickly. In this time we have grown from apprehensive junior student nurses to more mature professional women. We have seen wonder of birth and the mystery of death, through these experiences we have grown closer to God and to our fellowmen, and we hope we are better able to serve both.

Tonight we have reached our first goal as professional people. From here we will set new goals for ourselves. Having attained these goals, we will set even more difficult ones. This, we hope, will mould us into nurses better equipped to cope with a new frontier in nursing and with a confused and restless world.

Having become graduate nurses, we have laid merely the foundation of our careers and of our futures. This opens another door and beyond this door we find numerous paths which we may pursue. Which ever path we choose to follow we go with the common aim — "To help man in his illness and in his distress."

There are many people to whom we are indebted.

To you, Miss Smith, as you leave Belleville General Hospital this year, our prayers and our good wishes for continued success and happiness go with you. We would like to thank you for your sound and unfaltering leadership.

To our teachers — may we thank you for your guidance, your understanding, your support, your expressions of confidence in us when we were discouraged, and the interest you have shown in us throughout our training.

To the doctors — we thank you for your teaching, for the knowledge gained from that teaching, and for your seemingly unending patience.

To the graduate nurses of previous years — we wish to thank you for making this such a fine profession for us to follow.

To our house mothers — how can we really thank you? You gave us a home away from home. You were always there when we needed sound advice, and you always had a shoulder for us to cry on.

To the future graduating classes — we wish success and happiness. May your graduation hold as much joy for you as ours has for us.

Last, but most especially, to our parents — your prayers, your guidance, your faith in us, and your encouraging words have sustained us through these years. We hope that you will always be as proud of us as you are tonight. We want you to know that we are just as proud of you as you are of us. Thank you Mom and Dad.

BECOMES A MEMORY

As this night quickly draws to a close and this very happy week becomes a memory, we have mixed emotions. This will be the last time that all of us will ever be together as a class. In the past three years we have grown close, both individually and as a class. Many friendships have been made, and most of these friendships will be life-long. Very soon now we will be saying our farewells. Years will spread us far apart, but our memories of Belleville General Hospital, of our School of Nursing, of our time shared together as a class, and of this wonderful year 1965, will serve to bind us together forever. We are happy for one another's success and for the invaluable experiences shared throughout our training.

Fellow Classmates, I would like to close with this thought. As we embark upon the life of the Graduate Nurse, let us remember the past with pride and with a feeling of accomplishment; let us face the present with courage, and then let us look forward to the future with faith, faith in God and in our chosen profession; and let us keep our minds ever alert for the new ideas and greater opportunities.

Ann Landers

Girl Needs Self-respect To Capture Men's Respect

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our daughter is 22. She is engaged to a young man we do not know at all well. This girl has finished college and has always shown good judgment — except in the selection of her fiance.

ANN LANDERS

The young man has an apartment in a bad section of town. He frequently phones our daughter at night and asks her to come to his place. She does dash out the door whenever he calls and never returns before midnight — always alone.

My husband and I believe he should not ask her to come across town at night, into a bad neighborhood, and then allow her to go home alone.

Are we old-fashioned? Should we speak up or remain silent? — B. CAL.

DEAR B. — You aren't old-fashioned, you're just too late. Your daughter didn't get this way overnight. It's obvious that she is so hungry for male attention that she will do anything to get it.

As parents you have an obligation to speak up. Having spoken up, say no more. A girl 22 must (and probably will) make her own decision about when and where she will see her fiance.

A young man cannot respect a girl who has no self-respect. He demeans her by asking her to come to his place. And she degrades herself by caving in to his selfish demands.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Will you kindly devote a little space to the proper dress for women who work in offices? It would be a fational service. At this moment I am looking at two girls who appear to be wearing shortened formals. One dress is cut so low that when the office boy drops the mail on her desk he looks at the ceiling.

Another dame is decked out in a sweater decorated with red and green sequins. I practically go blind when the sun hits her.

The girl behind me is wearing a black lace cocktail dress on which she has sewn white collars and cuffs. The black patent leather belt matches her shoes.

DEAR VIEW — Beehives are fine if you happen to have bees. In an office — no. The same goes for sequins, satin and lace dresses, and those low-cut numbers.

Girls who wear fussy, party-type outfits to work look as if they slept away from home the night before and came straight to work from the party.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am married to a wonderful guy. He is 21. I am 18.

My parents didn't want me to get married but I hated school and wasn't learning anything. My mind was on Tony all the time. It seemed stupid to try to be a student when I just wanted to be Tony's wife.

Whenever I mentioned marriage my mother went through the ceiling. One day I decided to tell her I was pregnant so she'd have to let me get married.

My plan worked but now I'm afraid I outsmarted myself. Tony and I have been married three months and I am still not pregnant. According to what I told my Mother I should be five months along. She is worried because I'm so thin and she keeps asking me why I haven't gained weight.

If I tell her the truth can she have the marriage annulled? — GIRL WHO HAD TO LIE.

DEAR GIRL — Tell your mother the truth — and the sooner the better. The age of consent and laws bearing on annulment vary from state to state. See a lawyer.

WEDDING

THOMPSON — WHITTON

DESERONTO — The Presbyterian Church of the Redeemer, Deseronto, was the scene of a lovely wedding on Saturday, May 15 at 1 p.m. when Donna Jean Whitton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Whitton was united in marriage to David Alexander Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Thompson, Napanee.

Reverend D. G. Morton officiated at the ceremony before baskets of pale blue chrysanthemums and white gladiolas. White satin bows decorated the guest pews.

Mrs. Francis Walker, church organist, played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Mabel Moore.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a cocktail length bridal gown of white nylon sheer and rayon lace blended, over taffeta. The bodice was styled with a scoop neckline and a soft bow at the back waistline. The sleeves were long flip-point with buttons at the wrist. She carried a beautiful bouquet of red roses.

Miss Peggy Fox, Fredericton, N.B., cousin of the bride, and Miss Linda Thompson, Napanee, sister of the groom, were the bride's attendant, and were identically attired in cocktail length powder blue nylon sheer over taffeta gowns with a scoop neckline and bouffant skirt.

Mr. Garnet Thompson, Deseronto was groomsman while Mr. Ronald Sterling, Centreville, cousin of the groom and Mr. Gary Whitton, Deseronto, brother of the bride, were the ushers.

A reception was held at Dawson's Motel where the bride's mother greeted the guests dressed in a two piece blue linen dress. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a pink two piece ensemble.

For the wedding trip to the northern parts of New York State the bride chose a three piece suit of turquoise wool boucle. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will live in Napanee.

Out of town guests were present from Napanee, Centreville, Roblin, Kingston, Fernleigh, Ottawa, Belleville, Plevna and Selby.

WILL BE CHIEF RABBI

JERUSALEM (Reuters)—Dr. Jacob Herzog, 44-year-old senior Israeli foreign ministry official, accepted nomination Monday as next chief rabbi of Britain and the Commonwealth.

POPULAR GOURMET MENU

The three items I have made to give to you today will seem unrelated, but if you are lucky enough to be within driving distance of Brantford, Ontario and attended Clanhyrst Arts Council Antique Show and Sale, you will have seen them on their gourmet menu and quite possibly have tasted them too.

They are a spinach casserole, an orange and onion salad and an old-fashioned pudding called Grandmere (Fairchild's) Dessert. I made them all and served them to our guests over the past weekend.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Barbecued Pork Chops; Buttered Noodles; Creamed Shredded New Cabbage; Celery Hearts; Rhubarb Pie; White Cream Cheese; Coffee.

SPINACH CASSEROLE (easy — serves 5):

3 lbs. spinach, 1 can undiluted cream of mushroom soup, one 8-oz. package frozen French fried onion rings.

Wash spinach, drain, and cook, covered, in water which clings to leaves, until just limp and still bright green. Drain and chop. Turn into shallow large casserole. Spoon the undiluted cream of mushroom soup evenly over. Cover top with frozen French fried onion rings. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes. The soup combines with the spinach and forms a perfect blend. Popular.

ORANGE AND ONION SALAD (serves 4 or 5):

¼ lb. slices. Overlap, alternately onion and orange slices on salad plates or wooden salad bowls. Mix together remaining ingredients. Shake well and drizzle over salad. This is a popular salad in California but you should make sure your your guests like raw onion.

GRANDMERE (FAIRCHILD'S) DESSERT (quick and easy):

2 eggs, 1 cup fruit (or granulated) sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt (my addition), 1 cup chopped walnuts, 1 cup chopped stoned dates.

Into a mixing bowl put eggs, sugar, flour, baking powder and salt and beat, preferably in electric beater, until smooth. Stir in chopped nuts and chopped dates. (I chopped my nuts in the blender in 15 seconds.) Pour into buttered shallow baking dish. (I used a pyrex pie plate.) Stand in larger pan containing ¼" warm water. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes (no longer). Serve warm or cold.

I gave our crowd a choice of pouring cream, whipped cream or French vanilla ice cream to serve with this rich pudding. One beloved skinny young man tried and loved them all.

PACEMAKER SAVES LIFE — Nurse Gwen Jeffery displays a pacemaker, an electronic device attached to the heart of infant Lisa Jane Parker of Georgetown, P.E.I. The pacemaker, installed by surgeons at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto when Lisa was nine days old, shocks the heart into beating a life-giving rate. In Lisa's case the rate was only 30 beats a minute, compared to the normal of 110 to 120. (CP Photo)

HOLE PLUGGED IN HEART — Sterling Hamilton, 9, of Newcastle, N.B., was born with a complex heart defect known as the tetralogy of Fallot. The condition left him without energy and too fragile even to go to school. This year he successfully underwent an operation at the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto which involved patching a hole between the ventricles with teflon and clearing an obstruction into the pulmonary artery. Tiny Baby Girl, Little Boy Given New Life At Unit for Sick Kids

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Lisa Jane Parker, a pretty baby from Georgetown, P.E.I., and Sterling Hamilton, a dark-eyed New Brunswick farm boy, have little in common but a date and a doctor.

Lisa's Island home is 200 miles from the farm where Sterling lives outside Newcastle, N.B. Neither knows the other exists.

But on Thursday, March 25, 1965, on the second floor of the north wing of the Hospital for Sick Children, surgeon George A. Trusler and a medical team of dozens gave Lisa and Sterling life.

Lisa, then nine days old, was flown from Charlottetown that day to have an electric pacemaker attached to her faltering heart. Sterling, nine years old, underwent open - heart surgery the same day to correct a defect that had made him an invalid since birth.

As dramatic as the day was for Lisa and Sterling, it was unremarkable for the staff of the cardiac unit at Sick Kids. Cardiac surgeons Trusler and William T. Mustard and their resident assistants attract juveniles with heart trouble from across Canada, the United States and elsewhere.

SURGERY COMPLEX

Although many of the operations are painstakingly complex—Sterling's took six hours—the Trusler-Mustard team performs a dozen or more a week.

In the front line are a group of heart physicians under Dr. John Keith who can diagnose the problem in a child's heart with a stethoscope and refined training that can detect which of several valves is damaged, precisely where a heart wall is malformed.

Behind the surgeons is the intensive-care recovery unit, an often-crowded ward where each patient is watched around the clock by two, sometimes three, specially-trained nurses and a battery of electronic watchdogs.

The rapidity of the progress in medicine is emphasized in the cases of Lisa Jane Parker and Sterling Hamilton.

Lisa, born March 16 to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parker, had a heart rate of about 30 beats per minute compared with a normal rate of 110 to 120. Charlottetown pediatrician Ross Parker, no relation to Lisa, decided she should be flown to Sick Kids, the hospital where he trained.

ATTACHED PACEMAKER

By the time she arrived she had great difficulty breathing and was suffering pain. When ordinary measures failed to help, Dr. Trusler opened the child's chest and attached two wires directly to the heart muscle. At the other end of the wires is the battery-charged pacemaker, a box the size of two cigarette packages that shocks the heart to beat at a life-giving rate.

If Lisa does not develop an adequate heart rate naturally, the pacemaker will be a permanent part of her anatomy—patched to the outside of her body until she is big enough to get a miniature replacement fixed permanently inside her chest. Many children are now living healthy, happy lives with permanent pacemakers.

About the time that Sterling Hamilton was born with a complex heart defect known as the tetralogy of Fallot, Dr. Walton C. Lillehei was developing an experimental surgical technique in Minneapolis for total correction of the tetralogy.

When Sterling was two, unable to sustain normal exertion and blue around the fingers, lips, Dr. Mustard began using the Lillehei technique in Toronto.

Sterling's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton, took him to Moncton to a specialist, but the Lillehei operation was new and unknown and the boy was in no immediate danger. However, Sterling was unable to play with his three brothers and two sisters and when he reached school age he was too fragile to make the daily journey a mile and back.

GOT HELP

Eventually, with help from the crippled children's society in Fredericton and on the advice of public health nurses, Sterling was brought to Toronto last summer for diagnosis.

He returned in March for surgery.

The operation, which involved patching a hole between the heart ventricles with teflon and clearing an obstruction into the pulmonary artery, was a success. The blueness is gone.

The Lillehei operation is one of several open-heart operations in use for the correction of congenital heart problems. One, developed at the Hospital for Sick Children and bearing Dr. Mustard's name, has been used there for less than two years but now is in use around the world.

Designed to correct a defect in which the aorta and pulmonary arteries are transposed, the Mustard technique involves building a nylon baffle inside the heart to redirect the blood flow. Infants born with the trouble rarely survived the first year of life but now are being saved.

Dr. Mustard is now working, with laboratory dogs, on a method of correcting another congenital heart defect known as tricuspid atresia in which a valve is abnormally small and the right side of the heart is stunted.

"We'll beat it," the surgeon says, "or if we don't somebody else will. Then we'll have most of the congenital cardiac problems licked."

PRIVATE SCREENING

Dear Susanna: The hospital near where we live was being refurbished and I was able to buy three of their fold i n g screens for a dollar each. We have made such good and varied use of them we wonder why more people don't try to pick up a second hand screen or two — you can buy them with two or more folds, depending on the uses for which they will be required.

Our eldest son took one for his bachelor apartment. He painted the wooden framework black and gold and used p r e pasted wallpaper in an exotic oriental design on the panels to tie in with the Chinese motif in his bachelor apartment. It now stands at one end of the large living room as the outside wall of a three cornered dressing area.

Our daughter has covered one in chintz for her bed sliting room and is using it to conceal a sewing and hobby area where her table is so often cluttered with cuttings or with bits and pieces of a project on which she is working.

The lovely one we kept for ourselves has been decorated with a beautiful soft green mural on both sides and is placed in front of our large picture window at times when we wish a little more privacy, but don't want to block out the light by drawing the drapes. — Mrs. H. Trotter

For a modern look cover a screen in sackcloth, or one embroidered in vivid colors is magnificent. I even know where there is one covered in genuine leopard skin. ARRUMPH! — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: My small hint for your readers is that when measuring honey, syrup or molasses, nothing will be wasted and these products will be easier to work with if the measuring spoon and glass cup are greased first or are rinsed in cold water. —Mrs. L. Bellamy

Successful Living

Wedding Guest Complains About Waiting for Photos

DEAR DORIS — I have a pet gripe about weddings, and that is that far too much time is taken for taking pictures.

One wedding reception I went to was at a large inn. We drove there after the ceremony, and were kept standing outside in the hot sun (one hundred of us) for forty minutes while photographs of the wedding party were being taken inside.

DORIS CLARK

At another one, an evening wedding, we waited in a line outside a country club in dressy dinner clothes, with never a chair to sit on. They must have taken hundreds of pictures while we shifted from foot to foot and did our best to retain our company manners.

We waked an hour and ten minutes before the doors were opened; we were received with many smiles but no apologies or even awareness of our discomfort.

There must be an easier way. — DISGRUNTLED.

DEAR DISGRUNTLED — It shouldn't happen to a dog. Thing is, the bride should be in control. Should be aware that she and her mother are hostessing the most important event in their young lives. Guests deserve better treatment.

Either she has the photographer take pictures ahead of the ceremony, or he comes to the reception for candid shots during proceedings — usually the most interesting ones in the book.

Or if there must be a long succession of posed group pictures, she should notify guests that the reception will be held two hours later than the ceremony.

DEAR DORIS — I am 19 years of age. Only thing is that my friends keep telling me that it's time I settled down. (It means get married.)

They also say I might be an old maid and this bothers me. I go out with lots of boys but after a couple of dates I get to hate them. Tell me, will I find my man ever? — UNHAPPY.

DEAR UNHAPPY — They are dead wrong. This foolish urgency for "settling down" brings tragic consequences. The happiest marriages happen after girl and boy reach 21. Tell your friends you intend to enjoy your youth and your dates. And do just that. Stop worrying about every date being perfect.

Your man will find you, never fear.

DEAR DORIS — B.M.M.J. was worried about the ingredients of a commercial topping. Here's one she can make herself: Combine one-third cup each of powdered skim milk and ice cold water and whip to soft peaks. Add a few drops of lemon juice and whip until stiff. Add sugar to taste, and serve immediately. — HELPING.

DEAR HELPING — Thank you. Others who must avoid the fat in whipped cream will also be grateful.

It's three inches taller than a Cadillac.

We didn't believe it, either.

So we measured a Cadillac sedan twice to make sure. And we are three inches taller.

Which is nothing for a VW owner to get swell-headed about.

But even if he did, he'd still have plenty of room for his hat.

From where a lot of people sit, the Volkswagen has always been a roomy car.

It has as much legroom in front as most of the big cars you see around.

And for a very simple reason.

We put the engine well out of the way in the back of a VW.

Of course, we thought of more than your head and legs when we built the Volkswagen.

That's why the two front bucket seats in a VW adjust forwards and backwards. And that's why the seat backs can even be moved to three different positions.

Which goes to show that you don't always have to be sitting in the lap of luxury to be comfortable.

Time Study

(Written after touring the Belleville City Hall Clock-Tower, built 1872 — with the Hastings County Historical Society, evening of Monday May 17, 1965).

Behind the hour and minute-hand,
In the city-hall clock-tower
Appeared a glimpse of an unknown land,
Whose spell possessed the power
To move the time ahead or back
Along an unpredestined track.

Surveying the faces of the clock
Spotlighted from within,
And hearing the mechanisms "tock"
As each new notch they win
(There seemed to be some argument
Whether the seconds came or went)

Behind the face of Time I find
A hint of variation
And four dimensions of a kind
To broadcast to the nation!
The four clock-faces synchronize
Pointing this message to the skies!

Golden Jubilee of WIs Celebrated in Britain

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — More than 500,000 women are celebrating the golden jubilee in Britain of the Women's Institute, a society for rural friendship and education that originated in Canada.

The National Federation of Women's Institutes here began its birthday party when the Duchess of Gloucester, the Queen's aunt, opened an exhibition in London on "the country woman today."

Queen Mother Elizabeth, like the other female members of the Royal Family a WI member, will attend the first day of the British federation's annual meeting at Royal Albert Hall today.

Celebrations reach a climax next Monday when representatives of each of the 8,717 British institutes will attend a garden party given by the Queen at Buckingham Palace.

The first Women's Institute was founded in 1897 at Stoney Creek, Ont., by Adelaide Hoodless, who conceived the idea of a society of mutual help and instruction among isolated farm wives.

STARTED IN 1915

The WI came to Britain in 1915 when a group was organized in the Welsh community that claims the longest name in the world at 58 letters—Llanfair PG for short.

Six more institutes were formed in Britain in the following six months and three years later there were 900 clubs on the island. Membership grew by 10,000 last year.

The chairman of the British WI Federation is Gabrielle Pike, a magistrate who lives in the Berkshire hamlet of Cothill, where her husband George is headmaster of a boys' school.

Mrs. Pike, a great-great-granddaughter of the Quaker prison reformer, Elizabeth Fry, is intent on some reforms herself, particularly in co-ordinating and streamlining some WI work, such as working with the mentally-ill patients and providing meals for spastic children.

One reform just adopted was the appointment of a fulltime publicity officer, one of whose tasks will be a campaign to get WI correspondents to sharpen up reports that appear regularly in scores of rural British weeklies.

One such report, published during the Second World War, is still remembered. It began by naming who presided and who read the minutes, ran on with who gave the "interesting talk" and who poured tea. It concluded with the paragraph:

"Unfortunately the meeting had to end early because a German fighter sprayed bullets through the roof of the village hall, killing the president."

Astronaut May Go Completely Into Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —Astronaut Edward White is practising to emerge completely into space during the four-day Gemini flight he and James McDivitt are to make next week, reliable sources reported Monday night.

Certain problems must be worked out, but the prospects appear good that the attempt will be made, the sources said. The flight is scheduled to start June 3.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has said only that there is a possibility White will open his hatch and poke his upper torso into space without emerging. When asked about the report that White would leave the Gemini IV spacecraft, space agency officials said only that no decision has been made on extra-vehicular activity.

The sources, close to the Gemini program, said it was decided recently that as long as White was going to open his hatch, he might as well go all the way—as Russian cosmonaut Alexei Leonov did March 18.

The decision on whether to take a space stroll will be entirely up to White after he has stuck his head out and assessed the situation, the sources said.

The annual Library Tag Day will be held on Saturday, May 29th, the proceeds of which will be used to purchase new books.

PLAN BY-PASS

Clarke T. Rollins has been advised by the Minister of Highways that tenders for the Madoc by-pass on No. 7 Highway have been called from May 19 and the closing date for awarding the contract will be on June 23rd. The by-pass will start 1.6 miles west of Madoc village and will be 3.09 miles long. The contract will be for grading, drainage and structures, including Deer Creek bridge and Madoc creek.

The Lightfoot Construction Company is still working on the sewage and drainage system along St. Lawrence and Russell Streets.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hart have returned home after visiting his sister in Victoria, B.C.

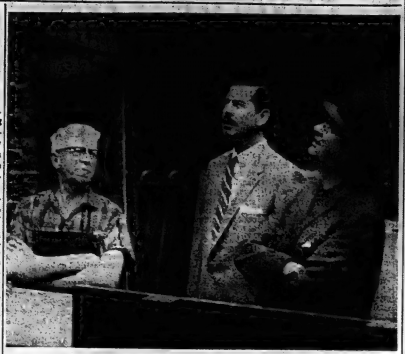
Two Chutists Drown in Cranson Lake

DEMERS CENTRE, Que. (CP)—Two men participating in a parachute jumping exercise were drowned Saturday when they landed in Cranson Lake three miles east of here and five miles north of Pembroke.

They were Lieut. John Carson, 24, of Camp Valcartier, Que., and Leo Straus of Waterloo, Ont.

Simon W. Martin, an official of the Parachute Club of Canada, was jump-master for the exercise and also took part in the jump. He said the men leapt from an aircraft donated to a Montreal parachute club.

The men were practising for the Canadian parachuting championships scheduled for September near Pembroke.



ONE RESCUED

A third jumper on the nine-man team that bailed out at about 10,000 feet also fell into the lake but was rescued. Allan Jay 23, of Wilbwdale, Ont., was able to release his parachute and free himself of some 40 pounds of equipment.

The other six jumpers landed at the small airport that was the target of the exercise, despite gusty winds.

A spokesman for the parachutists said all the men were highly-experienced jumpers and had learned how to descend safely into water.

A loud hailer had been used to warn the three they were going to land in water. A boat that started for the trio faltered temporarily with engine trouble. By the time it reached the scene the crew was able to grab the harness worn by Straus, 27 but the jumper was dead.

SHOWING KEEN INTEREST in the move are press foreman Larmer Mason and newspaper publishers Myles Morton and Dr. Gerald Morton.

Festival Adjudicator Says Job to Be Fair, Not Kind

BROCKVILLE (CP) — "My job is not to be kind, but to be fair."

With those words, the first Canadian to adjudicate the Dominion Drama Festival in 18 years began his week-long task of judging productions by seven amateur theatre companies from across Canada.

Guy Beauline, 43, is director of theatre for the ministry of culture in Quebec. He comes to his task after more than 30 years of experience in almost every phase of theatre in Canada and Europe.

Even so, he confessed as he began his adjudication of the first production, Brendan Behan's The Hostage by Lakeside Theatre Productions of Ottawa, that he still got butterflies.

"I am nervous. I am just as nervous and tense as the actors who are back stage waiting to hear my remarks," he told the opening night audience of close to 1,000 people at the Brockville civic auditorium.

With that off his chest, he gave a detailed criticism of the Ottawa production which he felt did not fulfil the author's intentions.

Director Joe O'Brien's interpretation of the boisterous Irish play was "a bit confused."

In many places, the comedy was too broad,' and thus the cast missed the deeper, more cynical moments of the play.

Mr. Beauline said the play had a great many comical moments, but there were also deeper moments which the cast failed to emphasize.

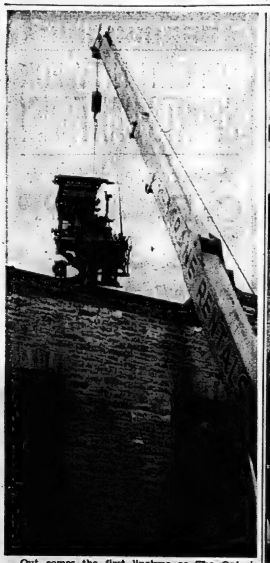
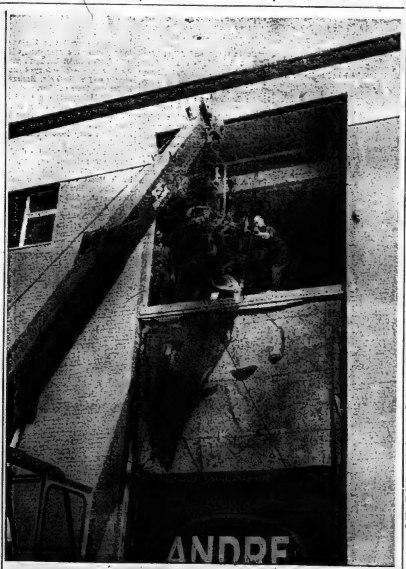
Robbers Set Trap for Police



TORONTO (CP) — A bomb police believe was meant for them was found early today shortly after an explosion destroyed a bank depository in a suburban Port Credit shopping plaza.

Police said burglars were apparently frightened off by an alarm that was tripped when the first bomb exploded in a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.



The second bomb, a piece of piping containing nitro-cellulose and wired to a six-volt battery, was found near the rear door of the building.

Juvenile Gang Fights Firemen

TORONTO (CP) — A gang of juveniles set a fire in downtown Stanley Park Monday night, then attacked Toronto firefighters who came to put it out, stealing equipment from the fire truck and jeering police.

About 700 persons, including many adults, stood by while the youths set fire to pieces of fencing, old mattresses and other trash by tossing gasoline filled bottles into the pile.

When firemen arrived, they were attacked by the youths, who pelted some firemen in the ground in a tug-of-war for the hoses.

About 25 policemen were brought in to disperse onlookers who stood on street corners and in the park, booing and jeering as police took one youth into custody.

Michael Rende, 18, who lives near the park, said it was an annual event on Victoria Day to start a fire in Stanley Park.

Firemen were called to at least 200 small blazes in the city during the night.

SPORTS SLICES

The Great Wind from Louisville who has been gusting his hamlike fists down to hurricane day meets the sullen, brooding giant, Sonny Liston from Philadelphia tonight in the sweet clean Maine air of Lewiston.

In the small town of the Maine city that seats 3,500 (6,000 when they cram 'em in) the small corner of the hall means and the beer, Cassius Clay, the Mouth of All of the Black Muslims, puts one version of the heavyweight championship crown on the line.

Another version that puts the bauble on the pate of one Ernie Terrell, mad the self-acclaimed "I'm the Greatest" for a million quarter dollars for alleged grand larceny of the tarnished tiara. It was drained out.

Boxing's hangers-on, the experts, the press and those who feel like tossing $150 into the ticket kitty to see the Durbrows Brawley and the "Old Bear" do the re-run, will crowd the Lewiston amphitheatre.

Lewiston's burghers with the exception of the municipal alibi (courtesy of the management) will figuratively be on the outside "looking in."

The tab of $50 to $150 even if there was room, is a little high for the average Lewistonite. Why spend that much when they can go to the local movie and get their laughs from a real comedy?

That may be stretching a point, for if you can believe the training camps' ballyhoo, the hassle may turn out to be quite a brawl after all.

It may be coincidence or cockiness, but Clay has tempered his former psychological warfare trumpeted through his tonsil's to insult dogerel, which may or may not have had effect on former opponents.

He did not, as in former acts, have to build the "boone" through the colorful cacophony of his vocal chords. The promotorial powers-that-be have seen to that.

Through the simple expedient of airing the youbit-me and Fil-bit-yee festival via closed circuit television, it is expected the general exthequer will be enriched by four million per men by the time the dreamy Maine moon sinks over Lewiston.

The "live" take at the northern Maine hideaway is comparatively peanuts. Who cares?

But the Bigmouth braggadocio must live up to something of his colorful past. If you note he has not come out in public with his cockeyed crown. He has confined them to visiting camp habitues.

The other night with three co-champions watching his train, (Joe Louis, Jersey Joe Walcott and James J. Braddock, colorful remindsers of the days before legal detergents were called in to sweep off the muck) he spun a favorite record.

He taunted Louis, trying to get an admission from Joe that he was the "fastest heavyweight" afloat. Aging Joe, one of the best, didn't go for the breese. Joe has his choice in other sports pages.

On the other side of the picture, Sonny Liston, fighting a conviction that he brought boxing to its gutter level, is grimly determined to wipe out his past, an alleged "fix" of the first Clay encounter and the allegations in some quarters, that he is not a qualified champion.

I will buy that. I believe Sonny Liston, despite the fact he gave up his title from a stool, is a changed man. I think Liston, like Floyd Patterson, can retire on what honors he left by winning this battle in the ring.

Stories of armed men converging on Lewiston for the alleged purpose of revenge for the murder of 4 former Black Muslim have focussed some attention on the fight. There will be more cops at ringside tonight than at the annual New York St. Patrick's Day parade.

Be that as it may. I don't think they will be around after the fifth or sixth round. By that time I believe Liston will be hugging his second world heavyweight crown and Clay will be taking some solace out of the fact that his hash account has been fattened by a million or so iron men.

Liston 13-10 Favorite Over Cassius

By MURRAY ROSE

LEWISTON, Me. (AP)—In a television studio named the central Maine Youth Centre, heavyweight champion Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston will meet again tonight in a 15-round title fight which will be telecast live to millions in North America and Europe.

Reports out there may be an attempt on Clay's life by followers of the sinis black nationalist leader Malcolm X have increased interest in this controversial return bout but failed to cause any noticeable stir at the ticket office.

There may be only 3,000 paying customers in the high school hockey rink when Clay, a 13-to-10 underdog, steps into the ring at 10:30 p.m. EDT to defend his crown against the man he dethroned in a controversial fight in Miami Beach 15 months ago.

But, through the magic of closed circuit television and the Early Bird Satellite, millions of fans will get a chance to see these two strapping fighters strive to answer the many questions people have been asking since the unbeaten Clay became champion Feb. 25, 1964.

On that night, the brash young gladiator from Louisville, Ky., ascended to boxing's most prized throne when Liston, a prohibitive 7-to-1 favorite, quit on his stool after the sixth round of a strange contest.

FIGHT POSTPONED

They were supposed to have met in Boston last November but an emergency hernia operation for Clay forced a postponement and then a dispute over the promotional background finally sent the fight out of Boston to this textile town of 40,000.

At prices of $25, and $100 only 3,000 or so spectators may pay about $150,000 for the live bout, but the closed-circuit telecast to 258 locations in North America, the Mutual Broadcasting System and CBC radio broadcast, the Early bird transmission to Europe and other extras may make this a $5,000,000 promotion.

Each fighter will collect $600,000 or more for a battle that few experts expect go the limit.

The 23-year-old Clay earlier had predicted he would flatten his rival in nine rounds, three rounds, and "early." On the eve of his first defence, however, he would not predict any round.

"I'm just going to beat that tired old man," said Clay, winner of all 20 of his pro fights, 16 by knockouts.

PREDICTS KNOCKOUT

"I'm gonna get him on a knockout," said Liston, listed as 21 but believed to be at least five years older.

This time the Liston brain trust says the muscular ex-champion, unbeaten in 28 fights over a nine-year period until he bowed to Clay, will attempt to pin Cassius to the ropes as Joe Torres did in destroying light heavyweight king Willie Pastrano.

Under Maine rules, there will be a non - voting referee and three judges. The judges will score the fight on the 10-point must system in which the winner of each round gets 10 points and the loser nine or less.

"It don't make no difference," said Liston. "All we need is a referee who can count to 10."

Liston's record is 35-2, including 25 knockouts.

Sportsvision, Inc., which is handling the closed circuit television, took out a three-day $1,000,000 policy on Clay "as a way of demonstrating that we don't see any likelihood of anything happening. We got the policy for $1,000 and that's 1/1,000 of 1 per cent. We're confident every thing will go off according to schedule."

Mets Lead Battle Of Basement

By MURRAY CRASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

A juvenile delinquency expert is no match for a pair of elderly one-armed bandits.

As a result, New York Mets continue to lead Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League's battle of the basement.

The Mets, out of their familiar cellar spot for more than two weeks, took two games from Philadelphia Phillies Monday night, 6-3 and 4-1, behind two pitchers whose combined ages total 72 years.

The Pirates lost ground to the Mets even though they won their fourth straight game, defeating Chicago Cubs 6-4. Dean Chance, the juvenile authority, continued his torrid hitting, collecting three hits in four at-bats.

Manager Casey Stengel, 74, sent out Warren Spahn, 44, and Frank Lary, 34, to try and halt the Mets' six - game losing streak. To do it, they had to beat the best the Phillies had to offer—Jim Bunning and Chris Short.

Cincinnati, meanwhile, brought its eight-game streak to 16 hits in 31 trips for a .516 average. His over-all mark has rocketed 38 points to .332.

PROBES DELINQUENCY

A graduate of Morehouse College in Atlanta, Spahn worked last winter in the office of the district attorney of Allegheny County (Pittsburgh) as a member of a special committee on juvenile delinquency.

Referring to the delinquency problem, Cleondenon says: "We're in trouble."

So are the Pirates. They're in last place, 11½ games behind the Mets.

Elsewhere in the NL, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4, Cincinnati Reds stopped Houston Astros 5-2 and Milwaukee Braves edged San Francisco Giants 4-3.

In Sunday's games the Cubs outlasted the Dodgers 3-2 in 10 innings, Pittsburgh clobbered Milwaukee 10-1, the Giants downed Houston 5-2, the Cardinals shaded the Mets 8-7 in 12 innings and the Phillies edged Cincinnati 4-3 in 10.

On Saturday Pittsburgh trimmed Milwaukee 9-4, the Dodgers defeated the Cubs 9-1, the Giants split with Houston, winning 10-1 and losing 3-2, the Cards whipped the Mets 7-1 and the Reds blasted the Phillies 9-4.

EVENS HIS RECORD

Spahn evened his record at 4-4 in Monday's opener as Ed Kranepool drove in three runs with a two-run homer in the first and a fifth-inning triple. The loss for Bunning, now 3-4, was his first to the Mets after six victories.

Lary allowed only Tony Gonzalez' one-out single in the sixth until Gonzalez led off the ninth with a homer and Richie Allen followed, with a single. Frank McGraw then came on and saved Lary's first victory. Short 4-5, gave up a three-run homer to Johnny Lewis in the fifth.

The Pirates spotted the Cubs four runs, then tied the game in the fifth inning on Roberto Clemente's bases-loaded single. They added two more in the sixth and singled home another in the seventh.

The Cardinals won their seventh straight game as Julian Javier rapped three hits, scored three runs and drove in two. He broke a 3-3 tie by coming home on Claude Osteen's balk in the fifth and scored on Ron Fernandez's wild pitch in the seventh.

Joey Jay helped unbeaten Jim Maloney gain his fifth triumph for the Reds. Jay pitched the final two innings after Maloney's shoulder tightened. Leo Cardenas touched it two runs with a pair of singles.

Eddie Mathews' three-run homer powered the Braves to their victory. The Giants' Willie Mays took the day off until the ninth inning when he pinch hit and drew an intentional walk.

Minor Baseball Results

The Belleville Minor Baseball Association opened its 1968 schedule with three games at Park Dale, yesterday.

In tyke, C.N. Firemen rapped Roller's Little Giants 5-4, in peewee, Jaycees trounced Fountain Park 14-3 and in bantam, Heritage Landscapers topped the Jaycees 8-3.

TYKE

Dave Mulvihill and Danny Lupenette shared a three-hit pitching job for the Firemen, striking out 13 and walking four. Mulvihill was the winning pitcher while Lupenette and John Nolan shared the catching.

Robin Guest and Allen Wood got a loughie on the Little Giant hilltop. They allowed just two hits between them, fanning 13 and walking three. Mike Burley was their receiver.

John Mulvihill had a triple and Danny Lupenette a single for the winners. Billy Coughlin, Allan Woods and Larry Hughes got the loser's hits.

PEEWEE

Paul Hall pitched six hit ball over the route, striking out 13 and walking 11. Terry Pope was his battery mate.

Carl Yates was the starter and loser for Fountain Park, with Mile Coogan and Danny Lupenette coming on in relief. They gave up 10 hits, whiffed 10 and walked 11. Yates and Coogan shared the catching.

Paul Hall led his own attack with three triples and Fred Scott hit a double and two singles. Terry Lynch rapped three one-baggers and Billy Cole got one.

Mike Coogan, with three, Jim Donovan with two, and Carl Yates looked after the loser kits.

BANTAM

Wayne Farrell was the winning pitcher for Barriages, with help from Ron Locke. Each gave up two hits while they struck out 13 and walked six. Bernard Howe was their catcher.

Terry McTaggart was the loser for Jaycees, with relief from Steve Moore. They allowed nine hits, fanned 13 and passed five. Ron Jury looked after the catching.

Brian Coughlin poled a double and three singles to spearhead the Landscapers' hit parade. Hugh Hicks claimed a double and single, Burke and Bernard Howe each adding singles.

Stephen Moore had a triple and single, Brent and Peter Middleton a hit apiece for the Jaycees.

Ellis Bantams Win Opener

In the opening game of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association's bantam division yesterday, Belleville Ellis copped a 4-1 decision over the homesters in Frankford.

Belleville scored single runs in the second and fourth frames and sewed up the decision with two in the fifth. Frankford's lone tally came in the sixth.

Terry McTaggart pitched four innings and Ted Shaw three for Richard Ellis' lads. They gave up just three hits, struck out 11 and passed five.

M. Musclow, aided by W. Kemp in the fifth, buried five-hit ball for Frankford. They struck out eight and walked the same number.

Barry Burnette collected two Belleville hits with one each for Steve Moore, Ted Shaw and Bill Arnott.

B. Cook got two and D. Potts one on Frankford's behalf.

Freehan Big Tiger In Detroit Tank

Belts Two Homers

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bill Freehan thinks like a pitcher.

As it was, Freehan made a shambles of Al Lopez' vaunted staff Monday night, belting two home runs, one a grand slam, as Detroit Tigers rolled to an 8-3 victory over Chicago.

Freehan's slugging helped Mickey Lolich to his sixth victory of the season and, if you take Lolich's word for it, his batterymate's catching didn't hurt the effort.

"He knows my pitches, what I like to throw, and when I like to throw it," says Lolich. "He thinks like a pitcher. And he never lets his hitting interfere with his catching."

CAPS TIGERS RALLY

Freehan's hitting was certainly interfering with the White Sox' catching. His grand-slam homer capped a six-run Tiger rally in the third that erased an early 3-0 Chicago lead.

In the fifth inning Freehan tagged another homer, his third of the season, closing Detroit's scoring.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York Yankees thumped Cleveland Indians 15-5 and Baltimore Orioles nipped Washington Senators 3-2.

In Sunday's games Chicago downed Los Angeles Angels 8-3, Baltimore swept a doubleheader over Detroit 7-3 and 8-3, Boston Red Sox took two from Cleveland 6-2 and 6-3 and Washington split with the Yankees, winning 7-3 and losing 3-2. Kansas City Athletics and Minnesota Twins were rained out.

On Saturday the Yankees blanked the Senators 8-0, Boston hammered Cleveland 8-4, the Athletics whipped the Twins 6-2, Detroit outslugged Baltimore 8-4 and the Angels topped the White Sox 6-3.

FIRST FOR BILL

Freehan's third inning shot was the first grand slam for the 23-year-old catcher who is in his third full season with the Tigers. Bill, a $125,000 home baby, batted .300 and was one of only five American League hitters to reach that figure last season.

The Yankees also used the long ball to better Cleveland. Joe Pepitone ripped a grand slam homer and Johnny Tresh added a two-run shot as New York exploded for its biggest run output since August 1962.

Pepitone's shot, his third homer in as many games, climaxed a seven run Yankee sixth and then New York wrapped it up with four more runs in the seventh as Tresh connected.

Luis Aparicio scored one run and drove in the other for Baltimore against the Senators. Luis drove in Russ Snyder with the deciding run in the seventh, rapping a long double over Frank Howard's head.

City Hotel, Belvedere Win Tilts

City Hotel downed Stewart-Warner 7-3 while Belvedere Hotel outlasted Black Diamond Cheese 16-10 in a pair of Commercial Softball League tilts last night.

Masters hurled 5⅓ innings before giving way to Powers on the Stewart-Warner mound. They gave up 10 hits while Powers fanned four and Masters walked one.

City Hotel scored most of their runs early and it was 7-1 until Rowbotham and Powers hit back-to-back homers in a losing cause in the bottom of the seventh.

The other other Stewart Warner hits were singles by Caddick and Trendall.

M. Hawks clouted a home run and a single for the winners while B. Brooks had a pair of base knocks. J. Martin and B. Ethier each had a double and singles went to D. Hull, D. Morreau, D. Murray and T. Cooles.

Belvedere rapped up their free-scoring victory with five-run explosion in the third and fifth innings.

Despite the high score and 33 hits, both starting pitchers went all the way. D. Young gave up 12 hits for the winners, fanning five and walking four. D. Holway allowed 20 hits, whittled four and passed two. His figures were given for total initial pair. The losers strand-ed three when they got one in the fifth on a walk, Lott's hit and two bobbles. Soule and Gardiner got hits, Moon sacrificed, Hubbard's fly ball scored one and Chatland singled home another for a 4-1 score.

Ethier's own boot helped Trenton make it close again in the top of the sixth. Whyte singled and Hutchison scored on a wild pitch. Cole walked and with none out, Trenton worked the double steal for a 4-3 score with none out. Ethier fanned the next three men.

Gardiner doubled one home and another scored on an error after Ethier had singled to open the bottom of the frame. Muirhead lined a solid shot to left-centre and Hutchison scored a running stab to complete the scoring in the seventh.

Ethier All The Way
Juniors Defeat Trenton

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Superb pitching hurling by Bob Ethier and an assortment of timely hits gave Ellis Juniors a 7-3 triumph over Trenton Commercial Printers in the first half of a big Victoria Day holiday show at the Fairgrounds last night.

An overflow crowd jammed the park for the game and Park Dale's giant fireworks display. Other attractions included performances by the Belleville Gayettes Majorettes and the Belleville Clown Band. It was a fine affect from start to finish.

Ethier handed the Printers their first-ing of the year, keeping them on four hits and blowing third strikes past 12, including the side twice.

The Juniors backed Ethier with a 13-hit attack against Bob Lott, making his first B. and D. League start. Lott nipped five on strikes and walked two. Ethier passed three.

Both sides came up with sparkling fielding plays most of the night, although errors came in batches and proved costly on occasions.

Ellis' never trailed, leading 3-0 in the first, but Trenton came close to tying it twice, cutting the lead to 2-1 in the fifth and 4-3 in the sixth.

The Juniors' domes hits were well distributed with Stu Muirhead getting a homer and a double, Mike Chatland and Don Gardiner a double and single each, Ethier and Jim Rutherford two singles apiece. Bob Smith and Larry Soule added the others.

Jim Whyte and Ron Chambers hit outfield singles and Terry Hutchison and Bob Lott got infield hits for Trenton. Ethier retired the first ten men he faced.

A hit batter, Rutherford's single, an overthrow and a passed ball scored the winners' initial pair. The losers strand-ed three when they got one in the fifth on a walk, Lott's hit and two bobbles. Soule and Gardiner got hits, Moon sacrificed, Muirhead's fly ball scored one and Chatland singled home another for a 4-1 score.

Ethier's own boot helped Trenton make it close again in the top of the sixth. Whyte singled and Hutchison scored on a wild pitch. Cole walked and with none out, Trenton worked the double steal for a 4-3 score with none out. Ethier fanned the next three men.

Lombanks Bow To Trenton

MADOC (Special) — Five runs in the middle frames and a home-run explosion in the ninth served up a 9-3 B. and D. Softball League win for Trenton over Tweed Lombanks here Saturday night.

The game was one postponed from last Monday. Tweed's home game against Madoc, scheduled for last night, was also postponed until Wednesday.

Tweed held a brief lead Saturday but the Printers scored two in the fifth and three in the sixth to take command. A solo homer by Drake and a two-run blast by Whyte capped it up in the ninth.

Pat Maracle was the winning pitcher, in relief of Bob McAlpine in the third. They gave up six hits. Maracle struck out 11, walked none. McAlpine fanned none and walked three.

Eldon Gray was the starter and loser for Tweed, giving way to Blaine Healey in the sixth. Healey, working in Oshawa, will play with Tweed whenever he can get down. It was stated here that Oshawa clubs refused to sign the amateur right-hander because he is working shift work.

They were tagged for 13 Trenton hits but Gray whiffed seven and Healey six. Gray gave up the only two walks.

Batting star of the Trenton bit parade, driving in three runs with his homer, a double and a single, Roger Drake also had two singles, as well as the home run, while Bob McAlpine and Pat Maracle each scored twice. Terry Hutchinson and Ron Chambers one each.

Bert Sherry was the only Tweed player with two hits, both singles. Terry Ladage doubled and other safeties went to Eldon Gray, Garry Gore and Don Cottrn.

Leafs Take League Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs, currently riding the crest of an eight - game winning streak, celebrated Victoria Day at home by sweeping all, five holiday weekend games.

And the Leafs slipped into first place past Atlanta Crackers in the International League.

Toronto now has won 14 of its last 15 games, and has 27 wins against 11 losses for the season.

The Leafs opened the weekend by defeating Buffalo Bisons 8-5 Saturday, before downing them 12-2 and 2-1 Sunday.

Toronto finished the weekend with 2-1 and 8-3 victories over Syracuse Chiefs Monday.

Elsewhere, Jacksonville Suns defeated Toledo Mud Hens 6-4, Syracuse edged Rochester Red Wings 6-5, and Atlanta defeated Columbus Jets 6-2 Saturday.

Sunday, Syracuse shut out Rochester 1-0 and 2-0, Atlanta defeated Columbus 3-2 and 5-1, and Toledo defeated Jacksonville 7-4.

Monday, Jacksonville walloped Atlanta 11-3, Columbus edged Toledo 3-2 in 11 innings, and Buffalo defeated Rochester 4-3.

Tony Horton blasted a grand-slam home run in Monday's second game to break a 3-3 deadlock and give the Leafs the win. It was Horton's seventh homer of the season.

Horton also drove home the first run in Monday's opener, Joe Foy drove in the second, bouncing into a double play with Bill Millnis on third.

John Ryan of Oshawa opened a three-run rally in the fourth inning for Syracuse, hitting a single and scoring on a sacrifice fly.

COSSA Meet To Oshawa

Oshawa O'Neill Collegiate won the COSSA track and field meet in Peterborough on Saturday.

Trenton High School, the Quinte district champions, finished second. Place winners into next and Oshawa McLaughlin Collegiate fourth.

Twenty seven records went by the board in the boys' division with the girls cracking fourteen.

Andover's Westlake broke the junior boys' 100 in 10.1 and 220 in 10.6 and 23.6. Hendrew of L.A. cracked the 880 and mile runs in 2:09 and 4.51.2.

Curson of Moira Secondary set a new record in the 120 hurdles in 16.3.

Vandervoort of Quinte S.S. finished second in the intermediate boys' 100. Moira's Beresford won the immediate boys' pole vault with 11.9½ with Welsh of Quinte second.

Witriak of Trenton took the senior boys' 100 in 10.1 and John Heyman of Moira finished third in the senior two miles.

T. Greatrix of Moira was second in the senior pole vault.

CAHA Annual Meeting

Helmets Compulsory For All Minors

VICTORIA (CP)—Protective headgear will be compulsory equipment next season for all juvenile - and - under players within the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The CAHA at its annual meeting Monday approved protective helmets to reduce head injuries among Canada's 170,000 pee wee, bantam, midget and peewee players.

A rider was attached to the rule change recommending use of headgear by junior, intermediate and senior players, but the use of helmets will be optional in these leagues.

The proposal, from the Ontario Amateur Hockey Association, was amended twice from its original form, which would have made helmets compulsory for all CAHA players. Senior and intermediate were exempted first and juniors in a second amendment.

Gordon Juckes, CAHA secretary-manager, said older players were exempted because "it is hard to get them to a helmet for a person who has been playing for seven years."

"We are trying to let young hockey players grow into it gradually," he said.

PARIS 200.000

On the first day of the CAHA three - day meeting, which ended Thursday, delegates were told hockey registrations surpassed 200,000 last year for the first time.

A registration report showed 221,804 players registered of affiliated with the CAHA, an increase of more than 20,000 from the 198,044 season.

Juckes attributed the increase in hockey population, which has grown from 2 in 1961, to natural population which has grown from 129,000 in 1961, to natural population increase and a "general spread of minor hockey at the community level."

Canada's future in world hockey competition will be a chief topic at today's sessions.

In his yearly address, president Lionel Fleury of Quebec said "we're not satisfied with the result." Canada has not won a world hockey championship since 1958.

WILL GIET REPORT

A report will be presented on Canada's fourth-place finish in the world hockey tournament in Tampere, Finland this year and recommendations for the future.

Rev. David Bauer, coach of the Canadian national team which went to the 1964 Olympics and 1966 world tournament, will attend the meeting. Father Bauer's team finished behind Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden in both competitions.

An Alberta Amateur Hockey Association proposal to form future national hockey teams from members of the armed forces is expected to be presented today.

The Alberta resolution says sufficient high-calibre hockey players to form a world champeonship team. The job would be to hand-pick the best and give them team experience.

The resolution asks formation of a committee with power to discuss the matter with the minister of national defence.

LOSS SHOWN

Financial reports showed Monday an over-all loss of $28,265 for Canada's national hockey team during 1964-65. Expenses totalled $153,500.

Mr. Juckes said expenses averaging $2,000 a foreign game—were close to budget. But gate receipts for exhibition games played by the national team in Canada were $50,000 lower than anticipated. The CAHA ended its fiscal year Dec. 31 with an operating deficit of 17,948 and a reserve surplus of $115,168.

Inside 10 Rounds

Liston By Knockout—Louis

(Editor's note: This is Joe Louis' final article before the Clay-Liston fight.)

By JOE LEWIS

LEWISTON, Me., May 24—Having the heavyweight title and making it stick is a big reason for fighting hard. I know a little bit about that. But fighting to get the title back is a bigger reason to give it everything.

I think that Sonny Liston will be the heavyweight champion again after his fight with Cassius Clay here tomorrow night. I don't think it will go the distance, but I won't pick the round either. What I will say is that he will knock out Clay inside of 10 rounds.

Clay is younger, I know, and Clay believes he is a cinch to do what he did a year and three months ago, when he stopped Sonny in nine rounds at Miami Beach.

But I don't agree with him at all. I think Sonny has a little more to fight for than Clay. He had been champ before—and he liked being champ so much he'll make the fight of his life to be champ again.

When he was champ, he got more respect from people than he ever got before. As a young fellow, he had misery, real misery, and it was a new world being on top.

But, when he lost the title, people picked on him again, maybe worse than before. And he knows the old way to get the treatment he likes is to get the title.

How will he win it? In general I'll say it will be by making Clay fight, and mean fight. And, in a fight, not a chase like the last one, he'll do the damage that counts with body punches.

Let me take you through the fight, the way I see it shaping up.

In the first round it might look something like Miami. Sonny will do a lot of jabbing, but mainly he'll be throwing head feints. He'll try to make Sonny look bad missing on counters—get him to throw a punch, then counter with a fast shot.

In the second round Clay is going to move around faster, try to get off some punches that will make Sonny lose his confidence. By their speed, I mean.

And what with Liston be doing? I say he'll be holding himself together, jabbing when the spot's there with that good hard left of his a lot blander than any of Clay's jabs, and not acting like a sucker just because Clay acts like him his style.

The picture in my mind is that by the fourth round Liston will be out of his easy-does-it-start, he'll be working, pressing. He'll be following that left with a right, and, because there won't be so much distance between him and Clay, he'll be able to put a left hook to the head with a right to the body or double up with his left hook to the body.

The fourth and fifth are going to tell who will win out.

The punishment Clay must take will teach us something about how much he really likes the game. Because Liston didn't make his best fight the first time, we never found out. At that, in the fifth round when Clay hadn't been hurt much, only was complaining about his eyes, he was ready to quit.

In other words, I say one knockdown will be enough.

National Drivers' Test Rated as 'Excellent' Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS news must be rated "excellent" for its intentions and originality in Monday night's National Drivers Test, but its score for the execution of the program is that of the average driver who took the quiz — somewhere between "fair" and "poor."

Some of the photography was so fuzzy and badly lighted that viewers with small television screens could not distinguish the road hazards they were supposed to identify. Phraseology of some questions was involved and tricky.

This test-taker feels that the poor average showing of drivers in CBS' studio audiences in four cities—a score of 51 out of a possible 80—was more the result of the program's presentation than inadequacies of the drivers.

CBS also could have dispensed with the on-the-spot sampling of the audience with the aid of computers which dissected them for primary interest of the viewer in testing his own driving skills.

It was, however, an interesting beginning of something new.

And if it helps to reduce the annual toll of lives in automobile accidents, it will have been the most important television program of the year.

NBC turned up in a close race as the winner of the most recent Nielsen ratings. The averages achieved for the two weeks ending May 14 were NBC, 17.4; CBS, 17.2 and ABC, 16.2. The numbers indicate, incidentally, that television viewing has already begun its annual warm-weather decline.

Bonanza, Gomer Pyle and Bewitched as usual headed up Nielsen's top - ten listing, followed by Peyton Place (Thursday nights), Andy Griffith, Peyton Place (Tuesday), Red Skelton, Beverly Hillbillies, Lorne Greene's American West, and The Lucy Show.

Barbra Streisand's CBS special, one of the most talked-about and highly-praised special shows of the season, wound up in 19th place. Melina Mercouri's Greek, an ABC special shown at the same time as Lorne Greene's NBC special, landed near the bottom of the Nielsen list, number 96.

CBS' new evening soap opera, Our Private World, wound up in 60th place with its premiere episode, dropping to 83rd with its second.

Speaking of soap opera, ABC announces that Peyton Place will expand to three a week—Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings at 9:30 EDT—starting June 25.

And CBS' The Nurses, which bowed out to low ratings recently as The Doctors and the Nurses, will return next fall as a five-a-week daytime serial on ABC.

Batting — Bill Freehan, Detroit, smashed two home runs—the first a grand slam that cli maxed a five-run outburst in the third inning—powering the Tigers to an 8-3 victory over Chicago White Sox.

Pitching—Frank Lary, New York, pitched a one-hit shutout for eight innings, then needed relief help after allowing a run and two hits in the ninth, as the Mets completed a double-header sweep by stopping Philadelphia Phillies 4-1.

Christopher Plummer Will Play Peter Gynt in London

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Toronto - born Christopher Plummer, having started in three major movies, is going off to play Peer Gynt on the London stage.

Why would Plummer play Ibsen for a pittance when star-hungry studios would gladly pay him a six-figure salary to make a film:

"Because I was sitting at the beach feeling as if I were vegetating," he explained. "Peter (for the director) dropped in and suggested we do a play in London together. I just bought a house there. I would like to see, and he has a house in London, too. I had always wanted to do Peer Gynt, so why not now?"

His agent still thinks Plummer is playing fast and loose with his 30 per cent. But that's the life of the actor it. He has finally made it in films after two false starts; but he still considers the stage his profession.

ISN'T UNREASONABLE

This is not an unreasonable stance. He has starred on the New York and London stage to critical acclaim. His interpretation of Shakespearean heroes has been hailed at all three Stratfords (Ontario, Connecticut and on Avon) and his TV Hamlet, filmed at Elsinore Castle, was considered brilliant.

His stage fame brought him film offers. He took two—Stage Struck and Across the Everglades; both of them he terms disasters.

Back he went to the theatre, returning to films two years ago for Fall of the Roman Empire. He believes the picture did not receive its due in the United States.

"Certainly we all know the dramatic limitations of spectacles, but the picture was better than most of its kind," he said.

AGREES WITH CRITICS

On the other hand, Plummer agreed with critics who called his next film, The Sound of Music, saccharine. "We tried not to make it that way, but the material overwhelmed us," he said. "Anyway, it was what I needed: A big commercial success."

The Sundman carried him to his latest film, Inside Daisy Clover. He plays a Svengali-like film producer of the 1930s—Handsomer than Louis B. Mayer, taller than Irving Thalberg." His Trilby: Natalie Wood.

Plummer, a dark-haired man with a Roman profile and an Elizabethan lust for life, could look around and reap more rewards. But he's off to London, where he makes his home "because it has the most exciting theatre in the world."

AT THE PARK — Veronique Vendell (32-20-35) and Dolores Schonberr are shown above in a scene from Cinemiracle's "Only When I Laugh" showing today and Wednesday at the Park Theatre, starring Lee Barker and Ronald Fraser. A drama of murder and intrigue, the film also features code-maide Ann Smyrner (36-26-36). On the same program in color "Love Has Many Faces", starring Lana Turner, Cliff Robertson and Hugh O'Brian. Also the first showing here. One complete show starts at 7.30 p.m.

AT THE PARK — Glamorous Lana Turner stars with Cliff Robertson and Hugh O'Brian in "Love Has Many Faces", showing at the Park Wednesday at 7.30 p.m. The dramatic new Jerry Bresler production is in color for Cinemiracle Panavision release. Also starred are Ruth Roman, Stefanie Powers as "the outsider," Virginia Grey and Ron Husmann. On the same program is the suspense thriller "Code 7 — Victim 5" in color starring Lex Barker. One complete show starts at 7.30 p.m.

Kingston Wins Meet

CORNWALL (CP)—Kingston Collegiate and Vocational School won the Eastern Ontario Secondary School Association annual track meet with 71 points Saturday.

Perth Collegiate was second with 66½ and the host high school, St. Lawrence Collegiate, was third with 50½.

Sixteen-year-old Doug Scorer of Perth Collegiate set records in the intermediate 880 - yard run and the mile race. His time in the 880 was 2:2.5 breaking the record of 2:3.6. His time in the mile was 4:35.6 compared with the previous record of 4:34.4.

The senior meet champion was Henry Blanchard of St. Lawrence Collegiate. He had a record breaking time of 51.7 seconds for the 440-yard race.

ICE CREAM BUSINESS

Offers are now being considered for this lucrative well established Grocery & Soft Ice Cream business which must be sold immediately due to failing health of the owner. The grocery store is completely modern and well equipped and is doing a good volume of business. Situated on a corner lot with ample parking adjacent to the store, both are located on a main 401 service road with heavy off street parking. In addition, an Elmwood and Lily Ice cream freezing plant and the whole, making this one of the most attractive propositions we have ever offered. Terms are available with a reasonable down payment and monthly mortgage for the balance. Have other business I prefer to go into business, for yourself. Call at once.

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Good Flyer, driven by Harold McKinley, paced to an easy 2¼ length victory in the $4,000 Hamilton Stakes at Mohawk Raceway Monday before a full house of harness fans.

The selection of Good Flyer and Stoney Burke returned a quinella payoff of $8.00.

Saturday, Betsy Herbert, a 3-4 choice at most of the Saturday fans posted a wire-to-wire victory in the featured $3,540 Campbellville Stakes.

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—Dodge Lightning was the best time of the day and won both heats of the fourth race at the Goderich harness racing meet Monday before 1,800 fans.

Owned by Pete and Joe Bryan of Granton, Dodge Lightning won the first heat in two minutes, 12.3 seconds. In the third race, four-year-old winners of $500 Dusty Lightning took the second heat in two minutes, 13.3 seconds.

Pearson

ers later that he had meant no criticism of US action and that the U.S. Government would have been pleased if their police action could have relieved it of the necessity of taking unilateral action.

THANT HAS DOUBTS

Mr. Pearson's optimism about the future of the UN was not completely shared by U Thant, Secretary-General of the UN, who also was scheduled to address the convention and receive an honorary law degree.

U Thant was unable to attend because of a meeting of the Security Council in New York, but he sent his speech to be read at the convocation.

"For those of us who believe in the aims and ideal of the UN Charter, the present time is a very trying one. We see ominous clouds and psychotic situations on every side, but have yet to find a way to deal with them and to make them less hazardous," his speech declared.

"I feel bound to say that the first five months of this year have witnessed developments which have tended to undermine the position of the UN as the primary agency for maintaining international peace and security."

He went on: "For various reasons, the role of the UN has been ignored or avoided in the settlement of some recent disputes, thus causing profound uneasiness in the minds of those who maintain the UN represents the world's best hope for peace.

PROGRESS REVERSED

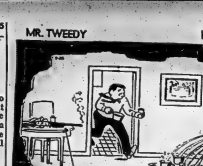
"We are witnessing today a definite reversal of the slow progress the UN has made towards world stability and world peace. A further drift in this direction, if not arrested in time, will mark the close of a chapter of great expectations and the heralding of a new chapter in which the world organization will perform a debating forum, and nothing else."

U. Thant added that a far greater danger to the world and to the UN is provided from with in the organization itself.

"Some of the most sincere supporters sometimes voice the fear that abortive attempts by the UN to tackle major problems may leave an unfavorable impact on the prestige and position of the organization."

He stressed the danger involved in the practice of "shopping" away from timely and concerted efforts to take on these problems of peace and security, which are a primary responsibility of the UN under the Charter, for fear of failure. Immediate success in this field is hardly to be expected, but that is no reason for a failure to make the effort."

TIMES CHANGED



Mr. Pearson cautioned that we must remember the importance of perspective in looking at the world of today and the world of tomorrow. "The United Nations only 20 years after its birth, could almost be said to be a product of another age, such has been the revolutionary change since its formation.

"The very term 'United Nations' refers to the coalition of nations which triumphed in war, and the leaders of which were determined that this unity they had found in danger and sacrifice should not be lost in the peace that followed.

The Prime Minister said it was assumed that the great powers would agree, and that what they agreed to do, the world would agree to follow. He said that if the nations sat down to rewrite the UN Charter today, the aims and objectives of 1945 would still have the same priority. He concluded that during this revolutionary period, it was not surprising that attempts to organize some system of collective security fell short of the goals, but he expressed optimism that these goals can be met.

MUST END WASTE

U. Thant said that the success of the world organization depends upon chiefly the elimination of waste. "When one considers the human condition objectively in our fantastically well-endowed age, the word that most immediately springs to mind is waste — waste of resources, waste of energy, waste of spirit, waste of ingenuity, waste of time and waste of lives. "If we are to harmonize our actions," he said, "as in time of war in 1945 we resolved to do, we might do well to start by putting an end to this waste of human resources and ingenuity. It will then be only a short

"My, he's restless tonight!"

step to a far more agreeable task — to the use of those resources and intelligence for the multitude of things which need to be done."

U Thant was awarded an honorary law degree in absentia at Carleton University.

Besides the degree given Mr. Pearson and U Thant, honorary doctor of divinity degrees were presented to Harry Aubrey Mellow and James Clark Paul Sterling.

Principal J. Corry of Queen's University, was in charge of the proceedings.

NEW YORK CP) — Affectionately, raised a swift sprinter, carried her speed for a full 1¼ miles and easily whipped nine other front-rank fillies and mares in the $57,200 Top Flight Handicap at Aqueduct Race Track.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' five-year - old daughter of Swaps-Searching took the lead at the start in the race Saturday, and never relinquished the advantage under the guidance of Jockey Walter Blum.

George D. Widener's Steeple Jill took second, a half-length in front of Stanley Conrad's Old Hat.

Affectionately earned $37,180 and boosted her 1964 bankroll to $61,180.

Blum sent the fleet Hirsch Jacobs-trained Miss over the mile in 1:49 2-5 under 120 pounds.

Affectionately returned $5.80, $4.80 and $2.80. Steeple Jill paid $6.50 and $3.70 and Old Hat $2.90.

At Cherry Hill, N.J., Jacinto Vasquez of Panama rode four winners at Garden State Park Race Track Saturday, including Tennele in the $28,250 Camden Handicap.

Tenacle ran the 1¼ miles in 1:48 4-5 and paid $13, $5.20 and

Astrological

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 24

Aries (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Cycle high. But deals involving money may need extra thought. Rely upon your judgment. Others may not have all facts. Be your own astrologer!

Taurus (Apr. 20 — May 20): You get what you need if unafraid of new areas. Shake up . . . don't fret over minor matters. New ideas may meet opposition from the unimaginative.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief — here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Amazing soothing was a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, even cases of long standing.

This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

NORAD Command Post Now Is Above Ground

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

CHEYENNE MOUNTAIN, Colo. (AP) — Deep inside this granite mountain, technicians have started installing secret new electronic gear that will enable U.S. commanders to react within seconds of any attack on North America.

This is the final phase of a four-year, $99,000,000 effort to build an atom-proof command post for the North American Air Defence Command.

The NORAD command post now is above ground, about five miles away in Colorado Springs, and is vulnerable to an atomic knockout.

By early 1966, after the specially designed computers and other fancy new equipment have been checked out, the U.S. and Canadian military staff will take over the underground combat operations centre.

There, these keenly trained experts will maintain a 24-hour vigil for signs of impending attack by missile, bomber or satellite.

WOULD 'BUTTON UP'

If attack should come, the NORAD commander - in - chief and his battle staff would "button up" behind a brace of 15-ton steel blast doors and call the shots for the defence—sending up 30 interceptor fighter planes, launching anti - missile and anti-satellite weapons.

Air force officers claim this complex of steel buildings—resting on 937 unique anti-shock springs and wedged into a network of tunnels beneath about 2,000 feet of solid granite—would be safe from all but perhaps a direct hit by the biggest hydrogen warhead.

All phone cables are buried in steel conduits several feet below ground. They are embedded in granite and sheathed in concrete, steel and copper.

The normal 300 - man staff manning the centre would swell to about 800 in a "button up" emergency.

Inside the windowless walls of the 11 interconnected rectangular steel buildings are dormitories, mess halls, food storage areas, offices, computer rooms and the main theatre where the battle staff would assemble.

The centre has its own seven-room hospital.

Hewn out of rock nearby are deep reservoirs to hold 1,200,000 gallons of drinking water, another 4,500,000 gallons of water for cooling, and diesel fuel to run the many motors.

Shah of Iran Supports Canada's UN Force Plan

MONTREAL (CP)—The Shah of Iran, on a three-day visit to Montreal as part of his state visit to Canada, came out strongly in support of Canada's suggestion that there should be a permanent United Nations force when he answered questions at a press conference Monday.

Of the American actions in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic, the Shah said: "Either you are for or against the principle of standing against aggression, and I see no difference between standing against aggression in Viet Nam and Berlin. In the other place (the Dominican Republic) I think it more the responsibility of the OAS to get together and find a solution.

"It is clear the United Nations is not as strong as it should be. If it was, no country would have to take the responsibility the United States has assumed."

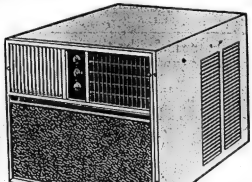
ION

Iran, the Shah said, shares Canada's opinion that a strong permanent UN force should be set up. This force, he said, should be subject to the General Assembly, or to The Security Council without veto power, or even simply to the secretary-general.

The Shah and Empress Farah leave today for Toronto, where they are to spend their remaining two days in Canada.

Tonight the couple will attend a dinner given by Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe.

Wednesday's round of activities includes a visit to the de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. plant in suburban Downsview.



Later the couple will watch three races at Greenwood Race Track, including one named the Shahanshah Plate in their honor.

HOLD SECRET TALKS

GENEVA (AP)—The Roman Catholic Church and the World Council of Churches, combining more than 200 Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox churches in 90 countries, have held their first round of secret talks on closer co-operation. A WCC announcement Monday said the talks were held during the last three days in the joint working group recently set up by the two bodies. Details were not revealed.

DOMINICAN TROOP SWITCH STARTS

Britain Plans Gigantic New-Style Nuclear Power Plant

LONDON (CP) — A decision to build a new - style nuclear power plant designed to produce electricity at less cost than conventional power stations was greeted today as a major development in British science and technology.

Scientific experts, politicians and the press predicted the Advanced Gas-cooled Reactor, to be built on the Kent coast with a world-high 1,200,000 - kilowatt capacity, will finally establish the competitiveness of atomic energy against conventional fuels in generating electricity.

The AGR project, in which carbon dioxide gas carries heat from the atomic furnace to boiler tubes to make turbine-driving steam, is expected to boost British chances of selling atomic power plants abroad against competition from water-cooled North American systems.

Power Minister Fred Lee, announcing the decision to build the AGR plant, told Parliament Tuesday he was confident Britain had had "hit the jackpot" with a design that has clear advantages over competing water-cooled reactors.

Experts studied six designs for more than a year before recommending the AGR plant on grounds that it would be technically superior and produce electricity 10 per cent more cheaply than the advanced U.S. and water-cooled British designs.

Negotiations are under way on design details for construction of the plant at an estimated cost of £200,000,000 ($560,000,000). Completion date is 1969.

The AGR plant is reported to depend less on expensive enriched uranium than do other designs.

The implications for the uranium trade depend on any revision of plans for building future power plants in Britain.

Lee said plans published a year ago, providing for construction of 7,000,000 kilowatts of nuclear power before 1970 and an additional 5,000,000 by 1975, may be revised in light of the AGR development.

With the cost of generating electricity by AGR an estimated 10 per cent cheaper than by coal-fired plants, British authorities may decide to step up construction of nuclear stations and cut expansion plans for conventional power.

Effort To Reach Quick Solution Seems Finished

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) — The United States today was expected to begin the withdrawal of some 3,700 troops from the Dominican Republic despite a political stalemate in the more than month-old civil war.

Diplomatic observers said U.S. efforts to reach a quick political solution to the Dominican crisis appeared to have given way to a more patient American policy with perhaps a lesser role being played by Washington.

The withdrawal of 1,700 U.S. troops during the next few days was timed to coincide with the arrival of 1,250 Brazilian troops of the Inter-American peace force.

Meanwhile, special presidential assistant McGeorge Bundy was expected to return to Washington today to give President Johnson a first-hand report on the situation here.

The change in Washington tactics to a more patient policy came at a time when both factions in the Dominican power struggle were accusing the United States of interference and publicly disclaiming or rejecting a plan for a coalition government.

PLANS STALLED

Peace plans were stalled Tuesday when right-wing military junta leader Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera accused the U.S., the United Nations, and the Organization of American States of "open interference" in the embattled republic's affairs.

The U.S.-stated view of the Dominican situation is that the rapid dispatch of troops to save lives of Americans and other foreign nationals and to forestall a Communist takeover has achieved its purpose.

It now appears virtually certain that the situation had pinned its hopes for a quick solution to the crisis on a coalition government headed by Antonio Guzman, a supporter of exiled former president Juan Bosch.

But this plan ran into strong opposition from Imbert, who heads the ruling Council of the "reconstruction" government as opposed to rebel leader Col. Francisco Caamano Deno of the "constitutional" forces.

Although Caamano was willing to stay out of a coalition government, he insisted that it be based on the Bosch constitution of 1963 and that he and them to the anti-Boschists in Imbert's camp.

U.S. officials sought assurances from Guzman for keeping certain Communists out of Dominican political life, but informed sources said the former Bosch supporter would not felt he could not give such assurances in advance.

With this stalemate in mind, the U.S. apparently decided to withdraw its obviously powerful hand somewhat while keeping the military situation stabilized with the inter - American peace force.

Imbert, whose forces crushed rebel opposition in the northern sector of Santo Domingo, has told U.S. officials he heads a going government with the country under control for the rebel stronghold in downtown Santo Domingo and is not in a mood to give aside for a coalition regime.

Imbert also has told the U.S. the junta needs $3,500,000 to meet government payrolls due in the next two weeks. U.S. officials said his request is under consideration in Washington.

WANT ANTI-NAZI LAW

TORONTO (CP)—City Council endorsed a committee recommendation Tuesday that Parliament be asked to pass anti-Nazi legislation. Alderman Hugh Bruce, who voted against the motion, said everyone's freedom will suffer if the freedom of the Canadian Nazi Party is restricted.

Jets Bomb Viet Nam All Day

SAIGON (Reuters)—U.S. Air Force jets today blasted a radar site and petroleum storage depot in North Viet Nam as around-the-clock raids north of the border continued.

Four hours after the air force strike, two U.S. Navy Skyhawks from the 7th Fleet carrier Midway scored three direct hits with 250-pound bombs on a bridge about 80 miles south of Hanoi.

Meanwhile, a separate group of nearly 20 U.S. Air Force Thunderchiefs had commenced a series of armed reconnaissances over North Viet Nam seeking "targets of opportunity."

The jets, supported by about 30 additional aircraft, flew over North Viet Nam in groups of four or six, each group spending about 55 minutes hunting targets.

Some of the Thunderchiefs making armed reconnaissances reported encountering heavy flak, but most missions met only light anti-aircraft fire. All American planes returned safely.

OPINIONS DIFFER

For a brief but tense period Tuesday it was thought that North Vietnamese MiGs might have struck at a target in South Viet Nam for the first time.

Four unidentified jets—later presumed to be American—hit a South Vietnamese army outpost at Ca Linh, 45 miles south of the demilitarized zone on the north-south Vietnamese border, wounding five South Vietnamese soldiers.

Though one U.S. military spokesman thought the planes were Communist MiGs, the chief American public information officer in Viet Nam told reporters "we feel 99 per cent certain they were American planes of course."

Early today, U.S. helicopters attacked Viet Cong craft described as "infiltration vessels" in South Vietnamese waters in the Viet Cong area about 30 miles northwest of Da Nang while artillery fired at the boats from shore.

Reports reaching Da Nang said government forces killed 46 Viet Cong and wounded 30 others. Government casualties were listed as 13 dead and 14 wounded.

U.S. marines patrolling a complex of villages within a 15-mile radius of the U.S. air base at Da Nang today were reported to have killed five Viet Cong and to have captured 16 other suspected guerrillas.

Queen Visits Canada's NATO Men, Families

By CAROL KENNEDY

SOEST, West Germany (CP) A smiling Queen today spent 90 minutes with Canadian NATO troops and their families here in a packed program that swung from the splendor of a military review in the squealing delight of nearly 3,000 school children waving a forest of tiny Canadian flags.

There could have been no greater contrast than the inspection with its mossed hauts, precision marching and thundering jet flypast and the shy, simple ceremony at Soest senior school where a 16-year-old Girl Guide gave the Queen a gold maple leaf friendship pin for her daughter Princess Anne.

The Queen responded warmly to the uproarious welcome of the school children.

The Queen's train arrived at Soest station after an overnight stop at Duesseldorf. The royal couple were met by Air Vice-Marshal Douglas Bradshaw of Ottawa, the senior Canadian officer commanding air forces in Europe; Brig. Alfred Tedlie of Montreal, commander of the 4th Infantry Brigade Group, and German civic officials.

THOUSANDS CHEER

The Queen's own maroon high - roofed Rolls - Royce wheeled through the cobbled, flag-decked streets of Soest, lined with about 60,000 Soest citizens, and out on the seven-mile drive to the Fort York base.

A 21-gun salute was fired as the car turned into the parade ground and drew up at the red, two-tiered reviewing stand. The Canadian guard of honor snapped to attention and the National Anthem was played.

Escorted by 39-year-old Maj. Andre Therrien of Bedford, Que., the Queen inspected the guard as the massed bands of the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Fort Garry Horse and the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry played Over the Sea to Skye.

The band's scarlet, blue and gold uniforms made a vivid splash of colour against the green hills and woods around the base.

The Queen returned to the dais for the march - past of troops and a drive-past by 72 army vehicles ranging from jeeps armed with mortars to ambulances. Overhead swooped three army spotter planes, six army helicopters and 12 screaming RCAF Starfighter jets.

After 30 minutes at the base, the Queen started a second and more personal visit—almost a family occasion—at the married quarters on the outskirts of Soest.

A rear of delight swelled up from the many-banded row of children and mothers, most of whom had arrived in 50 buses from the eight other Canadian Army bases in the area.

The car crawled along at five miles an hour, in compliance with the Queen's own command whenever the spectators are children.

Canada Has Mission In World Shah Tells Banquet Audience

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's role in international affairs will grow more important, the Shah of Iran said at an Ontario state dinner here Tuesday.

"You have a mission to accomplish in our future world to shape it for the preservation of peace, honor and dignity," he said at the dinner given by Lieutenant - Governor W. Earl Rowe at the Royal York Hotel.

The Shah arrived here, from Montreal as this city's rush hour was just ending. The royal motorcade caused momentary traffic problems.

Full military honors greeted the eastern monarch and Empress Farah, his third wife, as a red-coated band of the Royal Canadian Regiment played be Iranian national anthem.

The Shah and his entourage occupied two floors of the Royal York Hotel—63 rooms.

Arriving with the Shah were both Defence Minister Paul Hellyer and Maj.-Gen. George Kitchen, general officer commanding the army's central command in this area.

At the evening's dinner Lieutenant-Governor Rowe had the Shah his visit was "keenly appreciated" by the people of Canada and Ontario. Such visits helped contribute to greater understanding among nations.

He also praised the monarch's skillfull leadership that has sparked unprecedented expansion in this country.

Premier Robarts noted that experts of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission were helping to develop a 965,000,000 power station in Iran, by invitation of that country.

Winding up the Shah's eight-day Canadian tour today will be a visit to industries for him, and its to hospitals for the empress and a visit to a racetrack for both.

Medicare Program Attacked

TORONTO (CP)—Opposition parties took healthy swipes at the Ontario government's medical insurance bill in the legislature Tuesday with main criticisms centred on cost, coverage and operation.

As debate began on second reading of the bill, Opposition Leader Andrew Thompson criticized the lack of simplicity of the proposed plan.

It was a hodge - podge of public, private, half-public and half - private ways of dealing with medical care costs.

He said people of the province would be given such a welter of alternative health care plans that it would not be possible to find the uniform base in the event of an equalization of benefits across the country.

In its final form, the bill should be such that the Ontario program could be readily integrated into a national plan, said Mr. Thompson.

COMPLAIN OF COSTS

Both Mr. Thompson and New Democratic Party leader Donald C. MacDonald complained of the costs involved.

Uranium Sale Conditions Opposed by French Govt.

OTTAWA (CP)—The French government disagrees with Canada's proposals to ensure that any uranium sold to France is used only for peaceful purposes, Trade Minister Sharp said Tuesday.

The French want the Canadian uranium to generate electrical power, he said in reporting to the Commons on his meetings last week with French officials in Paris.

He said there are two main points of disagreement on the technical aspects of the proposed sale.

One was the "discrimination" involved in demanding guarantees and safeguards from France while continuing long-standing agreements with the United States and Britain that involve no prohibitions.

The other was the form of safeguards.

"These matters are under discussion," the minister said.

Rocky Ride For Govt.

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—Government proposals to streamline parliamentary procedure got a rocky ride in the Commons Tuesday from Progressive Conservative critics.

Marcel Lambert, Edmonton West, Commons Speaker in the last days of Diefenbaker administration, said:

—The proposed 36-day time limit on spending estimates is a boobs-trap infringement on the right of discussion by members of all parties;

—A proposal to allow cabinet ministers to set a cut - off deadline for debate is "merely selective closure and is the result of trying to import into the Canadian practice a seldom - used device of the British Parliament."

URGES CHANGES

Earlier, Heath Macquarrie (PC—Queens) recommended a variety of rules innovations ranging from fixed adjournment dates for Parliament to the installation of voting machines to save time on votes.

Wants Flow Into Lakes Regulated

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—More than two-thirds of Canada depends on cheap transportation using carefully - controlled waterways from Alberta to the Maritimes, the manager of the port of Montreal said Tuesday at hearings of the International Joint Commission on Great Lakes water levels.

Guy Saunder urged the commissioners to consider regulating the controls in all the Great Lakes.

He said a more practical and stable control of outflow can be implemented if inflow also is regulated. Current regulations set up in 1956 to control water flowing out of Lake Ontario had disrupted shipping movements in Montreal.

Mr. Beaudet said there is not enough water released early in the year because the plan calls for holding back water to be released during the winter months.

"Simply stated, since Dec. 1, 1961, a total of about 500,000,000,000 cubic feet of water has been withheld from the St. Lawrence River during the navigation seasons and this water has been poured out during the winter months," he said.

Under questioning, Mr. Beaudet said the water levels at Montreal are unpredictable under present controls.

Marsh management was recommended by J. E. Bryant of Aurora, Ont., a member of the Canadian wild life service, department of northern affairs and natural resources.

He said the main concerns were migratory water fowl and their use of the marshes in lakes Erie and St. Clair in particular.

C. V. Youngquist, representing the department of natural resources in Ohio, emphasized that the levels in all Great Lakes should be stabilized.

"While much stress has been placed during these hearings on low levels, we should not forget that high levels can be very destructive through flooding and erosion," he said.

R. A. Briggs of the Detroit Edison (Hydro - Electric) Co. said, low water levels in the Great Lakes system would result in an extra cost of more than $2,000,000 to feed power to the area served by his company.

Re-location of CPR Line Around City Proposed, Planning Board to Act

Island Project For Centennial Soon Ready

A definite proposal for the city's Zwicky Island centennial project is expected to be ready for presentation to city council some time next month.

This was told to council yesterday by Alderman Tom Lally, special centennial committee that the Engineering Services Agreement between the city and Proctor, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon for a development scheme for Zwick's Island be approved.

Total cost of the Island project plans is not to exceed $4,000 it was stated.

Ald. Lally said his committee would meet with the project engineers on June 7th, and he expected something concrete would be ready for presentation to council later in the month.

The move may still be years away but the Belleville and Sidney Planning Board will be asked to consider proposals for the re-location of the CPR mainline through or around the city.

City council finance committee chairman Ben Corke said the idea of re-locating the railway tracks was an interesting one, but suggested if the proposal was far enough advanced to saddle the planning board offices with extra duties. He said the board was busy enough as it was with other work.

Alderman Jack Deacon admitted he did not see the track relocation happening overnight but felt it was not too soon to consider proposals.

He said a council committee had met with CPR officials, who had been sympathetic with the idea of re-locating as a lot the tracks through the city and had asked that someone bring in a proposal for track re-location.

Alderman Doug Boyle said the added duties would not overload the planning board office, noting that offices personnel had recently been relieved of considerable work by the committee of adjustment.

The idea of re-locating the CPR mainline tracks was suggested to council some weeks ago by Alderman Jack Allin and a report was therefore headed by Alderman Deacon was named to investigate.

To Keep Works Building Clean

When you acquire new buildings, you've got to keep them clean.

This has been found out by the city public works department which recently moved into new quarters on Wallbridge Crescent.

City council last night approved the tender of Hunt Bros. Ltd. in the amount of $168.85 per month for janitorial service at the new city yards building.

At the former location in Foster Ward it seems no contracted janitorial service was required.

Guitarists Compete at Niagara Falls

"Music Festivals are so worthwhile, win or lose, they give the young student confidence. Learning to do something well gives them self reliance," said Mrs. Mary Gatsby of Chicago, adjudicator of the Hawaiian and Spanish Guitar Section of the Niagara Falls Kiwanis Music Festival. The guitar sessions were held Friday and Saturday at Niagara Falls Collegiate Institute.

The adjudicator said the competitors all showed promise but they must never cease to practise technique. He felt the choice of music for these classes was satisfactory.

A bus load from the area attended the festival under the leadership of the Provincial Conservatory of Music, James Burgess and C. B. Reed. Those attending from Napanee, Belleville, Trenton, Campbellford and Madoc were:

Wayne Kelly, Ricky Kimmerley, Roger Crandedaire, Ronald Kimmerley, Gary Shantz, Ronald Presley, John VanSlyke, Wilma Lee Frost, VanSteenbergen, Linda Reynolds, Craig Gatsby, Gary Gatsby, Ronald Scott, Karen Hall, Ellen and Johnny Payne, Wayne Shenry, Wayne Hyatt, Bob Curry, Peter Beaupre, Ronald Bellamy, Brian Brown, David Peers, Allan Fenton, Jeffrey and Don Jones, Ev Reid and John Day.

The bus party was billeted at the Fallsway Motor Hotel near the Falls. The students were able to visit many points of interest despite the heavy festival schedule. These included the War Museum, the Antique Auto Museum and a tour of the Falls. Beautiful gardens were also beautiful. The festival was a success for all attending.

City Holds Memberships In 15 Assocs.

The city of Belleville is not anything if it is not a "joiner".

At least 15 memberships in no less than 15 different associations with membership fees ranging the way from a lowly $2.00 to $125.00 which is the city's cost for belonging to the Ontario Municipal Association.

The list of associations to which the city belongs was prepared for council by city personnel officer A. L. Jobey in connection with the setting up of a proposed policy for associations memberships and attendance at conventions by city officials.

Police Service, Good... Subject of Talk to Kiwanians

Inspector Ralph Hatchford was guest speaker at the annual Kiwanis Father and Son Day. He spoke on police service and the Belleville Police Department.

"Police service is one of the oldest vocations known to man," he said. "It dates back to the biblical account of Abel and Cain when it became apparent man wasn't going to live without immunity to others.

"Through the ages the various tribes and kingdoms had their armies for the protection of their kingdoms from the outside, but also for protection inside the group.

"During the time of Oliver Cromwell, the army stepped out of the local protective responsibilities and a kind of police department took over. Then in 1829, Sir Robert Peel formed the London Metropolitan Police Department.

The first policemen were not exactly popular with the local populace and it was somewhat fashionable to throw stones and rotten eggs at them as a show of contempt. This practice resulted in the manufacturing of the English bobby's helmet."

The inspector pointed out for the benefit of the children present that the Belleville Police Department hopes youngsters will grow up with a healthy attitude towards the police and that the Department does its best to foster this attitude.

He said that today police means many things to many people. "To some it means fears, to others hope, or it may mean an out and out enemy, a very real friend, a necessary evil, a cause for high taxes or an official bill-joy."

POLICE EDUCATION

"A few years ago policemen tended to be stereotyped. They used to fit a size 38 or 40 uniform.

"Now recruits are tested, put through the paces and sent to the Ontario Police College. They must be intelligent, honest and forthright. We require recruits to have a Grade XII education.

"Recruits are taught many things, such as how to put on a uniform, how to blow a whistle, the right way, how to walk into an alley at night and walk out again, how to stop a man on a street and how to reappear.

"They are taught to walk down the street close to the curb in the day and close to the buildings at night.

"They must know everything about their working area. They must know for example how every commercial door opens, whether in or out."

Inspector Blachford said that there are many jobs a policeman must do. The safety of a city is not only interested in speed, but he checks such things as that all doors open, do the tires look safe, or are there any stolen goods in the back seat.

"Only last week an officer in Belleville saw a child had fallen from the back seat of the car to the floor, and unknown to the father who was driving, had injured himself. The officer stopped the car and the child was taken to receive medical attention."

The speaker pointed out that policemen are bound by a very high code of ethics. "Just as the ecclesiastical people are called upon to protect the spiritual well-being of man, a policeman must look after the temporal well-being of man.

"A policeman has four main duties: to preserve peace and order; to protect life and property; to investigate offences; and to apprehend offenders. Never must a policeman sit in judgment.

JUST A CITIZEN

"A policeman is not just another citizen. He is a symbol of honest, fidelity and honor both in and out of uniform. He must work with the public. He must acknowledge that the law be enforces in the best interests of the people and not just the law of a certain clique.

"A policeman must make many quick decisions without prejudice and personal feelings coming in. He must accept criticism without benefit and claiming his side of the story. He must learn to live even temperment and be prepared to meet every eventuality and face every kind of situation.

The inspector concluded on a note to the children that "if, like in the little things that count, such as paying attention to dad and helping him and doing what he says, you will grow up to be a fine citizen.

"And a word of caution to dad . . . 'We can't forget about it when these little things wrong, but we can help. If you or your family get into some kind of trouble, don't be afraid, we are there to help."

Council Again Asks Details Before Issuing Debenture

Members of city council still want the public utilities commission to explain in detail the cost details of their proposed new works and garage building to be constructed in the Sidney-College street area.

Council has been asked to issue utilities debentures in the amount of $300,000 for the building, but before it does so, city fathers want details and also want to know what effect its construction will have on water rates.

Council two weeks ago made a similar request but were advised preliminary sketches and detailed drawings were still not completed; that the tender call was not expected until late June and that construction would not be completed before Spring 1970.

PUC SETS OUT DETAILS

When the building is completed the commission would be happy to explain to council the outline of the building and what effects its construction will have on water rates, the letter said.

Aldermen Doug Boyle said he strongly protested the utilities' reply to the council request which, he said was "putting the cart a long way before the horse."

He said that council wanted to have some indication of the type of "tai mahal" for which it was expected to issue debentures for $300,000.

But Aldermen Don Jose felt the utilities had mis-interpreted the council request for information, and presented a motion calling for specific details before issuing of debentures.

The motion was carried.

IN MEMORIAM

MERRICK — In fond and loving memory of my dear mother, Edith Eliz. Merrick, who passed away May 28, 1964.

God took mother was suffering,
God knew his work here was hard to climb,
He saw her tired, He saw her trying,
And whispered "Peace, child, Come."
Away in the beautiful hills of glory
By the Rock of Ages she will be,
Some time, some day, we know not where,
But we will meet our loved one there.
—Lovingly remembered by her daughter, Mary Warman.

MACABRE JOKE is believed reason behind drowning scare in Moira River caused by discovery of mannequin recovered by police sergeant Roy Milligan and plainclothes officer Don Yearwood.

More Land Bought for Conservation

The Moira River Conservation Authority property continues to grow with approximately 13,810 acres now under its control.

This spring the Authority executive committee approved the purchase of an additional 640 acres of submarginal land. Of this, 172 acres are in Huntingdon leaving 15 acres in Wellington and 128 acres in Marmora township.

All of this land is under forest management agreement with the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. To date, the Department has planted approximately two and a half million trees on Authority property.

Council Agrees In Principle to Central Jail

Belleville city council yesterday agreed in principle for city participation in the construction of a regional detention unit proposed for the Napanee area.

The proposal is for a four county regional jail to be built to serve the requirements of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac, Kingston, Belleville and Trenton are also invited to participate.

Cost of the jail to each municipality would be on a daily use basis, based on the previous year's occupancy.

Store Mannequin in River Raises Drowning Alarm, Think It Deliberate Prank

A macabre-minded prankster, trading on three recent drowning tragedies to cull a laugh, last night was blamed for raising fears of a fourth death in the Moira River.

Police rushed to Victoria Park where an alarmed passerby spotted what seemed a child's body in the river, south of the CPR bridge.

Arrived on the scene, relieved officers found they had retrieved a child-like store mannequin from the water.

"The way it was floating in the river, it looked like a child's nude body," said one officer who helped recover the mannequin.

Last week two adults and a child were drowned in at many days in the Victoria Park area.

"It looks like somebody was trading on the fact to raise a few laughs," the officer.

The discovery was not made before a large crowd had gathered in the area—several of them drawn by a call from a passing boat using a ship-shore radio citizen's band hookup.

Police now are seeking the identity of the unknown joker. Such pranks, they warn, can lead to charges of public mischief.

East Bank of Moira Will Be Surveyed Again

What was termed as "the most surveyed area of the city" — the riverside behind Front Street stores — is to get still another survey.

City council last night authorized Ransom and Watson, Ontario Land Surveyors, to prepare a plan showing all properties on the west side of Front Street from Bridge Street to the old Foley Foundry at a total estimated cost of $1,200.

Several aldermen complained that a survey had already been authorized for the Cawker property on Front Street but Alderman J. Deacon said the $1,200 cost included the Cawker survey.

Alderman Enos David said this riverside section of the city must be the most surveyed area in the municipality, noting that 40 or more years ago there were plans for a riverside drive which never did materialize.

Also last night council authorized the expropriation proceedings for the purchase of portions of eight North or East Street properties to provide for additional right of way width for the re-construction of this artery.

At the same time council accepted the tender of Caten Construction Ltd. at $76,478 for the rebuilding of North Front Street from the railway bridge to Craig Street. The Caten tender was the lowest of three received, and was approximately $4,000 more than the cost estimated by the city works department.

The above figure is exclusive of land acquisition and certain other costs.

CHARLES STREETS

Alderman Don Joss complained that street rebuilding was being neglected in the city, drawing attention to Pinnacle Street and North Front Street to 401 highway, which he said were a "disgrace."

He said consideration should be given to re-allocation of capital works money to speed up the street rebuilding program.

Alderman Enos David came to the support of the city engineering department which he said was proceeding as fast as possible with street rebuilding plans.

Financial Aid for Poor To Be Raised Says Paper

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says Ontario will increase direct financial assistance to the poor by 15 per cent.

While there has been no public announcement other than a reference in the Ontario Gazette, the paper says "Welfare Minister Louis Cecile confirmed in an interview that regulations of the General Welfare Assistance Act have been changed by the provincial cabinet."

The paper says the changes "will increase the maximum welfare assistance payment for families from $3,000 to $3,800. In addition, a family may receive hospital and medical services and family allowance."

The paper listed three other changes:

—"An increase of 15 per cent in most of the 90 categories set out for food allowances.

—"A jump of $10 a month in allowance for heated premises (to $85) and of $11.50 a month for unheated quarters (to $76.50);

—"An increase in the maximum allowed families for shelter, food, clothing and household incidentals (to $300 a month from about $255) and a more flexible approach to the amounts within that total being provided to each categ[illegible]."

The new rate changes "will increase the maximum welfare assistance payment for families from $3,000 to $3,800. In addition, a family may receive hospital and medical services and family allowance."

The paper listed three other changes:

—"An increase of 15 per cent in most of the 90 categories set out for food allowances.

Grand Council Of Cryptic Rite Masons to Meet

On Friday and Saturday the Royal and Select Masters of Ontario will hold their 65th annual assembly in Belleville where Cryptic Rite Masons from all over Ontario will assemble in the Masonic Temple to put their affairs in order and elect the officers of their Grand Council for another year. Here is the home of Zabad Council, several distinguished Masons from the States of Ohio, Michigan and New York will be present to bring fraternal greetings and good will from their respective jurisdictions.

Belleville Masons are proud of having the finest Shrine Club in Ontario and Zabad Council has arranged to hold the reception of the Grand Master, most illustrious Companion, Bruce H. Smith, on Friday evening for all Select Masters, their wives and friends in this well appointed rendezvous. Here, also, preceding the reception will be held the deliberations of the Grand Executive.

On Saturday there will be a luncheon for the ladies in the Hotel Quinte and the annual banquet will be held in the Masonic Temple in the evening. This will be the first time that the Grand Council has assembled in the Bay of Quinte District.

Noise Rules Out Land for Senior Citizens

City owned North Front Street property acquired at the time of land acquisition for the new overhead railway bridge, will not be used for senior citizens housing as was expected.

Alderman Doug Boyle, chairman of the special committee on senior housing, yesterday told council that the North Front property in the area—several of them drawn by a call from a passing boat using a ship-shore radio citizen's band hookup.

Police now are seeking the identity of the unknown joker. Such pranks, they warn, can lead to charges of public mischief.

The Mayor Dines In Regal Style

Mayor Jack Ellis missed yesterday's regular meeting of city council.

The reason for his absence was that he was dining with royalty.

Mayor and Mrs. Ellis were in Toronto where they attended the dinner given by Lieut-Governor Earl Rowe and Mrs. Rowe, for the Shah of Iran and Empress Farah.

Near Flinton

Moira Conservation Plans New Reservoir

With the view of improving still further both the quantity and quality of water during summer flow periods in the Moira River, the Moira River Conservation Authority is planning construction of a second reservoir on the Skootsamatta River near Flinton.

The engineering survey for the project has now been completed and will be presented to the Authority by the end of May.

Due to high run-off this spring the Authority is keeping a close watch on the Lingham Lake reservoir on the Black River north of Cooper.

On 13th the reservoir was filled to the 18.11 foot mark. At this level the reservoir contained 25,100 acre feet of water with approximately 15,000 acre-feet available for release to augment flow during dry summer months.

DAM READY

The reservoir is presently discharging about 65 cubic feet of water per second.

The Moira Lake control dam, which was constructed in the fall of 1964, is to be put into operation this summer. Moira Lake is presently only a few inches above the suggested control level. Thus, the stop-logs will be installed within the next few weeks. The augmented water level on Moira Lake will improve the Lake's recreational potential and water quality as well as augment low flow in the fall when the water is released. Discussions were held at a meeting of Moira Lake cottagers in Tweed on May 24, 1965, on the subject of control dams for the outlet of Stoco Lake.

Medal Winners At Festival To Give Concert

A concert of interest in music lovers in this community will be put on by the boys from Belleville who competed in the Kiwanis Festival held in Peterborough recently.

The soloist will be Paul Scott, Graham Brooks, Martin Brown, and Denton Lewis all of whom were medalists at the Peterborough Festival.

Mr. Stephen Chuma will chair the program, which commences at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 29th, at the Citadel, 256 Pinnacle St.

Pleads Guilty To Lesser Count, Fined $75

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, Dumont Dawson of R. R. 1, Carrying Place, had a charge of being in charge of a motor vehicle while intoxicated reduced to being in charge of the vehicle while his ability was impaired by alcohol, pleaded guilty to the lesser charge and was fined $75 and ordered to pay court costs.

A witness for the defence, Wm. Latour, formerly of Carrying Place and now a Trenton resident, said he had known Mr. Dawson all his life and that in his opinion, Mr. Dawson was not intoxicated in the early morning hours of April 1, when he was picked up by Trenton police, parked in his car just off the Carrying Place Road.

Mr. Latour said he and Mr. Dawson had been at a cribbage match in Trenton and that Mr. Dawson had driven him home.

The Dawson car was found parked in Belleville for the past 11 years. His election as conference head was made at Kingston at the church organization's annual meeting.

Others elected were: Secretary, Rev. J. Newton Reed, Sunderland; treasurer, Rev. Oscar E. Wagar, Belleville; statistician, Rev. Ellis E. Long, Orono, and archivist-historian, Rev. William Lamb, Cataraqui.

Grand Display Of Fireworks At Point Anne

A large attendance witnessed a grand display of fireworks on Monday evening at Canada Cement Company, Ball Park, Point Anne.

The display, which was sponsored by the Point Anne Fire Department under the direction of Chief Fred Clarke, was one of the best seen to date, with the aerial display being most outstanding.

Mr. Legate, Plant Superintendent, welcomed all present and door prizes were drawn for by Neville Burroughs, Assistant Superintendent, the winners being, William Lane, B. French, Linda Hull, Mrs. Elvin Foster, Wayne Giles, George Ashley, Carrie Dafoe, Mrs. Lasher, John Moore and Ervine Morton. The Cadet Division of St. John Ambulance Brigade, under the supervision of Divisional Superintendent Jack Sproules, were on hand to render first aid, but the evening went by without mishap, which of course, is one of the main purposes of displays of this sort, safety, particularly to children.

Rev. H. Davis New President Of Conference

Rev. Harry M. Davis, minister at Bridge Street United Church, Tuesday was elected president of the Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada. He succeeds Rev. Robert M. McLean of Lindsay.

A native of Pool's Island, Newfoundland, Mr. Davis has been minister at Bridge Street United Church in Belleville for the past 11 years. His election as conference head was made at Kingston at the church organization's annual meeting.

Others elected were: Secretary, Rev. J. Newton Reed, Sunderland; treasurer, Rev. Oscar E. Wagar, Belleville; statistician, Rev. Ellis E. Long, Orono, and archivist-historian, Rev. William Lamb, Cataraqui.

'Hidden Hole' Tourney Held

TRENTON — The RCAF ladies' golf section held a "Hidden Hole" tournament on Tuesday and prizes were given for low score on second hole and high score on eighth.

Winners at No. 2 Hole were Audrey Brown, Rita Campbell, Muriel Fawcett, Fran King and Helen Pigden.

Winners at No. Eight Hole were Betty Walker, Hazel Hodgkinson, Laura Miller, Peggy Black and Margaret Refuse.

A two-ball foursome will be held on June 1.

Chamber Draws Four Visitors To District

TRENTON — In January of this year, Nostrand Sprague, the secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, answered a query about Trenton and waterways in this area from C. K. Hopkins of Riverside, Calif. Several letters were exchanged, and last weekend, Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins and their friends, Dr. and Mrs. J. Haskin Brono, Calif., motored the Spragues and had coffee at the Sprague residence on Shuter Street.

The Hopkins are travelling in a house "camper" on the back of a half-ton truck, towing their 20-foot cruiser behind them. They had travelled across the U.S., from east to west, taken a side trip to Copenhagen, Denmark, before proceeding to Trenton.

The Hopkins and their friends are now on the Trent Canal, (they'll be towed around the lift lock at Peterborough, which is under repair), and the "camper" is parked in Sprague's back yard.

WOMAN CONSUL NAMED

EDMONTON (CP) — Francoise Degive Cairns, a doctor's wife, has been appointed Alberta's consul for Belgium. The only woman consul in the province, Mrs. Cairns was born in Brussels. She met Dr. Cairns in Vienna on United Nations duty, and has been vice-consul in Edmonton since 1956.

DON'T WANT LAUGHTER

SIDXOUTH, England (CP)— The Manor Estates Committee has banned Punch and Judy from the beach of this Devonshire resort this summer. They say they don't want the town's "quiet and repose" spoilt by the sound of children's laughter.

Hold Annual Inspection Of Sea Cadets

TRENTON — Lt. Commander W. W. Bowslfield, RCN, commander of sea cadets for Canada reviewed 295 members of the Trenton Sea Cadet Corps RCSCC "Trent" in the annual inspection ceremony at the community gardens last night. He was accompanied on his review by the local commander Lt. Gerald Farn, Lt. J. Jackson, area sea cadet officer and Lt. James Christ, of the Navy League of Canada.

Following the review a drill squad, under the leadership of Petty Officer First Class, Eric Bent, performed, "followed by a seamanship demonstration led by Petty Officer Second Class Michael Desjardins and precision squad review, led by Petty Officer Second Class Clifford Reid. Ushers were troop leaders of the Third Trenton Scout Troop, whose leader Scoutmaster Ralph Stapley.

Mrs. Vera Milligan, president of the cadet corps ladies' auxiliary presented an award to Clifford Reid, "cadet of the year". Lt.-Com. Bowslfield presented an award to P.O. R. Cyr teau who received it on behalf of No. 1 division, and the "division on parade" and Lt. Croxford received an award for best attendance.

After the review, the Trenton Sea Cadet Band, under the leadership of Sgt. Howard Kelly performed for the many friends and parents of the cadets, at the conclusion of the drill in the upper auditorium.

Present at the review was Major James MacDonald and Miss Marjorie Gothard, National League representative for Trenton.

Over the Hump

If the family's chariot swings too low, it may be carrying its occupants to the hospital, or the grave, rather than home.

That is the suspicion which has led the Canadian Good Roads Association to call for fresh research into the question of sight lines for motorists approaching the crest of a hill. Present standards are based on the assumption that the average driver's eyes are 4½ feet from the road surface when he sits at the wheel. This may have been true in the forties, when the assumption was made, but today's cars, even the standard models, are lower. Should the accidental hazard is for the motorist slouched over the wheel of an imported sports car we shudder to think. There are, however, two factors influencing the effect of lower-sight lines. One is better braking power. Offsetting this is the unbroken trend towards higher highway speeds.

Perhaps, we shall find that the safest car was the old Model T Ford. Sight lines were certainly high enough in that car; looking down at the road as it rolled away below the driver sometimes felt as if he was sitting on a stepladder. The old Ford, though, had to contend with hills which went straight up, with sudden knolls which seemed too small to justify the expense of removal. Even in those days, coming over the top of one of these knolls could provide the driver with an unpleasant surprise, in the shape of an oncoming car or, even worse, a herd of cows. Some of these knolls still exist on back roads in the hinterland. If the Model T driver had difficulties, think of what the driver of one of today's low-slung cars has to face, when he drives up one of these humps, his eyes seeing nothing but sky, and then has his car nose down to reveal a previously undetectable obstacle. No wonder is not that accidents themselves occur on these back roads, but that they are comparatively few.

We do not know whether Canadian highway design standards are proper for today's long, low-slung automobiles, to pose the question contained in a pamphlet published by the Canadian Good Roads Association. We do know, however, that back-concession standards do not fit today's cars or, in the alternative, that today's cars do not fit back-concession roads.

Mohawk Ceremony

The chiefs were there, in their regalia, accompanied by their womenfolk and the scouts and the guides, the latter sporting smart headbands and feathers in their hair.

The scene was Deseronto, by the lakeside, last Sunday. Sharp at 9.30 a.m. the group formed up. Then a solitary Mounties added a further splash of color to the procession as, led by chief bearing the Union Jack, the Indians trudged up the grassy slope, across the road and over to the stone obelisk in the park under the trees.

The canoe which the other chiefs had borne from the water's edge was placed at the foot of the monument. It was a simple yet profoundly moving ceremony, commemorating the arrival, May 22, 1784, under the leadership of Chief John Deserontoyou, Aaron Hill and Isaac Hill, of a group of Mohawks of the Iroquois Confederacy expelled from their homes in the Mohawk Valley for their "fidelity to the unity of the Empire" during the American revolution.

The Union Jack was hoisted and a wreath laid. A short religious ceremony followed and some of the youngsters on parade fidgeted as young people will on such occasions.

Then the assembled company proceeded to Christ Church, set on a wooded hill overlooking the inland waters below. Members of the choir took their seats, chatting on the tree-shaded pathway leading to the church entrance.

It was a scene of rare tranquility and beauty, tradition had been followed in the quietude of this rural scene, ancestors remembered and prayers enjoined for those who maintain a proud lineage. And for those who watched, Indian and European, there were the memories of what went before, and the hopes that may be realized for the betterment of all races in this great land.

The girls nowadays display a shocking freedom; but they were partly led into it by the relative laxity of their mothers who, in their turn, are great anxiety to a still earlier generation.—Osmond Closse in The Whole Duty of Woman.

Beer Drinking and Diets Don't Mix Says Doctor

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband and I disagree over the calories in liquor and beer. The doctor put him on a reducing diet but didn't mention alcohol.

My husband thinks I'm just telling him they have so many calories because I don't want him to drink. — Mrs. B.

Many fat people have this misconception about alcohol. The fact is that alcohol is high in calories. No matter how you slice it, fat is the result of absorbing more calories than the body uses up.

A bottle of beer runs about 120 calories; a jigger of whisky about 85 calories; cocktails about 185. Highballs made with water or soda will represent only the calories of the liquor in them. If they are made with ginger ale, cola or other sweet mixes, the calorie value may be twice as much. This depends on whether it's a tall drink.

If your husband figures somewhere around 350 calories per drink, he can do the arithmetic. If he is on a 1,000-calorie diet, one drink means 10 percent of his food allowance for the day.

And don't let him be fooled by the so-called drinking man's diet. A calorie is a calorie.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a mole on my face, and when I shave that because bleeding hemorrhoids are present, that it is impossible for me to stop the bleeding. Complete examination is the only way to be sure, and I am. — Mrs. R.

Dear Dr. Molner: If a man has an "extracurricular" affair only several times, could his wife contract a disease from him? I have noticed that I have had a few rashes and sores. They come away but then come back, but not as bad.

Now I've noticed that my wife is breaking out with these rashes, and she has also complained about vaginal itching. She does not know about my affair. I have heard that there are no visible sores or symptoms for syphilis, and that only a blood test would show the disease. Is this true? — C. J. T.

You can get syphilis from just one contact with some woman who has the disease. You can then give it to your wife.

From your description, I don't think the rash indicates syphilis, but I have no idea whether you do or don't have it, or whether you have given it to your wife. The original sign is a painless sore, at the point at which the germ enters. If only it were a very painful sore, then we'd control this disease better!

In your case, I suspect that you may have taken home some sort of skin infection, and possibly some form of vaginitis. I suggest that you have a medical examination at once, to be followed by one for your wife. Itches and rashes may not be syphilis, but they need being taken care of, too.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can plastic surgery correct a congenital deformity such as a cleft lip? That is, can it be made whole? — C. D. H.

Your question isn't as simple as it appears.

Some congenital defects (such as cleft lip, receding chins, nose that are too big or too small, ears that stick out, etc.) can be corrected by plastic surgery. Some others can't.

If your interest is in just the one defect, cleft lip (or, more accurately, cleft palate) the answer is yes. It is best to have it repaired in infancy.

No Machine Capable of Detecting Lie

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

About a year ago, I wrote a column on "lie detector tests," in which I suggested that too much reliance was being placed both on the machine and on the human beings who operate it. I further suggested that no one should voluntarily take such a test, if results were going to be regarded as conclusive.

The column was bitterly attacked on many grounds, but principally because it was "anti-scientific" — which, in modern parlance, is as bad as being "anti-religious" 300 years ago. Actually, I was accusing the lie-detector machine itself of being "anti-scientific," since it is being used for a purpose it cannot fulfill.

Now, in the May issue of "Scientific American," that highly respected journal, there is a report of a Congressional committee investigating the polygraph "lie detector" tests, which refuting I wrote in that piece. The committee not only cast serious doubt on the validity of the tests, but it also investigates the Federal Government for their indiscriminate application."

After taking testimony from private operators, government officials, a panel of scientists, and questioning 58 Federal agencies about their lie-detector practices, the committee concluded:

"There is no 'lie detector, neither machine nor human. People have been decebed by a myth that a metal box in the hands of an investigator can detect truth or falsehood."

As the journal pointed out, the machine merely records a person's respiration, blood pressure pulse and galvanic skin response; these "may or may not be connected with any emotional reaction — and that reaction may or may not be related to guilt or innocence." Further, it is possible to "beat" the machine, "and it is quite possible for the machine to implicate a person who is not in fact lying."

The Congressional committee strongly urged that the Federal government immediately ban the use of the machines in all but "the most serious security and criminal cases." It found that those who administer the tests are "generally unqualified and requested a number of steps be taken to protect the rights of people subjected to investigation.

Society used to duck accused people in ponds: if they rose and swam to safety, they were presumed innocent; if they sank, they were presumed guilty. This was a perverted theological test and the polygraph is a perverted scientific test with about as much validity for determining "truth" and "falsehood" as ducking was for determining "innocence" and "guilt." The machinery is more expensive, elaborate, and pretentious; but the human fallibility remains the same as in the era of witchcraft.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

May 28, 1965 . . .

Samuel Pepys, the great English diarist, died 262 years ago today—1703—aged 70. He had been the equivalent of the minister of food during the Great Plague of 1666, when he was one of only three members in the government who did not flee London. In 1686 he reorganized the Royal Navy along modern lines and restored its efficiency, for wrought his life. Pepys stood by his friends, although some (including his wife) were Roman Catholics, and he was several times imprisoned and falsely accused of complicity in "popish plots."

1965 — Coronation of Napoleon Bonaparte as king of Italy.

1954—Lionel Conacher, Canadian sportsman and MP, died.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — the British battleship Triumph was sunk in the Dardanelles; the British submarine E-11 torpedoed a troopship in Constantinople harbor; a Zeppelin raided Southend, on the Thames estuary in England.

second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940 — General Sir Maud Ironside as commander of British Expeditional General Staff; the British Empire observed a day of prayer; the British destroyer Wessex was sunk off France; Prime Ministers Reynaud and Churchill conferred at a secret rendezvous in France.

Re-using Water Advocated

Kenora City Star

One of these years, we are frequently reminded, the world in general and the U.S. in particular are going to be short of water.

One Senate committee report, for example, estimated that available supply by 1980 at 600 billion gallons daily and the consumption at one billion. Obviously, with the steady growth of demand, the nation's tap would be running dry not long afterward.

But these figures contain an all too-frequent error of such projections: They make no allowance for re-use.

The millions of gallons employed for cooling by electric generating stations and other industrial processes are not consumed; most of this water returns to the river, often with negligible loss in quality. And, of course, the bulk of the municipal water goes down the sewer drain and back to the stream, though it may now be considerably polluted.

The broad progress being made in finding effective pollution abatement offers one of the most solid hopes of holding off that future day of shortage: Cleaning and re-using the water supply we now have.

This recovery process, already far along in construction, may prove a simpler, sounder answer to the situation than some of the more far-out ideas now being proposed.

Research into desalinization of sea water is being supported by the U.S. and other nations, notably Russia and Israel. There are suggestions for searching out and tapping the great underground lakes believed to exist beneath the earth's surface. And there are enormously costly schemes for transport of water, such as diverting some of the Columbia River to the Canadian Northwest into the dry American Southwest.

British Columbia officials, at a Montreal conference on water land recently, let it be known in good-natured fashion that, however last their water supplies situation, they weren't about to give it away over the border without something very substantial in return.

While the idea of re-used water is not as aesthetically appealing as capturing the virgin flow from the north woods, it is possible to restore quite adequate quality to such water.

Technical improvements in two-stage treatment of sewage (most cities are just now getting started on primary treatment only) before discharging the effluent into the river are joined by better methods of purification at the water works where the river is tapped for new supply.

Moreover, water has a remarkable natural quality for cleansing itself to a degree, due by flowing in the fresh air and sunshine.

Recapturing — perhaps several times over—may prove a more practical future answer to water shortage than all the grandiose plans to tap new sources.

Liberal or Protestant?

Cobourg Sentinel-Star

A Canadian writer was entitled for one of his recent efforts by a university undergraduate who penned a missile to him with the caustic question:

"Are you Liberal or Protestant?"

The query intrigued this editor.

Was the undergraduate treating a matter of fact at federal politics in Canada?

It was a coincidence . . . for in the mail that day was a copy of the 1965 Liberal Parliamentary Guide. This work contains condensed detail on Provincial and Federal houses of parliament and its members. It is edited by Pierre G. Normandin, with the patronage of Speakers and of the Legislatures of the various Provinces.

In the book is the dossier of each federal and provincial member. In the House of Commons, there are 264 members, with concise references to each riding representative, his education, his politics, and his region.

• • •

Are you Liberal or Protestant? This is what we learned . . .

Ninety-five Roman Catholic members constitute a majority in the House of Commons.

Fifty-nine members of the United Church are federal members; thirty-four are from the Church of England; fourteen are without church affiliation.

Other members of political groups: Presbyterians, include, eighteen Presbyterians, ten "Protestants", eight Baptists, three Unitarians, two Lutherans, four Jews, Two Greek Orthodox, one Ukrainian Orthodox, one Christian Science, one Mormon, one Church of the Nazarene; one "Christian", and one Salvation Army.

Roman Catholics do predominate in parliament with ninety-five members; thirty-six are Liberal Catholics, thirteen Social Credit Rally Catholics, eleven Progressive Conservative Catholics, and five Social Credit Party Catholics.

The United Church gives its strongest support to Progressive Conservative parliamentary members. There eighteen United Church Liberals, three United Church Social Credit Rally followers and one Social Credit.

Progressive Conservative Anglicans head the second federal group with eighteen, followed by fourteen Liberal-Anglicans two NDP's, and a total Independent.

Although residents of Canada for ten years, a Dutch man and wife were refused Canadian citizenship because they refused belief in God. It is ironic to note, whether the law is repealed or not, that at the time of the reflection nineteen members of the House of Commons were unlisted as to any religious affiliation, member, Pauline Jewett. Eight Liberals and one in each category, seven NDP, and four PC.

Presbyterians total eighteen, with eleven Liberals and seven Progressive Conservatives. Fifteen who answer to the misnomer, "Protestant", are five the PC ranks, four Liberals, and one Social Credit.

New Democratic Leader, Tommy Douglas, and the leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, The Right Honorable John G. Diefenbaker, are Baptists; this complement including three PC's, three Liberals, one SC and one NDP.

Toronto Tely columnist and member for Port Arthur, Douglas Fisher, is a Unitarian, accompanied by two NDP fellowers and one Progressive Conservative. Four Lutherans, all PC, and one a Social Credit member, Erhard A. Olson, Medicine Hat, Alberta.

• • •

To add to the cosmopolitan company at Ottawa are four Jews, three of whom are Liberals: Marvin Gelber, York South, Metro Toronto; M. Klein, Cartier, Quebec; H. E. Gray, Essex West, Ontario, and one NDP, S. M. Saltzman, Waterloo South, Ontario.

Greek Orthodox citizens are members of Parliament, both PC, J. N. Madziuk, Mercier, Quebec, and W. Skoryko, Edmonton East, Alberta.

Social Credit member A. B. Patterson, from Fraser Valley, B.C. is a member of The Church of the Nazarene; and a NDP man from Timiskaming, Ontario, W. A. Peters, labels himself as a "Christian".

The remaining members on the House of Commons listing are Unitarians, and include (two): Michael Starr, Oshawa, Ontario, Ukrainian Orthodox; Dr. J. Slogan, Portage-Neepawa, Manitoba, a Mennonite.

• • •

Prime Minister of Canda, the Right Honorable Lester Bowles Pearson, is a member of the United Church. As Liberal leader he is dominated by the precedence of all Liberals in Public following, while his Church favors Progressive Conservatives.

When the university undergraduate comes up with the quip, "Are You Liberal Or Protestant?" with the evidence we have supplied, can you reply?

"Are you Progressive Conservative of Roman Catholic?"

Toen-Age Marriage

Victoria Times

Obviously Canadians have not yet begun to find a solution for the prevailing unhappiness by the teen-age marriage. Unless the country is reconciled to the increasing trouble arising from broken and unsatisfactory homes, drastic measures will have to be launched for a remedy. Perhaps compulsory premarriage counselling for certain age groups would be a beginning.

From Ottawa comes the information that there are now—and more than 25,000 Canadian soldiers, sailor and airmen stationed overseas, and about 7,500 of their wives and children already have been brought to Canada.

Figures compiled by Defence Headquarters show that 21,208 officers and 3,300 women have married in the United Kingdom. An RCAF spokesman explained that the airforce figure was "approximate" because servicemen were marrying daily and it was impossible to obtain up-to-the-minute figures.

As for the navy, latest information is not available but up to last October the total was 477.

The majority of Canadian overseas marriages have occurred in the United Kingdom but Canadian soldiers also have found wives in Newfoundland, Jamaica, Australia, British Guiana, Russia, South Africa, Belgium, Russia, Bermuda and Egypt and the Middle East.

Such Great Fun

Oakville Journal-Record

A lot of humor has been generated by politics. Largely it is humor of the double-edged edge, signifying nothing except to the skin skinned, like the observation that it takes two to have four years between elections; it takes people that long to regain their faith. And that the trick in politics is to give the people platitudes without fear and favor and refrain from the shoulder gandrallies. Politics need the relief only humor can give; humor is politics' salvation.

Desire of U. S. to Have Alaska Highway Paved May Get Canada Corridor

OTTAWA (CP) — Growing American desire to see the Alaska Highway paved may provide Canada with a lever to obtaining corridors to the sea in the Pacific Northwest.

Canadian and American legislators talked over the situation last week at meetings of the United States - Canada interparliamentary group. The Americans were reported to have reacted favorably to Canadian proposals.

The Canadian aim is access to the Pacific Coast through the Alaska Panhandle, a 150-mile-wide strip of land which stretches southward down the Pacific Coast for almost 500 miles.

The panhandle effectively blocks the Canadian Yukon and northern British Columbia interior from sea access, said to be essential to large-scale lumbering, hydro power and mining development now under way or planned behind the panhandle barrier.

The Alaska Highway meanders from Dawson Creek, B.C., in northeastern British Columbia through the Yukon and into American territory in Alaska.

Basis of the American interest in paving the highway is a study of the economy of the state of Alaska which recommends first emphasis on tourist trade.

Tourist traffic into Alaska now rattles almost exclusively on coastal vessels. The gravelled Alaska Highway, built as a Second World War defence road, could provide a more important tourist link.

The Americans have let Canada know that the U.S. is willing to foot almost any reasonable bill for paving the lengthy Canadian sections in B.C. and the Yukon.

The group of American legislators, which included 12 senators and 11 members of the House of Representatives, was told politely by their Canadian counterparts that Canada is more interested in corridors through the panhandle.

The U.S. delegation is said to have been so anxious to see the Alaska Highway paved that it would have ceded Canada several panhandle corridors if it had been empowered to negotiate.

The committee is to report by early summer, providing a basis for government-to-government negotiation.

LBJ Would Ban Billboards From Along Busy Highways

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asks Congress today for legislation to beautify roadsides and to ban billboards and auto junkyards from busy highways.

The presidential request—four separate bills—follows by a day the conclusion of a White House conference on natural beauty. But there are signs the billboard bill will stir up controversy in Congress.

Chairman Laurance Rockefeller and four panelists had reported to the president some of the scores of recommendations for expansion of scenic highways, protection of waters, reclaiming lands and wildlife and a need to educate Americans on nature's beauties.

Two of the president's bills would require the use of $320,000,000 in highway funds for landscaping, beautification, scenic roads and recreation along the nation's road system.

CUT OUT BILLBOARDS

Johnson hopes to eliminate existing billboards by 1970 on the network of 230,000 miles of federal-aid primary roads and the completed 20,000 miles of the planned 41,000-mile interstate superhighways.

Administration sources gave this rundown of the four-bill package Johnson prepared to send along with a special beauty message to Congress:

—In order to claim federal highway aid for interstate and primary roads — the most heavily travelled highways — states would have to ban billboards within 1,000 feet of these roads, except in areas zoned for commercial and industrial use.

—All junkyards within sight of interstate and primary roads would either be effectively screened from view or eliminated. If states were forced into condemnation proceedings, the federal government would pay 90 per cent of the cost of condemnation acquired property along interstate highways and 50 per cent along primary roads.

—States would be required to spend three per cent of federal aid under the interstate program of landscaping and beautification projects. Delays of $120,000,000 a year are involved.

—One-third of all federal aid for secondary roads — about $100,000,000 — would be set aside for roadside beautification, recreation areas and scenic roads.

It was understood Johnson decided to recommend the stringent billboard controls because he thinks a voluntary program that went into effect in 1958 virtually has failed.

Canada Sells More Wheat To China

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has sold China another 58,700,000 bushels of wheat, Trade Minister Sharp announced in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Sharp's brief statement, the first formal announcement of the amount involved in the new sale, did not refer to price, grade or shipping arrangements.

The deal was made under a three-year contract by which China agreed to purchase between 112,000,000 and 187,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat in the period beginning Aug. 1, 1965.

It brings total sales under this agreement to 186,200,000 bushels.

Canadian Play At Brockville Highly Praised

BROCKVILLE (CP) — The only Canadian play competing in the Dominion Drama Festival this year was lavishly praised Tuesday night by adjudicator Guy Beaulne of Quebec City.

The play, Le Nouveau Dieux (the new gods) by 32-year-old Jacques Duchesne of Montreal, was staged by La Theatre de la Place Ville-Marie.

Mr. Beaulne, director of theatre for the province of Quebec, termed the play an "audacious and fascinating experiment."

He praised the company of young actors and one actress, which included 26-year-old Yves Gelinas, son of Quebec actor and director Gratien Gelinas, for their daring use of new forms and methods of theatre.

"Theatre needs to have the magic restored to it in this way," he said.

About the only critical thing the adjudicator had to say was that a couple of the episodes could have been omitted without spoiling the play's message that man's conventional values need to be re-examined and changed to meet the modern environment.

Mr. Beaulne gave part of his adjudication in English and part in French. Later, he gave a private adjudication to the company, as he will for each production at the week-long festival, which ends Saturday.

A little more than half of the Brockville Civic Auditorium's 800 seats were filled for the French-language play.

Tonight's production is The Cave Dwellers by William Saroyan, to be presented by the Theatre Upstairs of Toronto.

It and the six other plays entered in the drama festival are competing for the Dominion Drama Festival Trophy for the best production and a $1,000 first prize given by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, the festival's main sponsor.

Eight other major awards and a number of scholarships will also be presented Saturday night.

South Centre, former Conservative House leader, said the Commons should allow 120 days to get the business of each session completed.

Within this period, time should be allocated for different matters and spending estimates should get a maximum of 45 days, not 36 days as proposed.

With his experience as Speaker adding weight to his remarks, Mr. Lambert called for the removal of supply motion discussion (12 days) from the 36-day estimates period.

The Conservatives could see "eye to eye a lot more" with the government if the motions were removed.

PROPOSES FORMULA

Mr. Lambert recommended "a flexible formula guaranteeing at least one day's discussion of the estimates of every department in formal sittings of the House" because the government proposal on estimates was no guarantee against a filibuster-shutter rush on them at the end of a session.

Bulk of the 36-day period could be taken up by non-controversial estimates "with the result that when the controversial items come up for discussion there is no time."

The 36-day proposal, as a result, "is an injustice not only to members of the Opposition, but to government backbenchers."

It was "an infringement of the rights of members of Parliament on both sides of the House for the benefit of the cabinet."

Dealing with the government proposal to allow a cabinet minister to set a debate deadline if an all-party business committee cannot agree on one, Mr. Lambert said it is "an attempt by the administration to close off full discussion of controversial proposals in that a time limit will be set beforehand."

COULD DELAY BILLS

The government could delay bill passage in committee with elaborate discussion of technical clauses "and leave the more controversial clauses to the end when the guillotine will fall."

Criticizing the proposals to establish committees to handle work now conducted in the House, Mr. Lambert said they will not do the job.

Many aspects of the government proposals "indicate a sort of bit-by-bit borrowing from the British system and an attempt to impose something out of context into our system."

Mr. Lambert agreed with the government proposal to abolish appeals of rulings by the Speaker, but suggested the proposal be tempered by an allparty committee to examine decisions if requested by 10 or 15 members. The committee would produce a recommendation on how to handle disputed rulings in the future.

Earlier, Prime Minister Pearson said the controversial closure rule should be examined once the proposed rule changes are approved.

SPARKED WILD SCENES

The closure rule, which enables the government to fix the end of a debate and force a vote, sparked some of the wildest scenes in Commons history when it was invoked repeatedly by the Liberals during the big pipeline debate.

It remained unused on the books for several years there after although the Conservatives promised in their successful 1957 election campaign to abolish it.

It was not invoked again until last fall to end the protracted flag debate. Its use caused little controversy then.

The government's rules resolution includes a so-called guillotine proposal, a modified closure rule the government could use if all parties could not agree on a time limit for various stages of legislation.

Mr. Pearson also said in the question period he has not talked with Speaker Alan Macnaughton about Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's proposal that Mr. Macnaughton be named permanent Commons Speaker.

Mr. Pearson said there would first have to be discussions by him and other party leaders with Mr. Macnaughton.

Jack Horner (P.C.—Crowfoot) welcomed the government proposals as long overdue. "The time is now to serve freedom is to make freedom effective."

Medicare

services estimated administrative costs of a public plan at about five per cent of premiums, while privately - run plans would amount to about 20 per cent.

If a public plan were to be operated for the whole of the province, he said, the saving in administrative costs would be from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year—enough to provide dental and optical care for every child in Ontario up to the age of 18.

While the government has estimated the cost of premium subsidies for low-income groups at $70,000,000 a year, Mr. Thompson said the whole province could be covered by a medical care plan for about $200,000,000. This would include not just physicians' care as favored in the government legislation, but dental and optical services for children.

Mr. MacDonald said that for the 1,800,000 persons in low-income groups the government proposes to subsidize in whole or in part, the cost per capita would be from $45 to $90 a year.

By comparison, the Hall commission had estimated nationally that the cost per capita of publicly - operated care would be $54.91.

Mr. MacDonald said because the government proposes to pay doctors their full fees, the medical profession will be in for a $20,000,000 - a - year bonanza.

Physicians Services Inc. pays only 85 per cent of recommended fees to participating doctors, he said. Raising this to 100 per cent would cost $9,000,000 a year.

Under the medical welfare plan operated by the government and the Ontario Medical Association for about 220,000 welfare recipients, fees to doctors would jump to $13,000,000 a year from $3,000,000.

Mr. Thompson said the new division of the department of health to operate a public plan for those receiving government-subsidized medical care could administer a universal plan, but in fact would serve only about 1,000,000 persons.

Mr. MacDonald took a nip at his Liberal debating allies when he said he help the Liberals gave the Conservatives in 1962.

He said the government was given a major assist by the Liberals who had three medical care policies within a 12-month period.

Mr. MacDonald asked why Mr. Thompson should find the bill incomprehensible now when his party was supporting such a bill in 1962.

In other business, Transport Minister Irwin Haskett said results of the government's program of compulsory testing of automobiles has shown that about 40 per cent of cars have minor mechanical defects.

He said 639 vehicles, about 36 per cent, passed the test while another 158 cars were rechecked and approved.

Provincial police charged two motorists with driving unsafe cars.

Provincial Secretary John Yaremko said a three - week grading system is being introduced in the province's special English classes to help busy immigrants master the language.

Emotionally Disturbed Said Slighted

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children accused the provincial government Tuesday for discriminating financially against voluntary treatment centres for emotionally disturbed children.

In a brief submitted to Premier John Robarts, the association said the Ontario Hospital Insurance Commission pays the full cost of care in Provincial Hospital but no more than half the cost of care in treatment centres.

Because of this lack of support, few families can afford these treatment centres and there are rare cases in which families have put children into wardship to secure treatment, the brief stated.

The association asked the government to amend the proposed Child Welfare Act to provide funds so children's aid societies can make their children's centres into treatment centres.

By 1966 there will be as many as 560,000 emotionally disturbed children in Ontario, the brief said. It urged that primary school classes be kept at a maximum of 25 pupils and teachers be given training in spotting disturbed children.

Uranium

Mr. Sharp said he informed France of Canada's willingness to enter a long - term uranium sale agreement.

HAVE BASIS

"In this respect I think we have the basis for an agreement."

His statements were made both at the opening of the afternoon sitting and under questioning by Conservative House Leader Michael Starr.

Mr. Sharp said both sides had agreed to report back to their governments. He had done so Tuesday morning and the government now was considering what steps to take next.

The discussions are reported to involve about 50,000 tons of uranium oxide, possibly worth as much as $800,000,000.

In his prepared statement, Mr. Sharp said he told France the proposed sale could be used for peaceful purposes only.

"As the communique states, the French government for its part is interested in acquiring Canadian uranium for its civil program of nuclear reactors for the production of electrical power."

Mr. Sharp said his talks were confined to the general conditions under which a sale could be negotiated and uranium exported by Canadian producers. Prices would be subject to discussions between the producer and the French atomic energy authorities.

Corn Planting Sets Record

TORONTO (CP)—Farmers in Ontario are planting a record corn crop this year, the provincial department of agriculture announced Tuesday.

The rising demands of corn syrup, corn starch, liquor and breakfast cereal manufacturers have caused farmers to plant 1,036,000 acres, a 3.4 per cent increase over last year's record of 982,000 acres.

The rising cattle population is also forcing the increase in corn acreage.

Corn will have the second highest acreage of cultivated crops in Ontario this year, the highest still being oats with 1,680,000 acres planned.

VOTA VITA MISSION CIRCLE VICTORIA AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH

The May meeting of the Vota Vita Mission Circle was in charge of the president, Mrs. William Soble, and the program was prepared by Miss Jean Thompson's group. Singing was led by Mrs. A. Gazley with Mrs. Earl Price at the piano. The secretary, Mrs. C. Smith, read the minutes of the last meeting, and Mrs. G. Pearson gave the treasurer's statement which showed the Mission Budget of $375 had been exceeded by $12.

A letter from Miss S. Gaverluk was read expressing thanks for donations of clothing for New Canadians in Toronto. Mrs. Gazley reported that hospital supplies had been sent to India. Mrs. A. Wynne read shine letters from missionaries in India thanking the church members for food parcel received.

Following the brief business period, Mrs. Pearson took the chair and led the devotional period assisted by Mrs. C. Stovell and Mrs. A. Reilly who sang an appropriate solo. Also assisting were Mrs. S. Campbell and Mrs. F. Morrell.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, Rev. Keith Mainprize, was introduced by Miss Jean Thompson, and gave a most interesting account of her call to the ministry in the Free Methodist Church. She explained the scope of duties and offices open to lady ministers of her denomination; of the progress of the local church building program with the erection of a church and a parsonage during the past six years, and of some of the humorous experiences she has encountered as a minister.

Mrs. Wynne thanked Miss Mainprize for her talk and for her message of victory in obedience to God's guidance which she had combined.

Members took advantage of the social time which followed to become acquainted more personally with the guest speaker.

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE ONTARIO...

MEMORANDUM WITH REFERENCE TO RETAIL STORE HOURS:

Much has been said and published during the past several months concerning the antiquated restrictive retail shopping hours within the City of Belleville.

Shopping hours, to date, have been established by a group of Belleville merchants, without consultation with the consumer. We feel the consumer, the "LIFE BLOOD" of merchants should have an influencing voice in deciding shopping hours and, therefore, respectfully present the following comment for your consideration.

The basic issue appears to be a sharp differences of opinion between the Downtown Merchants' Association and the Belleville Plaza Merchants' Association. Of course the issue has a much greater horizon. In shot, it is the opinion of this Company, after careful survey and analysis that restrictive legislation in these particular circumstances will, in the long run, have unfortunate consequences on all merchants in the city, possibly on the City itself, through the loss of Tax Revenue.

Existence of these restrictions on shopping hours will encourage diversion of goods to outlets free of restrictions. It will discourage commercial development and investment in Belleville, consequently creating diversion of consumer spending to other communities. RETAIL DEVELOPMENT IN OUR CITY WILL UNDOUBTEDLY BE CURTAILED AND BE FORCED TO LOCATE IN UNRESTRICTED AREAS.

Large merchandising chains are reluctant to invest too heavily in Belleville and as a result the consumer are being deprived of a free selection of merchandise. THEY ARE LITERALLY BEING FORCED TO TRAVEL TO OTHER MERCHANDISING CENTRES WHICH MAKE AVAILABLE GOODS FOR PURCHASE, AT A TIME CONVENIENT TO THE CONSUMER.

The essence of retailing as a business is to offer the public goods at fair market value, set in attractive surroundings, and available at a time most convenient to the shopping public, which may vary in different store classifications. Retailing is not an industry which fits comfortably into a 9 to 5 schedule.

Many industries operate on shift bases and many public services are freely available to the public at all hours. There would be an outcry by all of us if, when we left our place of business at 5 p.m., or 6 p.m., we found the employees of the Belleville Transit Commission had decided not to run buses after 5 p.m., and the employees of the Public Utilities Commission had decided not to repair any emergency breaks in the water system after 6 p.m., and the employees of the Police Department had decided to work only on a 9 to 5 basis. It is self evident that the services of these people are needed constantly, 24 hours each day, and the industries that have grown around them are greatful for their devotion.

THE CONSUMER, TODAY, IS BEING FORCED TO MAINTAIN RESTRICTIVE HABITS LIMITING THEIR PURCHASES, BY AND LARGE, TO THREE HOURS ON FRIDAY EVENING EACH WEEK.

IS IT REASONABLE FOR THEM TO WAIT UNTIL FRIDAY EVENING, WHEN THEY CAN SIMPLY DRIVE OUTSIDE OF THE CITY AND GET WHAT THEY NEED ON MONDAY, TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY EVENING, IF THEY SO WISH.

We as members of this community, have much to offer, but we cannot cater to the present, which is changing rapidly, with an attitude of past prejudices. The past is certainly history, and history has its value in assessing the present, but it is the actions of the present that create a future.

STAND UP AND BE COUNTED FOR THE FUTURE BENEFIT OF OUR COMMUNITY!

WE URGE YOU TO WRITE TODAY, WE URGE YOU TO EXPRESS YOUR POINT OF VIEW AND EXERCISE ONE OF THE MOST CHERISHED PRINCIPLES OF DEMOCRACY, NAMELY, THE PUBLIC'S RIGHT TO FREEDOM OF OPINION.

WRITE AND LET US KNOW WHETHER YOU ARE IN FAVOUR OF FREEDOM OF RESTRICTIONS IN SHOPPING HOURS, OR WHETHER YOU ARE IN FAVOUR OF MAINTAINING THE RESTRICTIONS UNDER THE EXISTING BY-LAW.

ALL-PURPOSE RECEPTION PUNCH

This wedding reception punch is going to please every hostess. For those of you who require a non-alcoholic punch this is it. For those who want to add spirits it is an ideal base. But it has two other virtues of equal importance to the hostess: the major preparations may be made in advance (as it should be) and it is inexpensive.

ALL-PURPOSE RECEPTION PUNCH (approximately 55 servings without spirits)

15 cups (3 Imperial quarts) freshly drawn cold water, 7 tea bags (or 1/3 cup loose tea), 1 cup granulated sugar, one 6-oz. can fresh frozen orange juice concentrate, one 6-oz. can fresh frozen lemonade concentrate, one 6-oz. can fresh frozen limeade concentrate, three 26-oz. bottles soda water, chilled (or spirits (such as light rum) optional.

Measure freshly drawn cold water into large saucepan or preserving kettle, bring to full rolling boil. Remove from heat and at once add tea, giving it one stir. (If loose tea is used tie loosely in cheesecloth bag for easy removal.) Cover and steep 5 minutes only. Remove tea bags or cheesecloth bag. Add the sugar to tea infusion to dissolve it. Cool. Add the fresh frozen concentrated fruit juices. Chill. This amount of tea-fruit syrup measures approximately 160 oz. (5½ qts.). It may be chilled in 4 clean one-quart milk bottles or equivalent containers.

When serving time, is drawing near pour tea-fruit-syrup into chilled punch bowl (should be at least 2½-gal. size) and add chilled soda water and about 1 tray of ice cubes.

NOTES:

1) If rum is added chill it first. Use your own judgment about the amount — this base will tolerate one or two 26-oz. bottles white or light rum. 2) If rum is used 2 trays of ice cubes may be added.

FLOATING DECORATIONS FOR PUNCH BOWL:

1) Minted Ice Cubes: Fill sectioned ice-cube trays with cold water. Wash a bunch of fresh mint and drop of small sprig into each ice section. Freeze and store in refrigerator.

2) Wafer-thin slices orange or lemon.

After pouring through the receiving line wedding guests appreciate being directed to the punch bowl. This means you must have a generous supply in the kitchen to replenish punch bowl when time arrives to cut the wedding cake and propose the toasts.

Ann Landers

Husband of Working Wife Cured of Apathy by Ruse

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You have often said in your column that when a man and wife are both employed the man should help with wife with the housework if she asks him to. This is what happened in our family.

A few weeks ago I came home from the office dog tired. It was 7:00 p.m. and I had to fix supper, do the ironing and bake a cake for my mother-in-law's birthday. The house was a mess from the night before and I asked my husband if he would please give me a hand. He replied, "It's not important."

ANN LANDERS

The next day I didn't have to go to work until noon. My husband telephoned to say he was bringing two business associates home to dinner. I said, "Fine."

I'm a good cook and decided to outdo myself on the dinner, but to leave the house just as it was — newspapers strewn all over, beer bottles, cigarette butts, clothes on the chair, tie on the lamp — a mess.

When my husband arrived with his guests I smiled pleasantly and said, "I hope you won't mind the looks of the house. My husband says it's not important.

That cured him. — ZAMBOANGA.

DEAR ZAM — If it cured him, it's all right with me, but I've known wives to get a fat lip for less.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last year I began to date a wonderful girl. I was 21 and she was 19. We should have known better than to see each other every night. One thing led to another and the inevitable happened. That's when our relationship changed. We stopped going to movies, to the theatre and to sports events. We even avoided our friends. Sex was the main attraction.

After three months we began to have terrible arguments. I think now we fought because we were disgusted with ourselves and with each other. Six weeks ago we broke up.

Now I realize this girl was the most wonderful person I've ever known.

I've dated a half dozen others but it's no go. I want to see my first love again, but please tell me — is it possible for a couple to behave themselves once they've had a sizzling affair? — ROCKY.

DEAR ROCK — It's awfully hard to keep 'em on the farm after they've seen Paree. Realistically speaking, your chances are slim.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What does a person have to do to get a letter printed in the paper — sign it in blood?

I have written to you four times. This is my fifth. Each time I made it clear I wanted my letter printed.

I happen to live in a town where people are so hard up for something to do that they read your column and talk about it at work, at lunch and at supper. I decided the best way to get my side before the public was to write to Ann Landers. I've had several bad run-ins with some narrow-minded dimwits and you could have been a great help.

I want you to know that you failed me and I will never write to you again. — NO FRIEND OF YOURS.

DEAR NO FRIEND — Well, you finally made it.

Sorry I failed you, but this column is not a national bulletin board for people who want to get "their" side before the public.

Thousands of readers get help ever week by sending me a self-addressed, stmaped envelope. Be my guest.

Granny Look Emerges as New Fashion

By PEGGY MASIN

PARIS (Reuters) — The Granny Look surprisingly emerges as a new fashion influence in Paris this season.

Grandmother's young days are harked back to in everything, from ruffled blouses, floor-length calico skirts, shawls, old-fashioned jewelry and accessories, to the long-legged bathing suits worn by the girls in the old silent movies.

One French stylist explains that the popularity of these romantic retrospective trends is a psychological protest against the stark, de-sexed, space age school of fashion launched by Paris couturier Andre Courreges.

The theory is that if women really dress to please men, most men prefer the effect of a frankly feminine turn-of-the-century Gibson Girl to the female counterpart of a cosmonaut.

A leading Paris department store has even adopted the theme in a Boutique Grandmere inaugurated to mark its centenary.

The basic "style grandmere" is evoked in frilly white cotton blouses with full, printed calico skirts. Floor-length skirts are tripped with ruffled hems over layers of petticoats and flounces.

FEATURED IN COATS

Hand-crocheted effects, rugcasting bedspreads or curtain lace, are featured in transparent coats made of unbleached string.

Crochet gloves, knitted lace caps and shawls, velvet chenille hair snoods and tapestry bags are typical updated versions of grandmother's accessories.

Stands at the Paris flea market are selling authentic old linens and underclothes as fast as the second-hand dealers can find sources to supply the demand.

Old-fashioned night clothes, entirely made by hand and covered with minute embroidery, are being transformed into summer beach shifts or blouses. Remnants of real lace and eyelet embroidery are used to turn out fashion hats.

One 20-year-old French girl bought a man's ruffled nightshirt for 25 francs shortened the 70-year-old garment, added a black patent leather belt, and now is wearing her unusual new dress to cocktail parties.

Grandmother's jewelry has revived the fashion for pierced ears. And 1890-style rings are worn on several different fingers of the same hand.

Popular fashion magazines feature instructions and easy patterns for making crochet lace collar-and-cuff sets intended to vary basic sweaters or dresses.

Nurses' Alumnae Association Host to 44 Graduate Nurses

The Belleville General Hospital Nurses' Alumnae Association entertained 44 nurses at the graduating class of 1965.

One hundred and eighty-four nurses in all gathered at the Tops Motel for dinner in their honor, many coming from parts of Ontario and the United States.

Each new graduate was presented with a corsage and a membership certificate and a ring marking each place was a replica nursing cap.

The president of the Alumnae Association, Mrs. Ruth Bly following the dinner called on Mrs. Frederick Frederick to introduce each of the 1965 graduates, among these guests was the first male nurses of Belleville General Hospital to be so honored.

Mrs. Shirley Ackerman proposed a toast to the graduating class and Miss Jane Mayhood responded.

WELCOMES GRADUATES

The Director of Nursing, Miss Doris Smith, nurses of Belleville General Hospital to be so welcomed when into the Alumni.

Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson thanked Monsignor Carley for the fine and inspiring talk which will be long remembered.

EVENING'S HIGHLIGHT

Highlight of the evening was the presentation to Miss Hilda Rose Hall, nurses of 44 years in the nursing profession, following many responsible positions in Belleville General Hospital and having served during the war as a nurse in the navy, and attaining the rank of commander supervisor for 35 years, as well as a past president and life member of the Alumni Association and this month retired from hospital duties. She was presented by Mrs. Shirley Ackerman with an honorary membership for her many fine contributions.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Another highlight was the retirement pin presented to Miss Hall. The class of 1940 was present for their silver anniversary.

The affair was a most happy occasion for the new graduates and for the coming together of the Alumni Nurses to recall their Alma Mater nursing days.

Miss Myrna Sine, a student nurse, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Margaret Kemp, delighted all with two songs.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Carley of St. Joseph's Parish, was introduced by Mrs. Teresa Clapp and is always welcome to the hospital and admired for his friendly way, his dignity and his youth.

Monsignor Carley has had many high honors bestowed on him and degrees and has held many high posts in the Catholic faith.

In his address to the nurses Monsignor Carley spoke of their fine qualities, mentioning the strong character they need to develop their many stresses and strains in their profession.

He spoke of dignity, womanly compassion and sacrifices in nursing and to them respect is shown by a tip of the hat. He also stated that in these days of mechanics and computers never would they be able to take the place of a nurse.

the Men's Club was Chairman for the evening. Raymond Richards proposed a toast to the ladies, and Mrs. Noble Crosby responded.

Rev. Beach spoke briefly. Ross McMaster thanked the Codrington ladies for the delicious supper which they had prepared. A clarinet duet by Linda Richards and Kristine Crosby, accompanied by Mrs. Alec Bell, was enjoyed by all.

Rev. Cunningham, of Brighton and Wooler Anglican churches, gave a lecture on the churches and their services in England, which was most interesting.

Horticultural Society Plans Flower Show

STIRLING — Mrs. Oscar Merrick, Mount Pleasant Rawdon, was hostess for the May meeting of Stirling Horticultural Society. Twenty-eight members were in attendance.

Mrs. Floyd Armstrong presided; Mrs. Ray Rose gave a report, and correspondence was read from various bulb companies.

Mr. Harry Waite reported that money in the Tannery will be used to beautify the village.

Mr. R. R. Belshaw gave a description of the centennial planning at the Legion hall and stated that the flower beds were ready for spring and the picnic tables in Coronation Park were in readiness for the public.

The Festival of Flowers will be held in St. Paul's United Church hall in June, with two sessions, one in the afternoon and another in the evening. The judges will be Mrs. Fred Bennett, Campbellford, and a good prize list is arranged for 1965 society members and their families. Public school children will exhibit in a junior section.

The Stirling Society will send four delegates to the provincial convention at Cobourg in July. Mrs. Harry Waite was appointed an alternate delegate.

Plans were completed to hold a plant sale in the village when the president and her assistants will be in charge.

The Society donated 12 crab trees to those whose names were drawn at the April meeting.

In th ecommunity news letter it was stated that twelve colored nature slides taken by second vice - president, Dr. R. E. Ives of Stayner, were selected for the national collection of nature photographs to be retained by the National Museum of Canada.

The program consisted of 12 selections on various subjects, given by Luella Bronson, Laura White, Mabel Bronson, Ada Bush, Mrs. B. Belshaw, Iva Ayrhart, Hilda Rose, Florence MacMullen, Helen McConnell, Eleanor Bailey and Elsie Armstrong. Mrs. Morley Ayrhart conducted a contest, and the president was in charge of a number contest when flower seeds were won by Mr. Grant Hubble, and magazines by Mrs. Robert Merrick and Mrs. Raymond McConnell. She also donated a rose which was won by Mrs. Archie Bailey.

The president gave a message on "hints for planting".

Two new members, Mrs. Lee Smith and Mrs. Roy Belli were welcomed.

The ladies of John Street, Stirling, who are members, provided a lunch under the direction of Mrs. Ayrhart and her committee and the hostess.

Mrs. Harry Waite moved a vote of thanks to close the meeting.

The service closed with prayer.

Wife of Ringo Starr Shy Girl of Few Words

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—The 18-year-old wife of Ringo Starr—one of the world's best-known bridegrooms—is one of the world's least-known brides.

Maureen Cox, her Mrs. Ringo, is a small, shy girl of few words.

Maureen will not grant interviews.

She doesn't want to get mixed up with publicity," said a spokesman for the mop-headed musicians, "and Ringo doesn't want her to, either."

A search of the records indicates that Mrs. Ringo (real married name Mrs. Richard Starkey) has spoken only a few sentences in public, all in answer to reporters' questions.

Her declarations were made in the flowerless backyard of a seaside villa in Hove on the English Channel, where she and her husband agreed to meet the press on the second day of their honeymoon.

HOLDS RINGO'S HAND

Even as she spoke, she nervously clutched her 24-year-old husband's hand.

Here's the record:

Question: "Has Ringo changed since you met him three years ago?"

Answer: "No."

Q: "Have you missed Ringo when he's gone away on tours?"

A: "He went away but he always came back to me."

Q: "Do you agree with marriage?"

A: "Yes."

Q: "Do you expect to have children?"

A: "Yes."

Q: "How many?"

A: "Two, but Ringo said: "Maureen hasn't made up her mind."

Q: "Are you enjoying your honeymoon?"

A: "Yes, but I don't like the publicity."

Q: "Can you cook?"

A: "No. But Ringo said, "She's not bad. She's learning."

Q: "Where did you meet Ringo?"

A: (very softly) "I can't remember."

Earlier in the press conference, Ringo had said they met at Hamburg's Cavern Club where the Beatles got started started three years ago.

Q: "Where are you and Ringo going to live?"

A: "I'm not really fussy where I live, providing it's with Ringo."

Q: "How does it feel to be married to a man that millions of girls all over the world would like to marry?"

No answer.

Born Mary Cox in Liverpool, she began calling herself Maureen shortly before she met Ringo.

By trade she was a hair-dresser.

Maureen looks a lot like a Beatle herself.

She has as much hair as Ringo, Paul McCartney, George Harrison or John Lennon. Like the Beatles, Maureen wears bangs that flop downward almost to her eye lashes. She wears her eyes exposed, as do the Beatles. Shapely in the right places, she's about two and a half inches shorter than Ringo and he stands about five feet seven. Her education is not extensive, for she stopped school at the age of 15. That's when she met Ringo.

Maureen says she doesn't remember where Ringo proposed, but he said it was in London's Ad Lib Club, about two o'clock one chilly January morning. They now live in an apartment in London's fashionable and expensive Montage Square.

One of their neighbors is Lord Marcroft. Told that Ringo and Maureen would soon be moving in, his lordship thought for a moment before replying.

"We're a distinguished square," said Lord Marcroft, "and I'm sure we'll welcome such a distinguished gentleman and his lady."

ORMTA Branch Enjoys Travelogue

The members of O.R.M.T.A. Belleville Branch, met last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. E. Hubbs, 24 Howard St.

The president, Miss Marjorie Woodard, conducted an interesting period of business and planning for special programs in the near future.

Mrs. E. Rennie brought the second report received from the 34th annual convention recently held in Toronto.

Following this program the teachers enjoyed a travelogue by the Rev. T. F. Townsend, recently travelled extensively in the Holy Land. He showed many interesting views of Jerusalem, Palestine, Egypt and Greece.

Sister M. Avila expressed the thanks of the members to Mrs. Rennie and Mr. A. A. Beavis, of Picton, voiced the appreciation and thanks of the teachers to Mr. Townsend for an interesting hour.

A social hour followed when Mrs. Hubbs served delicious refreshments. She was heartily thanked by Mrs. Skinner of Foxboro.

Will Address Home Economists

Members of the Canadian Home Economics Association HEIB Committee numbering approximately 30 from across Canada will gather at the Sun Valley Motor Motel for a meeting to be held this Friday evening.

A talk on business administration will be given by Mr. John E. Conner, who is at present president and director of International Investment Limited and affiliated with a number of other companies and industries.

Mr. Conner, who graduated from Queen's University with a Bachelor of Commerce degree (honors) in 1947 has been course director of the advanced management course of the Executive Development Institute for the past 15 years and is responsible for conference and post graduate business administration at several universities.

BAYSIDE SCHOOL

Bayside Home and School Club met in Bayside EB School recently. The opening song was sung with Mrs. K. M. Bird presiding at the piano.

K. M Bird introduced the guest speaker, R. A. Dunsmore, Inspector of Sidney Township public schools, who spoke on the new mathematics. Mr. Dunsmore told the parents that he was glad to see that they are interested in their children's progress. He divided his talk under three headings:

Why the change? — He told the parents "we are living in a Technological society. Children are learning at an earlier age, and because their minds are flexible, they adjust easier than adults. The new mathematics has been studied and experimented on for ten years before being introduced. It teaches children to discover math. for themselves and to find answers from rote learning and get at the "why" and "how"?

Some of the changes — A new approach from Grades 1 to 7, and from Grade 7 up' — new content and new approach. He said that it is best not to move too quickly. Parents can help by lending support and understanding.

Examples — Inspector Dunsmore explained open number sentences. Concrete and semi-concrete material are used to teach at first then, the symbols are introduced to abstract symbols. Expanded notation is taught so that children will understand the decimal system. Number lines are used, reciprocals and Base Ten. (Cuisenaire system) and Base Five in order to solve problems.

Mr. Dunsmore illustrated each example on the chalkboard and parents were given an opportunity to see these new methods work. Several of the new text books were on display.

Mrs. Mary Campbell thanked the speaker.

The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. H. Hennesy and reports were given by the secretary, Mrs. J. Pickett and the treasurer, Mrs. A. Michaud. Mrs. Hennessy thanked the members for helping with the tea tickets. The club decided to sponsor the banquet for the graduating class, and has been done, and decided to wait until September to have the election of officers for the year 1965-66. Several other items of business were discussed, and the meeting was adjourned.

The tea was convened by Mrs. Wilbur Fox and Mrs. A. E. Miles, with th assistance of the Auxiliary executives.

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP — The Bayside Home and School Club held their final meeting of the year on Thursday evening.

The results of the various activities of the Pea Fair were posted on the blackboard. Lack of interest made it impossible to hold the annual elections, and the president informed the members that the Home and School Club could not continue without an executive. The matter will be taken up in the fall under three headings:

Plans for a graduation dinner followed by bowling at the Belleville Plaza were announced. Prizes will be awarded to the two top students of Grade 8 at the banquet.

The speaker of the evening was introduced by Mr. Ken Bird, principal of Bayside. Mr. Dunsmore, inspector for Sidney Township, instructed the parents in the intricacies of the new mathematics now being taught in the public schools. Sample problems were given to be worked out, and the new concept of mathematics explained. Mr. Dunsmore was thanked by Mr. Campbell of Quinte View School.

Mrs. Campbell's room won the cheque for $5.00 for the best attendance.

The luncheon was provided for the parents and teachers by the members of the executive.

Lady Bowlers Enjoy Banquet

FRANKFORD — The Frankford Ladies Afternoon Bowling League held their annual banquet and Yen's Restaurant on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Doug Brown presented trophies to the League winners, "Red Hot Mamas" were: Iris Rogers, Ruth Reilly, Lois Hughes, Doreen Bastedo, Gladys Howard, Betty Wager and Jane Sadled and Helen Elder for high single and triple.

Gwen Chard presented cups and saucers to the play-off champs who were the Red Hot Mamas.

Mr. Brown also presented serving trays to the president, Mrs. Gwen Chard and secretary, Mrs. Lois Hughes.

After the banquet, the ladies enjoyed an evening of bowling, followed by refreshments at Browns' Bowling Alley. Another serving tray was given to Mrs. Alta Orr of Glen Miller for being the eldest lady present.

WEDDING

MOCON — FROST

MARMORA — A honeymoon trip to New York City via Lake Placid followed the wedding on Saturday, May 22nd, in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora of Madelaine L. Frost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frost, and Richard J. Mocon, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Mocon, Toronto.

Rev. R. H. Stewart of Marmora and Rawdon parish, performed the ceremony and traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. B. Aylesworth.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor length gown of white peau de soie with panel and train. The bodice featured a sabrina neckline and lace medallions.

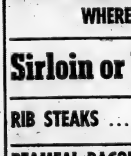
Miss Heather Frost was maid of honor for her sister and she wore pale green organza with jacket of white lace and back panel on the skirt.

Bridesmaids were Misses Carol Fox and Marilyn Anderson who wore burnt orange organza gowns fashioned identically to that of maid of honor. Each wore a halo of daisies tinted to match their dress and carried mums and tinted daisies.

Attending the bridegroom was Mr. Leslie Salnick and the ushers were David Mocon, brother of the bridegroom and Stanley Stadyuk.

The reception was held at the Rideau Club, Marmora, where Mrs. Frost received the guests wearing a pale blue chiffon ensemble with matching accessories and blue flowered hat, and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Mocon, Sr. chose to wear a two-piece dress of pale beige lace with pink accessories with a quotidian orchid corsage.



For their wedding trip the bride chose a red crepe two piece suit with matching shoes, white accessories and a corsage of white roses. On their return the couple will reside in Oshawa.

Out-of-town guests were present from Montreal, Toronto, St. Johns', N.B., Sudbury, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Odessa, Newmarket, Guelph and Peterborough.

The bride was tendered a shower before her marriage by Mesdames William Lavender and Miss Fern Frost and a trousseau tea by Mrs. Frost.

Simplicity Is Key To Summer's Wardrobe

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Suppose you have underwear and a pair of black or neutral dress shoes, but not much else. Starting with that, you can put together a summer wardrobe to cover a holiday and most other days for about $150.

J. R. Greisman, merchandise manager of Harridges, a women's store in Toronto's fashionable midtown Bay-Bloor area, suggests starting with an all-weather coat. Mr. Greisman says you can get one for about $37 with a touch of dressiness that will make it usable as an evening coat.

He says you should have a basic wardrobe of three dresses.

Choose simple, unadorned clothes so they won't confine themselves to any particular time of day, and you won't tire of them, and can adapt them.

"You can put a pin on a simple cotton and make it look dressy. If you are only going to have a few, choose a good mixture of light and dark colors. And in the summer especially, you'll want fabrics that are easy to look after.

"If you buy a few medium-priced clothes rather than more very inexpensive ones, they will stand up because they are made well."

For a trip, he suggests buying one easy-care jersey, possibly with a pleated skirt. If it's white it will double as a date dress for the evening. It can be bought for about $20.

A second of three might be a dark cotton with white trim. It could also double for afternoon or evening, and should cost about $30.

Add one semi-sport dress, perhaps a cotton print shift for about $17, and you have a basic dress wardrobe to dress up or down with accessories.

If you are buying for a holiday, you will probably want a moderately good swim suit, which you can get for about $25.

For your other sports clothes, choose one top at about $5 which will co - ordinate with shorts ($5) and slims (about $9).

If you choose it carefully, you should be able to find one handbag that will go with all of your clothes, your sports clothes, and possibly serve as an auxiliary suitcase. Mr. Greisman suggests a straw "tote style, which will probably cost about $8.

Assuming that you already have those dress shoes which you can wear with almost anything, you may only need a pair of summer sports shoes. If you buy them in a fabric, such as linen, they'll serve as beach shoes or with your dressier. Something along those lines will cost about $7.

20 Women, Ten Living Chosen for Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Helen Keller and the late Eleanor Roosevelt are the top choices among 10 living and 10 deceased American women of the 20th century named to the women's Hall of Fame at the World's Fair.

A Canadian-born pharmacologist, Dr. Frances O. Kelsey, of the U.S. public health service, is among the living women chosen for the Hall of Fame. Dr. Kelsey, born in Cobble Hill, B.C. 50 years ago, received the President's Award earlier for her refusal, in her public health service job, to approve distribution of the fetus-malforming tranquillizer drug Thalidomide.

Mrs. John F. Kennedy, the president's widow, was chosen as one of the 10 living winners but declined the honor. She said she still is not accepting any honors or awards. Her husband was assassinated 1½ years ago.

More than 300 women's editors of U.S. newspapers and magazines made the 20 choices from a list of 100 nominees. The selections were announced Sunday.

NO TOTALS GIVEN

No vote totals were given except for the mention that Miss Keller and Mrs. Roosevelt (1884-1961), wife of the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt, received the most ballots.

Photographic portraits of the winners will be displayed in the Women's Hall of Fame gallery being dedicated Thursday at the fair.

Others on the list are:

Sidney School Board Debates Supply Costs

SIDNEY TWP. — About 20 parents, teachers, caretakers, and book supply salesmen turned up at the monthly meeting of the Sidney Township Public School Board at Wallbridge on Thursday night.

The council members decided to hold a secret meeting, and the delegations were asked to wait in the hall and be interviewed one at a time.

The four music teachers from the schools were heard first, and satisfactory salary schedules were worked out with the board members.

New contracts must be signed by all the caretakers for the coming fourteen months. These contracts give detailed instructions about the duties of the caretakers and the hours in which the schools are to be cleaned. Care of the yards is emphasized and minor repairs must be made.

The representatives of the two firms supplying the schools with books were received. These men represented Jack Hood and Moyer Supplies. They have made a survey of the needs for the coming year. One salesman estimated the cost per pupil of supplies in the public schools at $15.

Mr. Refausse, principal of the Glen Miller school, and Mrs. Carter, who is to be the new principal for the Johnstown school, were asked to return to another special meeting to resume discussion of their business. Mr. Refausse's school is putting on a "Zoolosanum" next Friday evening.

While waiting in the hall, the newspapers had interesting discussions on the new mathematics, the new phonic alphabet which is being introduced in some of the schools in Canada, organized sports in the schools, bus transportation difficulties in rural areas, and child-parent-teacher-school board relationships.

The informal setting provided the background for several lively debates which would provide material for a whole term's Home and School programme.

A delegation of ratepayers from Wallbridge requested buses for the children in that area to the public schools.

Senior Citizens Hold Spring Tea

The sunny weather brought a throng of ladies out on Wednesday afternoon to attend the Spring Tea of the Senior Citizens held at the Recreation Centre.

Mrs. M. Clapp introduced Mr. "Red" Doran, who commended the ladies on the work they had done, and said it was a privilege for him to be there and to declare the tea open.

The tea room was gaily decorated with huge baskets of flowers. The tea table was appealing to the eye with its cutwork linen cloth, centred with spring flowers, and silver candelabra.

The small tea tables were decorated with white tea cloths and ornamental vases of tulips.

Mrs. L. Adams played music during the afternoon.

Mrs. J. Botting and Miss Irene Reid looked after the bake table, while Mrs. H. Vickers was in charge of the candy.

Mrs. J. Boge and Mrs. F. Bly took the ticket at the door.

Mrs. L. Reid, Mrs. Wannamaker, Mrs. E. Goodman, Mrs. Gertie Shorts, Mrs. E. Shorts and Mrs. J. Calbury poured tea.

Mrs. W. Clapp Jr., Mrs. Jack Layes and Mrs. Eva Luffman served the guests. Mrs. F. Bedell, Mrs. L. Sharp, Mrs. L. Fox, Mrs. M. Goodman, Mrs. E. Shorit and Mrs. H. Taylor, were in charge of the kitchen.

General conveners were Mrs. A. Scales and Mrs. E. Luffman.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Armstrong, and the lucky draws were won by Mrs. Bidell and Mrs. Douglas, both of Picton.

JAIL BIRDS

LA SPEZIA, Italy (AP)—Customs officials here have impounded seven pigeons imported from Switzerland on suspicion of espionage. An Italian law strictly regulates the possession of homing pigeons. Their owner, Andrea Sturiese, 30, of nearby Campiglia, maintains he wants them only as decoys for larger birds.

Legion News

EX-SERVICEWOMEN

The regular meeting of the Col. Play Wills branch, 587 was held in the Legion hall on Thursday evening with the president, comrade Janet MacDonald in the chair.

Previous to the meeting a memorial running was held. Proceeds from this to be used for a donation to the Heart Fund. The usual donation will be made to Branch 99 during Legion week.

Legion week will be held this year from June 6th to the 12th. The branch is having a social evening on June 7th when all veterans are welcome. On the following Thursday night Branch 587 are challenging Stirling Branch No. 220 to a softball game at Zwick's Island.

The June meeting is to be in the form of a pot-luck supper. Comrade Joan Martin was the winner of the draw. Comrade Doreen Burney represented the branch at the International "Goodwill" day which was held last Saturday in Clayton, New York.

Large Group Enjoys Ladies' Club Dinner

The Prince Edward - Belleville Ladies Club recently entertained their families and friends at their annual dinner and social evening.

This year Centre U.C.W. catered to a turkey dinner for 73 people. The tables were attractive with centrepieces of daffodils and a large floral arrangement at the head table. Tickets were given out for the lucky draw on the centrepieces and Mrs. F. Bedell was the lucky winner.

The president, Mrs. Baird, invited the U.C.W. ladies to come to the recreation room and extended sincere thanks to Mrs. Elmer Young, U.C.W. president, and her helpers.

With Miss Kathleen McCullough at the piano, Mr. Robert Burke led all in spirited community singing. Mrs. Baird, Robert Burke, Mrs. Garbutt and Mrs. F. F. Townsend gave readings. Miss Dorothy Alexander delighted all with guitar and mouth organ music and singing.

Many visitors and members spoke briefly, stating that it was again a great pleasure to be present. Mrs. Garbutt closed the program with a comic reading, and Mrs. Baird extended thanks to all.

U.C.W. Meetings

THOMASBURG U.C.W. Evening Unit

THOMASBURG — The May meeting of the evening unit of Thomasburg U.C.W. took place on Wednesday evening in the church hall with seven members present.

Mr. James Seekings, leader opened the meeting and Mrs. Ray Coulson read the Scripture. Mrs. Fred Agnew led in prayer.

Some discussion took place regarding the tea and bazaar with a bake table, which was proposed for May and was later postponed.

It was decided that stainless steel cutlery would be bought in time to be used for the weddings in June.

Plans for a barbeque or supper for the unit were discussed.

A bale of clothing is to be packed in the fall to be sent to Fort Hope, Ontario, where Mr. Richard Morton is teaching in an Indian day school.

After the meeting closed, lunch was served by Mrs. Jas. Seekings, and the members enjoyed a social half hour.

THOMASBURG U.C.W. Afternoon Unit

THOMASBURG — The regular meeting of the afternoon unit of the Thomasburg U.C.W. took place in the church hall on Wednesday afternoon with 12 present.

Mrs. Robert Doughty, leader, was in charge of the meeting.

Mrs. Harold S. Morton read portions of Scripture, and Mrs. Horace Vance presented a meditation of the color yellow for both physical and moral cowardice.

Mrs. W. H. Elliott gave an education talk on Trinidad and Brazil. Mrs. Henry Morton spoke on the subject of "Stewardship."

A committee was named to buy lining for the drapes for the church hall and a "bee" will take place at the church. The money from the Dominion-ing Teas was used to buy a Baptismal Font.

Mrs. David Calvert and Mrs. Ross Wilson served a lunch and a social half hour was spent.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Tempest in a teapot—fortunately that's all most toddler tantrums amount to. Most toddlers have an occasional temper storm because the very business of growing up is bound to bring frustrations. Tantrums may also result if a child is overtired or overstimulated.

To fight anger with anger, hardly ever works. Good ways to calm an overwrought child who's not old enough to reason with:

• Try to distract him from tactfully. A quick 'big 'n' him often smooths away the sore spot.

• If he's failed at concentrating, try to show him the way and be quick to praise new attempts.

P.S. It's unwise to bribe or threaten a toddler back to good behaviour. Bribes beget bad habits . . . threats beget bigger tirades.

Mealtime tantrums almost never happen when you spark your toddler's menus with something extra-special. Like Gerber Junior Meat Dinners . . . famous for savoury flavour interest. That's because they have 3 times as much meat (and poultry) as our regular products. Also our vegetable and meat combinations. Add to this extra meat, the goodness of selected garden vegetables and you get the tastiest dishes that ever perked up a palate. Strained versions for pre-toddler tykes. 8 varieties.

Nutrition bulletin from Gerber. Every mother knows that excessive cooking sometimes reduces the nutritive value of food. Gerber Strained and Junior Fruits are cooked just a few seconds to retain a high degree of natural food values. Flash-cooking does a lot for baby's eating pleasure, too, because it helps preserve the true-to-nature colours and flavours so appealing to little ones. Gerber Fruits, (and other foods) come in Wide-Top jars with re-closable Twist-Pop caps for safe refrigeration of unused portions. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

A Floor for Every Taste

Today's decorator approach to home furnishings is making itself felt in all manner of ways and in many cases adding style to sometimes strictly functional materials.

Not the least of these is the exciting new look in all kinds of vinyl floorings which have, in recent years, taken on a glamorous role. They are now decorator items in their own right. Hitch styling, a variety of clear, bright colors in easy-to-care-for surfaces, bring floor tiles into all rooms of the home and not just kitchens and bathrooms.

Latest in popularity are the new textured vinyls with matt surfaces which need the minimum of upkeep and always look attractive. Slim budgets will have an unexpected surprise at the choice of high styling, fabulous colors and interesting textures recently introduced in vinyl asbestos.

The new elegance of vinyl has also added to its versatility, not only on the floor, but for use on walls with matching or companion floors; table and vanity tops can be blended into the decor by the use of interesting vinyls.

Vinyl tiles today are designed with the utmost care to ensure accuracy of design and texture. Wood grain, for instance, is botanically accurate in both grain and texture and there is a variety to choose from such as oak, teak, walnut, rosewood, maple or even driftwood. Wood vinyl is a natural for use on walls or even ceilings. Blending with floors in parquet or shadow box frame designs. It can also emulate belly panels.

There are subtle shadings in marbleized solid vinyls in grand style, as well as fascinating renaissance and Renaissance, with the translucent look of natural marble in delightful sounding names such as Imperial jaste, Roman cedar, Corsican black or the more pastel, cameo pink and azure blue. Then there is plain marbleized and Travertine with an easy-to-maintain natural look and uses in any number of settings, both traditional and contemporary.

Mosaic comes in many shapes forms and qualities, as well as in a galaxy of colors in both smooth and textured, random or true dimension designs. There is true-to-life Onyx with a wonderful richness, and flagstone with its rough stone surface. And now random large and small stones like pebbles set in a sandy surface or small chips like crushed marble or minute pebbles in a translucent setting forming the latest and most exciting group of new high style vinyls in the stores today.

For dreamers of castles in Spain, it's not too difficult to make them part-time home fun in the home. Some current styles in furnishings present a very Spanish flavor — with hardware, a lot of wrought iron and vibrantly colorful upholstery. All of which call for an authentic look in floor coverings. With the latest designs in names such as Seville and Hacienda it's not too difficult to achieve. A Spanish dining room, for instance, with hexagons or octagons in gold Travertine; a man's den in rich-toned Hacienda or a mixture of pebble and wood for a Spanish style hallway or enclosed patio.

If the splendour of Italy with its classic columns, magnificent palazzos or gay terrazzo captures the imagination, then an entrance hall in Amtico's exciting newcomer Appian reproducing a two-thousand-year-old paving of hand hewn marble set in deep beds of grout, a kitchen of colorful mosaic or a living room or family room in distinctive travertine designs will add elegance to any home.

Delicate Delft in traditional colors and patterns blends with Early American or provincial stylings and can be used in all-over designs, alternating patterns, or as a border or dado or accent piece, and makes for the prettiest of kitchens and dining areas. Colonial stylings, too, take on an additional charm with the use of planked floor brought up to date with random plank vinyl.

With a price range, from approximately 25 cents to $4 per square foot, and the wide choice of styling and color available in solid vinyl, sheet vinyl, and vinyl asbestos, it doesn't take much more than a lively imagination to conjure up intriguing designs to fit into any flooring budget.

BRAZIL GROWS MORE

Despite economic problems, Brazil expects its 1964-65 output of farm products to be 22 per cent over the previous record.

A few drops of turpentine will soften hard, dried paint polish. Replace lid and let stand.

What goes under fashion's new décolleté?

Paris necklines are plunging. Go on, dare! Just be sure you start with Dream Lift. The design is right: wide-set straps, less-cup cups, low back that plunges to no back. The line it gives you is right: high, rounded, feminine. The poise it creates for you is sheer delight! Style 1350. Terylene lace cups—wired and lightly uplifted. A, B, C, 32-36. White, black, marine blue, petal pink, petal blue. $5.00. Matching garter belts and panty girdles.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR NATURAL TENDERNESS

...and That's What You Get at DOMINION

The meat that you buy at DOMINION is tender for two very good reasons. First, because Dominion's own skilled meat buyers tour the packinghouses every day, carefully selecting the prime young sides that Nature has blessed with an extra measure of quality.

But even the very best quality meat is not tender until it is properly hung. So Dominion waits patiently until time and Nature bring out the full rich, satisfying flavour and goodness.

The result is natural tenderness . . . tenderness that owes everything to Nature . . . and to Nature alone!

No wonder true meat-lovers say: "There is no substitute for the natural tenderness you get at DOMINION!"

Tutor Told Service Clubs May Act as Sponsors

DEAR DORIS — Despite the tears I have shed over the woes of an unhappy marriage I do not look my age. I am 58.

I would like to do some tutoring, as I have done this work for children being supported by the welfare.

I know children who need this kind of help but I would need a sponsor for them, as parents cannot usually pay for this kind of help.

Our unit board does not sponsor private tutoring, nor does the teachers' federation. It seems a shame to let a child go through school only half aware of his subjects.

I feel I have many years ahead of me to do something constructive with. My husband says when one gets to be our age there is no use starting anything new; I have a good home, which will go to someone else anyway.—STILL HOPING.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR HOPING — Nonsense! Is your grousing spouse ready to lie down and die? From your long letter — of which the above is only an extract — he has been dying spiritually for a long time.

Good tutors are hard to find; and willing but struggling pupils can blossom under their tutelage. Before you give up finding sponsors for them, explore the work of service clubs and women's groups in your area.

To give a new hold on education to a young hopeful would put some bright stars in your crown — aside from being just sheer fun for a woman with a skill like yours.

DEAR DORIS — I am 18 and have an eight-month-old son. When he was born I was not married.

The other day S.M. asked me to marry him. We've been going steady for six months. I love him and want to marry him very much. He does not know I have a son.

I can't pick between them. Should I just leave with the baby and never see S.M. again or tell him? If I tell him about baby how should I say it? — IN LOVE.

DEAR IN LOVE — Such knowledge could be a terrific shock to a young man; but you can't keep your baby in hiding all his life!

If you feel that S.M.'s love is great enough for marriage, take the plunge and tell him there is something he must know first. Explain fully what happened, and leave him absolutely free to decide for or against keeping on with you. Send him home to think it over.

You could get help with your own feelings and about how to handle it from the social worker at your child care agency.

DEAR DORIS — My problem is money. For allowance I get 75 cents. I have to pay for all my pencils and crabs. In the end I get ten cents to spend. My mother will not raise it.

I help around the house too. I am not pretty or popular. I try to look nice by buying rollers, etc. I try to go out with my few friends but I can't. I am 13 years old. — OUT OF LUCK.

DEAR OUT — Believe it or not, you are one of the lucky ones. Better be enjoying all those groups and clubs. Without such a generous allowance you couldn't believe to them. Had you thought of that?

Many an adult would consider himself lucky to have ten cents left over after paying all his bills?

DEAR DORIS — I am 18 years old and have a small figure, mostly a small bust, and this embarrasses me when I see other girls. Is there any cream I can use to have a bigger bust? — WONDERING.

* * *

DEAR WONDERING — No, indeed. Nothing applied on the outside can make anything grow from the inside. Unless it's fertilizer on plants.

But there are exercises for good posture and improved chest expansion — and there help appearance. Don't scorn falsies, if you really feel been to make your dresses look nice.

DEAR DORIS — I would like to know if a member of a family is not on good terms with a person is it proper for the other members of the family, like the sisters and the mother, to be on speaking terms with this person. — CURIOUS.

* * *

DEAR CURIOUS — Is it a full-blown feud like between the Montagues and the Capulets? In those days everybody joined the war.

Nowadays it takes something mighty serious for a whole family to be on the outs with a person. "Not speaking" is usually thought of as the battle technique of children.

DEAR DORIS — I would like to ask you about a teacher who is always calling her pupils "stupid" and "a dunce." Why do school teachers do this when they are hired to teach the children?

Also scream and yell at them and they are all frightened. My daughter is one of these children. — DISGUSTED.

DEAR DISGUSTED — They don't do it from being trained that way, I'm certain. Teacher training stresses encouragement, optimism, patience.

I'd prefer a teacher unwittingly shown her own frustrations when she storms at her charges for failing to learn. But then, a teacher's lot may not be an entirely happy one!

DEAR DORIS — What do you do with a wife who goes to the beverage room just about every afternoon of the week and you have to come home to an empty plate for supper?

When she is home she expects me to take her out every night. I wouldn't mind if it was just once or twice. I'm tired after working all day and I need my rest.

If I don't take her out she either gets sore and won't speak or punishes me by going to the beverage room the next day. — TIRED PANCHO.

DEAR PANCHO — She tells herself the excursion to the beverage room is to punish you. Thus she escapes scot-free from the truth that she craves the drink.

Nightly visits to a saloon could make problem drinkers out of both of you. A more hopeful solution is to examine the lacks in her life — and yours. Couldn't you find more challenging, more companionable things to do together?

Women's Institutes

PINE GROVE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

MARSH HILL — The May meeting of Pine Grove W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Allyn Fiskle with 18 members and two visitors.

The president, Mrs. Farley Lindenfield, opened the meeting.

A letter was read from Bellville General Hospital thanking members for the gift of money at Christmas which was used for senior patients.

Conveners of standing committees reported, and current events were given by each member.

Home economics' convener, Mrs. Chas. Ross, was in charge of the program and Mrs. Harry Coulter gave a reading.

In the absence of Mrs. Garnet Searles, a sandwich making demonstration was conducted by Mrs. Don Irish. She demonstrated the making of roll sandwiches and used the following combinations for filling: banana and peanut butter, gherkins and salmon, creamed cheese and red or green cherries, and egg and olives.

Mrs. Ross then demonstrated a fancy way of cutting carrots for cooking.

She passed out the booklet, "Your Kitchen Keyboard of Spices," to those present. She then gave a reading of the short course, "Creative Cookery," which she had attended.

Mrs. Alan Thompson gave a reading on the theme of baking. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Chas. Ross, at the close of the meeting.

MADOC W. I.

MADOC — Mayday greetings from Mrs. Robert O'Reordon and a poem read by the president, Mrs. Ellis Smith, opened the May meeting of the Madoc Branch of the Women's Institutes held on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. E. Moore presented the consumer's report, giving the members many timely tips and suggestions and mentioning several pamphlets that may be obtained from the department.

Mrs. B. Tanner gave a report of the Guelph conference. Arrangements were made for a bus trip to Belleville on June 18.

Mrs. George Hill was in charge of the Grandmother's Day program. Community singing, reading and group singing were enjoyed. Members taking part were Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Tanner, Mrs. Donohue, Mrs. Hill, and Mrs. Albert Storey. Mrs. Nicol was song leader and Mrs. C. Whylock played the organ.

Mrs. Albert Storey gave an interesting account of current events. A vote of thanks and a social half hour closed the meeting.

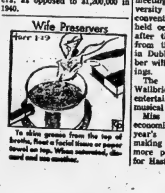
Church Groups

L.D.S. Women

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Department of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, met as guests at the home of Mrs. Larry Smith at Bayside, recently.

The worship period was under the direction of Mrs. S. C. Else, based on the theme "Religious Education in the Home."

The business meeting conveyed with Mrs. Larry Smith in the chair. The "Distaff" from Mrs. J. T. Westwood Jr. was read. The new study course by "Modern Women in a Modern World" by Clifford Cole was recommended as a summer study course. The new book, "A Quest for Creative Living," compiled at church headquarters at Independence, Missouri by the commission on ministry to college people, was recommended for youth.



The study for the evening was presented by Mrs. W. L. Cahill who taught from the book, "Needed, A Righteous Generation" by Irene Jones with related material from "All Children are Mine" by Deane Edwards.

Following the meeting lunch was served by the hostess.

An out of town guest was Miss Joanne Sherk of Ridgway, Ontario.

NUMBERS DOUBLE

Russian statisticians say their nation now has 73,200,000 workers, as opposed to 31,200,000 in 1940.

Hastings West District W. I. Holds 64th Annual Meet

STH SIDNEY — Wallbridge Branch, Women's Institutes was hostess to the 64th Hastings West District Annual held in Wallbridge United Church on May 2d. Mrs. B. Hinchliffe and Mrs. H. Phillips were in charge of registration while Mrs. Sam Nicholson and Mrs. Lawrence Ketcheson greeted the guests at the door.

Mrs. Gerald Herrington, the president, opened the meeting and introduced the board members. Mrs. G. McLaren, Miss Frankish and Miss Stirling from the Home Economics Department and Miss Janet Munroe, home economist for Hastings and Prince Edward.

The treasurer's report, read by Mrs. H. Cowper, showed a small surplus on hand to begin the new year.

Mrs. Omer Chisholm welcomed the members of the conference, to which Mrs. Berwen Mitts replied.

NEW DISTRICT REPRESENTATIVES

New district representatives are: Bay of Quinte, Mrs. Cecil Jeffery, Carrying; Mrs. Annie Reid; Pine Grove, Mrs. Alex Tanner; River Valley, Mrs. Vernon Harry, Stirling; Mrs. Blanche Reid; Uniondale, Mrs. Ernest Anderson; Sidney South, Mrs. Alan Thompson; Wallbridge, Mrs. Omar Chisholm.

Mrs. Harrington reported visiting all the branches and was pleased with the manner in which all phases of institute work was carried out. She was glad so many branches were supporting 4 - H Homemaking clubs, and she congratulated Pine Grove on their 25th anniversary. In conclusion she thanked secretary - treasurer for the good work she was doing.

The roll call was answered by reports from the Tweedsmuir History Curators, including Mrs. C. Jeffery, Bay of Quinte; Mrs. Gerald Irvine, Chatterton; Miss Jane Gay, Pine Grove; Mrs. Roy Bush, River Valley; Mrs. Perry Bronson, Stirling; Mrs. Morley Ketcheson, Uniondale; E. Spencer, Wallbridge; Mrs. Means, Sidney South.

CONVENER'S REPORTS

Agriculture and Canadian industry convener Mrs. Lorne Reid said agriculture is the strongest article in the wheel of industry.

Miss Jane Gay, reporting for the historical research and current events committee told of trips to Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless Homestead and to Kingston.

Home economics and health convener, Mrs. E. Porter, said sponsorship was given to 4 - H Homemaking clubs, water safety and Canadian Red Cross.

Public relations convener, Mrs. Morley Sine mentioned institute reports on the radio station and in the press.

Mrs. Cecil Jeffery, citizenship and education convener reported on programs concerning Canadian women in public positions and Canada Institutes in the Northwest Territories.

Mrs. G. McLaren noted that all branches had reported. Mrs. Harry Coulter discussed three adopted children sponsored by the Bay of Quinte, Pine Grove, Chatterton, Uniondale and River Valley.

Home making service completed during the year were "More About Dairy Foods" by Uniondale, River Valley and Sidney South; "Creative Cookery" by Uniondale; "Copper Tooling" and "Millinery" by River Valley.

AFTERNOON SESSION

During the lunch hour, Miss Jane Gay brought greetings from the safety council and spoke on farm and road accidents.

Miss Frances Lamp n a, speaking for the Home Economic Department stressed that their service is not for institute members alone but for other interested persons in the community as well. The loan library is extra useful and varied service.

Mrs. John Reid of the Bay of Quinte Area conducted the "Femlies for Friendship" service.

Mrs. McLaren gave a report of the last board meeting in Toronto. The International scholarship fund of $50,000.00 has been completed. The next board meeting will be at Guelph University in the fall. The area convention in Belleville will be held on November 25 and 26, after the delegates are home from the tri-zonal conference in Dublin. A new board member will come from North Hastings.

The school children from Wallbridge, with their teacher, entertained the members with musical numbers.

Miss Janet Munroe, home economist, reported on her first year's work. The 4-H Homemaking clubs are becoming more popular. The next club for Hastings will be "The Club Girl Entertains," and is a hospitality club.

Mrs. John Cooper led in community singing at the beginning and midway through the afternoon session, accompanied by Mrs. K. Evans at the piano.

Mrs. Roy Bush, district Tweedsmuir curator asked for pictures of presidents and secretary-treasurers of the district and their history.

NEW DISTRICT OFFICERS

Mrs. W. D. Dixon brought in the report of the nominating committee and Mrs. McLaren conducted the election and installation of the following slate of officers:

Honorary president, Mrs. G. Harrington, R.R. 2, Frankford; president, Mrs. Leslie Finkle, R.R. 1, Foxboro; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Gerald Irvine, R.R. 2, Hallowsy; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Mac Nobes, R.R. 2, Belleville; secretary treasurer, Mrs. Harry Coulter, R.R. 1, Foxboro; Federation representative, Mrs. Gerald Harrington, R.R. 2, Frankford; citizenship and education, Mrs. Cecil Jeffery, R.R. 5, Trenton; historical research and current events, Miss Jane Gay, R.R. 4, Stirling; home economics and health, Mrs. D. Douglas, R.R. 2, Belleville; resolutions, Mrs. Albert Carson, Hallowsy.

Mrs. Everett Phillips was named to the office of convener of citizenship and education for the area.

Mrs. Glenn Bush extended an invitation for the convention to meet at River Valley next year.

Mrs. Reid, Stirling, presented the courtesy report and the convention closed.

Susanna's Family Fare

THYME WILL TELL

Dear Susanna; Please try not to think me stupid, but a short time ago when I was married, I received a group of spices — I simply don't know the uses for some of them. Those that are giving me trouble are tumeric, curry powder and thyme. — C. B. A.

On the contrary, you're just as bright as can be for coming to us to find out — HA! The curry powder and thyme are easy, but for the turmeric, I consulted our wonderful home economist Miss — — — — —. Here are a few ideas:

Thyme will bring out a delicious flavor in such vegetables as tomatoes and silverbeets, while you will find that curry powder is called for in many recipes. For a taste treat try shaking a dash of curry powder into an oil-vinegar dressing, then mix this through a salad of crisp mixed greens, onion rings and crumbled bacon. Doesn't that make your taste buds tingle?

Turmeric is a member of the ginger family and is actually a major ingredient in curry powder (and prepared mustard). A dash is called for when color and slightly flavor cream sauces, in mayonnaise and in chicken and fish dishes.

I realize you didn't wish to have your name in print, but if you would care to send me your address, my young friend, you might be interested in receiving two of our really helpful cutlines. One is a suggested list of uses for dozens of herbs and spices and the other tells you how to grow your own herb garden right from seed to shelf.

You could start in now, and flabbergrast all your in-laws in August. There you'll be, picking little leaves of fresh mint to give zing to those gorgeous slices of roast lamb you're serving! . . . and just because you don't know about spices yet, doesn't mean you might not be able to advise us on a shortcut or two — remember all hints, ideas and criticisms (OUCH) are gratefully received! — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: Red wine spilled on a good white table cloth isn't as serious a stain as it would seem. To remove it completely, sprinkle the salted spot liberally with salt, place it on a container in the sink and pour boiling water through the material. That's all there is to it. — Sandy S.

"Why should you switch to Food City?"

PRICE HAS A LOT TO DO WITH IT. Our policy is to have the lowest food prices in town every day ... Monday thru Saturday ... week after week. Take a close look at the grocery prices below. Those discount prices are the same every day of the week. They are our regular shelf prices ... (and they're only a small sample of the total number.) The range of savings shown are fact ... not poetry because we constantly "comparison shop" the major chain stores. We don't stint on quality. You'll find all the top brands at Food City. But there's nothing like a visit to really convince you.

PLANS CONFIRMED

Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd. said Tuesday it has received confirmation from Japan that registration has been completed for the establishment of Mitsubishi Canada Ltd. The new company will be controlled 55 per cent by the Mitsubishi Metal Mining Co. Ltd. of Tokyo and 45 per cent by Cominco. Main source of ore for the new smelter will be the Pine Point Mines Ltd. in Canada's Northwest Territories.

DIVIDEND RAISED

Canada Iron Foundries Ltd. has increased its quarterly dividend by 12½ cents a share to 50 cents. The increase brings indicated annual payout to $2 a share compared with $1 paid last year. The company, with headquarters here in Montreal, makes cast-iron pipe and pipefittings and other metal products. The dividend is payable July 2 to shareholders of record June 4.

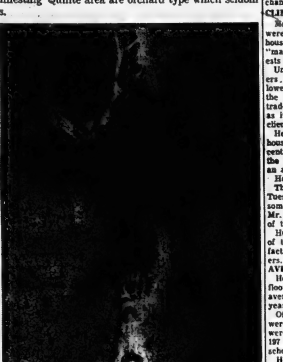
Youth Given Life Term For Murder

STRATFORD (CP)—Jon Pitman, 21, was sentenced Tuesday to life imprisonment after he pleaded guilty in Ontario Supreme Court to non-capital murder in the Feb. 14 rifle-slaying of Marianne Vanderlei, 21, a Kitchener school teacher.

Miss Vandervliet was fatally shot in the farm home of her parents at Dublin, 12 miles west of here. Pitman was a hired hand.

A statement read into evidence by Inspector G. E. Smith of the provincial police quoted Pitman as saying Miss Vandervliet was the victim of a sex killing.

Pitman's statement said he then "started driving. I didn't know where."



He went to Sarnia and checked into a hotel.

Insp. Smith said Pitman told him that after shooting Miss Vandervliet Ma struck her repeatedly with the rifle butt.

Pitman was arrested Feb. 15 on a street in Sarnia.

OUT TO SELL CANADA

Canadian government employees, from engineers to army officers, are being shown round Expo '67 before going to their jobs overseas.

CRAWLING MASSES of tent caterpillars are infesting the Bay of Quinte district this year. Mass of crawlers can quickly strip trees of foliage.

Orchard Type Caterpillars Have Infested Quinte Area

The tent caterpillars have infested the Quinte district.

But they are the orchard type caterpillars which attack only fruit type trees and not the forest tent caterpillars being reported from farther north in Ontario.

However, the orchard caterpillars which attack wild plums, choke cherries and wild apple trees are very much in evidence in the Bay of Quinte district.

Practically every wild apple or plum tree in the area is infested with the crawling worms which in many instances have completely denuded even large trees.

Experts at the Dominion Entomological Laboratory in Belleville say that the forest-type tent caterpillars seldom are seen in the Bay of Quinte district.

Also they say that even the orchard type caterpillars in some years are worse locally than they are this season.

CRITICIZES METHODS

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Rev. J. M. Scott of Corner Brook, Nfld., told more than 500 Ontario and Quebec delegates at a Baptist Young People's Union meeting during the weekend that people are not being reached by the church "because we do not have the same deep concern for people that Jesus had." Traditional methods and modern ones such as "sacred" jazz and religious jingles were only partially successful.

Floor Traders and Profits They Make Discussed at Hearings Into Windfall

TORONTO (CP)—Floor traders and the profits they make from trading in stocks were discussed at the Windfall royal commission hearings Tuesday.

John Rogers, partner in the brokerage house, Doherty, Roadhouse and McCaig Brothers, said traders pay full commission when trading in their own accounts, but pay only one-fifth commission when trading in house accounts.

Home accounts are those in which a floor trader buys and sells stock in the name of the company for which he works. Mr. Rogers said it is common for the company to take 60 per cent of the profits and pay 70 per cent of the losses in these accounts.

The question of house accounts was raised by Joseph Sedgwick, lawyer for George MacMillan, president of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., and his wife Viola, Windfall's promoter-financier.

The MacMillans are central figures in the royal commission hearing, investigating the rise of Windfall shares to $5.60 from 56 cents and the collapse back to cents on the Toronto Stock Exchange last July.

CLIENTS CONCERNED

Mr. Sedgwick said his clients were "concerned" about these house accounts because they "may operate against the interests of clients."

Under questioning, Mr. Rogers said floor traders were allowed to buy and sell stock at the same time it was being traded for clients "just so long as it doesn't interfere with the clients' trading."

He said the fact that these house accounts pay only 20 per cent of the commission paid by the public does not give them an advantage over the public.

He did not elaborate.

The commission hearings Tuesday were used to clear up some gaps in earlier testimony. Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly, head of the commission, said.

Hugh Stearns, an employee of the royal commission, gave facts from a study of floor traders.

AVERAGE AGE 34

He said the average age of floor traders is 34 and their average trading experience 14 years.

Of 240 traders studied, two were university graduates, 131 were high school graduates and 197 had not completed high school.

He said the salary range on the trading floor is $2,360-$14,400 a year and the average $2,500. Annual personal income, however, is $10,000-$12,000. Mr. Cleland said that most traders have another source of $8,000 to $7,000.

The study tried to co-relate education and income, but Mr. Cleland said the two were not apparent. In the 30 per cent, floor traders were earned more than $20,000 last year, only seven were Grade 8 or less and he said the studies will continue.

DETAILS OF SUSPENSION

Marshal Stearns, chairman of the Toronto Stock Exchange board of governors, told the commission that the case of Windfall had not been suspended last year at the height of the stock's activity.

He said that on Friday, July 12, the exchange had sent a telegram to directors of Windfall, advising them that the stock would be suspended from trading Monday, July 13, unless a progress report justifying the stock's activity was made available.

He said that on Monday a statement was received which was not satisfactory, but that he, along with LL-Gen. Howard Graham, exchange president, and William Somerville, exchange executive vice - president, felt that suspension was too drastic a step.

He said the statement did "little to allay the rumors" surrounding Windfall but did say that no assays had been done on the company's drill core.

He said: "We compromised I suppose . . . and decided to open the stock. This was the considered judgment of ourselves, I suppose. . . ."

Mr. Justice Kelly asked: "Is there any action less drastic than suspension?"

"Not on the company," said Mr. Stearns. . . .

He said there is no way of disciplining a company without hurting shareholders.

Roger Archibald, partner in the law firm of Roberts, Archibald, Seagram and Cole—Windfall's lawyers—told of his attempts to have a telegram tracked down.

He said that he received a telegram from New York July 27 giving excellent assay results purporting to be from the Windfall drill core. The telegram, he said, was signed "Assay Laboratories."

He said he thought it was a "most curious message" because he knew of no assay company in New York with which Windfall was associated. "I judged the telegram to be a hoax."

Mr. Archibald said that a few minutes later he received a call from the Toronto Daily Star, which had also received the telegram.

He said he called Canadian Pacific Telegraphs, the RCMP, the Ontario Securities Commission, Metropolitan Toronto police, the Toronto Stock Exchange Commission in Washington and New York.

These organizations failed to discover who sent the messages which had gone to various Canadian newspapers. All that was learned was that a man in New York had sent 12 and a woman in the same city sent two.

Canadians to Study Methods By Reds to Build Under Permafrost Conditions

MOSCOW (CP) — A six-man Canadian delegation headed by Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing arrived Tuesday to study methods used by the Russians to build houses and factories under permafrost conditions.

The visit is the first by a Canadian cabinet minister since former fisheries minister James Sinclair came to the Soviet Union 11 years ago.

It was evident from airport welcoming ceremonies that the Canadians and their Russian hosts were far from agreement on the places that Laing will be allowed to visit.

In replying to an effusive arrival statement by the Canadian minister, G. A. Karavaev, deputy chief of the public chalet man of Gosstroy, Soviet state construction agency, said he would regard Laing to visit other regions besides the Russian Federated Republic.

The Russian Republic is the only one of 15 republics comprising the Soviet Union where permafrost — the condition of perpetual frost in the ground—exists.

IS WIDESPREAD

In the north of Siberia, which forms the major part of the Russian Republic, permafrost is widespread.

Karavaev told Laing that Soviet officials want him, on his first visit to this country, "to get to know our land as well as possible." That was why he hoped the itinerary would include other regions besides the Russian Republic.

Tentative agreement has been reached on the Canadian stops: Yakutsk at about the 62nd parallel, Bratsk at about the 56th and Irkutsk, on the trans-Siberian railroad at about the 52nd parallel.

The Russians also want Laing and his group to visit Kiev, in the Ukraine, but the Canadian party is not greatly interested. The Canadians would rather visit one or more points in he Soviet Arctic instead.

Further negotiations on the itinerary are scheduled for Wednesday. The Canadians leave here Thursday for Leningrad where they will spend two days before flying to Siberia.

Laing told Karavaev and other Soviet officials who met him that the "whole world" knows about Soviet advances in northern develop ment . "We think you can reach us something."

The Canadian group came here at the invitation of the Soviet government which is in the Soviet Union about 12 days. Karavaev is scheduled to lead a Soviet delegation on a reciprocal visit to Canada in August.

Heiress Found Dead in Home, Took Own Life

GROSSE POINTE FARMS, Mich. (AP) — Mrs. Ethel Du Pont Warren, heiress to one of the world's largest fortunes and ex-wife of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., was found dead in her home Tuesday.

Police said she was found hanging from a belt attached to a bathroom shower fixture. She was 49.

Mrs. Warren was the oldest child of Eugene Du Pont, formerly a director of E. I. Du Pont De Nemours and Co., and the niece of Lammot, Pierre and Irenee Du Pont.

She was divorced from Roosevelt, son of the late U.S. president, in May, 1949, on grounds of mental incompetency. She married Grosse Pointe lawyer Benjamin S. Warren Jr. in 1959. They were later divorced.

An ardent horsewoman and skilful swimmer in her youth, she was once described by artist Dan Flowers as the most beautiful and eligible unmarried woman in the United States.

She and Roosevelt had two sons, Franklin III, 27, and Christopher, 24.

Friends said she had returned here not long ago from a rest home in Connecticut.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning. Burial will be at Wilmington, Del., home of the Du Ponts.

RECEIVES DRAFT

Quebec (cp)—Francois Leduc France's ambassador to Canada, said Tuesday, he has received from Ottawa the draft of an agreement between France and Canada concerning pacts made with individual provinces on matters within their jurisdiction. Mr. Leduc made no further comment on his arrival here.

Trade Minister Sharp said the French government disagrees with Canada's proposals to ensure that any uranium sold to France is used only for peaceful purposes.

Mr. Sharp also announced the sale of another 58,700,000 bushels of wheat to China.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker made an unsuccessful bid for an emergency debate on foreign affairs, including Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

A private bill to incorporate the Bank of Western Canada was talked out for the second time this session by Creditiste MPs.

The Commons spent its fourth sitting day debating government - proposed rules changes aimed at speeding the work of the house.

Heath Macquarrie (PC — Queens) said the Commons has bogged down with the legislation flowing from the many elections with too many promises.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), former Commons Speaker, said the Liberal government could "choke off full discussion of controversial issues" by some of its proposed rules.

WEDNESDAY, May 26

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. EDT to continue the rules debate. The Senate sits at 3 p.m.

Efficiency of Hog-killing Line 'Quite Low' Says Head of Montreal Plant

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — A Montreal meat packing executive testified Tuesday the financially-troubled Farmers' Allied Meat Enterprises Ltd. could have cut annual costs by at least $787,300 through more efficiency.

Paul Bourdon, general superintendent of Legrad Inc., said he was approached by President Charles McInnis of the cooperative in April, 1964, to discuss meat processing.

He said he told Mr. McInnis there was a good profit to be made in meat packing and processing.

Mr. Bourdon was testifying at the resumption of a royal commission hearing into the co-operative's financial affairs. The hearing, before Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court, was ordered by Premier John Robarts and opened earlier this month.

The 13,000-member co-operative lost a $1,500,000 down payment on the F. W. Fearman Packing Co. and Burlington, last November when it failed to meet a $1,000,000 second payment deadline.

INSPECTED PLANT

Mr. Bourdon said he inspected the Fearman plant last July, checking its operation and construction. He said he found there was a major difference in meat cutting between the Fearman plant and Legrad Inc.

He said that if hogs were not trimmed properly by a meat packers, the company would lose money.

Based on a kill of 14,000 hogs in a four week period, Mr. Bourdon said, Fearman's could have saved $26,240 during that time through proper cutting, plus another $17,280 during the same time through proper injection of brine in meat-curing operations.

The injections add weight to the meat cuts, he said.

Mr. Bourdon said efficiency on the hog-killing line was "quite low" at the time of his inspection and added that with other efficiency the Fearman plant could have been $381,700 farther ahead on the hog operations alone during the year.

POINTS TO SAVINGS

He presented other figures showing the plant could have saved another $195,000 in its cattle-killing operation through better methods, giving the plant an additional total of $787,300 a year.

Mr. Bourdon denied that either the co-operative or the Fearman company board had ever approved a contract hiring him for $18,000 annually as a consulting manager for five years.

He was reminded by Mr. Justice Grant that he and two Fearman signing officers had signed the contract which made it a valid document.

Mr. Bourdon said there was a verbal agreement that he would never receive any money from the contract. He said it was drawn up only "to create a more powerful set-up" for the co-operative when he was trying to negotiate supplementary financing for it.

Earlier, Mr. Bourdon testified he was working with Mr. McInnis in trying to raise $2,000,000 in supplementary financing to meet the $1,000,000 second payment, to pay off a bank overdraft and obtain some working capital.

GIVING BREAK

Commissioner Counsel McLeod Craig of Owen Sound asked if "the Fearman company was getting customers too good a break" by not cutting off enough fat and using less injected material in the curing process.

"That is right," Mr. Bourdon said, adding that this beased his calculations on what his company and an Ontario packing house do in their curing plants.

Legrad Inc., made a good profit last year, he said, but he refused to disclose figures.

Mr. Bourdon also testified that the Fearman company had an employment advantage over Toronto meat packers because its rates were $1.10 an hour less than Toronto meat packing rates.

This gave Fearman's an operating cost advantage over Toronto of $312,000 a year based on 146 employees, he added.

BUILDING WAS GOOD

Mr. Bourdon said he found the Fearman plant "a top notch building in A-1 condition." During his inspection he was informed by a Fearman official that the company was nearing the break-even point in its operations.

Earlier testimony was that the company had been losing substantial amounts totalling more than $1,500,000 during the five years before it was bought by FAME Aug. 31, 1964.

Mr. Bourdon said that after his inspection of the plant he told FAME directors the Fearman company could be turned into a profitable venture.

He evaluated the Fearman plant at $2,500,000 and the equipment at $800,000, but added the appraisal was a quick one made in one day.

"I didn't take into consideration the assets or shares," he said. "It was just that the plant was worth it ($3,500,000).

FAME bought the shares of the company, but also had to assume the liabilities.

Countries Fail To Name Head For Secretariat

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — British authorities say three months of behind - the - scenes soundings among the 21 member countries have failed to produce agreement on the man to head the new Commonwealth secretariat.

The British government had hoped a consensus would be reached before the prime ministers gather here for their June 17-25 conference. This hope now has been abandoned.

The whole issue will be thrown open for discussion and negotiation, with authorities here anticipating that personal exchanges will lead to a compromise before the conference ends.

At least a half-dozen candidates have been considered, with Arnold Smith, Canada's assistant deputy external affairs minister, high among them. The 50-year-old Canadian diplomat, a former ambassador to the Soviet Union, was nominated by Prime Minister Pearson.

Others known to have been assessed include:

George Ivan Smith, 39, Australian - born senior United Nations officer in Kalanga who has been nominated by Tanzania and Zambia; Sir Robert Menzies, 70, Australian - born head of the UN special fund, nominated by Ghana, and Alistair Forsith, 51, New Zealand's top civil servant, nominated by Prime Minister Keith Holyoake.

OTHERS CONSIDERED

Officials said that several non-white candidates also have been considered.

A Canadian source said "in the face" whose identity could not be disclosed also had been mentioned during the last few weeks.

The Daily Mail, in a report headed "Wilson fails to get the right man," said there is a serious possibility that a complete outsider may be chosen because of differences over those already considered.

The newspaper, which listed Smith at the head of those who had been considered, estimated that the head of the secretariat would get about $25,000 a year and that the total budget for the secretariat would be about $300,000 annually.

The new secretariat, which is to be formally approved at the prime minister's meeting, will take over some of the duties of the British Commonwealth Commonwealth relations office. It is designed to ensure that member countries are fully informed about Commonwealth issues and to co-ordinate economic assistance.

CRITICIZES LBJ

TORONTO (CP) —President Lyndon Johnson was accused here Tuesday of trickery and manipulation of Congress in the Viet Nam situation. CHARYK AND HIS "SPACE TIGER" — Alberta-born Dr. Joseph Charyk, president of the Communications Satellite Corp. managing the Early Bird communications satellite, says he has a space tiger by the tail in the striking success of the system. Because Dr. Charyk says he wants Early Bird to be a tiger at the bank, too, he will have to ration available transmitting time among competing commercial interests. A full-scale model of Early Bird is being examined by Dr. Charyk. (CP Photo)

Alberta-born Scientist Has Space Tiger by Tail

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Alberta-born Dr. Joseph Charyk agrees he has a space tiger by the tail in the striking success so far of the Early Bird communications satellite.

Early Bird, "pinned" 22,300 miles above earth after an April 6 launching, is making communications history almost every day as a relay station between North America and Europe for television, telephone, teletype and other transmissions.

"I don't think we have grasped its full potential yet," the slim, friendly space scientist said a few minutes after watching President Johnson make his second TV broadcast in six days beamed to Europe.

But some of the problems raised by Early Bird are clearer.

Charyk, as president of the Communications Satellite Corp. managing Early Bird, has one special dilemma. Early Bird should be a tiger at the bank, as well, and he will have to ration among competing commercial interests the limited amount of satellite use available.

That situation will persist until more satellites are thrust aloft, with three needed for a globe - girdling system. Early Bird has 240 two-way channels and later models will have many more.

SOLVES PROBLEMS

Charyk doesn't relish the immediate prospect. But he's been facing and solving problems ever since he was appointed in March, 1963.

Early Bird will be fully tested by June 9 and ostensibly ready for commercial traffic. Charyk has to have a list of prizes ready shortly for approval by the U.S. federal communications commission.

Beyond that, Early Bird appears to have ushered in a new era in international relations with world leaders beaming major speeches across the Atlantic.

In his first TV test May 2, Early Bird also tripped up Canada's most wanted man in Georges Lemay, apprehended at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., after his face was flashed on TV sets.

There is recognition too that Russia, for example, cannot be far behind in her own space communications program and that an international accord is needed to prevent chaos in space.

It also remains to be seen how effectively Early Bird and successors can compete with progress in existing forms of intercontinental communications such as cables.

Charyk talked easily about these subjects, relaxed in a chair in his new office building in downtown Washington. Now 44, he is a "brain-drain" Canadian export to U.S. space technology who became an American citizen in 1948.

Charyk—he is of Ukrainian extraction—was born in Canmore, Alta. His father was a CPR roadmaster and Charyk took a science degree at the University of Alberta graduating in 1943 for the California Institute of Technology.

The lure was aeronautics and he moved into primitive research in rocketry — the jet-assisted takeoff for aircraft was being developed. He never looked back.

At the end of the Second World War he went to Princeton on staff, then in 1955 to Lockheed Aircraft to work on rocket nose-cone materials.

He headed the pre-Sputnik project called Project Far Side —attempting to blast a missile far into space from a balloon platform—and by 1959 he was chief scientist for the U.S. Air Force.

He became Air Force undersecretary in 1960.

His last trip to Canada, where his two brothers and two sisters still live, was last year to get an honorary degree from the University of Alberta.

Charyk is chiefly preoccupied today — but far from bowed with the commercial side of his job. He laughed as he recalled that Early Bird had picked up robbery suspect Lemay.

"I suspect that it was kind of a gag to most people when these pictures of wanted men were used on that first show," he said. "But it wasn't a gag to the RCMP, the FBI or Scotland Yard and look what happened."

EARNS SALARY

Charyk earns his salary of $80,000 annually or more

When President Johnson first used Early Bird to get a special message across to Europe May 7, he did so on three hours' notice, but it was done. German Chancellor Ludwig Erhardt's address received in North America was less successful May 9.

Johnson's second appearance on Early Bird May 13, when he reviewed Viet Nam policy and blasted China, was requested by the European Broadcasting Union about seven hours ahead of delivery.

Charyk said it was a scramble to get all the earth-receiving stations lined up but he was elated by the technical quality and a possibility that the president's voice and face penetrated Poland and East Germany.

The trip to Moscow as open too but we don't know yet whether they used it," he said.

Generally Europe's television network ties in with Eurovision linking Western Europe and Britain.

CONTROLLED BY U.S.

The Communications Satellite Corporation — or Comsat-is — created kind of space-age agency with a special role. It has been designated by the U.S. as manager of the budding communications satellite system and the U.S. holds a majority control through common stocks—a hot item—sold to the public and private industry. The government has no investment.

The remainder of the Comsat ownership is vested among 45 countries which have signed treaties to that affect. Canada was one of the first to sign and is building a $5,000,000 earth receiving station at Mill Village, N.S., about 80 miles southwest of Halifax.

There are earth stations now operating in Britain, France, the U.S. and Germany. These take return signals from the Espound Early Bird, which looks like a squad drum, and beam them for local consumption.

But Mill Village will have to be expanded as the satellite system grows.

Charyk married an American girl in California and his four children are aged 16, 13, 7 and 5. Golf, photography and perhaps a little squash or tennis with his wife help him get his mind off Comsat problems.

"He shifts gears easily," says his wife.

Prolific Pigeons, Starlings Causing Lots of Trouble

By RON HOWARD

LONDON (CP)—Prolific pigeons and starlings, now estimated to number about 25,000,000 in Britain, are causing more than an idle fling among civic and health officials.

Not only do the noisy flocks of birds leave tons of droppings on public buildings each year, but they also are said by some health officers to pose a threat to human safety if left to breed unchecked.

Although the health ministry says tests show little chance of a major epidemic of ornithosis —a disease similar to bronchitis, carried by pigeons—several biologists have argued that unless precautions are taken the birds will continue to multiply rapidly.

Many devices have been developed to kill or scare the birds, the latest a spongy plastic resin spread in half - inch strips along known roosting areas and designed to upset the bird's equilibrium.

The resilient strip gives the bird an insecure landing, causing it to panic and take off immediately—with luck never to return.

However, the best that can be said for the plastic, which remains effective for about two years, is that it only manages to move the flocks from one building to the next.

PEOPLE SLEEPLESS TOO

In Glasgow where the substance has been used extensively to clear rooftops, the wily starlings have taken to roosting on wires and cables. The city is experimenting with trucks patrolling the streets at night with compressed - air guns to keep the birds agitated. But citizens have complained of sleepless nights.

The roof of the national gallery in Trafalgar Square, where each day Londoners and tourists come to feed thousands of pigeons, had 50 tons of droppings removed by workmen two years ago. Plastic stripping applied then has proved successful and other tenants around the square, including Canada House, have followed suit.

Lethal devices employing drugged food and poison gas are also available. But even when sanctioned by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the public outcry makes the exterminator's job appear criminal.

"It's no use," says a spokesman for a London pest control company, "the birds are presumed innocent until proven guilty."

GIVEN HOT FOOT

At a Bournemouth RAF base, plagued by starlings getting into jet aircraft intakes, officials installed a 600-square-foot heating pad to draw the nesting birds away from the runways.

And British railways, deluged with complaints from passengers who had been fouled from above by the high-roofed London stations, hired several snipers using telescopic sights and catridges rifles to pick off sleeping birds.

The only bright note —for people at least—came in a recent report from New York city where SPCA officials are experimenting with wheat soaked in 2285 diaminochlestanol dihydrochloride, a birth - control agent. The diet, fed to pigeons, has reduced egg production by more than 80 per cent in five months, the officials report.

COLOR SHOWS TARGET

The inside of young birds' mouths is brightly colored so the mother bird can feed them quickly and go back to the search for food.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

The commercial-the fiasco that will probably cause all responsible buff season and four-legged hosts in the Blaine mountain area's location in apply for deportation, was the shortest "blot" on record in heavyweight championship archives.

The controversial knockout of Liston, last night left a sandy cloud from hovering for the one-tenth time in the last decade, and once again the sport's obituary is being written.

But don't worry too much—if you're a fight buff. The "corpse" will retain the breath of life and the first thing you know the powerful attraction of the big money will fan it into some sort of activation.

The farce was the shortest on record, ending on a chaotic note that even fooled the writers of the original script. It was dressed up in the habiliments of "mystery and in intrigue" what with armed gunman ambush revenge, cops "dressed" to the teeth against the background of the cackling Cassius and the sinister-faced silence of a man who couldn't get shot enough with the scythe and whiskers out of his corner.

The "mystery" of Liston secretly training in the blackness of Maine midnight; his perfection of a "secret weapon" that would stop once and for all the saucy contempt from Louisville added to the ballyhoo color of the "promoter."

It needed the end for the Philadelphia strong boy with the dark shady record whose lightning-like first-round knockouts of Floyd Patterson in former Ditator knocked him as one of the most awesome champions of all time.

The actual mystery surrounding Liston, I believe, is in the man himself. Reared in needful surroundings, a fall record when scarcely in his teens and subsequent dealings with those living in and on the fringes of organized crime, scarcely brought him in the plateau of such world champions as Gene Tunney, Joe Louis, Dempsey, and the rest.

From here it looks like Sonny is the "Satchel Paige" of the ring. Ringside observers at his training camp thought he looked "tired and aging." This was tabbed as pre-fight ballyhoo and nobody paid any attention.

Perhaps there was more truth than fiction in the statements. Some sources have it that "Liston is 31 going on 39". While in Britain he gave as an excuse for leaving suddenly the fact he had a "17-year-old daughter." There could be truth in that.

But something besides environment caught up with the man with the "nuclear right." The devastating punch that finished Patterson in the first round on two separate occasions, was sadly missing in the first segment of the two-act comedy with Clay. The "injured shoulder" episode was supposed to take care of that.

But don't forget there was enough left to cause the "Lip" to want to quit in the fourth round of that first song-and-dance routine.

Many thought, and that includes this agent, that Liston had learned a lesson. They thought the stigma that followed the first Clay bout and the loss of pride in losing his title to the "upstart from Louisville, would resurrect any pride he may have.

His silence in training camp; his alleged cover-up of his actual condition before observers at ringside built up a following for the sullen brooding giant.

On the other side of the picture, whether by design or coincidence, Clay again "called the dice." He, too, had a "secret weapon, a sturdy right that would end Sonny once and for all. It did just that.

Outside of filling his wallets, deposit vaults and his insurgence pockets, Clay gained little from the oneact farce of last night.

The chaos that resulted from the controversial count didn't add to his prestige. I sometimes wonder what would happen if Clay met the Liston that "murdered" Patterson in those early encounters?

The Mohamid Ali may be a lot better fighter than a lot of people say he is. On the other hand he has yet to prove himself a worthy champion.

One Minute ★★★★★ One Punch

Clay's 'Secret Weapon' KOs Liston

By MURRAY ROSE

LEWISTON, Me. (AP)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, knockout conqueror of Sonny Liston in the record time of one minute for a heavyweight title fight, hollered for "The Rabbit—Floyd Patterson" today while the boxing world twirled with talk of another fiasco.

A short right hand to the jaw knocked out the aging, former champion for a "12 count" in a confused and controversial finish that had many of the 4,200 fans in the heavily policeguarded Central Maine Youth Centre yelling "fake" and "fix."

But the undefeated Clay, unperturbed over repeated threats on his life, shouted, "That was my secret—it was a phantom punch. It was lightning and thunder—fast as lightning and booming as thunder from the heavens."

"It was a good, right-hand punch," said the unmarked Liston, fisted as 31 but believed several years older. "No, I didn't quit. The blow landed on my left cheekbone. I've never been knocked down before. It made me groggy. I got to my knees but fell the second time because I was off balance."

WAS A 'GOOD LICK'

"It was a good lick," said Patterson, the two-time former heavyweight king and the rabbit Clay wants next to shoot four rounds. "He really hit him. It was more than one or two meet him."

"There was nothing suspicious about it as I'm concerned," said George Russo, chairman of the Maine State Boxing Commission. "The only thing is that it ended too soon. The people didn't get their money's worth."

Nothing much happened in the early moments as Clay, hands down, danced and circled from the plodding former champion, out to nail Clay with one punch. Then it caught Liston with the right.

Liston fell on his back in a delayed fall, rolled over, got to his right knee and then fell on his back again.

DIDN'T COUNT

In the meantime, referee Jersey Joe Walcott, another former heavyweight champion, never counted. He tried to steer Clay to a neutral corner. When he got back and peered to the knockdown timekeeper across the ring, Liston had fallen back on the canvas.

CASSIUS CLAY

When Liston arose, Walcott rubbed Liston's gloves and looked towards the timekeeper again. Then he left the fighters, to go over to the timekeeper.

With the referee gone, Clay and Liston started slugging away.

By then Walcott had been informed by the timekeeper that he had counted to 12 before Liston got up and that Clay had won on a knockout.

Walcott rushed back, separated the fighters, and declared Clay the winner on a knockout. It was then the fans let loose with a chorus of boos.

Russo verified that the knockout punch was one minute.

Then the 23-year-old Clay, now calling himself "King of the Ring" as well as "Greatest" broke one of the oldest records in the book.

SPEED OUT RECORD

By taking out Liston for the second straight time—this time in 60 seconds—he wiped out the record time of 1:12 for a heavyweight title fight set by Tommy Burns when he beat Jim Roche in Dublin, March 17, 1908. Clay's quick kayo was the 12th first-round knockout in a heavyweight title fight.

The fight, which was telecast to 280 outlets in the United States, Canada and Mexico and was beamed overseas by the Early Bird satellite, looked for almost as much of a storm as their still heralded-as-first fight at Miami Beach 18 months ago.

That was the strange fight in which Liston, a prohibitive 7-1 favorite, quit in his corner after the sixth round, claiming an injured left shoulder. Clay had tried to quit after the fourth, claiming he was blinded by liniment in Liston's glove.

Clay weighed a surprisingly light 208 pounds and Liston 215 for the rematch.

HAS 21-0 RECORD

Clay, who turned pro in 1960 after winning the Olympic light heavyweight crown, now has a 21-0 record, including 17 knockouts. Liston, whose last 38 straight over a nine-year span until he ran into Clay, now has a 34-3 record, including the two knockout losses.

The fight, kicked out of Boston because of the promotional setup, drew 4,280 customers and $291,800 according to Inter-Continental Promotions, Inc. With the television and other rights included, the fighters each probably earned about $200,000.

Clay, as usual, got in the first and last words.

Just before leaving the arena, he said "I told everybody I had a secret but I couldn't reveal it. If I told the people what I was going to do, they wouldn't have come to the fight.

"I knew I was going to knock out the big bear in the first round. I'm just too fast for everyone. My punches just blur."

Question 'Who Blew It?'

Chaos Reigned After "Count"

By WILL GRIMSLEY

LEWISTON, Me. (AP)—Who blew the count in the bizarre Cassius Clay — Sonny Liston heavyweight title fight?

Was it Jersey Joe Walcott, the baffled referee who served as referee?

Was it time-keeper Francis McDonough of Portland, Me?

Was it Liston who lay on the canvas, got up, fell again and then became in one minute flat the quickest knockout victim in heavyweight history?

The controversy continued to rage today while some stunned spectators—those who saw it live and the millions who watched on closed TV—yelled "Fix!" and "Fake!"

Clay connected with an overhand right that traveled only a few inches. The 215¼ pound Liston thumped to the canvas where he lay for several seconds trying to get to his feet only to fall back again.

Walcott appeared confused. He looked around dazedly for the timekeeper. Then he hovered over Liston.

When Liston fell back a second time, Walcott walked to the edge of the ring. Liston rose and the fight continued—in a flurry of punches. Clay battled the challenger three times before Walcott rushed in to end the fight.

Then Johnny Addie answered: "The winner and still champion — Muhammad Ali. The time: One minute."

Said George Russo, chairman of the Maine Boxing Commission: "There was nothing suspicious about the fight."

Liston complained afterward that he was waiting to hear Walcott's count. He never heard it.

The timekeeper, McDonough, said Walcott was looking at the crowd and never at him.

Walcott contended he was trying to get Clay into a neutral corner and he expected the timekeeper to continue the count while he performed these chores—but he couldn't find the timekeeper.

"It would have been different.

no confusion if the timekeeper had had a microphone so he could be heard," said Walcott.

Under boxing rules, the timekeeper is supposed to start the count at the time of a knockdown. The referee's duty is to get the fighter to a neutral corner, pick up the count from the timekeeper and continue it aloud over the knockdown victim.

The timekeeper said he got to the count of 13 before Liston fully reached his feet.

"He told me that and I went back and stopped the fight," Walcott said.

Floyd Patterson, the probable next opponent of Clay, said it was a legitimate, powerful punch which ended the fight.

George Chuvalo of Toronto, another leading heavyweight contender, said it looked like a phony.

"That punch wouldn't have knocked out my baby," Chuvalo said. "When Liston was down, his eyes darted from left to right. When you're knocked out, your eyes don't dart-they just stare like glass."

Lightfoots Blank S. Warner

Veteran Jack "Deacon" Whiting's two home runs carried Lightfoot Construction to a 3-0 Commercial Softball League victory over Stewart Warner, at Swick's Island, last night.

Whiting clouted a solo homer in the first frame and the score stayed 1-0 until he repeated the effort in the fourth frame. Lightfoot batted their third run in the sixth frame, when Whiting got his third hit of the game, this was a double.

Joe Harvey pitched the Lightfoot victory, stopping Stewart Warner on five hits. He struck out three and passed two.

Harry Powers hurled well in a losing cause, giving up six safeties, whiffing seven and not walking a batter. The winner had the only error of the fast, well-played contest.

Besides Whiting's three hits, Lightfoots got a triple from Joe Clapp and singles from Don Wood and Joe Harvey.

Jack Caddick collected two Stewart Warner singles with one apiece going to Bud Turner, Gee and Gary Wood.

$30,000 Canadians Paid To See

"Shortest Show On Earth"

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some 30,000 Canadian boxing fans paid prices ranging from $10 down to $2 Tuesday night to see 60 seconds of world heavyweight title fight beamed by closed-circuit television to theatres, arenas and auditoriums across the country.

Most raised a bigger ruckus after the brief encounter between Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston, the stars of the show, mustered in the Pa'ce Lewiston, Me. Few were enthralled by the brevity of the spectacle in which Clay retained his crown by knocking out Liston after only one minute of the first round.

Closed-circuit TV attendance was strong in Eastern and Western Canada but lagged in central Ontario showed a smaller interest.

Saskatchewan had no closed-circuit TV and in Vancouver and London, Ont., the bout was beamed to subscribers of cable television.

Promoters had said 1,000,000 seats were available at 258 locations in Canada, the United States and Mexico and they hoped to sell $30,000.

HAS BEST CROWD

The best turnout in Canada was at Montreal where a capacity crowd of 6,000 paid prices of $7 to $2 to see the match at Paul Sauve Arena.

The Playhouse theatre in Fredericton, N.B., was the next closest to a full house. Tickets at $10 apiece were purchased by 1,200 theatregoers, leaving only 100 seats empty.

But those two best-attended performances were small beer in the most booked. Loud hoots of disgust filled the Playhouse Theatre after the fight.

A crowd of 3,500, including Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker, showed up for the fight at the 4,000-seat Ottawa Civic arena and raised cries of anger after the bout. Reaction was the same at the Coliseum in Quebec City where 3,000 spectators showed up at the 10,000-seat arena.

Good crowds were attracted at Edmonton and Calgary—2,186 at Edmonton's 2,727-seat Jubilee Auditorium where tickets cost from $8 to $3 and 2,200 at the 8,500-seat Calgary Corral where tickets ranged from $5 to $3.

DRAWS 2,000

Winnipeg Arena, charging $5 to $3, drew 2,000 of its 5,000 seats and about half of the 1,500 seats in Halifax's Queen Elizabeth High School auditorium were occupied at $7.50 to $5 a seat.

Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, which packs in about 14,000 for National Hockey League games, attracted 3,300 fans at prices scaled from $7.50 to $2.50. A Toronto theatre charging $6.60 a seat filled about half of its 1,000 chairs and an Oshawa drive-in theatre drew the same price had only 200 of its 972 places occupied.

Five-hundred each paid $10 to see the fight in the high school auditorium at Moncton, N.B., which can hold 1,200 and the 4,000-seat arena at Victoria, B.C., charging $3 and up a seat, was one-quarter filled.

Not Confirmed, Denied

Says Faloney Signs With Als

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal Star says it has learned from a reliable source that Bernie Faloney, former Hamilton Tiger - Cat quarterback, has signed a three-year contract with Montreal Alouettes.

Alouette owner-president Ted Workman would neither confirm or deny the signing, the newspaper says.

Faloney, a former Maryland star, has been involved in bitter negotiations with the Montreal club for the last four months. The 28-year-old veteran of nine Canadian Football League campaigns signed for more than $20,000 annually.

The newspaper says it is believed the Alouettes granted Faloney a considerable settlement in order to induce him to leave his business and home in Hamilton to come here.

Faloney was traded to Alouettes by the Tiger-Cats in January, along with veteran defensive backs Ralph Goldston and Jackie Simpson.

The Als gave up four seasoned first-stringers, Billy Ray Locklin, Dick Walton, Ted Page and Billy Wayte.

The Als also gave up their rights to retired Don Clark, who has since signed with the Hamilton club.

At his home in Ancaster, near Hamilton, Tuesday night, Faloney refused to confirm or deny the report.

"I have no comment," he said.

PAINTERS OUT AGAIN

HOUSTON (AP) — Painters picketed the Astrodome's glare problem again Tuesday. Another coat of off-white paint was being sprayed on two sections of the plastic dome of the baseball stadium in the home plate area.

Pitching—Don Drysdale, Los Angeles, allowed only one hit—first Flood's infield single that started the game—as the Dodgers stopped St. Louis' seven-game winning streak 2-0.

Batting—Vic Davalillo, Cleveland, rapped three hits, two of them homers, and drove in four runs, powering the Indians to a 7-1 triumph over New York Yankees.

Who's Afraid Of Big Golf Wolves?

Not Mr. Knudson

By JIM CREAR

TORONTO (CP) — George Knudson isn't afraid of anybody.

With his pockets bulging with more than $33,000 in winnings so far this year, Canada's richest golfer doesn't have to be.

The 27-year-old Winnipeg native, now playing out of Toronto, was the guest of honor at a press reception here Tuesday. He's back in Canada for a rest between tournaments on the United States Professional Golfers Association tour, the big league of golf.

Knudson has battled the cream of the crop, including Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Tony Lema, all year and currently has the best scoring average of the lot, 69.78 strokes a round.

"I don't feel I have any effect on anyone else's game and nobody else has any effect on mine," said the red-haired, bespectacled father of two small boys.

But Knudson admits he has a hero, bantam Ben Hogan, whose style he's trying to duplicate.

"I remember 1953 very well," he said. "Hogan won the Masters, the Colonial, the U.S. Open and the British Open and I've still got his press clippings. This was all after the accident, too."

Hogan was critically hurt in a highway crash east of El Paso, Tex., Feb. 2, 1949, but fought his way back into the winner's circle.

Knudson first saw Hogan play in the Los Angeles Open in 1957 and has followed him closely since.

But having Hogan for an idol has been exasperating. In his five years on the U.S. tour, Knudson hasn't had a chance to slay a round with him.

"I've come close a few times, but I've never been drawn with him and I've never even had a chance to really talk to him."

Knudson's winnings in official PGA tournaments this year total $28,461. The balance was won in several not counted in PGA money winning.

So far Knudson has placed fourth at Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco and New Orleans, tied for eighth at Phoenix, Ariz., and had his biggest payday with an $11,500 second-place finish in the rain-soaked Colonial in Fort Worth, Tex., early this month.

Knudson led the Colonial for three rounds, but lost on the final day by a single stroke to Bruce Crampton of Australia. Crampton had to shoot sub-par golf on four of the last six holes to edge the 5-foot-10, 155-pounder.

Knudson has played most of the year with frayed ligaments in his left thumb. He got them when he jammed a club into the thumb during the final round of the San Francisco Open in January.

The only cure is rest and he plans to take time off from the tour after August. Meanwhile he makes his next start in the Buick Open in Detroit June 3-6.

Knudson isn't surprised at his accomplishments this year. He warmed up by winning $14,663 in 1962, $13,530 in 1963 and $18,781 last year.

"I have no ambition to become the No. 1 money winner at present," he said, "but talk to me in about five years and it might be different."

DRIVER KILLED

Minor Baseball Results

C.N.R. Firemen defeated Deseronto Construction 7-5 in a Belleville Minor Baseball Association Tyke division game played at Park Dale last night. The Firemen potted two runs in the top of the seventh for the margin of victory. DeMille fought back with one marker but it was not enough.

John Mulvihill and Danny Lupenette, in the sixth, pitched for the winners while M. Pfleger and M. Hayes, in the fourth, buried for the losers.

Each team collected only one hit, T. Coughlin cracking a double in the fourth inning for DeMille while Enwright had a second-inning single for the CNR.

Mulvihill and Lupenette struck out 19 batters and walked seven. Pfleger and Hayes fanned 11 men but handed out 15 free passes.

Orioles Zoom, Close In On White Sox

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Who floats like a butterfly and stings like a bee? Stu Miller, Baltimore's aloft - throwing relief artist.

Miller worked two innings Tuesday night to protect the Orioles' 6-3 victory over Kansas City Athletics and run his scoreless string to 11 consecutive appearances.

The victory, fourth straight for the Orioles, moved them within three games of the American League lead.

First-place Chicago White Sox dropped a 7-5 decision to Detroit Tigers, Minnesota Twins blasted Boston Red Sox 17-5, Washington Senators swept a 7-3, 6-0 doubleheader from Los Angeles Angels, and New York Yankees 5-1.

Miller saved fellow reliever Harvey Haddix's first 1965 victory with his two-inning stint against the Athletics.

Starting pitcher Milt Pappas was touched for two - base-loaded triple in the second inning and scored on Jerry Adair's single, giving the Orioles a 2-0 lead. Pappas, however, failed to survive the Athletics' three - run fifth. Haddix came on and checked the As for 2 1-3 innings before giving way to Miller.

Al Kaline clubbed two triples and capped a three-run rally in the fifth inning with a run-scoring single as the Tigers handed the White Sox their fifth setback in six games. Six consecutive doubles by Jim Northrup and George Thomas broke a 4-4 tie in the sixth.

The Twins exploded for 20 hits, including home runs by Earl Battey, Bob Allison, Tony Oliva, Zoilo Versalles and Jerry Kindall, to smash the Red Sox. Battey drove in 5 runs with a three-run homer—his first of the year—a single and a bases-loaded walk.

The Red Sox hit four homers off Jim Bunning and artillery pair Minnesota right-hander hung on for his fifth victory without a loss. Lee Thomas, Ed Brinkman, Gary Geiger and pinch-hitter Jerry Moses, a first - year catcher, who had only one previous at-bat, connected for Boston.

Frank Howard's two - run homer proved the difference in Washington's second-game victory over the Angels after three Senators homered against Fred Newman and two successors in the opener.

Ken McMullen and Jim King hit two-run shots and Ken Hamlin added a solo homer as the Senators handed Newman his first loss following opening day. Howard's long homer and Ed Brinkman's three runs batted in helped Hoyle Kopitzke pick up the second game victory.

Davalillo, the league's leading hitter, was tripped New York starter Jim Bouton for a bases-empty homer in the first inning and a three-run shot in the sixth. The little Cleveland outfielder also singled — running his two - game string to six straight hits—before flying out in the eighth.

Whitfield accounted for the other Cleveland run with his seventh home run and fourth in four games against the Yankees.

SELLS STOCK

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles announced Tuesday night that Joseph A. W. Inglehart, chairman of the board, has sold his majority stock holding to the club's two other major stockholders. Inglehart had come under fire because he held some 40 per cent of the stock in Baltimore Orioles, Inc., and also some 40,000 shares of the Columbia Broadcasting System, which purchased New York Yankees.

City Peewees Defeat Frankford

Belleville Merchants damped Frankford 10-6 in their first game of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association's Peewee division, at Frankford, last night.

Paul Wroke, Cory Yates and Glen Carleton divided the Belleville pitching chore, allowing seven hits and striking out eight. Paul Hall was their receiver.

R. Hoyle attended to the Frankford pitching, lagged for 11 safeties. He claimed 12 strikeout victims. B. Lockwood and S. Bedard shared the catching.

Terry Meagher hammered a home run, double and single while Glen Carleton hit a triple and two singles for the Merchants. Paul Hall and Merlo Venuti each singled twice, Rick Meagher once.

Frankford's top hitters were McCauley and S. Bedard, with two singles apiece.

Belleville was charged with four errors and Frankford with three.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Gay Frisco and Dale Grattan returned a daily double payoff of $786.30 at Mohawk Raceway Tuesday night.

Gay Frisco, owned by J. J. Phillips of Oshawa and driven by Bev Kingston of Oshawa, covered the mile in 2:06 3-5, fastest time of the night. Gay Frisco returned $25.20 straight. Co-owner Nell McLean of Lucan, Ont., provided the second upset of the night with Dale Grattan B., who returned 39¢.

There were seven $2 tickets and one $3 ticket on the daily double. Lucky holder of the $3 ticket got $1,940.75.

The crowd of 2,296 bet $132,-135.

Canada Cup Played In Madrid

NEW YORK AP — The 1965 Canada Cup matches will be played Sept. 30 - Oct. 3 at the Club de Campo, Madrid, the International Golf Association said Tuesday.

The matches, involving two professional golfers from as many as 24 different countries originally were scheduled for Oct. 21 - 24 but were changed to avoid a conflict with a PGA tournament at Las Vegas, Nev. Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus combined last year in Paris to win the cup for the United States.

The 1966 matches will be held in Tokyo and the 1967 matches in Mexico City.

Pt. Anne Defeats Ter-Haar

A six-run explosion in the fifth frame sparked Point Anne to a 14-6 Commercial Softball League win over Ter-Haar Dunbars, at Prince Charles School, last night.

The Consentmen had led 3-2 after one inning but Ter-Haar moved ahead 5-3 in the third, then the winners took command.

Vern Whalen hurled five-hit ball over the route for Point Anne. He struck out four and passed a pair.

Ray Ryan was the starter and loser, relieved by B. Jeffreys in the fifth. They were tagged for 13 hits, struck out three and walked nine.

Gerry Maher cracked three singles to lead the Point Anne hitters. Perry Ellis had a double and single, Jim Hopwood and Mike Cook two hits apiece, Denny Maher, Rick Rossbiter, Ted Maher and Ray Summers one each.

Lucien Hamlin clouted a three-run homer in the Ter-Haar third with the team's other hits were singles by Wickett, H. Painter, R. Painter and A. Buttan.

Lombanks Blank Stirling

STIRLING (Special) — Edon Gray outpitched Howard Jeffs in a well-played B and D Softball League fixture here last night, giving Tweed Lombanks a 4-0 victory over the Stirling crew.

Tweed counted single runs in the third, fourth, fifth and eighth frames while Gray was blanking the Stirling crew, pitching out of a tight men-on-first-and-third situation at one point.

Gray gave up five hits over the distance, firing third strikes past 13 batters and walking only one.

Jeffs was touched for 10 hits in all but he did not walk a man and threw third strikes past half a dozen.

The solid pitching and sharp fielding made it one of the loop's best-played games to date.

Terry LeSage solved Jeffs' offerings for double and two singles to spark the Lombank batters. Bill Salmond poked a triple and single and Elden Gray aided his own cause with a double and single. Paul Merkey, Bert Sherry and Don Cotton also hit safely.

Roger Smith's double was Stirling's only extra-base hit. Others were divided among Doug Pottz, Bob Donohoe, Bob Neal and Carroll Smith.

Tonight, Tweed plays host to Madoc, at Madoc, in a game postponed from Monday. That game is at 8.15. Elsewhere, Ellis Juniors travel to Trenton and Tweed Motors clash with undefeated Bloomfield, in Picton.

Fight Was 'Disgrace To Boxing'

TORONTO (CP) — Merv McKenzie, president of the World Boxing Association, Tuesday night blamed greedy television promoters for taking away the authority of boxing commissioners.

McKenzie, who is also Ontario athletic commissioner, termed the Sonny Liston - Cassius Clay title fight Tuesday as "unfitting, unkempt, illegal and a disgrace to boxing."

The WBA did not sanction Tuesday's fight, as it does not recognize either Liston or Clay as heavyweight challengers. They were barred from the WBA for signing a rematch contract before their first fight.

McKenzie said that following

Clay's one - minute knockout of the challenger, people may listen to his group, which had helped Liston to have another fight before he fought Clay.

This would have proved the former champion was still in good enough condition to fight, he said.

Inter-Continental Promotions, promoters of Tuesday's fight, should be prohibited from handling any future bouts, McKenzie said.

"I feel that this eliminates them at any rate, for they were interested primarily in promotion - money - making Liston fights. They were the bad apple in the boxing barrel."

Dodger Ace One-Hits Cards

Drysdale Hands Bob Gibson First Loss

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Like the March Hare in Alice in Wonderland, Don Drysdale was late for a very important date.

Once he arrived, though, St. Louis Cardinals knew it wasn't going to be any tea party.

Drysdale stymied the Cardinals on one hit—a scratch single—and ignited the rally that gave Los Angeles Dodgers a 2-0 victory Tuesday night.

The loss knocked the Cardinals out of their wonderland existence. They had won seven straight games and 11 of their last 12 and hadn't been shut out this season.

The only hit off Drysdale came at the start of the game. Leadoff batter Curt Flood bounced a grounder off the big right-hander's bare hand and ball second baseman Jim Lefebvre's throw to first.

DELAYED BY FIGHT

Explaining his tardiness for the game, Drysdale said:

"I was so interested in listening to the Clay-Liston fight that I was late. I got there minutes late going out to warm up. I had to get ready in a hurry. I considered it a new challenge. We had to stop the Cards somewhere."

St. Louis never got started.

After Flood's hit, the 28-year-old veteran retired 14 consecutive batters. Then, Dick Groat reached first in the fifth inning when Dodgers Nick Pyburn set Groat's grounder go through his legs for an error. The final 13 batters went down in order.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Chicago Cubs 6-4 in 10 innings, Cincinnati Reds defeated Houston Astros 7-4, Milwaukee Braves trampled San Francisco Giants 14-3 and Philadelphia Phillies whipped New York Mets 10-3.

Drysdale, winning his seventh game against three defeats, outdueled Bob Gibson, who suffered his first setback after eight victories. Two of the six hits off Gibson came in the eighth. Drysdale started the inning with a single, and after Wes Parker walked, Ron Fairly doubled them home.

Andre Rodgers singled across Dean Chance in the Pirates' winning run in the 13th. Clendenon led off the inning with his fourth single and was sacrificed to second. Maranda

SCORES TYING RUN

Don Landrum had given the Cubs a 6-5 lead in the ninth with a two-run double, but Gene Freese scored the tying run on Ted Abernathy's bases-loaded wild pitch.

Cincinnati defeated Houston on Tony Perez' three-run homer off Jim Owens in the sixth. Vada Pinson, who had four hits, slammed a three-run homer in the Reds' fifth. Sammy Ellis, now 7-1, stopped the Astros on five hits.

Mack Jones drove in four runs with two homers and a single, backing Wade Blasingame's five-hitter against the Giants. Jones' second homer triggered a five-run sixth inning rally and ended Marichal's streak.

Ray Herbert evened his record at 3-3 while battering the Mets with three singles and a pair of runs batted in. The Phillies knocked out starter Al Jackson with five runs in the first and added four more in the sixth as they collected a total of 18 hits.

Batawa Shades Parsons 2-1

Batawa shaded Bellerville Parsons Cleaners 2-1 in an exhibition soccer match played at the Fairgrounds here last night.

A Parsons team spokesman said this morning that the playing field is in very poor condition. "It is full of ruts and holes, making for very poor ball control," he said.

Parsons are slated to open their home schedule in the Kingston District League this coming weekend but due to the condition of the field here, hope to play the game at the Trenton ECAF field.

Batawa and the Cleaners were scoreless in the first half last night, the losers failing to take advantage of several good scoring chances.

Bellerville opened the scoring when Chuck Reidy booted one home even in close after taking Joe Romano's pass. Shortly after, Batawa was awarded a penalty shot but Bob Swaggren, Parsons' goalie, made an excellent save.

Batawa grew stronger as the time progressed and Jeffrey tied the score at 1-1. Parsons scored again but the goal was disallowed by the referee, ruling that the ball had gone out of play.

John Zeise scored the winning goal for Batawa on a penalty shot late in the game and Parsons' Bob Rutherford missed a good opportunity on a pass when he missed an open goal in the dying seconds.

Parsons' next league game is scheduled for 8:30 this Saturday, against Kingston Italia, with the place of the game yet to be confirmed.

Joe "Changes Horses" The Joe Louis Version

By Joe Louis and Cassius (Muhammad Ali) Clay.

LEWISTONE, Me., MAY 26—What is it they used to say—if you can't lick 'em, join 'em? I have. I have joined Cassius Clay. He has become my writing partner, because I know a champion when I see one.

Cassius fought like a champ here last night as he repeated over Sonny Liston to remain the best heavyweight in the world.

Sonny's resistance was low, but you can't blame that on Clay.

Clay had the speed, he had the stamina and he had the punch to score a knockout in one minute in the first round, compared to seven the last time.

Now I—from now on it's the new firm we—feel a little sorry for Sonny. He tried hard, he'd trained long but you know there's no turning back the calendar. The years pile up on you and there's nothing you can do about it.

Despite all his training, he could only bring his weight down to 215¼. That was bad.

The right hand punch to the left cheek bone itself—delivered as my co-author was on his toes was far from a dynamiter, but it did the job.

As Liston lay there—we both felt sorry for him. He should retire and not fight any more.

Age caught up with him. Make no mistake about it. Liston trained hard. As a matter of fact, too hard if the truth be told.

It is no secret that my friend, Cassius, wants Floyd Patterson next. After Floyd, he has decided to fight three heavyweights in one night if the Boxing Commission will approve. Such a spectacle, he claims he can knock out the three in one night with his punching power.

After what I saw tonight, he may do it, too. As for my writing companion, the heavyweight champion, it will be up to him to save the heavyweight championship from suffering a knockout.

He can do that, too. But, after we've said we're sorry for the loser, we've got to talk about the winner.

Yes, we had a fast horse—and a smart horse, a thoroughbred is the word.

The name of the game changes with the kind of thoroughbred you've got and this one was a surprise-springer. He knew every move of Sonny's a step ahead.

In the past there has been some pretty clever heavyweights, able boxers like Gene Tunney and Jersey Joe Walcott. They could plan how to trap a guy but it nearly always was Misperiod that they'd figured out carefully and ever some time.

But we've got something distinct and different as a change in Cassius. He's all instinct, makes it up as he goes along and the result is shifting and changing that a fighter like Sonny couldn't keep up with.

Like I told you, this is a new firm, Clay and me. I hadn't predicted he would take Sonny again, in fact I predicted just the opposite. I had felt he'd taken Liston in Miami Beach because Sonny wasn't himself.

Well, we know now that our man is the greatest, and that no other time against Sonny could he be anything but that. When Liston tried to slow down early in the short round, Clay went slower, and then moved. He loved it. This gave him a change to show-off. He danced-stopped him, Liston, into position for the knockout punch and it was over. And as I said only Clay's fists and talk can save boxing. I hope he does.

Toronto Blanks Syracuse

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jim Gosger likes it hot.

The centre fielder insisted on wearing gloves when he went to the plate during the frigid early part of the International League season.

And Gosger was in his element Tuesday night as Toronto Maple Leafs played at home in humid 70-degree weather.

He collected a triple, two singles and scored two runs in three trips to the plate as the Leafs shut out Syracuse Chiefs 3-0. It was the first shutout of the season for the Leafs, who had been blanked on three occasions.

Else where, Rochester Red Wings defeated Buffalo Bisons 7-1, Jacksonville Suns defeated Atlanta Crackers 6-1, and Columbus Jets edged Toledo Mud Hens 4-3.

The Fight?—Running

LEWISTON, Me. (AP)—Jersey Joe Walcott, former heavyweight champion, was named non-voting referee shortly before the start of Tuesday night's world heavyweight title fight between Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston.

Clay was making his first defence of the title he took from Liston at Miami Beach 15 months ago. It was a 15-round bout in the youth centre of this little Maine city, before only a few thousand fans.

The three voting judges were Joe Bovin, Russ Leonard and Clay Smith, all of Maine.

The referee will not vote if the fight goes to a decision.

The once-postponed and long-delayed meeting was telecast by closed circuit to 238 locations in the United States, Canada and Mexico and beamed to Europe by Early Bird satellite.

Liston, a 7-to-1 favorite when he lost the crown to Clay 15 months ago, entered the ring a 6-to-5 favorite. Liston weighed 215¼ pounds, Clay 206.

Present and former stars of the ring were introduced. They included former heavyweight champions Joe Louis, Jack Sharkey, Rocky Marciano, Jimmy Braddock, and Floyd Patterson.

Also given a hand were light heavyweight champion Jose Torres, former featherweight champion Willie Pep and Sandy Saddler and Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo.

Liston was the first to enter the ring. He was given a good round of applause. Then came Clay, who received a mixed greeting of boos and cheers.

Clay danced in his corner. Liston remained in his corner and glared across the ring. There was a delay while the gloves were placed on the fighters' hands.

It was blazing hot in the ring because of the battery of lights overhead for television and the sweat began to pour. Clay got in a short left and right to the head but took a hard right to the ribs. Clay danced and then nailed Liston and dropped Liston with a short right to the head.

The time was one minute, and Clay was the winner by a knockout in the shortest heavyweight title fight in history.

Will Play Despite New Rule

EDMONTON (CP)—Officials of Edmonton Oil Kings said Tuesday their junior hockey team will continue to play in the Central Alberta Intermediate League despite a new ruling by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"We won't leave the CAHA because it would be financial suicide to do so," said Al Anderson, general manager of the Edmonton Exhibition Association which owns the team.

"This is an out-and-out attempt by selfish senior, alleged junior A and minor hockey officials to practise a new tactic. . . ." he said. "If you can't beat them, break them."

The CAHA voted in Victoria Monday night a rule which allowed Edmonton to enter the national junior hockey playoffs without playing in a junior league.

The Oil Kings have won the western championship for six consecutive years. They were defeated by Niagara Falls Flyers in the Memorial Cup final this year.

Leo Leclerc, manager of the Oil Kings, said: "We'll just put our junior B team in Oil King uniforms and they'll handle anything in the Alberta Junior League.

"If we do play in both leagues and the Alberta junior isn't competitive we will withdraw unless the CAHA subsidizes our games against the juniors."

Leclerc said "we refuse to take the Oil Kings down to their level."

Anderson said the CAHA "is trying to legislate us out of existence, but we may shock them."

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — The punters at Greenwood Raceway weren't the only ones who lost Tuesday. trainer Carl Fine Chapman of Toronto will testify to that.

The veteran horseman, who ranks as one of Canada's leading trainers, was a three-way loser.

He started the day by watching Grey Dr., one of Canada's finest two - year - old prospects, fracture the pastern bone in his left foreleg during training exercises.

The colt, owned by Larkin Maloney, had never been in a race. The leg was placed in a cast and his chances of racing are slim. Grey Vic is a half-brother of Victoria Park.

As the horses paraded to the post for the first race, a horse fell on Chapman's apprentice rider, Mike Perro. He was taken to hospital.

A Chapman-trained horse, Remister, won the second race to complete a $118.90 daily double payoff, but a claim of foul lodged by Chapman in the third race was disallowed.

The quinella of Rubber Stamped and Smart Flyer returned $12.80.

From Down Under In 1912 Caddie!

By LESLIE MILLIN

VANCOUVER (CP) — The head of a three-Cadillac family is taking a few months off for a tour of North America in one of his luxury cars.

Which doesn't sound unusual, except that Ken Moss is doing it in a 1912 model improbably named Mabelena.

Mr. Moss, a dark, stubby Australian, recently packed his wife and three teen-age daughters—and Mabelena—into a liner for passage to North America.

His idea was to visit the homeland of his dearly-beloved Cadillacs, talk with other vintage-car enthusiasts and see the Memorial Day auto race at Indianapolis May 31.

"We plan to go up Pike's Peak, too," he said in an interview aboard the liner Oriana on arrival in Vancouver. This, in his view, is no special feat for a car that has already done more than 6,000 miles touring Australia. "You see, the Cadillac is a real workhorse, see," Mr. Moss said in his Sydney drawl. "You're going up a hill and someone starts pushing, all you have to do is turn the wick up a bit and you gobble him up, see."

Mabelena returned to the road in 1960, the result of plenty of work on two bodies and three engines.

"I've had Cadillacs in my blood since I was that high," Mr. Moss said. "I've got a 1903 Cadillac that's almost ready for the road, the oldest Cadillac in Australia.

"But this one in the hold, we're going to tow a trailer with her. She'll do 40 or 45 on the road, but I plan to drive at about 30 to 35. She gets about 15 miles to the gallon and she does about 120 miles to a gallon of oil. Brakes are only on the back, but they're 17½-inch brakes; that's bigger than the wheels on most cars these days."

Mabelena's 40 - horsepower dual-ignition engine is cast in four separate cylinders, 4½ by 4½ inches in bore and stroke.

"I had a lot of her x-rayed for this trip and I'm not expecting a bit of trouble," he says.

Perhaps the real workhorse of the Moss Cadillac team is the 1946 Caddie he uses to tow the others around.

His sojourn is taking him from Los Angeles to Phoenix, Detroit, Chicago, Denver, Salt Lake City and Reno, as well as Pike's Peak in Colorado and Indianapolis.

The Moss family was excited about the trip, especially the girls, who get a respite from school.

"I've got rather used to Ken and his cars," says Mrs. Moss. "But I don't like them in the house. I don't mind some parts in a basin of dirty oil in the kitchen for one night, but first thing in the morning, out they go."

Must Write Examination Before Getting Gun Licence

VICTORIA (CP) — A written examination on how to handle a gun properly soon will face every man who buys his first British Columbia hunting license. And failure presumably will mean refusal of the permit to hunt.

The exams are provided for in amendments to the B.C. game Act passed at the last session of the legislature. The tests probably will be instituted in 1966.

Another amendment leaves the way open for charges being brought against hunters who, through "gross negligence" while under present legislation, fail to exercise "due care" for the safety of others.

Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan has also said anyone who commits a breach of the Game Act will be required to take the gun-handling examination.

Form of the test hasn't been determined by the government yet, but it is expected to be along the lines of exams prepared for young hunters by the B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs.

These exams were given to, and passed by, ninety per cent of people after an experimental series of classes for Kamloops students in 1964.

ADOPTED BY SCHOOLS

In January this year the provincial education department gave the safety program official blessing in its monthly circular to schools. Printed material for a course being adopted by some schools as a regular part of their teaching program is being prepared by the game federation.

The new B.C. hunting regulations are aimed at preventing accidents primarily among the 15-20 age group, which has the highest percentage of accidents. There were 10 firearms fatalities in 1964 compared with five in 1963 and 11 persons were seriously injured while handling guns compared with three the previous year.

The game department now is preparing a manual on safe handling of firearms which will be made available in all areas of the province.

Mr. Kiernan says he hopes the amendments will go through a periodic test.

Ken Hodgson, president of the fish and game federation, says his group agrees. The amendments resulted largely from presentations by the federation.

"This should, in the end, keep a lot of careless gun-banders out of the woods," Hodgson says.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

By C. A. MILLER
Retired Supervising Assessor, Tax Department
UNWED MOTHERS

An unwed mother is entitled to claim $1000 exemption for her child providing she supports it. It is not necessary that she maintain a home for the child. The child, may be anywhere, either in or out of the country as the governing factor in such cases is support. If the child has an address different from her own, then she must attach to her return some evidence to prove that she supports it.

If the courts have ordered the father of the child to make certain periodic payments to her she can still claim it and does not have to show these payments on her return. The father of the child making the payments is not permitted to deduct them, therefore he pays the tax. He is also not permitted to claim any exemption for the child as it is not in his custody or control.

Section 26 (3) of the Income Tax Act states that unless otherwise established, the illegitimate child is wholly dependent on the mother and another child dependent on the father.

In cases where the father of the child eventually marries its mother, then he may claim exemption for it in the ordinary way. In my many years as an income tax assessor, I found a number of taxpayers who would not claim an illegitimate child, fearing that someone in the income tax office would disclose the information. Such persons should have no fear in this respect as each employee has to take the oath of secrecy not just once but periodically. Any disclosure of information from an income tax return is punished most severely. If you have a problem of this nature and do not want to consult your local tax office, do not hesitate to write me, as I do not reside in any town or city near where this column is published.

For a personal reply, enclose a self - addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I have had an illegitimate child for three years, but have never claimed it. Can I now get any allowance for those years?

Answer: Yes. Write or visit your local tax office and explain why the claim was not made, and ask that your prior years be adjusted. The child's birth certificate would expedite your claim.

In The Dressing Rooms

By BOB HOOBING

LEWISTON, Me. (AP)— "When did that right hand come from?" asked Sonny Liston of the knockout blow. "I only partly saw it."

"Where's Floyd Patterson?" screamed still heavyweight champ Cassius Clay. "Where's Floyd Patterson?"

"Why did thousands of people work nine months and spend so much money for a fight which lasted only 60 seconds and stunk?" asked an onlooker.

That was the night that was at the Central Maine Youth Centre Tuesday. It produced a surprise finish to a rematch of a fight that ended with Liston on his stool in Miami 15 months ago and which since was postponed by a hernia operation, banned in Boston and frequently maligned.

"It was a stunk punch — a right hand I only partly saw," said an unruffled Liston. "I didn't see no ring right on the. The referee never started the count. I didn't know when to get up.

"When I did get up I thought the fight was still on. Didn't even see no start to fight again! When Walcott stepped in I thought the bell had rung.

DIDN'T QUIT

"No, I didn't quit," Liston said. "The blow landed on my left cheekbone. Yes, it was a fair punch.

"It made me groggy. But I have been hit harder.

"The lead right surprised me. "I've never been knocked down before. I got up to my knees but in the second time because I was off balance.

"I will fight again. I'm in a position now I can't quawk. I have to fight anybody."

Clay has been mentioning Patterson, two - time former champion, as his next opponent since the fight was re-made last winter. He shouted it all over the closed - circuit television circuit the night Patterson beat George Chuvalo of Toronto.

CALLS FOR FLOYD

The moment the knockout was official Tuesday night Clay came to the ring apron and began to ask for Floyd, the man he calls "The Rabbit."

Afterward in the dressing room interview Clay said: "Just as soon as we sign the contracts I'll give The Rabbit a chance."

Clay called the knockout blow his anchor punch, something he had worked out in secret with a camp follower, former movie comedian Step'n Fetchit, who borrowed it from former champion Jack Johnson.

"It's a punch you can't see," Clay said. "Liston hit me with punches that would have knocked out Patterson."

"Sonny went down a half a minute sooner than I expected" said Clay.

A SIMPLE SHOT FROM SAND

You may not believe this, but there is one particular type of sand shot that is really simple – If you know the secret.

This shot comes when your ball is sitting high in the sand on an uphill incline.

Normally on a sand shot, you should play the ball opposite your forward foot (No. 1) and move the clubhead underneath the ball (see No. 2).

However, when the ball is on the uphill you may hit the shot just as you would on a normal pitch shot from the fairway, using either a pitching wedge or a 9-iron. The ball will react about the same on the fairway or in sand.

Just play the ball well back in your stance (No. 3) and use the club shallow the ball BEFORE

It enters the sand (No. 4). Keep your left wrist firm and follow through.

If you can hit a pitch shot from the fairway, you can make this shot from sand.

CAHA Annual

National Team For Canada

VICTORIA (CP)—Canada lost its bid to play host to the 1967 world hockey tournament because Russia and Sweden refused to a gentlemen's agreement, the president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said Tuesday.

Lionel Hunt, unveiled, reasons for Canada's failure to bring world hockey here for centennial year as he presented a report to the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

He said Russia, Sweden and Czechoslovakia had promised to vote in favor of Canada, which would have provided a bloc of votes large enough to win it for this country.

But when the vote came "some people had a change of heart." Of the three, only Czechoslovakia supported Canada and Austria won 33 to 22, he said.

Most of Tuesday's sessions were concerned with international hockey.

The CAHA decided to continue with a national hockey team next year, based in Winnipeg with a full - time manager-coach.

The team will be built around a nucleus of young players from the junior ranks of the team, and all will live and train in Winnipeg from September until the spring championship tournament in April.

The Canadian nationals will also compete in the Denver international tournament against top wodld teams and in two European warmup games on their way to Yugoslavia.

Rev. David Bauer, coach of the 1964 national team and advisor to the 1965 squad, warned that Canada must start building a junior team and somehow keep it together to get experience.

"I don't think we can ever go over there again with anything else than the ability of an amateur Ice Hockey League team," he said. The professional AHL is rated one notch below the NHL in the Ice Hockey League.

Canada's national team finished fourth in 1964 and 1965—behind Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden.

CONSIDER SEVERAL

Fleury said the CAHA is considering several men for the coaching job.

The CAHA meeting was told Russia and Czechoslovakia have accepted invitations to send their national teams to Canada next year, and there is a possibility that the Swedish and Finnish national teams may also make tours.

The CAHA will send one and possibly two teams to Europe, within the armed forces was tabled following the CAHA decision to have a national team in Winnipeg.

PICTON (Staff) — On Thursday, May 20th, seventeen 4-H Members from Prince Edward County went to Ottawa for the annual Citizenship Tour. These members were 4-H Agricultural Club winners or girls with County honors in the 4-H Homemaking Clubs.

In the morning there was a tour of the Mint and the War Museum and a look at Sussex Drive, the R.C.M.P. Training School and a nearby park.

After dinner in Market Square the group toured the Archives and then went on to the Parliament Buildings. Here there was a tour of the Senate, The House of Commons, the Library, the Peace Tower and the Memorial Chamber. Some time was spent in the Gallery of the House of Commons during the first few minutes of the session. A feature of the tour was the visit of the Shah of Iran to Ottawa. Being able to see such a visiting dignitary added a certain distinction to the tour.

From the Parliament Buildings the group went to the Central Experimental Farm. Here members were shown the "Dairy Case" Dairy Herds recently set up.

After a tour on foot through the gardens the group rode through the Arboretum and various parts of the farm with a staff member commenting on the experimental work being done in each area.

KEEP IN SAFE PLACE

Many home owners are now getting their gardens planted. Before you know it insects and diseases will become troublesome on many plants, shrubs and trees. Many home owners like to carry on a spray program for pest control and rightly so. It is important that the home owner like the commercial plant grower get to know the chemicals that he is using for pest control. One of the best ways to get to know these materials is to read the label on the containers. Not only should the label be read for dosage recommendations but should also be read for suggestions in handling the material. Remember while these materials affect insects, they can also affect people. Always keep these poisons in a safe place out of the reach of children.

HOLLYHOCK RUST — One of the biggest problems in disease control around the garden is Hollyhock rust. A fungicide call Zineb is sprayed on the foliage and gives excellent control. Zineb is available locally. Mix 4 tablespoons of Zineb in a gallon of water to control this disease.

Two Soldiers Thrown From Motorcycle

PICTON (Staff) — Two soldiers from Camp Picton were injured when thrown from a motorcycle and are in Canadian Forces Hospital at Kingston. Driver of the cycle was Guardsman Daniel James Webb and the passenger was Joseph Gravelle.

The pair was thrown from the cycle on a dirt road near the farm of R. E. Nourse at Cherry Valley. The machine struck loose gravel, according to police and skidded 212 feet. Webb was found unconscious 20 feet beyond the machine, which was still on the road. Gravelle was walking around in a dazed condition when they were discovered by Raynor MacDonald of Waupoos.

Webb is being treated for a mild concussion and abrasions to the face and Gravelle received multiple abrasions to the head and face.

Provincial Police Constable Carl Graves is investigating.

SE HABLA ESPANOL?

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Sargent Shriver, director of the United States Peace Corps, said there is a "desperate need" for more Spanish-speaking volunteers for Latin America. He said Peru already has 50 corpsmen and needs many more, as does Brazil.

Build School On Shores of Roblin Lake

PICTON (Staff) — An 11-room central school for Ameliasburg Township will, according to present plans, be built on the shores of Roblin Lake in the village of Ameliasburgh, which is geographically the centre of the area to be served.

Provincial grants of $30,000, for each of the 11 classrooms are available. It had been planned to build on another site but tests revealed the thick clay unsuitable for the tile bed needed for septic tanks. New negotiations to purchase an 8-acre site on property owned by Cecil McFaul are in progress. Approval must then be secured from the County Health Unit for needed septic tanks, test holes having indicated that this land is suitable and that the water from the lake will supply the school, will not be contaminated.

Approval of the site by the M.O.H. and the Ontario Water Resources Commission is followed by presentation of plans to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval. Ameliasburg is a sufficiently large area to justify a central school for the township. In other cases in the county, larger schools are more feasible if, invariably Islands do not confine the area a central school will serve.

200 Charges Laid After Demonstrations

MONTREAL (CP) — A total of 29 persons, most of them youths, appeared in municipal court Tuesday on charges connected with Victoria Day demonstrations here.

One pleaded guilty and the rest not guilty. Eleven were women.

All pleading not guilty were released on bail averaging $25 for each charge.

More than 200 charges in all were laid. Hearing dates were set for various days in the first half of June.

Among those appearing and pleading not guilty at the three-hour session were two apparently English-speaking youths, one from Loyola College and one from Lower Canada College, Loyola is a Roman Catholic English-language institution and Lower Canada a boy's private school.

Both were released on bail.

Ex-boxer Reggie Chartrand, leader of the separatist Chevaliers de l'Independance (Knights of Independence), and Mrs. Chartrand, were also among those charged.

The accused were generally silent except when asked to plead and the crowded courtroom was orderly.

Most were charged with participating in illegal assemblies, others with assault on police officers and disturbing the peace.

Chartrand was released on bail of $125, having pleaded not guilty to violation of traffic laws and illegal assembly.

His wife was freed on $50 bail on a charge of disturbing the peace and the unlawful assembly count.

The lone man pleading guilty was Roland Dubuc, listed as a 20-year-old painter.

He made his plea to a charge of damaging property. He was freed on $100 bail pending sentence June 2.

The 98 accused were brought before the bar in groups of up to a dozen.

The students from the English - language colleges were John Lang of Montreal and Thomas Guay of suburban Westmount, both 18.

Ready to Make Voluntary Contribution

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Soviet Union warned Tuesday it would refuse any voluntary financial contribution to the United Nations if the United States tries to make a "political game" out of the dispute over peacekeeping debts.

Mikolai T. Fedorenko, the chief delegate, made the statement in a speech to the 15-nation special committee on peacekeeping operations that bristled with denunciations of U.S. policy in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

He said the Soviet Union had not changed its mind about making a voluntary contribution to ease the financial plight of the United Nations. But he added that if the U.S. and other Western powers sought to make a political game out of the gig and purpose of the contribution "we will revert to our original position and withhold any payments for this purpose."

U.S. Ambassador Francis T. P. Plimpton, speaking in right of reply, said the Soviet Union had rejected various proposals for resolving the financial problem through voluntary contributions, and had even refused to tell Secretary-General U Thant on a confidential basis how much Moscow would be willing to contribute.

The Soviet Union has declared it will make a substantial voluntary financial contribution with the understanding that this will settle any question of applicability of Article 19 of the UN charter.

Officer Shot And Wounded Mine Official

ROSSLAND, B.C. (CP) — RCMP said Tuesday a constable shot and wounded an official of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. after a police dog was killed by a bullet in a body shot.

Police said Alison Malcolm Martin, 36, personnel superintendent for the Cominco plant at Trail, is in good condition in hospital with bullet wounds in the forearm and thigh.

Police said Const. Ronald Pelice dog handler Constable Robert Stephens after 'Stephens' dog, Cindy, was killed by a shotgun blast.

They said two RCMP officers went to Martin's home early Tuesday after being told that another man had been ordered out of the house at knifepoint.

DRIVEN AWAY

RCMP said the two officers were driven from the front door at gunpoint and called for additional officers from Trail and Nelson.

They said dogmaster Stephens, with Cindy, accompanied by Supt. John Stevenson, entered the house after hearing a shot inside.

They said Supt. Stevenson looked into a closed stairway to the third floor and found himself facing a man with a shotgun. He backed away and the dog, which had been ordered to attack, was shot as she leaped at the man, they said.

Const. Stephens then fired twice at the man, wounding him in the forearm and leg, police said.

RCMP said they then seized the shotgun, which had one charge in it with the hammer cocked.

He Kissed, His Rash Did Tell — Takes a Pill, Now All Is Well

LONDON (AP)—Tim Schofield says he's checked his allergy to kissing with some little blue pills.

"They work," said Tim, 21. "Every time I go on a date I take along my pills. I take one and then I'm immune from my troubles for several hours."

Every time Tim bussed his girl friend, Blonde Billie Tordoff, 17, he blushed and broke out in a rash.

"I'm not a shy sort of person," he said, "but the rash was embarrassing and uncomfortable."

Schofield, a trainee engineer at nearby Amersham, consulted a skin specialist. After tests, the specialist said the rash was caused by emotional disturbance. He prescribed the blue pills.

Tim didn't say what the pills are, but apparently they are some form of tranquilizer.

If he has a drink after taking one, he falls asleep.

"I can't decide which is worse," said his girl, "a blushing boy friend who breaks into a rash or a hail-asleep boy friend who does not."

PTA Leaders Unanimous In View Parents at Fault In Care of Their Children

By G. K. RODENFIELD

WASHINGTON (AP) — When adults talk about teen-agers they can recite a string of indictments that seems to have no end.

Kids these days, they say, wantonly destroy things, have early sex experiences, drink, steal, even use dope.

It all adds up to an increase in teen-age immorality, at least in the eyes of adults.

In one of the chief causes, Parent - Teacher Association presidents in cities and towns throughout the United States were questioned. The responses were near-unanimous in declaring adults are at fault.

Typical comments, from a story in a recent issue of the PTA Magazine:

"Our society is appallingly sex-saturated. . . . There is an increase in adult immorality. . . . Too many parents are neglecting their children, and trying to buy their love with material things. . . . Our kids are a lot better than we have any right to expect them to be—if we take an honest look at ourselves and our faults."

The article emphasized: "If the younger generation IS going to the dogs, the PTA presidents said, it's the fault of the adults; if it isn't going to the dogs, it's in spite of the adults."

VANDALISM WORST

Sixty per cent of the local PTA presidents responding to the survey said teen-age immorality is increasing in their communities. They mentioned, in this order of frequency: vandalism, drinking, promiscuity, drinking, petting, and thievery.

They also mentioned enough other things—smoking, discourtesy, bad language, lack of respect for elders—to cast some doubt on their appraisal. All the things they listed may be undesirable, but they aren't necessarily immoral.

The PTA presidents also were asked, "What do you think contributes most to moral conduct among teen-agers?"

"The answer," said PTA Magazine, "was virtually unanimous: It's what the parents do or don't do that makes the difference. . . .

"Singled out were permissive parents; parents, the gullies wonders; working mothers; parents who push their children into adulthood too soon; and parents who set horrible examples for their children.

"And, of course, the 'sex-saturated society' of adults was blamed, as was violence on TV, shoddy movies, and pornographic books and magazines—all the responsibility of the adult world."

In their indictment of adults, the PTA presidents were echoing charges that experts in the field have been making for years.

CONSIDERED SEX

The long ago the scholarly Journal of the National Association of Women Deans and Counsellors devoted an entire issue to the sex standards of college students.

It noted an increase in premarital intercourse and cited as a major reason: "A society which preaches strict standards of sexual morality, but does not practise what it preaches."

Other studies have shown that between the ages of five and 14, the average American child witnesses the violent destruction of 13,000 human beings on television.

As the good guy wins outel ,nd

"When the good guy wins on television, he does it by beating men and women in all parts of the diocese. He mentioned the fact that two parishes in the Diocese were celebrating their Centennial, Christ Church, in Bellefield, and St. John the Baptist, Madoc.

Dr. Fletcher, warden of Christ Church, gave a detailed description of the life and progress of the largest parish family in the Diocese.

Rev. J. H. Thompson gave an interesting talk of the country churches in the rural deanery of Hastings. Madoc was one of the parishes set apart by the late Archbishop Lewis at the time of the formation of the Diocese of Ontario in 1862. The records of the parish appeared in the Synod Journal of 1863-1864, when the Rev. A. Whitmarsh was sent as the missionary. The archives at Synod show that the first baptism in the Madoc parish was duly registered under the date of January 21, 1863.

The Madoc Mercury of February 9th, 1864, reported the first stone drawing bee for the proposed new church at Madoc. The cornerstone of the church was dedicated to St. John the Baptist and was laid on August 29th, 1865, by the late Rt. Rev. John Travers, Bishop of Ontario. In attendance were the Madoc Masonic Lodge and the Rifle Band of Belleville. At the end of 1865, it was reported that the walls of the church, roofing and floor were completed.

In the 100 years of church life in Madoc some 32 clergy have served the mission and parish, including clergy who are still in the diocese: Rev. Harvey Swayze, Rev. A. E. Harper, Canon John Hutchinson, Rev. Harvey Good, Rev. Cyril Harris, Archdeacon A. E. McConnell of St. Thomas, Belleville, served as a student in the year 1927 for the summer months, along with the Rev. Floyd Green in the year 1950.

SPECIAL SERVICE

In its centennial celebrations, a Baptistmidnite service was held at the residence and farm of Mrs. J. Aylsworth and son Robert on Sunday afternoon. Following the usual morning service in the parish church where the interior was beautifully decorated with illacs, apple blossoms and tulips and where the Rev. J. Thompson blessed the soil and seed, the open air service was held. The choir robed and proceeded to farm where Master Dale Smith, Garry Barnes acted as crucifers. The congregation sat on logs under beautiful blue skies, sunshine and blossom. The service consisted of the blessing of farm machinery and implements, seed, farm life and one's labors.

Rev. Thompson addressed the congregation from an open wagon and spoke on "The Entrusted Soil, to Man From God."

Following the open air service, the members were given a bag of corn seed to plant in their own gardens.

Plans are now being made to hold a special service in June when once again the Masons will play an important part, also past clergy will be invited to participate in this service.

U.K. Citizens Will Aid Salvationist Social Fight

By RON HOWARD

LONDON (CP)—Passing up retirement next January, a 64-year - old Canadian Salvation Army officer is playing a key role in the army's first major social aid program in Britain in 75 years.

Called in on less than a month's notice, Lt.-Col. John Steele is seeking support for the project, aimed at meeting the needs of Britain's social outcasts.

He is campaigning in 14 major cities for a system of Citizens' Advisory Boards, similar to those initiated in Canada back in the 1930s. These boards would deal what the organization's international leader, Gen. Frederick Coutts of London, terms the "appalling problem" existing among such people as alcoholics, unwed mothers and transients.

Col. Steele, a veteran of 40 years in Canadian Salvation Army public relations, said in an interview the boards consist mainly of conscientious businessmen, willing to offer their names and professional advice without compensation to army projects. The actual job of raising funds is left entirely to local army officials.

The Winnipeg - born officer who makes his home in Vancouver explains that, as a rule, advisory board members are welcomed from all religious denominations and seldom favor for £3,000,000 to meet the problems existing among the outcasts.

The appeal, launched in conjunction with the army's 100th anniversary convention in London June 24-July 3, calls for construction of 27 new buildings in cities throughout Britain for use as welfare centres.

Col. Steele, who helped organize many of the advisory boards in 28 Canadian cities, feels there has not been enough communication between the army and the British public concerning welfare activities.

However, part of the problem was solved April 15 when Gen. Coutts, in announcing the fund drive, introduced a booklet published by the army and entitled "Tragedies of Affluence, emphasizing the empty patches in public services left by the British welfare state. It is the first such document since a book called In Darkest England and The Way Out was written in 1890 by the army's founder, Gen. William Booth.

Gen. Booth's book shocked the social conscience of Queen Victoria's generation. Gen. Coutts hopes the new booklet will get the message across to the public that even in a time of prosperity there is still an urgent need for voluntary service organizations.

NEED UNDERSTANDING

"The human heart is still necessary," adds Col. Steele. "A destitute or unwed mother must have something more than welfare payments—she must have people who understand and can help her."

A survey in the booklet, based on 1964 statistics, concluded that 625,000 persons — chiefly persons and 400,000 so-called social outcasts, including alcoholics, unwed mothers and transient men.

On loan from the Canadian organization, Col. Steele is a direct representative of Gen. Coutts while travelling in Britain. Soon after his arrival last January, he opened a round of talks with city mayors, businessmen and reporters in the 14 communities chosen for the introduction of advisory boards.

He also counselled local officers, explaining how the board members might best be informed of the army's activities at monthly briefing sessions.

Through these periodic meetings, Col. Steele hopes members will become "walking encyclopedias" on the organization's work and will pass information to the public.

"We have had an excellent beginning and by Fall I can visualize boards organized and operating in all the cities we have approached so far."

Expecting to complete his work about mid - June, Col. Steele will attend the centenary convention as a member of the Canadian delegation and then, after a tour of Britain and "possibly the continent" with his wife, he hopes to return to Vancouver, his home for the last 21 years, for a well-earned retirement.

John Steele of Vancouver is in Britain spearheading a Salvation Army drive to establish a system of "Citizens' Advisory Boards patterned along the lines of those established in Canada in the 1930s. The aim is to have businessmen offering their names and professional advice without compensation to army projects aimed at meeting the needs of society's outcasts. Lt.-Col. Church Centennial Marked By Rogationtide Service

MADOC Rev. James H. Thompson, Mr. John Reynolds and Mr. Harold Lloyd, Bannockburn, attended the 90th session of the Synod of the Diocese of Ontario in Kingston.

During the luncheon in the Masonic Temple hall, Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans, Bishop of Ontario, addressed and welcomed the clergy and delegates, both women and men, from all parts of the diocese. White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stoneburg of Bancroft and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Farrar, Sandy and Shane, of Br 'eville were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Jones.

Mrs. Harry Harragin returned to her home on Friday from Toronto where she was hospitalized for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bowers were recent visitors in Kingston and attended the horse races.

Miss Sylvia Millar, nurse-in-training, of Oakville, spent the Ibbiday weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Millar.

Mrs. George Bilham is convalescing at her home following surgery at Belleville General Hospital.

Four Surviving Dionne Quints To Hold Party

MONTREAL (CP)—The four surviving Dionne quintuplets, who will be 29 years old Friday, probably will mark the occasion only by a quiet dinner at a downtown restaurant and perhaps take in a show or movie.

Three of the sisters now live in suburban St. Bruno, on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River.

Yvonne, who has been out of a convent in Moncton, N.B., several weeks, now is making her home with Annette—Mrs. Germain Allard—who, like Marie—Mrs. Florian Houle—lives in St. Bruno.

Cecile, Mrs. Philippe Langlois, live in Quebec City.

Emilie was the fifth of the famous five born to Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne at their isolated farm home between Callander and North Bay, Northern Ontario. She died in 1954 during an epileptic seizure.

"We will see, Yvonne, and I drove to Quebec recently and saw Cecile," said Mr. Allard Tuesday. "She plans to be with us at our St. Bruno home over the weekend of the birthday.

"Right now we have planned nothing particular other than going out for a private, informal dinner and perhaps a show."

KEEN ON PAINTING

Mr. Allard said Yvonne has long been interested in woodcarving and painting and may set up a place in the Allard basement to continue this.

"She's a real artist," he said, "and we have some nice things in our home she has done."

Mr. Allard said the inmg-at the convent developed Yvonne's talent and encouraged her. She also did a bit of theatricals at the convent, along with convent activities and engaged in some nursing work, something she also had had taken up at a Montreal hospital 10 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, parents of the quintuplets, have no special plans for marking the birthday. They will send greeting cards to the girls.

Hooliganism Covers Many Of Sins in Soviet Russia

By JOHN REST

MOSCOW (CP) — Hooliganism covers a multitude of sins in Soviet Russia, from loitering on street corners to intimidation, assault and even murder.

Most Russians think of the typical hooligan as a young ne'er-do-well who stands on the street with his buddies, insults passersby, or who gets drunk and creates a disturbance in a public place.

In the criminal code hooliganism is defined as "intentional actions grossly violating social order and expressing obvious disrespect to society."

Whatever the meaning, the word rouses a special ire in law-abiding Soviet citizens. Sentiment is growing for an all-out campaign to combat the offence.

Groups of teen-agers, in separate incidents at Kharkov in the Ukraine, killed two men, tried to hang a small boy and robbed stores. They were referred to in the Moscow press as hooligans.

Canadian hockey players who have come here for exhibition games during the last few years know what it means to be called "hooligan." That's the epithet they hear hurled at them from irate Moscow crowds when play gets rough and the Canadians throw their weight around.

Another Canadian who has felt the sting is Col. Cecil Greenleaf, military attache in Moscow. The government newspaper Izvestia accused him of hooliganism, saying he swore and made threatening gestures while drinking in a Russian restaurant. Ottawa denied he acted improperly.

Sentence on conviction for hooliganism can range from a fine to five years' imprisonment. Recently, there has been a spate of complaints that sentences actually imposed are too light.

Police, prosecutors and the courts have been accused of sluggishness and indecisiveness. Newspaper articles and readers' letters published by various newspapers urge that hooligans be "punished without mercy."

"No violation of public order should remain unpunished," wrote a reader of Komsomolskaya Pravda, organ of the Young Communist League, in a letter printed in April.

At the same time many Soviet citizens — particularly officials — recognize that society itself must share the blame for such criminal behavior. Because not enough clubs and recreational facilities are provided for the leisure enjoyment of young Russians.

AMUSEMENTS SCARCE

In a country where living space is at a premium many most families count themselves lucky if they can enjoy an apartment which is the equivalent of a single good-sized room, young people understandably like to go out frequently.

Strolling in the park or visiting party-oriented houses of culture are the favorite pastimes of urives. About the only alternatives are going to a movie, a concert or the theatre, or to a youth cafe.

Russian movies, to put it mildly, are not very exciting for teen-agers; most of them manage to strike a dreary propagandist tone. Concert attendance is not every youth's idea of enjoyable entertainment.

Getting a ticket to the theatre involves a long wait in line, and often then seats may not be available.

Youth cafes — places where young people gather for coffee to dance—are growing in number. But there are still so few of them, and demand for accommodation is so heavy, that often they are filled as early as 7:30 p.m.

'Bell Telephone Hour' Was a Real Swinger

By CYNTHIA LOWAY

NEW YORK (AP)—Cole Porter was "an elegant man" and a sophisticated man, Donald O'Connor recalled, and Cole Porter's elegance and sophistication was happily reflected in Tuesday night's colorful, tuneful Telephone Hour.

The NBC musical program always is in good taste, usually is handsomely produced, but sometimes seems a little stuffy, a bit self-conscious, even dull.

But this last program in the current series was a real swinger, and much of the credit for its spirit must go to the man who wrote so much memorable music and whose songs filled the 60 minutes.

A fine cast of soloists included Donald O'Connor, who can do everything from narrative to singing and dancing; Dolores Gray, who handles an Ethel Merman-type song with authority; Nancy Dussault; and Jean Fenn and George London, the Montreal-bazoo baron from the Metropolitan Opera.

The program will be seen early Sunday evenings in the fall.

ABC has achieved a coup — the television production of a tour of Washington with the U.S. president's wife, a special scheduled for fall broadcast.

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson will show some of the capital's landmarks, examples of urban decay and the results of beautification programs — her specific interest.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Richard Burton and Ava Gardner form an explosive love team in "The Night of the Iguana," screen version of Tennessee Williams' prize-winning play. Deborah Kerr and Sue Lyon also star in the brilliant cast of the John Huston-Ray Stark production presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Seven Arts. Filmed on locations in Mexico, the much-talked-about picture was directed by Academy Award-winner John Huston and opens tonight at The Belleville Drive-in Theatre, 2nd action-packed feature attraction filmed in Technicolor is "The Golden Arrow" starring Tab Hunter and Rossana Podesta.

Your Car

You Can't Stop Car On a Dime!

By EUGENE S. MILMOE

Many highway accidents occur because there are always drivers who depend on the brakes to stop their car in its tracks. This seems to be a particularly favorite philosophy with "tailgaters."

But you've got to consider driver reaction time plus the distance the car will travel after brakes are applied. For example, approximately ¾ of a second is generally regarded as average reaction . . . that is, the time required to move the right foot from the accelerator to the brake pedal.

If the car is moving at 40 mph, it will travel approximately 45 feet during that ¾ second interval. Then, if the brakes are applied, and the road is level, dry and hard, the car will travel an additional 80 feet or so before it comes to a stop.

In other words, at a speed of 40 mph, the minimum safe stopping distance is 125 feet, under wet road conditions, twice the normal distance may be needed to stop the car after the brakes are applied.

P. P. asks: "Granted that gas mileage is affected by speed, but isn't the difference usually too little to be of consequence in the average motorist?"

A car which averages approximately 15 miles per gallon at 35 mph, will only get 14 or 15 miles per gallon at 45 mph. This is not insignificant.

From R. N.: "My engine falters and sometimes cuts out at high speeds . . . e.g., over 30 mph. I've been told the fuel pump is probably going. Would this also cause the engine to run much hotter than usual?"

With a weak or failing pump, the fuel mixture is too lean for proper combustion and creates abnormal heat.

R. B. writes: "If the crankcase chargers are to be filled too high, will this really cause more oil to burn off, or does it spill off?"

An over-filled crankcase causes cylinder walls to be loaded with more oil than the piston rings can handle. As a result, the excess is burned off.

S. T. asks: "If low oil pressure isn't due to the pump, relief valve or insufficient oil, would bearing trouble be a likely cause?"

Usually not. It could be loose or worn main, crankshaft or rod bearings.

work. Regular physical activity — sports, extended walks or gymnastics, are all important for the body. And even a small garden or a constructive hobby are sufficient to create a healthy balance. Well-known heart specialists advise all persons to extend their physical activity to such a degree that they are nearly in a sweat at least once a day.

Diplomat Says Viet Cong Has Won Long-drawn Battle for Countryside

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—The British government has been advised that the Viet Cong have effectively won the long-drawn battle for the countryside in South Viet Nam and the big, critical struggle now shapes up over control of the cities.

Robert Thompson, 49-year-old diplomat who headed the British advisory mission in Saigon for the last three years, says a critical decision can come within a year.

If the Viet Cong don't win in that time, the tide may turn and the South Vietnamese and American forces may have to fight on for another five years before the insurgents are finally beaten.

Thompson, speaking to London Standard reporter Tom Pocock, said the Viet Cong have already infiltrated all major political bodies in South Viet Nam and can stage mass demonstrations on any pretext.

"The South Vietnamese and Americans now have to all intents and purposes lost the guerrilla phase of the war," he was quoted as saying. "The next phase of the war will be the decisive one."

He suggested the Viet Cong may try to destroy the Saigon administration either by direct assault or through gradual erosion.

But insurgency requires momentum to win, he said. Once the momentum could be stopped the Viet Cong offensive may collapse.

"The Americans must batten down the hatches and check the Viet Cong for at least a year. Once the Viet Cong stop winning the tide could be turned against them. But the war could continue without a final decision for about five years."

If the Viet Cong win, Thompson sees the whole of Southeast Asia coming under Communist control in 10 or 15 years.

Lazy Weekends Dangerous, Bring Heart Attack Monday

HAMBURG (DaD) — Do you work hard during the week and sleep late on weekends? Then you are leading a dangerous life! Two West German doctors, Professor Dr. Dotzauer and Dr. Nawa, Hamburg, have announced 5,000 persons who died of heart attacks since 1955. The surprising outcome of their analysis: Most deaths occur on Monday, the first day of the working week.

The sports spectator can enjoy pleasure that the athlete does not. He does immediately after running a race. A too rapid change from a tremendous body exertion to complete relaxation often leads to heart and circulatory disturbances. The athlete offsets this with gymnastics and exercises.

LITTLE LEISURE

The majority of the working population before the turn of the century were farmers and craftsmen. The terms "leisure time" and "relaxation" were unknown to them. They worked hard during the day, returned home tired in the evening, ate a light and simple meal and were going to bed at an early hour. The next day, they were refreshed after a long night's sleep and able to work a long and hard day. On weekends, even though there were rest days - they had plenty to do around the house and the farmer could not neglect his animals on Sunday, either. These occupations formed a natural transition between hard work and periods of less physical strain.

Properly spent leisure time can help toughen a person's life. On weekends, activities should be pursued that do not come into contact otherwise with our technicalized world of

Movie Tycoon J. Warner Having Successful Year

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is indeed the year of Jack L. Warner.

The last tycoon among movie pioneers, he refuses to become a museum piece.

He shows up at awards affairs to receive awards and deliver his gag - punctuated speeches. He collected the big prize for My Fair Lady, the first Warner film to win the best-picture Oscar since Casablanca in 1943.

Now Warner has written his autobiography, My First Hundred Years in Hollywood (Random House). It is a lot better than his speeches, thanks no doubt to the collaboration of Dean Jennings. But even with help of coherent syntax, the real Jack Warner stands out. He is bold, roguish, irreverent, unabashed and on rare occasions, faintly sentimental.

RECOUNT HITS AND FLOPS

Amid many memories, My First Hundred Years stands out like War and Peace. Warner is meticulous in his recounting of the pioneer days of films. He details the flops as well as the hits, with scorn on the wild and wondrous things that could happen in a boomtown like Hollywood.

It appears that life would have been much more pleasant for Jack Warner except for stars. One by one he ticks off the slings and arrows of a studio boss's career.

The Warner saga ends, appropriately enough, with the My Fair Lady triumph. He tells of seeing the musical on its opening night on Broadway March 15, 1956. His immediate move to buy the film right from his friend, William Paley, head of CBS which had financed the show.

"I was thrown into my re when he not only refused offer, but firmly declined discuss the matter at all writes Warner.

Warner reports that he Paley at least once a month five years "like a nagging b collector." Then in 1962 Warn was in New York and heard rival offers of $5,500,000. took a taxi to Paley's office a said: "Bill, I'm ready to sell $5,500,000 for My Fair Lady

"Jack, you've got a deal Paley replied.

Florida Provided Backdrop Of Quiet Seaside Luxury For G. Lemay, Montreal

Georges Lemay, the first fugitive arrested with the help of space satellite television, came to public notice 13 years ago. A Canadian Press reporter tells the story of events that have touched him since 1951.

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP) — For Georges Lemay, Florida has been the backdrop for a life of quiet seaside luxury punctuated by moments of high interest drama.

It was there that the urbane Montrealer first attracted public attention with his mysterious disappearance 13 years ago of his pretty wife Huguette.

And it was in the same setting early this May that Lemay was arrested as the first man captured as a result of a photograph flashed over television by a space satellite.

In the intervening years, Lemay's name was often in the newspapers. He survived a small plane crash, wrote a book and was questioned in connection with other disappearances.

When he was picked up May 6, he had been sought for almost four years. The warrant charged him with breaking, entering and theft in a spectacular holdup of a downtown Montreal bank that netted between $300,000 and $4,000,000 in loot from safety deposit boxes.

Lemay, a stocky man of medium height with thinning hair, a round face and blue eyes, was aboard his 43-foot yacht tied up at Fort Lauderdale, when he was arrested on a tip from a boat-repair man who recognized his photo on TV.

The 40-year-old fugitive, who had been known in the Florida city as Rene Roy, a respectable man, sophisticated and amiable, was charged with illegal entry into the United States. If convicted, he could be returned to Canada without the need of extradition proceedings.

MARRIED BEAUTY

Born in Shawinigan, Que., but a longtime resident of Montreal where his father runs a real estate firm, the bilingual Lemay was 36 in 1951 when he married Huguette Pasquet, a former bank secretary and beauty contest competitor.

Seven months later, in January, 1952, he took his petite 24-year-old wife to Miami on a sort of second honeymoon.

On the evening of Jan. 4, the Lemays had dined at the coin desk of the long white bridges connecting the series of tiny islands known as the Florida Keys. They were at Tom's Harbor, 75 miles south of Miami.

As Lemay told the story, his wife was dressed for daytime lounging in the sun and complained of feeling cold as evening wore on. She returned to their car, parked nearby, and changed into warmer clothing. That was the last he ever saw of her, he said.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED

Police in Florida launched a search and investigation. Huguette's brother, Montreal lawyer Raymond Daoust, and a private detective flew down to help. Eighteen days passed.

A grand jury report the following March said:

"Huguette Lemay may be dead and, if dead, she met death as a result of foul play."

But Lemay, who returned to Montreal after a fruitless three-week search for his wife, insisted there was no evidence of any slaying.

In a book he wrote about the affair, he said:

"My wife was not killed, kidnapped, nor did she suffer amnesia Jan. 4. That day, Huguette simply decided to leave because she had had enough of me. I am guilty of that and that only."

His book, published late in 1952, was titled Je Suis Coupable (I Am Guilty) in line with the prevailing mood of guilt.

The 160-page volume was dedicated "to my wife, who is hiding somewhere."

The dedication went on to allude to an unidentified person with this unsolicited sentence: "I urge her to give my regards to ..."

As the investigation of Huguette's disappearance continued through 1952, Lemay was back in Canada. He maintained that some Florida authorities were out to get him and said he wouldn't return as long as Miami chief of detectives James O. Barker was around.

CHIEF KILLED

When Barker was shot to death by his son James in what the son said was a struggle at their home, Lemay agreed to go back "to clear up certain aspects" of Huguette's disappearance. U.S. immigration authorities refused to let him cross the border.

The year 1953 was eventful in another way for Lemay. In October a single-engine seaplane he was piloting on a hunting expedition to take in the Laurentians north of Montreal crashed after its engine failed. He escaped with a broken nose and face cuts.

In July, 1957, Larry Petrov, 36-year-old Romanian-born waiter, disappeared while free on bail awaiting trial on a narcotics charge. Petrov was also wanted for questioning in connection with a January, 1957, burglary which had netted $1,-190,000 from safety deposit boxes in the Bank of Montreal branch in suburban Outremont.

QUESTIONED BY POLICE

Petrov's disappearance spoiled police of his disappearance, said their son was an acquaintance of Petrov.

Lemay, then operating as a real estate agent, was taken into custody for questioning after telling police he had no idea where Petrov was.

During this period, Lemay used to spend some time at an island lodge he owned on a lake about 90 miles north of Montreal. It was valued at $25,000 and he made various improvements before selling it to his brother-in-law in 1958. The property was to figure in later events.

On July 1961, the quiet Dominion Day holiday, burglars broke into the Bank of Nova Scotia branch at Montreal's midtown St. Catherine and St. Alexander streets and looted 237 of the 400 safety deposit boxes of cash, jewelry, bonds, stock certificates and travellers' cheques.

The bank was entered through a building next door. The intruders, well-equipped and working expertly, bored and blasted a hole in the reinforced concrete floor of the big vault.

LEFT ON YACHT

Three men were sent to prison for varying terms in connection with the crime. A woman, Lisel Jay, 32 at the time, spent several months in preventive custody "because of the stain she was in."

A warrant was issued for the arrest of Lemay, described by police at the time as the mastermind the burglary.

Police said later he left Montreal in November, 1961, four months after the burglary, bound for Miami Beach in his yacht.

A total of $10,000 in reward money was offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the bandits.

Two months later the lodge was burned to the ground. Again police went to the island. They combed the ruins of the lodge and the surrounding area but found "no conclusive evidence" connected with the bank burglary.

Reports abounded concerning Lemay's whereabouts and in August, 1962, the RCMP said he was believed seen in central British Columbia.

PUT ON WANTED LIST

Then on May 2 this year, with the inauguration of the interplanetary communications facility of the Early Bird satellite, the Mounties decided to show Lemay's picture as part of the Canadian contribution to the show. They described him as "a big spender who may be living in the United States."

A man who had been hired to do some work on Lemay's yacht recognized the photograph and told police he knew the man as Rene Roy.

Lemay was picked up four days later, incredulous when he learned how his capture had come about.

"Well, isn't that something," he said. "It took a satellite to catch me."

Five days after the arrest, a woman calling herself Lemay's wife was in Miami. She said she was the former Lise Lemieux and that she had a two-year-old daughter by Lemay. Deportation proceedings were also taken against her.

IODE Hears Delegate Tell Of UN Tour

CAMPBELLFORD — Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E. held their regular meeting in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening with Regent Mrs. W. A. Kingston, presiding.

Some of the members were absent and the attendance was small, with 30 members present.

It was decided to organize a Junior Chapter with Provincial Counsellor Mrs. J. O. Benor in charge. It is to accommodate girls from 12 to 18 years of age who are interested.

The report of the Bemersyde music scholarship at the Festival was 13-year-old Danny Thompson of Brighton in the boy's solo class. Presentation was made by Mrs. D. D. Bennett.

Guest speaker of the evening was Mrs. Ian Bell, who had been one of a group of nine girls from C.D.H.S. United Nations Club, who made a trip to New York.

Miss Hoey gave a detailed report of the United Nations building their group were joined by other Canadians. Unexpectedly they met the Hon. Paul Martin. Miss Hoey said the four wks of great educational value. Delegates realized in a greater degree the responsibility and value of the United Nations in relation to the nations of the world.

The relationship of the various nations of the Commonwealth was explained by Commonwealth convener, Mrs. D. Wert.

Following the meeting lunch was served by group four.

Many Enjoy Rotary Display Of Fireworks

CAMPBELLFORD — A colorful fireworks display was given on Monday evening by the Campbellford Rotary Club, on the Seymour Township fairgrounds.

The Campbellford fire department displayed the value of foam extinguishers early in the evening.

An antique fire engine, in working order, was also on display.

The fireworks attracted a large crowd and lasted for almost an hour.

Due to the legal control of firecrackers the display by the Rotary Club is given to allow the children to enjoy the fun with supervised safety measures. This has become an annual event and draws a large crowd.

NUMBERS SWELL

Teach Conservation As a Public Service

WINNIPEG (CP)—A "day in the woods" has been added to the curriculum of high schools in Manitoba schools during the last eight years.

The Manitoba Forestry Association, a public service organization, operates a 202-acre conservation training area in the Sandilands Forest Reserve about 60 miles east of Winnipeg.

Here, from early May until mid-June and through September and October, special instructors hold one-day classes on nature appreciation and forest fire prevention.

The classes are third-year forestry students from the University of Manitoba, and school classes range from Grades 4 to 12, with most classes in Grades 5 to 7.

Teachers and students have responded enthusiastically to the one-day outing, Alan Beavan, manager of the Manitoba Forestry Association, said. He added that every available school day this side of June exams has been booked up and about 25 school requests have been turned down.

"We have developed here something that gives more children a chance to have a day of this kind than any other program developed," Mr. Beavan said.

EXPANDING FAST

He said the number of participating schools has nearly doubled each year since the program's inception in 1957 This year, Mr. Beavan expects about 6,000 students to participate in the outing.

"Virtually none of the children on the trip are litterbugs," Mr. Beavan said. "And the students pay attention to the instructors."

He said about 90 per cent of the students participating are city pupils, but rural students often ask the most difficult questions.

The biggest problem was to accommodate the increasing number of schools wishing to benefit from the program. Although 60 is an ideal number of students to have on a trip, Mr. Beavan plans to double the number of instructors next year in order to avoid unwieldy larger groups.

Groups are divided into three divisions of 20 or 25 students and they rotate, spending some time on each of the three courses, which are facts about trees, forest fire prevention and tree identification.

Financing is another hurdle Mr. Beavan has encountered. The department of mines and natural resources grants the land for the courses and is the largest contributor, but many private groups also give financial aid.

Mr. Beavan said his organization is contemplating launching another outdoor classroom in the Brandon area of Manitoba, but financing is the biggest obstacle.

STILL LIKE 'ROYAL'

MONTREAL (CP)—A resolution aimed at deleting the word "royal" from the title of the Royal Canadian Legion was defeated unanimously Tuesday by 300 delegates at a meeting of the Quebec provincial command. The vote was taken after Montreal Judge Redmond Roche, president of the 15,000 member Quebec command, spoke against "a resolution submitted by a few who would undermine us."

A Head Start Toward Success For Your Son

How your son spends his free time can mean a lot to his future success. Does he fritter it away or is he doing something worthwhile?

Few spare-time activities can compare with the training and learning opportunities a boy receives from managing a newspaper delivery business.

As a newspaperboy he meets and deals with people in all walks of life. He acquires responsibility and self-assurance. Greatest of all, he learns the value of money and the fundamentals of good business management. Isn't this a sound start on the way to future accomplishment?

Soviet Union Intimates China Seeks World War To Unite Communist Lands

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union implied today that China is instigating a world war over Viet Nam as the only way to unite the divided world Communist movement.

The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda, in one of the sharpest attacks on Chinese policy in recent weeks, wrote:

"It would be incorrect to hold that only a world war can bring about the unity of the socialist camp and of all the world Communist movement.

"Marxist-Leninists see their task not in waiting for a world war to break out, but in averting a chain of events that is liable to trigger it off by the joint actions of the progressive democratic forces."

Observers here said the article appeared to be an expression of the Soviets' smouldering resentment at Peking's opposition to efforts toward reaching a peaceful settlement of the Viet Nam crisis.

The article also reproached the Chinese for refusing to cooperate in Moscow's new drive to forge "united fronts" of foreign leftist and non-Communist elements throughout the world.

"This has become an important requisite for combating the aggressive forces of imperialism on an international scale and also within each capitalist state," the article said.

Rebels Ask Aid Of Free Lands; Denounce U. S.

From AP-Reuters

SANTO DOMINGO (CP) — Leaders of the Dominican rebel congress sent a message to non-Communist nations around the world Wednesday night accusing the United States of coercion in Dominican internal affairs.

The attack on the U.S. intervention in the Dominican crisis was signed by Arevalo Cedeno Valdez and Anibal Campagna as presidents of the chamber of deputies and senate dissolved by the overthrow of President Juan Bosch in 1963.

Sent to parliamentary leaders in the Western Hemisphere, Europe, the Middle East and Asia, the message asked for support of the "free and democratic parliaments" of the world. It did not go to Cuba, Haiti, the Soviet Union or Communist China.

The message obviously referred to attempts by special envoys of President Johnson to get the rebel and junta factions to set up a coalition government headed by Antonio Guzman, agriculture minister under Bosch.

The junta president Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, also assailed the plan as "a frank intervention in the internal affairs" of this Caribbean nation, but the rebels had indicated they were in favor of it.

The congress purportedly mustered 15 of its 27 senators and 61 of 74 deputies in rebel territory May 3 and elected the insurgent leader, Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, provisional president of the nation.

ACCEPTS PLAN

Informed sources said today that Imbert has accepted a plan to place troops of the Inter-American peace force in the national palace.

Imbert's troops at present occupy the palace which has been the scene of bitter fighting during the last month of the Dominican Republic's civil war.

Plans to withdraw practically all Imbert's troops from the palace were believed to have been discussed at a meeting Wednesday in the U.S. embassy between Imbert, U.S. Ambassador W. Tapley Bennett, and other officials.

Informed sources also said that the Organization of American States unified command had sent a stiff protest to the Imbert government over the continued detention of Dr. Hortsio Hernandez, an OAS liaison officer.

The OAS has not publicly announced his detention.

McGeorge Bundy, who headed the U.S. negotiating team, and here to try to resolve the crisis, returned to Washington Wednesday. He was reported convinced he had made considerable progress in laying the basis for a settlement.

HANDS OVER REINS

Bundy turned over the task of mediation to Jose Mora, secretary - general of the OAS. Deputy U.S. Defence Undersecretary Cyrus Vance remained here to assist Mora.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fog has settled over the Dominican Republic there for Johnson administration has tried to end the revolution and failed.

First, this brief background on a country which lived 31 years under a dictator and now has two "presidents".

From 1930 until his assassination in 1961, Gen. Rafael Trujillo was absolute dictator while those around him got rich in a land of poverty. There were, of course, no real political parties.

After his death the Dominicans struggled through four governments and then, in a free election, chose Juan Bosch as president. He lasted seven months until he was thrown out in 1963 by the military, which scrapped the constitution and set up a five-man junta.

Although the United States recognized this junta, it lacked mass support and was booted out in the revolution which began April 24. The military, defying the rebels, quickly set up another junta.

HOW IT IS NOW

Skipped over the intervening weeks, this is the picture now:

There are two warring factions, the five-man civilian-military junta headed by Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera as "president" and the rebels headed by Col. Francisco Caamano Deno as "president."

April 28, President Johnson sent in marines to save American lives. Later he said they were there to prevent a takeover by Communists who, he explained, controlled the revolution.

On May 15 he sent in his special advisor, McGeorge Bundy, as his troubleshooter. Bundy returned to Washington Wednesday. He hadn't solved anything.

He had tried to persuade both sides to agree to a coalition government and the two leaders, to step down. But Imbert refused. This was a blow to Johnson.

The United States had not only a puppet of the Imbert junta—some say it was created at U.S. suggestion — but two weeks ago was considering recognizing it as the government.

But Imbert lacked mass support and a week ago U.S. policy shifted support away from

Queen Visits West Berlin, Has Brief Look at Wall

From AP-Reuters

BERLIN (CP)—Queen Elizabeth flew behind the Iron Curtain to West Berlin today and, in a change of plans, stopped her motorcade for a long look at the Communist wall dividing East and West Berlin.

An open limousine bearing the Queen and Prince Philip drove slowly in front of the Brandenburg Gate and stopped about 50 feet from the wall at that point is about seven feet high and four feet wide.

Both the Queen and Philip remained seated. Philip looked intently at the wall and then waved at four East German army officers who stood stop s of platform. Two waved back.

Some 200 East Berliners stood on the Communist side of the gate, about 300 feet from the wall, probably trying to catch a glimpse of the royal visitors.

A stop at the wall had been excluded from plans. British officials said this was done to spare the Queen any anti-Western posters such as the East Germans put up for the late U.S. president John F. Kennedy's visit to the wall in June, 1963.

From Brandenburg Gate, the Queen was driven to nearby Potsdamer Platz, which once was a busy square surrounded by luxurious hotels and restaurants.

Now cut in half by the wall, the square is nearly deserted.

Both the Queen and Philip stood up, the prince pointing several times in the direction of the barrier. The Queen as well as her husband looked grim.

It was the Queen's first look at a Communist border.

The royal couple was enthus-

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker are reaching for each other's party for possible candidates for a permanent Speaker in the House of Commons.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who says a permanent Speaker is essential if proposed reforms to House rules are to work, last week suggested the incumbent, Liberal-appointed Alan Macnaughton, would be a good man for the job.

The prime minister came back Wednesday and suggested Roland Michener, a former Conservative MP who held the Speaker's job from 1957 to 1962, should be considered along with

Are Ripping Iron Curtain Into Bills Of Lading

AP correspondent Preston Grover has completed a tour of most of the East European countries. In this report he sums up his findings on how the barriers between these nations and the West are being broken down.

BUDAPEST (AP)—Businessmen from the West today are breaking down the barriers between Eastern Europe and the West.

Everywhere they are finding the welcome sign out in a way not dreamed of two or three years ago.

Increasing East-West trade is only one of the signs of a growing feeling among East Europeans that they are no longer a segregated section of the world.

Budapest is exhibiting its new view by advertising itself as "the center of Europe." That is intended to mean not East Europe but the whole of it. The country is so Western-oriented that visitors are hard put to find any real evidence that they are behind the Iron Curtain.

With the exception of Bulgaria, whose people always had a deep sympathy for fellow Slavs in Russia, all East European states treasure and emphasize Western interests and backgrounds.

Even in Bulgaria the regime recently had to put down an attempted putsch apparently directed at more independence from Russia.

Romania has abolished compulsory teaching of Russian, institutions and street names, and is pursuing an independence stance politically and economically.

In Hungary, the people have taken Westernization into their own hands. They seek a national identity after smothering so long under Russian authority.

In Czechoslovakia, party leaders have launched an economic decentralization program the whole atmosphere of which is Western, and away from Communist-style authoritarian economy.

Of the lot, East Germany reflects the least "westward turning." Yet old and young there make it clear they don't intend to become Russianized.

Romania is the most wide open to Western trade. Czechoslovakia is running close.

On the negative side, throughout all East Europe there is a kind of public apathy that might be traced to political fatigue and political-economic frustration.

Economic difficulties and the Soviet clash with China have shaken the belief of some in East European Communists that they were on the right track. Nor where the doubt, and the party leaders face it at every public meeting. All of them are grimly aware that things are better in the West.

On top of that is a general shortage of investment capital to start new industries and to make the old ones work better. Better Western goods are finding their way on to shelves everywhere.

Viet Cong Bases, Arms Dumps Objects Of Fire

From Reuters-AP

SAIGON (CP)—Four destroyers of the U.S. 7th Fleet have shelled Viet Cong coastal targets for the first time in South Viet Nam, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

He said the four destroyers carried out fixed firing missions in the coastal areas of Binh Dinh, Binh Thuan and Phu Yen provinces, central South Viet Nam, from May 23 to May 26.

He announced that one sailor was killed May 21 when the muzzle of a five-inch gun aboard his ship, the U.S.S. Somers, exploded as the destroyer was firing at a coastal target.

The spokesman said the destroyers shelled Viet Cong base installations, arms dumps and training areas.

It was the first time U.S. naval gunfire had been turned on Viet Cong targets, he said.

The spokesman said on some occasions U.S. marine gunfire support officers went ashore to direct the shelling.

PILOT KILLED

In other action, a U.S. Navy pilot was believed killed today when Communist groundfire brought down his aircraft over North Viet Nam. Two U.S. Army men were killed the day before in ground clashes with the Viet Cong.

A U.S. military spokesman said the plane shot down was one of several flying support for eight others bombing a railway yard at Vinh, midway between Hanoi and the North Vietnamese border.

Radio Hanoi claimed another navy pilot was captured near Vinh after his plane was shot down on the night of April 30.

Today was the second day in succession U.S. planes had hit Vinh, a major North Vietnamese port and naval base, and pilots said ground fire was heavy.

The spokesman said the raiders dropped eight tons of bombs and hit the railway yard with rockets and cannon fire, inflicting moderate damage.

The two Americans killed Wednesday were special forces advisers commanding units sent to relieve government troops who had been ambushed by guerrillas.

Guerrillas shelled two towns and vital bridges in the northern-most province of South Viet Nam early today.

FIVE ATTACKS

There were five attacks in which guerrillas fired more than 100 81-millimetre mortar rounds.

Two flights of South Vietnamese aircraft attacked military installations and a bridge about 50 miles north of the border.

On the political front, Saigon authorities picked up at least 50 military officers for questioning. They were believed linked to Maj. - Gen. Nguyen Khanh and other generals removed from office in recent months.

And Prime Minister Keith Holyoake announced today that New Zealand will send a combat force of 120 men to South Viet Nam.

Holyoake told the opening of parliament that an artillery battery will support Australian troops committed to the Viet Nam war. The Australians are sending a battalion of 800 men trained in jungle war.

Import Trade Increases

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's import trade rose to a whopping $721,100,000 in March, up almost 27 per cent from March of last year, and caused a trade deficit of $24,700,000 for the month.

A report by the bureau of statistics also says imports for the first quarter of 1965 were ahead 11.8 per cent at $1,945,800,000. As reported earlier, exports were $1,820,500,000 and thus there was a small trade surplus of $4,700,000 for the period.

Purchases from the United States showed sharp gains, rising 31.3 per cent in March to $540,100,000 and 13.5 per cent in the quarter to $1,384,300,000. Sales to the U.S. had risen only 23 per cent in March and 12.2 per cent in the three months.

Canada's trade deficit with the U.S. was $121,000,000 in March compared to $78,600,000 in the same month of 1964. For the quarter, it was $439,400,000 against $238,200,000.

The usual surplus in trade with Britain continued to grow as the rise in exports again outpaced the gain in imports. Sales to that country were $96,200,000 in March, up 18 per cent, while imports rose by only 9.1 per cent to $53,700,000. For the quarter, however, sales to Britain were up 11.2 per cent as a year earlier at $268,100,000 while imports climbed 7.7 per cent to $141,600,000.

Trade with other Commonwealth and other countries gelling a preferential rate produced a fat surplus for the month and the quarter. March imports dropped 16.1 per cent to $21,500,000 while exports went up 41.8 per cent to $39,300,000. Imports for the first three months slipped 17 per cent to $58,200,000 and exports went up 13.7 per cent to $114,800,000.

Imports from all other countries increased 28.9 per cent in March to $115,800,000 while sales grew by 2.1 per cent to $153,800,000. For the quarter imports were up 12.3 per cent to $298,300,000 and exports down 14.1 per cent at $387,100,000.

FIRST CALL

"Good-bye Canada and don't forget what I said about sharing with the have-nots."

Thousands of Devices Invented Over Years to Brew Cup of Coffee

Berlk, vacuum, drip, filter, siphon, balloon, biggin, percolator, pressure plunger . . . words that's one thing in common.

These apparently unrelated noun — they are the names of just a few of the thousands of devices man has invented over the years to brew a better cup of coffee.

How do you make your coffee? Are you still not sure about the best way to brew it?

Well, don't feel too bad, it's nothing new.

The search for the perfect coffee-maker began at least five centuries before Columbus started looking for a direct route to the Indies. Columbus gave up his hunt in 1492 when he stumbled across America, a satisfying substitute for his original goal.

Nothing, however, has been found to take the place of a delicious, full - flavored aromatic cup of coffee. So the search for a foolproof method of making coffee goes on.

In the 1200 years that have elapsed since the first "coffee break," people have spent almost as much time inventing coffee pots as in drinking the brew.

The first known coffee maker was the Turkish ibrik, introduced around 1400. The ibrik with its fantastic shape, grooved handle and straight handle, closely resembled the modern Turkish coffee pot of today. Coffee prepared in the ibrik was boiled, a coffee-making method that was followed for centuries.

A Frenchman, deviating from the boiling method, made coffee in 1711 by pouring boiling water over a bag of ground coffee. The new method however, did not catch on and coffee continued "on the boil" until early in the 19th century when several other Frenchmen, with their aptitude for messing the basic, came up with innovations that eventually marked the end of boiling as an acceptable way of making coffee.

JUST A FORERUNNER

In 1800, when Canada was made up of Indians and fur traders, DeBelloy made a tin drip pot, a forerunner of the modern percolator, which made the drip pot as we know it today.

Another entry in the history of coffeemaking was the biggin, which appeared in England around 1817. It was usually an earthenware pot with a metal strainer or cloth bag, fitted into its mouth, which filtered boiling water through the coffee.

About the same time the biggin pot was developed, Laurent in France was granted a patent on the original pumping percolator, but in this device boiling water was raised by steam pressures and dripped over the ground coffee.

Jacques-Augustin Gandais, a Paris jeweler, produced the first really practical pumping percolator around 1825. In his percolator, boiling water was raised through a tube in the handle of the pot and sprayed over the coffee grounds which were held in a filter basket.

About the same time, another Frenchman, Durand, introduced a percolator which was the first to employ an inner tube to raise the water over the grounds.

These innovations did not really make excellent coffee, but they did spur on the search for way of making better coffee.

In 1819, Moritz, also French, introduced a pump percolator possible pot that was the antecedent of all filtration pots. Moritz's percolator had two possible filters and was placed bottom up on the fire until the water began to boil. It was inverted to let the water drip or filter through the grounds.

Then came the vacuum pot developed by Robert Napier around 1840. Napier's intricate device was first employed in distillation and filtration included a silver globe, brewer, siphon and strainer.

ALL USE GRAVITY

The double glass balloon, also a vacuum method, was introduced in France about the same time. It achieved great popularity in North America during the early 1900s.

While the French were devising a variety of ways to make coffee more palatable, our American friends were boiling the stuff in a pot. In 1911, The Kitchen Directory and American Housewife magazine gave this recipe for making coffee: "Use a tablespoonful of ground coffee to a pint of boiling water. Boil in pot over fire for twenty-five minutes. If boiled longer it will not taste fresh and lively. Let stand for four or five minutes to settle, pour off grounds into a coffee pot or urn. Fish shell or isinglass and a of a nine pence in pot when put on to boil or white of an egg and shell to an egg to a couple quarts of coffee."

By the middle of the 19th century, the percolator, the drip, the vacuum and the pump coffee pots were all in use. These types of coffee makers, still popular today, have one thing in common — they all use gravity to force the water through the coffee grounds.

The latest invention in the fight for an excellent cup of coffee is the Insta-Brewer, a unit that utilizes an unusual pressure plunger device to provide fast brewing action. The new unit makes coffee — not instant — in less than a minute.

What will be next is uncertain, but one thing is for sure, and that is that millions of Canadians will say day after millions of cups of coffee and the "coffee-break" is almost as universal as motherhood.

Lawn Watering Hours Set By Commission

The Public Utilities Commission has announced lawn watering hours for the city in an effort to improve the water pressure in the mains so that everyone in Belleville will be assured of having water.

The Commission reports that the pumps has reached a dangerously high level of 6,162,000 gallons per day pumped to the city. This comes close to the city with maximum pumpage for 1964, which was 7,338,000 gallons, but this figure wasn't reached last year until the last day of June.

The capacity is adequate to handle the pumpage at the pump house but not in the mains. When it gets too high, certain areas in the city, especially on high ground and in the outlying areas, may not get water at all. The lawn watering restrictions are placed on the city in order to cut down the rising pressure.

The Commission is attempting to alleviate the problem. Last year, $270,000 was spent in putting a 24-inch main in from the pump house. This year another 24-inch reinforced concrete main is planned. It will extend across the north end of the city and will finally come down about Bridge Street East and Farley Ave. The Commission is also considering a main for the western part of the city from Sidney Street.

The new lawn watering hours are from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. daily. On Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, the odd street numbered houses can water and on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, the even street numbered houses can water. Everyone is allowed to water their lawns on Sundays.

The Commission also reports the temperature in the Bay of Quinte is 60 degrees. The algae population is increasing rapidly in the bay and will grow even more as the temperature of the water continues to climb. The thick growth of algae in the bay accounts for the bad taste often experienced in the water during the summer. To overcome the bad taste, place the water in the refrigerator and cool it off before drinking.

Construction Round-up

By BARRY McCULLAGH

Fifty seven houses were completed in Belleville in the three months which ended March 31, according to the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. This was 13 fewer than were started during the same period last year.

Under construction were 89 houses, compared with 117 at March 31, 1964.

Thirteen houses were started during the January-March period.

The statistics, released by CMHC, relate to centres of 5,000 population and over. Total starts of new dwellings in the province increased 26 per cent in March to 2,473 from 1,916 units in the same month last year.

A substantial increase in approved lenders' loans during March resulted in loans being issued for 2,291 dwelling units, compared with 741 in March, 1964. This represents an increase of 192 per cent. Direct CMHC loans were 88 per cent higher.

At the end of March there were some 2,903 newly-completed and unoccupied houses and duplexes in Ontario's metropolitan and major urban areas, compared with 2,527 at the start of March last year, and 1,461 at the end of February this year.

The number of apartments and row houses completed for the last six months, but unoccupied at the end of March, in metropolitan areas increased to 2,087 units from 2,332 last month.

A start has been made on the extension to Park Dale public school. Eight new classrooms are included in the $160,812 project.

The school has four classrooms at present. In the extension there will also be a general purpose room.

Work has also started on a Coin Autowash at 305 North Front Street. The cost of this project is estimated at $25,000.

The contractor for both jobs is Hugh Murray Ltd.

Plans for re-roofing three buildings at Barrisfield Artillery camp are on display at Belleville Builders' Exchange.

Obituaries

MRS. JOHN CHARLES (DIDDY) CHRISTIE
Madoc

In failing health for the past five months, Mrs. Eddie May (Edna) Chiddle, of Madoc, died Sunday in St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough. She was in her 65th year.

Born at West Huntingdon she was the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Wright and the late Hiram Wright and had lived in Madoc for the past 40 years.

She was a member of St. John the Divine Anglican Church at Madoc and when health permitted took an active part in the work of the church. She was highly regarded in the Madoc area.

She is survived by her husband, John Charles Chiddle; one daughter, W. (Stella) Clark and one son, John Charles Chiddle, both of Peterborough.

Also surviving are five grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. W. (Jennie) Holgate of Ivanhoe; Mrs. F. (Florence) Reid, and Mrs. T. (Alice) Young, both of Belleville, and a brother, Enoch Wright of Ivanhoe.

Funeral service will be held on Saturday from the MacKenzie Funeral Home to St. John the Baptist Anglican Church for service at 2 p.m.

HENRY BURTON MARTYN
Toronto - Sidney Twp.

A former resident of Sidney Township, Henry Martyn, 12 Distin Street, Toronto, 18, died suddenly in St. Joseph's Hospital, on Thursday, May 20, in his 70th year.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Martyn, he is survived by his wife (the former Helen E. Rose) and two sisters, Mrs. Arnold; Glenn of Falgrave, and one daughter, Lorraine (Mrs. Roy Hopkins) of Willowdale.

Also surviving are two brothers, Thomas, Toronto, Percy of Bancroft, and four sisters, Dell (Mrs. Adella Sheppard), Ivalee (Mrs. Wilfred Smith), Nellie (Mrs. Whitney Martin), all of Bancroft and Norma (Mrs. Donald Goodacre) of Warsaw, Ontario.

The funeral was held from the Campbell Funeral Home, Bloor Street, on Saturday afternoon at 3.00 p.m. and was conducted by the Rev. Gordon Lepp, New Toronto.

Interment was in Park Lawn cemetery.

HARRY GRANT POTTER

Harry Grant Potter died suddenly at his home in Stirling on Wednesday. He was 56.

A native of Frankford, Mr. Potter worked as a farmer. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Potter and had lived in the Stirling district all his life.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mamie Jean Morton, and two brothers, Carl Potter, Stirling, and Jack Potter, St. Hubert, P.Q.

Mr. Potter was a steward of St. Paul's Anglican Church and vice-president of the A.O.T.S. men's club of the church.

Services will be held at the Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling, Saturday morning.

MRS. HAROLD F. REID

A native of England, resident in Canada since 1930, Mrs. Harold F. Reid, 201 Coleman Street, died in Belleville General Hospital today. She was in her 60th year.

She had been ill several months. Born in Lancaster, Lancashire, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Gill. She was an employee of American Optical Company for 30 years. A member of Christ Church, Mrs. Reid belonged to the Minerva Chapter 138 OES.

She is survived by her husband, Harold F. Reid and a brother, James Gill, Belleville.

Three Conservation Areas Now Open for Picknickers

Mr. Macnaughton and Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

A permanent Speaker for the Commons has been discussed for many years. But no provision for it was included in the government proposals to streamline House rules now under debate.

Mr. Diefenbaker raised the issue last week. Wednesday he said a Speaker removed from politics is essential.

NO INDICATION

The prime minister said the question should have been raised in closed inter-party discussions instead of in the Commons. He gave no indication whether the government is serious in considering proposing a permanent Speaker.

At present Speaker is elected (by Commons members after being nominated by the government.

The prime minister said he talked with Mr. Macnaughton after the Speaker informed him he does not intend to run in the next election. Mr. Macnaughton represents the Montreal riding of Mount Royal.

Mr. Pearson said the Speaker feels the Commons rules was raised in the House, he could not express his own views until he is being elected in a new riding is concluded.

The prime minister also said proposals for rules reform are not necessarily final. The government is willing to listen to suggestions from all parties.

He was replying to Mr. Diefenbaker who charged that government House Leader Mcilraith had warned at closed meetings of party House leaders that the government would call an election unless the rule proposals were adopted intact.

DENIED THREAT

Mr. McIlraith denied he ever made such a threat. He accused the Opposition leader of breaking the traditionally confidential rules of inter-party meetings.

Changes proposed by the government include limiting discussion of departmental spending estimates and appropriations to 15 days each session, with strengthened committees to handle estimates instead.

The government offered a compromise proposal Wednesday in an attempt to meet objections by H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) and Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) that too many of the spending measures are being debated within the 35-day time limit.

Transport Minister Pickersgill said the departmental spending estimates brought forward after main departmental estimates have been approved will be excluded from the time limit.

Mr. Olson approved the compromise. Mr. Knowles also endorsed it but said the two-day supply debates which provide an opportunity for non-confidence motions against the government also should be excluded from the time limit.

House

Spring development for the three conservation areas owned by the Moira River Authority is now nearly completed for 1965.

The Colonel Rowe Memorial Water Conservation Area is now officially open to summer picknickers and campers. This is a 630 - acre conservation area on the Moira River, two miles east of Thomasburg on 37 highway where 50 campsites, fishing, hiking, nature trails and extensive picnic facilities are available to the public.

There is no admission charge at this area during the week but a nominal charge of 35 cents per car on weekends. The price rises at Actinolite and the O'Hara Mill Conservation Area at Madoc are also now open for the season with no admission charge at either of these areas.

In the Authority's education program this year, a 4-H Resource Management Club has been started. Two meetings have already been held and a third meeting is planned for the weekend of June 5 and 6. Interested persons between the ages of 16 and 21, should contact Wayne Fairfield, Secretary-Treasurer of the Authority at the Conservation Area, Tweed.

Robert Stanley Kerr, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Kerr, 317 Pearl Avenue, Peterborough, has graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in history from Carleton University, Ottawa. He is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School and has accepted a position on the teaching staff of Ridgemont High School, Ottawa.

Bill Vermilea, of R. R. 5, Belleville, was awarded his diploma for completing the four year Associate Course in Agriculture at the University of Guelph. He will farm at R. R. 5, Belleville, Ont.

Stanley McMullin, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McMullin, 67 North Park Street, Belleville, received the degree of B.A., majoring in English, at the 21st spring convocation of Carleton University, Ottawa, recently. Three other Belleville men also received degrees at this convocation. They were Robert Follwell, Rolf Pedersen and Lyle Tatham.

Travelling Cross Presented to Bridge St. Church

Bridge St. AOTS Men's Club in regular session last Wednesday evening witnessed the acceptance of the Travelling Cross from Bloomfield AOTS club and were hosts to several visiting United Church Men's Club officials, including the national chairman, Jack Dawson of Toronto.

President George Greatrix, as chairman of the meeting expressed a warm welcome to the Bloomfield group and invited their president, Garry Foster, to share with him the presiding duties of the evening. He also extended sincere greetings to the visiting AOTS men who were present, informally, to participate later in the evening, in a planning committee discussion regarding the Fourth National convention to be held at Queen's University this coming August 27, 28 and 29.

The regular evening devotional was given by Burton Normton of the Bloomfield club, emphasizing certain attributes preached by Christ — love, faith, meekness and peace as opposed to envy, vain, glory and lusts. It was a very appropriate discourse and was much appreciated by the group.

Everett Fairman was a capable sergeant-at-arms, collecting from all who did not measure up to the AOTS customs of fellowship and propriety. Alec Ferguson was called upon for the usual expression of appreciation to the ladies in charge of the supper arrangements.

Following a brief sing-song an unique ceremony was carried out in which a cross surmounted a book-rest was transferred by Garry Foster on behalf of the Bloomfield AOTS Men's Club to the Bridge St. AOTS Club, who in turn must pass it on to another AOTS Club within within the Belleville Presbytery. The cross, a symbol of fellowship born out of sacrificial service to Christ and His Church, must be accompanied to any other club by a group of the members of the presenting club, emblematic also of the fellowship created by their presence with the club to which it is passed. This idea was originally implemented by the Slicking AOTS Men's Club.

ACCEPTS CROSS

Accepting the cross with its implications president George expressed the genuine appreciation of Bridge St. Men for the honor and fellowship that betowed upon them. On behalf of his club membership he promised to carry out the traditional program initiated by the sponsor of the idea and to arrange for the cross to be taken to another AOTS club with the same witness of Christian fellowship that had accompanied it to Bridge St. Church on this occasion.

By way of entertainment Newton Thompson showed pictures he 3nd Mrs. Thompson had taken during the spring months a few years back in Holland, where "tulip time" really means something, patriotically and commercially. Growing tulips in that country first became a popular pastime, then grew to proportions that made it a national industry. The picture provided a most enjoyable and very seasonable evening's pleasure.

The meeting closed with a benediction by the Rev. Alfred Poulter.

Coroners May Be Replaced By Magistrates

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram says the Ontario government is going to scrap the medical coroner's system as it now is constituted.

The paper quotes informed sources close to the government as saying the decision will not be announced for some time but all the plans have been made.

The paper says: "Coroners will be replaced by magistrates at inquests but will still have a job to do in the new setup.

"Instead of acting as judges the doctors who are now coroners will become medical examiners and the chief witness at any inquest."

Under the medical examiner system now used in Nova Scotia, New York City and other United States jurisdictions, the medical examiner investigates questionable deaths and reports his findings to the coroner, says the paper.

Senator Calls For 'Love Among Men'

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt (L—Quebec), 73, told the Senate Wednesday he is seriously ill and in what may be his "last appeal" in the red chamber wanted the record to show the words: "Long live Canada, my beloved country."

During his speech he called for "love among men." He was sharply critical of television programs that "destroy morality."

Certain TV shows depicted "the denial of the existence of God." Unchristian display could bring the world to a point where it ends "like animals that devoitr each other."

"This may be my last appeal in the House," he said, adding that he is "very seriously struck by illness." He did not say what the illness is.

On English - French unity within Canada, he said Quebec "wants to go along with the others" and will participate in the ecoomic development of Canada.

C. Martineau New President Of Jaycees

TRENTON — Trenton Jaycees met at the Gilbert Hotel in Trenton last night to hold their first annual meeting and installation of officers for 1965-66. The installation was conducted by Jaycees' District Six president-elect, R. W. (Bob) Clark. Mr. Clark was presented with a gift following the installation.

The newly-elected president is Claude Martineau and his executive officers are Tom Alexander, vice-president; Pat Dolan, secretary - treasurer; Gary Jamison and Fred Boulton, directors. Immediate past president is Jerry Goldberg.

Last year and this the Jaycees sponsored a very successful soap box derby and the most successful event of all was the "Meet Your Candidates" night held just before the December election. This year, the Jaycees plan to hold a municipal affairs course, (in the fall), which will be open to the public and which will be culminated by a 1965 "Meet Your Candidates" night.

The junior chamber, whose members now number 14, is open to young men between the ages of 18 and 35 and the Jaycees are presently looking for new members.

Centennial Group's Offer to Speak

TRENTON — Gil McDermott, public relations officer with the Centennial Commission, will be in Trenton tonight to speak at the Trenton Lion's Club meeting in the upper auditorium of the Trenton Country Club.

Lions' club president, Earl Cruickshank had issued an invitation to members of the public to attend the dinner meeting, which starts at 7 p.m.

Red Shield Raises $4,100

TRENTON — E. M. Parker Jr., the 1965 area chairman for the Salvation Army Red Shield campaign, said today more than $4,100 towards the 1965 objective of $5,000 had been collected. With many more outlying areas to be heard from and with the downtown Trenton business area and industry yet to be canvassed, Mr. Parker said he was sure the campaign would "go over the top."

DELAY TENDERS

TRENTON — George Kempf, president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, said on Wednesday those tendering for the erection of a permanent chamber office on Front Street had been asked to delay their final tenders until the last of this week, because certain heating estimates had yet to be submitted by a Toronto firm.

'Clamp' Doctor Can Resume His Practice

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Kenneth Brown, 46, the man held responsible by an inquest jury for the November, 1963 death of Patricia Morgan, will be allowed to practise medicine again.

Miss Morgan, 32, died because a surgical clamp had been left in her abdomen during an operation performed by Dr. Brown at Toronto East General Hospital.

His licence was revoked by the College of Physicians and Surgeons for reasons of health several months ago. He has since recovered and is able to resume his practise.

Diocese Split Down Middl On Religious Education

HAMILTON (CP)—The synod of the Anglican diocese of Niagara was split almost down the middle on the subject of religious education in public schools during the second and final day of its sessions here Wednesday.

Delegates spent 80 minutes in debate before approving by a vote of 84 to 81 a motion calling on the Ontario government to establish a non-sectarian course in the religions of mankind as an academic subject in elementary and secondary schools.

The resolution also said that the synod "endorses the recent public announcement by the department of education . . . of the formation of a committee to study the present system of religious education in the public schools of Ontario, which we deem to be unsatisfactory."

The department now permits a certain number of hours to be set aside for separate protestant or Roman Catholic instruction by a minister or priest. Children whose parents do not want them to take the religious instruction provided have a study period instead.

SUPPORTS RESOLUTION

Rev. J. H. McMulkin of Georgetown, who moved the resolution, said the "proposal is aimed at placing religion—not a denominational angle of religion—in the centre of things."

Seconding the motion, Rev. Robert Griggs of Hamilton said the course should place its main emphasis on the Judeo-Christian tradition but should give a knowledge of the major faiths of the world.

"The subject and unloving to insist that only one faith be taught in our schools," he said.

Mr. Griggs said the course should be taken out of the hands of the clergy and taught as an academic subject, by trained teachers and with examinations set.

Speaking against the motion, Rev. David Luxton of Hamilton said religious education in the schools is only opposed by a vocal two per cent of the population, most of whom are Jewish or Unitarian.

NO LONGER WANTED

Rev. Ralph McKim of Ha ton, until recently diocesan rector of Christian educa said any attempt to have C tianity given preferential t ment in public schools " gests a position of privilege of power which no longer e and which the church no lo covets."

Canon John Bothwell of H das said he has taught schools but has doubts a the present system.

"What is taught . . . is o a weird mixture of patrio and watered - down Christ ity," he said.

Rt. Rev. Walter Bagnall, bop of Niagara, said it m be best for delegates merely send the government a mo endorsing a provincial study the question of religious ed tion and promising the supp of the diocese.

"I find it difficult to beli that any government dep ment would put great faith what we wanted them to do if they could easily find out half of you voted against be said.

Acts Justify de Gaulle

News of the discovery of another plot against life of General Charles de Gaulle makes sorry ...dings.

One does not have to be a Gaullist to hold ...s opinion.

If one disapproves of much that he has done, ...d does not like the methods he has used in ...ccomplishing even those things of which one ...s approve, it still remains a fact that de Gaulle ...s served his country, in war and in peace, with ...fless devotion.

For the fanatic, there was perhaps some ...ense for assassination plots at the time when ...Gaulle was changing the whole fabric of the ...ench empire and was transforming it into a ...ench copy of the British Commonwealth of ...tions. For the person alarmed by the vest...g of self-governing powers in this strange ...portment of recently-spawned independent ...tes, it would have been relatively simple to ...nclude that any measure, however drastic and ...olent, was justified in an effort to defeat the ...heme.

But the change is now part of history. It ...nnot be undone. When, therefore, the Secret ...my, which so stubbornly and bitterly opposed ...e Gaullist solution in Algeria, still feverishly ...ts to kill the French President, the attempts ...ase to wear the guise of political assassination ...r an ideal and appear before the world in ...ir real character of revengeful attempts at ...urder.

Every new plot just serves to further reveal ...e true nature of the men who opposed de ...aulle's pacification policy in Algeria and to ...nfirm the desirability of the course which he ...ok to free that land from such tyrannical ...remists.

The scene could have been duplicated, any ...ching, on any of several beaches in Prince Ed... and Content.

But this was a beach fronting on the cold ...ters of Georgian Bay. For forty miles, from ...mestangishene to Collingwood, the gizzard ...nd or alewives are piled dead on the sand, ...nd, for this area, this is news, bad news.

A dozen years ago, when the writer first ...me from the Lake Huron and Georgian Bay ...istrict to the Quinte area, the first surprise ...hich Lake Ontario offered was these mounds of ...ad shad, drying in the summer sun above the ...igh-water mark and giving forth a stench which, ...the uninitiated, appeared over-powering. The ...ars have made the shad and their smell easier ...r live with, but memory still paints the Upper ...kes annual dead clean.

As the picture in the Globe and Mail shows, ...at is no longer true. It was preceded by a ...eport from the Sarnia area of shad piling up on ...e Lake Huron beaches to the north, bordering ...e so-called Bluewater Highway—which gives ...nly comparatively rare glimpses of the lake.

What has happened? Have the shad moved ...to Lake Huron and Georgian Bay in great num...ers, perhaps as the result of changes in the ...ater conditions, or were they already there and ...re their funereal piles on the beaches the result ...f some phenomenon which will, perhaps, not ...e repeated annually? The latter answer appears to be suggested by a statement by Bruce ...ristine, fisheries officer for the Penetang...ishene area, that the fish die whenever the ...ater temperature changes two to four de...rees while they are spawning. But remember...ng the regularity with which the dead shad pile ...p on Prince Edward beaches every spring, we ...annot help wondering whether something new ...as not been added to waterfront life on the ...pper Lakes, whether the dead shad will not in ...time become as accepted a harbinger of spring ...s the first robin and the budding of the maples.

People are always blaming their circum...tances for what they are. I don't believe in ...circumstances. The people who get on in this ...world are the people who get up and look for the ...circumstances they want, and, if they can't find ...them, make them.—George Bernard Shaw.

What distinguishes war is, not that man is ...dain, but that he is slain, spoiled, crushed by ...the cruelty, the injustice, the treachery, the ...murderous hand of man.—William Ellery Chan...ding.

Only Courts Can Commit Person to Mental Hospital

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please set me, or some people, straight on the laws about committing a person to a mental hospital.

Some of my husband's friends believe I've done him wrong and think I actually put him in the hospital but because I signed some papers.

I love my husband and miss him.

Am I right in assuming that when I signed the papers, all I was doing was having him examined by psychiatrists, and after a hearing in court the judge sent him to the hospital? — Mrs. R. D.

You are entirely correct. A wife can't order that a husband committed, nor can a husband order commitment of his wife. Only a court can do that, based on expert testimony. (Some states require such testimony from doctors, but do not insist that the doctors be psychiatrists.)

In some instances, individuals realize that they need psychiatric care and voluntarily agree to enter a hospital. In other cases, the patient does not know he needs help and a court order is the only way to see that he gets it.

Friends don't necessarily see enough of a person to recognize the presence of emotional problems. You did, and you did right by having the court and psychiatrists make the decision.

Had your husband not needed such care, they would have refused to let him in the hospital. So many people need treatment that hospitals can't waste space on people who don't.

If you had not seen to it that your husband got help, he or his friends would have had a good reason to criticize.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read your column about the little girl who pulls out her hair and swallows it. I had the same problem with my girl when she was about that age. The doctor told me the same thing you said, about it making a ball in the stomach and maybe leading to surgery.

I tried everything to break her head shaved. It worked. We had it shaved just three times and she outgrew the habit. She is now 16 and has a fine head of long hair. — Mrs. D. C.

This is an odd habit that some youngsters acquire; sometimes the hairballs have grown a little large and removal by surgery becomes absolutely essential.

Dear Dr. Molner: About a year ago I read about a new way to restore withered muscles. I understand it is done by electric shock. Would this be done in a city the size of Syracuse, or is it still in the experimental stage? I am 41 and had polio when I was two years old. One leg is much smaller than the other. Is it too late for any hope? — Mrs. H. L.

I wouldn't call it an electric "shock" exactly. Here's what it's all about: When a leg, hand or other member becomes temporarily paralyzed, the muscles wither from sheer lack of use.

The paralysis comes, of course because there is an interruption somewhere in the nerve track. The patient wants to move — but the signal never reaches the muscle.

In many cases it is possible to apply a small electric impulse to the nerves somewhere beyond the point of interruption. With each impulse, the muscles contract, and the muscle "gets its exercise," and does not wither. This is done in cases in which the damaged nerve track ultimately can be expected to heal, and the paralysis will end.

I am afraid that this would be of no use in your case, Mrs. H. L. However, I suggest that you have an evaluation by specialists in physiotherapy. Yes, certainly in Syracuse.

The Act of Habeas Corpus, one of the foundations of British and American law, went into effect 286 years ago today—in 1679. It provides that an accused person cannot be committed to prison without appearing before a judge at the first opportunity, and penalizes illegal imprisonment. Later acts improved habeas corpus, and it may be suspended in times of rebellion or war, but it remains the basic law under which any accused person must be either tried, discharged, or released on bail.

1925—The U.S. Supreme Court ruled the National Industrial Recovery Act (NRA) unconstitutional.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — a British squadron joined the Italian fleet in the Adriatic; a Turkish submarine torpedoed the British battleship Majestic in the Dardanelles; 249 persons died when the Cunard Princess Irene blew up in the Thames River.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940 — Britain conscripted men aged 28 and 29 and 400,000 men volunteered for the Home Guard as British and French armies retreated to northern France; Sir Stafford Cripps was appointed British ambassador to Russia.

Do We Want More People?

Vancouver Sun

Sociologists are bound to have a field day with the findings of the Gallup people that Canadians are fairly evenly divided on whether we should have a larger population.

What has happened to change our thinking since 1945, when a similar poll showed we favored a larger population by a ratio of three to one?

It is too easy to explain away this significant cooling toward immigration with the popular expression that labor fears new immigrants will take away jobs.

Not only is unemployment no longer major concern but these good times have shown, surely to everyone's satisfaction, that more people mean more consumers and more consumers mean more production jobs.

But we will only be guessing until the Gallup Poll can tell us not only where the opinions came from, but from what sort of people, and why.

It is not surprising that the Gallup Poll found more enthusiasm in the West for an expanded population than in the East.

True, the shortage of qualified workers is national. As deputy immigration minister Claude Isbister noted in London last week skilled manpower is needed from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and will be needed for a long time to come.

But for the man being squeezed to the point of discomfort in the southern Ontario megalopolis known as the Golden Horseshoe, neither the manpower shortage, nor the realization that a crowded world looks enviously upon our vast and empty spaces, is likely to convince him that it's in his best interest to grow still more.

Not so the West.

We are people who need people.

How many is something we're only begun to realize.

For some time the National Employment Service has been having trouble filling jobs in BC calling for skilled men. And now a federal-provincial cross-provinces survey shows these are no mere localized shortages. The federal immigration department has called the provincial situation serious, and getting worse. Almost all of the skilled trades are lacking in men, and small contractors, who are losing men to bigger jobs, are approaching real trouble.

Canada's overseas immigration officers now know this.

And it may not be an insignificant factor in the international man-hunt that it's also known that the West is where the welcome is.

Wheeler-dealers' Crank Calls Leaders' Occupational Woe

By RICHARD JACKSON
From the Parliamentarian's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Difficult, perhaps, to credit it, but there are a surprising number of nuts loose in the country who like to show what big-time wheeler-dealers they are by calling up Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker on their private residential lines.

And the later the hour, the funnier these jokers seem to think it is.

It may come as a bit of a surprise to realize that both the prime minister and the opposition leader answer their own phones at home — if you get them on their private lines.

And the private numbers of the prime minister at 24 Sussex Drive and the Conservative leader at Stornoway in Rockcliffe Park aren't really all that private that they don't get passed around.

Not so long ago, to reduce the increasingly heavy traffic on the private line, Mr. Diefenbaker had to change their so-called "silent" number, as will the prime minister at No. 24, as the calls start piling up and pile up they inevitably will.

The phones in both residences are in the family section — the studies and the bedrooms — and so the hired help doesn't always get to them first when they start ringing.

Especially not late at night.

A CHEWING OUT

It is a quite one-sided illot kind of exercise, this calling of the prime minister or the Conservative leader, and with very little risk of unpleasantness involved.

For both men, now long used to this kind of petty nuisance, regard it as an altogether unnecessary but so far unavoidable part of their already heavy load of leadership, and try only to get these pests off the line as quickly and unabrasively as possible.

The only risk-of-sorts for the above-the-salt jokers is that he is always possible to find Mrs. Pearson or Mrs. Diefenbaker on the line, and they may be detrained to go along with these long-distance fun and games.

In fact, you hear more of some sad ears being chewed off and strips torn from the egos of both hosts — and more often to the sharp tongues of these good ladies!

Pearsons had the advantage of some pretty intensive pre-training in the specialized field of VIP phone-answering.

For during all the six years he was Opposition leader his home phone number at Stornoway was publicly listed under Pearson, Lester B., in the Ottawa directory — available in most big-city hotel lobbies and certainly on enquiry from "Information."

One of his friends tells of waiting in on the phone in home just as he was answering a long distance call from an ultra-strange character who was accepting a $10 bet on the outcome of a ball game.

Absolutely still wonder why he persisted in answering the phone and receiving all the deranged and drunken comment, cajolery, jokes, cross-examination and other inebriated nonsense to which he was routinely are subjected.

There were week-ends when the phone rang every 20 minutes and many was the night when calls came in from as far away as Victoria (although mostly from Vancouver, where at midnight your time it is 3 a.m. Ottawa) or Halifax (3 a.m. Ottawa).

The Diefenbakers for the last 19 years have always served them, changing them from time to time, as they got passed around as a kind of party gag item.

But the continuing number change has always served them from after-midnight calls from jokers sitting around at hotel bedrooms and bars in the Mountain or Pacific Time zones and suddenly deciding for kicks to "Call Dief."

(The hour drag between Eastern and Atlantic time zones also has passed both the Pearsons and Diefenbakers calls from the Maritimes.)

Can't you just picture the scene in the hotel at Calgary, Edmonton or Vancouver:

"Think I'll call good ol' Dief,", says a show-off, wanting to demonstrate what a big-timer he is.

"Ah, don't give us that, ol' Dief never heard of you," says another chap.

"Oh yeah?"

"Yeah."

"OK, smart guy, so just you listen."

And in goes the call, and everybody but the Opposition leader, or the prime minister as it so often happens, has hilarious fun ringing phones in the dead of the Capital's night, to try out some twice-told joke or play at being the big-shot by trying to work up, by insult or accusation, an argument with these so inhumanly over-worked men who so urgently need their sleep.

Strictly Personal

Moralists Ignore Humor in Sex

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: An ideology that tries to explain too much is like an overextended military line — so highly fortified that the enemy can break through at any one of many points; and this is why authoritarian regimes are so easily overturned, at last, while moderate regimes make up in stability what they lack in force.

Women often forgive a man who makes a move before he should, but never one who makes a move long after he should have.

In social periods of chaos and transition, those who say they are for "the restoration of order" are usually for the restoration of the old order, and not for any new order, which might be more equitable than the old.

Boringness is the besetting sin of the dullard; but when the wit makes fun of it, he does not see that the besetting sin of the witty is malice.

Of all the political maxims I have ever heard, the best and briefest still remains Joseph de Maistre's of nearly two centuries ago: "Toute nation a le gouvernement qu' elle mérite". ("Every nation has the government it deserves.")

Moralists are so earnest about sex that their own attitude defeats their purposes. If they could appreciate the large element of the ridiculous in sex, they would accomplish a hundred times more with young people than their fervor.

There is nothing more dangerous than a person with a good mind who begins to reason, logically and coherently, on insufficient premises: for his answers will always be valid, justified, rational and wrong.

Listening to a chronic complainer recently, I recalled the apt words of Cardinal de Retz: "One of the great weaknesses of those who have learned to whine through their own fault is that they almost always try to find excuses before they try to find remedies; as a result, they often find remedies too late."

Few pastimes are more self-defeating than that of the young person who tries to act like a grown-up before he has learned to behave like a man. (His opposite number is the young girl who would like to be a saint without first becoming a woman.)

Advertising, to remain effective in the future, will have to reduce its tone from a shout to a whisper: for in this way one can enter a hundred ears, a hundred voices cannot enter one ear, if they are all screaming at the same time.

One-Way Streets

Kingston Whig-Standard

It is only necessary to look at what happened elsewhere to be convinced that one-way streets in business districts do far more good than harm. Not only does traffic flow more quickly, but streets which were formerly not fully developed in a commercial sense received the attention needed and add another dimension to what was formerly an overcrowded and inadequate shopping and business area.

The former squadron-leader told 125 Rotarians, their wives and guests at the annual Ladies' Night banquet at the Hotel Quinte that Canada needs leaders, who will find a common thing upon which all agree. It will not be religion, languages, or race, but the fact that every man has a stomach.

Teen-age Marriage

Victoria Times

Obviously Canadians have not yet begun to look for a cure for the prevailing unhappiness bred by the teen-age marriage. Unless the country is reconciled to the increasing trouble arising from broken and unsatisfactory homes, a serious search will have to be launched for a remedy. Perhaps compulsory pre-marriage counselling for certain age groups would be a start.

Municipal Planning Seminar Welcomed to City by Mayor

Regional government has finally arrived—as a phrase that is—in the municipal government mind of the Quinte district.

This was stressed here last night as municipal officials—and elected representatives — opened a two-day seminar in Belleville last night on municipal planning.

The workshop, which continues through today, is calling spokesmen from Hastings and Prince Edward counties to arrive at what direct ons Ontario's municipal setup should take in future years.

Today, the seminar settles down to drawing conclusions from last night's encounter in the county buildings. Questions presented there will be answered today by officials from the Municipal Affairs Department community planning branch.

Looming large on the answer list will be questions on regional government.

The provincial government team—led by J. O. E. Pearson —last night sat down with more than 100 delegates of municipal government in the county buildings These represented mayors, reeves and councillors from Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Bancroft and the various townships of both counties.

All of them contributed to the evening's scene — the future shape of municipal government.

Specifically, this meant regional government.

Presentations by department officials were followed by a question period from the floor.

Answers to these questions were expected today as the workshop entered its second day.

"And this," said Belleville mayor Jack Ellis during a coffee break, "will be the real essence of this meeting."

A luncheon meeting of the delegates today was scheduled to be addressed by Municipal Affairs Minister J. W. Spooner.

NUNS DOFF HEADDRESS

ROME (CP)—The Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, one of the largest orders of nuns, have adopted a shorter, more modern habit, and given up the famous white cap with two large upturned points. In future they will wear a dark veil over a small white coif.

Canada Will Send Team to Tuna Tourney

VANCOUVER (CP) — The man who engineered the capture of three-ton Moby Doll, the world's only captive killer whale, will try his luck at tuna this summer.

Vancouver's versatile angler, Dr. Murray Newman, will join a seven-member Canadian team participating in the international tuna tournament Aug. 16 at Wedgeport, N.S.

Besides trying to catch more and bigger tuna than teams from the United States, Mexico and the Caribbean, the Canadians will also try to top the tournament record of an 871-pounder taken off Wedgeport in 1947.

That record fish weighed about 6½ tons less than the killer whale Dr. Newman's team harpooned in Georgia Strait in June, 1964. He had it towed back to Vancouver and kept it alive for about two months.

Moby Doll turned out to be a male, but until the 18-foot mammal died Dr. Newman was kept busy dealing with the world publicity and turning down offers of up to $25,000 for it.

The tuna tournament has not been held since 1958, when the blue-fin tuna was first caught. This is the first time Canada has entered a team. Canadian anglers previously fished as members of a British Empire team.

Lippmann Says Press Role In Santo Domingo Excellent

LONDON (AP)—Walter Lippmann said today that excellent coverage of the confused events in the Dominican Republic "saved that situation from becoming a moral disaster for the United States."

Lippmann, a distinguished commentator on American affairs, made that statement to top newspaper executives from the non-Communist world attending the International Press Institute.

In his speech he spoke of the responsibility of newspapers to keep the public informed and then in answer to questions he cited the Dominican Republic as a case which shows the importance of conscientious, serious and forthright journalism. He said:

"In Santo Domingo the role of the press has been extremely encouraging.

"Reporters on the scene and editors back home who printed the news saved that situation from becoming a moral disaster for the United States."

INFLUENCED POLICY

Expanding on his remarks later in a conversation with reporters, Lippmann said:

"In reading what the correspondents on the ground reported, I felt I was getting a much more accurate account of what was going on in Santo Domingo than I was getting from the Washington handouts.

"That created an atmosphere of criticism in the United States that has had an influence on policy.

"Santo Domingo may be a political disaster but it was a triumph for the press."

In his speech earlier Lippmann told nearly 300 news executives from 32 countries that conflict is inevitable between journalists and government officials both trying to do their duty according to their own lights.

"The right of the press to know and the right of the responsible authority to withhold that coexist," he said.

He added that in the United States this divergence had produced a system of tension between reporters and government officials which is not neat or elegant but which "works tolerably well, at least in time of peace."

French-Canadian Play Gets Adjudicator's Praise

By BRENDA LARGE

BROCKVILLE (CP) — With three players down and four to go, an original French-Canadian production by a violently non-conformist Montreal author has so far received the most praise from adjudicator Guy Beaulne at the annual Dominion Drama Festival.

Wednesday night's play, The Cave Dwellers by William Saroyan, presented by the Theatre Upstairs company of Toronto, got a lukewarm reception from the adjudicator, who said its actors and actresses almost never got below the surface of their roles.

Tuesday night, Mr. Beaulne called Jacques Duchesnes's production of Les Nouveaux-Dieux (The New Gods) by is Theatre de la Place Ville-Marie of Montreal an exciting theatrical experience. He found very little to criticize in its lighting, costumes, set and the performances of its young actors.

The Hostage by Brendan Behan, presented by Lakeside Theatre Productions of Ottawa, was criticized Monday night for not fully living up to the author's intent, but individual performers were praised.

Mr. Beaulne said Wednesday the Saroyan play was a difficult one to perform because its language and style were often pompous.

The play is about a group of destitute actors, circus performers and other down-and-out characters who live together for a brief time in an abandoned theatre.

They draw courage from one another, then go out into the world as original French-Canadian productions by a violently non-conformist Montreal author has so far received the most praise from adjudicator Guy Beaulne at the annual Dominion Drama Festival.

DIRECTOR PRAISED

The 33-year-old director of the play, Richard Howard, was praised for his acting as the silent boy, a brief non-speaking part in the play, but Mr. Beaulne said the dwellers suffered from "busy" directing, which often took emphasis away from the actors.

Besides Mr. Howard, two actors were singled out for praise: John W. McMullen as the duke and Gerry Crack as the king, although Mr. Beaulne said there were certain mannerisms lacking from their performances which the director should have noticed.

"All the acting performances were frequently only skin deep. I felt the actors were forcing themselves on us."

He summed it up by commenting that while the cast and director were talented and intelligent, the performance never really showed the depth the author intended.

Tonight's play is A Man For All Seasons by Robert Bolt. It is to be presented by the Players' Guild of Hamilton.

The festival ends Saturday night with the presentation of awards. Top prize is the Dominion Drama Festival Trophy and $1,000 given by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, the festival's major sponsor.

PUT A TIGER IN YOUR TANK!

ALL-OUT QUALITY ESSO EXTRA GASOLINE BOOSTS POWER THREE WAYS:

1 Cleaning Power! Deposits can clog even a new carburetor in a few months of normal operation—causing hard starting and rough idling. Esso Extra will start to clear away those deposits—in new engines or old—to improve power and mileage.

2 Firing Power! Spark plug and cylinder deposits can cause misfiring, pre-ignition and hot spots. Esso Extra neutralizes these harmful deposits to help your engine run smoothly, to help preserve the power of new cars and restore lost power to many older cars.

3 Octane Power! Esso Extra has the high octane that high-compression cars now need for full smooth performance without knocking. You'll get all these extras with all-out quality Esso Extra gasoline—it puts a tiger in your tank! Happy Motoring!

Queen

lastically received by West Berliners, with hundreds of thousands lining the motorcade route, waving small British flags and cheering.

The Queen received the most tumultuous welcome when she arrived at John F. Kennedy Square, the site of West Berlin's city hall.

HUGE CROWD

More than 100,000 had gathered there, some waiting since last midnight.

The crowds slowed down the royal motorcade considerably and at one time the procession was 15 minutes behind schedule.

The visit to West Berlin climaxes her 11-day state visit to West Germany, the first time a reigning British monarch has come to Germany in 52 years. Her tour ends in Hamburg Friday.

The trip to Berlin took the Queen over Communist territory for the first time in her 13-year reign.

East Germany claimed that West German agents were planning "terrorist attacks" on the Berlin wall during her 5½-hour visit here.

The Queen's twin - engined turbo-prop RAF aircraft landed at 10:40 a.m. at the British military airfield in the suburb of Gatow after a 65-minute flight from the RAF base at Goetersloh, West Germany.

The 110-mile flight over East Germany through the centre one of three Western-controlled air corridors was without incident.

However, radar observers spotted a number of unidentified aircraft in the corridor which presumably were either Soviet or East German. None appeared to come close to the royal aircraft.

FEAR PROVOCATIONS

But the state-run East German radio asserted that "provocations against the border of the (east) German Democratic Republic are planned by Gehlen terrorists" during the royal visit.

"Gehlen" is the East German slogan for the West German federal intelligence service run by Gen. Reinhard Gehlen.

The East Germans this week complained about the plans of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and other West German politicians to come to Berlin for the visit of the Queen. They had previously said they had no objection to the Queen herself, who is officially coming to visit her occupation troops, but did not want her visit exploited by the West German government.

Guards of honor of the British, United States and French garrisons in West Berlin, and of the West Berlin police were drawn up on the tarmac to greet the monarch.

In the welcoming party were the British commandant in Berlin, Maj. - Gen. David Peel Yates, and the British ambassador in Bonn, Sir Frank Roberts.

WIND WHIPS UP DUST

Cold gusts of wind whipped up dust at the airfield. The skies were grey with temperature hovering around 51.

After reviewing the guards of honor, the Queen and Prince Philip stepped into an open Mercedes limousine. Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of West Germany sat in a jump seat facing the Queen and Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin faced Prince Philip.

The motorcade of at least 30 vehicles then made the six-mile trip to the Olympic Stadium where 30,000 persons — West Berliners and members of the Allied garrison alike—had gathered to watch a colorful parade of 1,500 British troops.

The Queen and Prince Philip climbed aboard a specially converted jeep and reviewed the troops.

GUARD ROUTE

About 9,000 uniformed West Berlin policemen and 250 armed detectives were mobilized to provide security for the Queen along the 20-mile long route through the city.

The tour took her past the barbed wire-topped wall, but there were no plans for her to stop at it. British officials said this was done to spare her any anti-Western posters such as the East Germans put up for President Kennedy's visit to the Wall in June, 1963.

From the Olympic Stadium, the Queen drove to the nearby Commonwealth cemetery, where she placed a wreath of carnations and orchids at the Stone of Remembrance.

Police estimated a crowd of about 25,000 along the route from the airport to the stadium and another 30,000 from the stadium to Charlottenburg Castle, where Brandt gave a reception and lunch.

HOLIDAY IN BERLIN

It was a holiday for Berliners, who were observing Ascension many's traditional father's day.

whose taxable income ranges up to $300 a year, couples with taxable incomes of up to $1,000, and families with taxable income of up to $1,300.

Opposition spokesmen have argued that low income groups may shun the plan even if the government subsidizes a part of the premiums, estimated at about $175 a year for a family. The government has not yet disclosed the exact premium cost.

Mr. Harris told the house he had faith that the government would amend its plan if it was found not to be working properly in the first instance. The legislation, if passed, is to go into effect June 1, 1966.

The government has rejected compulsion as contrary to Conservative philosophy. But critics of the plan, which also sets out regulations for the sale of medical insurance by private companies, say mainly the sick and the elderly will seek coverage.

The debate, which began Tuesday, was adjourned Wednesday night until next week after hearing 10 speakers.

The medical insurance debate came as the department of public welfare announced that provincial welfare payments would be increased about 15 per cent in an attempt to keep pace with the rising cost of living.

The increased cost to the province is expected to be about $1,500,000 a year. Last year the welfare bill in Ontario was $26,233,000, of which Ottawa paid 50 per cent, the province 30 per cent and municipalities 20 per cent.

For a couple with two school-age children, the changes mean that the province has allowed the family for rent will rise to $76.50 from $65 a month. This figure does not include heat.

The food - clothing budget rises to $36.30 a month from $30.50.

A welfare official said the exact cost of the changes cannot be known because of fluctuations in the number of recipients and the complexity of rules.

Welfare Minister Louis Cecile stressed the flexibility of the new regulations. There can be greater participation in welfare because the new rules are based to a greater extent on the individual, the minister said.

Former Baptist Minister Joins United Church

KINGSTON (CP)—Rev. Robert C. Plant of Deep River, Ont., a former Baptist minister in Brockville and London, Ont., was accepted as a United Church minister at the 41st annual meeting of Quinte United Church conference meeting here Wednesday.

Mr. Plant was minister of the First Baptist Church at Brockville and of Adelaide Street Baptist Church in London. Since 1959, he has been senior minister at Deep River Community Church.

Deep River is 30 miles northwest of Pembroke.

Imbert, urging that he and Caamano both step aside.

Caamano in the past had said he would step down. But Wednesday he told reporters no agreement had been reached formally on a coalition.

Bundy left the mediation task to Dr. Jose Mora, secretary-general of the Organization of American States.

Meanwhile, the OAS had voted to send in a Latin American peacekeeping force of about 2,000 troops. As they move in the United States will withdraw about 1,700 of its 21,000 troops.

The Johnson administration now is beginning to nit-pick the idea that Communists control the revolution and even seems to be making its own double-check on its information about the Communists.

The U.S. super-spy organization, the Central Intelligence Agency, has the job of checking on things like Communists in other countries and Johnson presumably relied on CIA information when he talked of Red control in the Dominican Republic.

But now the White House has in effect acknowledged the FBI is in there checking, too.

Typhoon Amy Slams Into Japan, 17 Dead

TOKYO (AP)—Typhoon Amy, accompanied by heavy rain and wind, slammed into Japan today, leaving 17 persons dead, 19 missing and 18 injured before roaring off into the northwest Pacific.

The early - season typhoon, with 75 - mile - an - hour centre winds, flooded thousands of houses and inundated an estimated 2,000 acres of rice paddies.

BOUNTY MONEY

HALIFAX (CP) —The federal bounty payment for the destruction of seals in the Maritimes in 1964 amounted to $8,175. The bounty was payable on harbor and hair seals anywhere and only on grey seals caught in the Miramichi estuary. The bounty was $10 for each adult seal and $5 for each pup killed.

Miss Gloria Nagy, Belleville telephone operator, is the new Canadian So-Ed Queen for 1965, winning the honor at the national So-Ed conference held over the May 24th weekend at Orillia. It is the second time in a row that a Belleville girl has won the honor, last year's winner being Janet McLean of Rednersville.

Gloria Nagy of Foxboro Named Miss Canada So-Ed At Orillia Conference

For the second year in a row Belleville's Young Adult organization "So-Ed" has been honored to have Miss Canada So-Ed chosen from its club. This past weekend Gloria Nagy, a 19-year-old resident of the Foxboro area came first place in a Nation-wide contest which was one segment of the 1965 National Young Adult Conference, held at the Canadian Centennial Centre at the YMCA-owned Geneva Park situated on Beautiful Lake Couchiching just north of Orillia, Ontario. Ninety-five Young Adults representing So-Ed and Social Recreational Clubs across Canada gathered for this long weekend conference consisting of workshops, social and leisurely events.

Gloria, chosen this past month to represent Belleville, competed in the contest which had representatives from Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Brandon, Toronto, St. Catharines, Sarnia, Hamilton, Peterborough, Brockville and Moncton, N.B. Eleven from the Belleville area also participated. Delegates from outside Ontario were brought in on a two thousand dollar grant from the Centennial Commission in Ottawa. The complete organization of this weekend including the travel grant and weekend was done by the National Social Education Committee of Canada a non-profit, voluntary group made up of representatives from So-Ed clubs and Young Adult clubs affiliated with the YMCA across Canada. Colin Wilcox, Rednersville road resident is National Publicity and Extension Chairman for this organization.

AUTOMATION DISCUSSED

Mr. Tom H. Proctor, recognized authority on 'Communication', who has created and presented his courses in effective speaking, sales training and business English, from the Toronto area, introduced the topic 'Cybernetics' for workshop discussion. Cybernetics is the comparison of man against machine, an increasing concern because of automation by computer and complex machines, the effects being loss of jobs or the need for re-training and most apparent, more leisure time. Problems will arise from this inevitable change and workshops on "The effect of Cybernation on my life's work", "Its effect on my leisure time" and "How can I prepare myself for the impact of Cybernation" were responded to by everyone in attendance.

From the discussion which took place, all agreed that each of us sometime in our lifetime may have to re-train ourselves either because our job may be replaced by a computer machine or the pace of technical knowledge will demand it. It was felt that people will change jobs more frequently because of a number of factors and that within the next decade a tremendous rate of automation will take place in the rural areas, more so than in the cities.

It was thought that, although the problem of Cybernation will revolutionize the industry and working force of the United States and many other countries, Canada, because of its expanse of underdeveloped natural resources and low population, will not feel the full force of automation and computerization. It was noted that the rate of present jobs available may not decrease too fast, although they may remain at the same level for years to come and that the new Canadian work force now being born may have to chose new lines of endeavour, perhaps those created by automation and computerization.

MORE LEISURE TIME

Perhaps the most important aspect of Cybernation will be more leisure time. It was felt that perhaps we will only have to be concerned with the psychological aspects of this change, which may only pertain to a small minority. The re-training, not only for the "Have" technology but a specific training on how to organize and spend leisure time was unanimous in agreement. More and more, leisure time, because of less working hours and an early retirement will make the 'hobby' a necessity for those seeking to spend those free hours. We will have to prepare our thinking and our jobs for this change not only once but perhaps as many times as automation comes about.

On the lighter side of the discussions, "Cybernation for The Nation" was one of the phrases coined at the conference. Despite a serious approach to the topic, some people plainly stated they were so fortified, that they were not interested, or they were interested but couldn't see how they would be affected or automation was inevitable and they could do nothing about it.

In Mr. Proctor's closing comments he complimented the members present for their leadership and discussion on the topic which has or will affect the Young Adults in Canada. He cautioned everyone against 'forgetting' Cybernation 'which he said "will break some day with a deafening bang". He added that "because of the relationship between computers and humans, and the programming of a computer which makes it effective, we Canadians must program ourselves to make our future life effective."

WEDDING

BARNES — BERESFORD

Rev. J. A. Dunlop officiated at the marriage ceremony in St. Andrew's-on-the-Hill Anglican Church, Belleville on Saturday, May 22 when Winnifred Pitt Beresford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Beresford, Winnipeg, Manitoba became the bride of Robert Murray Barnes, son of Mrs. R. C. Barnes of South Plainfield, New Jersey, U.S.A. and the late Mr. R. C. Barnes. Mr. Scott Bradford president of the organ and played the traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a blush pink silk organza over taffeta sheath style dress with detachable sleeves. Small appliqued lace highlighted the bodice and skirt. A shoulder-length white silk illusion veil fell from a beaddress of organza roselets. She carried a bouquet of white Hawaiian orchids.

The bride's only attendant as matron of honor was her sister-in-law Mrs. Morris M. Beresford who wore a rose lace sheath dress with three-quarter length sleeves and a band of rose colored Swiss braid. She carried a crescent shaped bouquet of white 'mums and pink carnations.

Mr. Morris M. Beresford, brother of the bride was groomsman, while Mr. Edward Beresford, nephew of the bride was the usher.

A reception was held in the Prince Edward suite in the Hotel Quinte where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a beige lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of mauve Hawaiian orchids. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a pale blue lace dress with matching accessories and a gardenia corsage.

For the wedding trip to Ottawa, the bride chose a pale gold double knit wool suit, white accessories, lavender orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes will reside at North Plainfield U.S.A.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN CLARE HOMAN

Homan – Baker

Tall standards of white gladioli and pink chrysanthemums adorned the altar in Calvary Temple, Belleville, for the wedding ceremony on May 22, of Caroline Diana Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Baker, Belleville, to John Clare Homan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Homan, Corbyville R.R. 1. Rev. Lambert MacKnight officiated at the ceremony and appropriate music was rendered by the organist Mrs. Earl Bergman who also accompanied the soloist, Rev. Earl Bergman.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor-length gown of white nylon organza over taffeta appliqued with Chantilly lace. The high bodice was enhanced with Chantilly lace and long lily-point sleeves. Her shoulder length bouffant veil flowed from a headpiece consisting of tiny white flowers dotted with seed pearls. She carried a white Bible crested with red Sweetheart roses.

Miss Linda Baker, sister of the bride as maid of honor and the bridesmaids, Miss Jane Wannamaker and Miss Wanda Donaldson were identically attired in street-length gowns of pink organza with inset waists and Chantilly lace. Each carried a bouquet of white and pink blooms centred with pink Sweetheart roses.

The little flower girl, Miss Rebecca Baker, cousin of the bride, was dressed in a short white cotton frock accentuated with embroidery, a tiny silk organza headdress studded with seed pearls, white accessories and carried a basket of pink and white blooms.

Mr. Clifford Scott, cousin of the bridegroom, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Ron Cole and Mr. Jim Bannister were the ushers.

A reception was held at Johnny's Restaurant where the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and highlighted with the bridal bouquets. The bride's mother received the guests dressed in a three-piece pink suit with white accessories and a corsage of white baby 'mums. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a two-piece blue lace over taffeta sheath dress with white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls the bride chose a navy blue dress trimmed with white lace at the neck, short quarter length sleeves, white accessories and a corsage of pink and white baby 'mums.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at three miscellaneous showers, including one at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Ellis with Miss Wanda Ellis and Mrs. Stanley Platt as co-hostesses; at the home of Mrs. Nora Elliott with co-hostess Mrs. Leta Young; at the home of Mrs. John Daley with Miss Beverley Wicket, Miss Wanda Donaldson as co-hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Homan will reside at Corbyville R.R. 1 .

Tense, Alert Every Time Act Put On

CALGARY (CP) — Mrs. Donald Ray of Calgary didn't say a word when the knife went through her wrist, says her husband proudly.

"Twelve years ago the Australian-born Mr. and Mrs. Ray added a bayonet - throwing act to their trick repertoire and riding repertoire.

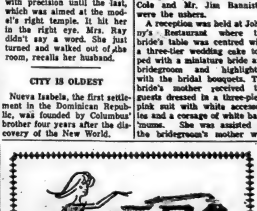
Mrs. Ray, who says she is lean and alert each time she appears on stage as the "target," recalls an incident in Toronto.

"We were performing at a safety exposition. It was the last act, where Don is blindfolded and I am hidden behind a screen of papers.

"Just as he threw, I moved my arm, thinking it was out of position.

The knife went through her wrist, but "I kept it hidden and took my bows. When Don realized what had happened, he was far more upset than I."

USED MANNEQUIN



Ray practised for two years with a wax mannequin before using his wife in the act, she says.

"He didn't let me watch the practice sessions. He carved the wax models up pretty badly."

The first time his wife watched, he threw each knife with precision until the last, when with one eye on his wife's right temple. It hit her in the right eye. Mrs. Ray didn't say a word. She just turned and walked out of the room, recalls her husband.

Two Ontario Members Will Attend

TORONTO (CP)—Two representatives from Ontario will attend the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Hospital Auxiliaries May 29 to 28 in Vancouver, it was announced Wednesday.

They are: Mrs. William Smolkin of Perth, president of the Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario and Nettye E. Boyle of St. Catharines, honorary officer of the provincial group.

Mrs. E. P. Richardson of Calgary, president of the national Association, will preside. Business sessions will cover reports of the 140,000 volunteers in Canada, organized in some 600 women's hospital auxiliaries, said an association statement.

Miss Luane Waite B. A., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Waite, 415 Coleman Street, Belleville, who received her Bachelor of Physical and Health Education degree at the convocation at Queen's University on Saturday, May 22. Miss Waite, who graduated from Quinte Secondary School in 1961, will teach at Barton Secondary School in Hamilton in the fall.

A FLAVOR that can't be copied

Maybe you're not fussy about flavor in a ginger ale. But Wilson's are. That's why Wilson's Ginger Ale tastes so good. Skilful blending gives Wilson's the right balance of the Jamaica ginger flavor and sparkling carbonation. Don't let anyone tell you all ginger ales taste the same. Try Wilson's and discover the difference.

Dear Susanna: A long time ago I can remember my mother using a sugar recipe on crocheted doilies and similar articles to make them as stiff as well trained soldiers standing at attention. They were so attractive that I would be thrilled if you could advise me what procedure to follow. — Mrs. J. Gaboerie.

Sorry, Joan, but I only have a hazy recollection of that recipe myself. In fact we've been searching unsuccessfully for more complete information along this line.

As a substitute there is a rather good method using gelatin — although I'm afraid the articles only come out looking about as stiff as raw recruits!

Soak two teaspoons of gelatin in half a cup of cold water. Add two cups of boiling water and stir until dissolved. Dilute with a pint of lukewarm water. After you have washed and thoroughly rinsed the crocheted pieces, dip them into the gelatin solution. Squeeze out as much moisture as possible, roll them in a bath-towel 'til almost dry, and iron them at once without sprinkling. Perks them up rather well don't you think? — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: I had a chicken ready to stuff and roast when I discovered that brown bread was all I had in the house. I used it anyway and was delighted with the family's pleased response to something new in dressing. —"Improviser."

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.)

SAUTED CHICKEN ROLLS

This dish was designed for Ruth boned-out squab or Cornish game hens, but if I wait for those to land on my kitchen counter I'll be as old as Methuselah.

So I called on common sense for common folk and bought some chicken breasts which the butcher boned out for me.

A quick adaptation of the dish: A barley pilaf (something like a Barley and Mushroom Casserole I gave you here in 1959) in which are buried sautied chicken rolls, subtly flavored, and with satisfying texture and gratifying cost.

I doubt that any of your guests will have tasted this before and I enjoy telling you about it.

Dinner Menu by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Beef and Kidney Pie; Spinach Casserole (see Yesterday); Tomato Jelly Salads on Lettuce with Cottage Cheese Dressing; Baked Apples; Top Milk; Coffee.

SUNDAY
(Guests)

Buried Treasure Pilaf (see Thursday); Broccoli with Hollandaise; Waldorf Salad; Tray of Assorted Fresh Fruits; Assorted Cheeses: Danish Camembert, Roquefort, Old Cheddar, Gruyere; Whole Wheat Crisps; Tea.

BURIED TREASURE PILAF
(to serve about 5 or 6):

6 or 7 whole chicken legs or single breasts (a little over 2 lbs.), 3½ cups chicken broth (see below), 6 tablespoons butter, 1 cup raw pearl (pot) barley, 1 onion, or ¼ Spanish onion, chopped, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ lb. mushrooms, scrubbed and sliced.

Whether you buy 2 lbs. chicken breasts or legs, ask the butcher to carefully bone them out and put the bones back in your package. Or do it yourself.

Put the bones on to cook in cold water — about 3½ cups — and simmer until any meat on them will fall off easily. Drain. Measure broth. You need 3½ cups. If you do not have that much add hot water. (I salvaged 1 cup meat from my boiled bones and used it for sandwiches.)

In a heavy pot or frying pan melt 3 tablespoons of the butter, add the raw barley, the chopped onion and salt and cook gently until barley soaks up butter but is not one bit brown. Now add 2 cups of the chicken broth and simmer, covered, until all water is absorbed and barley is nearly tender — about 1½ hours.

Meanwhile shape your chicken breasts or legs into rolls by fastening them with strong toothpicks or short skewers. Melt remaining 3 tablespoons butter in frying pan and brown the chicken rolls in it.

Turn half of the barley mixture into a large casserole. Cover with half of the prepared mushrooms. Cover those with your sautied chicken rolls from which you have removed skewers or toothpicks. Cover those with remaining barley mixture. Cover with remaining prepared mushrooms, but push them down into the barley. Rinse out frying pan in which you have browned the chicken rolls with the remaining 1½ cups chicken broth and pour over all. Cover with foil (or your casserole's own lid) and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 2 hours.

NOTES:

1) If you prepare this dish in advance cool ingredients before you assemble them, then when casserole is complete, chill it quickly until just before baking time. 2) This is a perfect hot buffet item for the chicken is so tender it may be eaten with a fork.

Women Make Money, Take Off Weight

SARANAC, Mich. (AP)— Two Michigan housewives have found an unexpected reward in a new business venture. They're not only making money with their garbage truck, they're losing weight.

Mrs. Iva Bennett, 30, and her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Chase, 42, have been operating a garbage and rubbish pickup service in this southwest Michigan town of 1,100 since last fall.

When they started Mrs. Chase weighed 176 pounds.

"Now I'm down to 139 and Iva went from 185 in September to 175 now," said Mrs. Chase.

Three years ago Mrs. Chase and her husband, Harold, took over Charles Miller's refuse route while he was in hospital.

"We told him that if the time ever came when he wanted to get rid of it, we'd take it," says Mrs. Chase. Chase. The time came.

The project includes yard-work, hauling sand and gravel, moving, housecleaning — what have you.

In their work week, which recently has become a seven-day schedule, the sisters put about 40 miles a day on the truck. They average hauling three loads a day to the Saranac dump.

ROTTING RELIC

JORDANS, England (CP) — The Mayhew Barn, reputedly built of timber from the Mayflower and a Buckinghamshire tourist attraction, is in danger of collapsing from the ravages of woodworm. Local Quakers have set up a fund to save the barn and a nearby historic meeting house.

Women to Play Important Part in Expo '67 Success

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Women will play an important part in the success of Expo '67 says Mrs. Leslie Stuart, co-ordinator of women's associations for the world's fair.

"In the end the woman will decide whether or not the family comes to the exhibition here in 1967. It is usually the wife who decides where the family will vacation, and this is why we want women to know what is planned for them and for children."

Sitting behind her desk in Place Ville Marie, the dark-haired mother of three explained that her job is to interest Canadian women in Expo, to encourage them to attend and to suggest ways in which they may participate.

And through the help of Canadian women's organizations she wants to ensure that visitors from abroad learn something about Canada during their stay.

"We should all help to create a hospitable atmosphere so that people from other countries will think of Canada as a friendly country. We are hoping that Canadian women will take part in an international hospitality program to entertain guests from foreign countries in their homes."

This would not mean housing the visitors, but simply inviting them to spend an evening in a private home to get an idea of North American family life.

ARRANGE PARTIES

Mrs. Stuart plans to work with women's club executives to arrange dinner parties and other home entertainment for visitors. She would also like to see something similar in other parts of the country, since women coming to Canada for Expo are likely to travel elsewhere as well.

All women's organizations planning conventions within 500 miles of Montreal at the time of the fair will be invited by Mrs. Stuart to include a visit to Expo in their program. And she will also appeal to women accompanying their husbands to conventions in the area.

As for the exhibition itself, Mrs. Stuart says women with whom she has spoken have stressed the need for a women's hospitality centre on the grounds. She is recommending this to Expo officials.

"You could meet Aunt Bessie there instead of under the clock, as the centre would be available to all women visiting Expo," she says, adding that women's groups could hold luncheons and teas in the centre.

A national women's day, with outstanding women from other countries delivering addresses, is another of Mrs. Stuart's objectives. And she would like to honor individual organizations with their own days at which Montreal branches would invite sister clubs to attend.

Mrs. Stuart says the fair will also cater to children. There will be nurseries on the site and thought is being given to children's activity programs.

OFFER TO WORK

Several women's groups have already offered their services for Expo. One group has offered its members as interpreters in six languages besides English and French. Women's organizations will also be asked to help senior citizens and handicapped groups to tour the fair.

Baking and handicraft contests with winners chosen in each province, and a contest to choose a typical Canadian menu for the fair's opening, And Mrs. Stuart is giving thought to the proposal of some women's groups that there be a centennial project at Expo.

Specially designed for women is the Art of Living pavilion which will house fashions, furniture and cosmetics displays. And the fair officials hope some of the international pavilions, such as those from France, Spain and Italy, will bring their top fashions and models for shows.

Empress of Iran Tired After Busy Toronto Day

By ROSEMARY SPEIRS

TORONTO (CP) — The Empress of Iran appeared a bit tired Wednesday during the final engagement of an eight-day state visit to Canada.

While the shah toured Fright-air Products of Canada and de Havilland Aircraft of Canada in suburban Downsview, the 27-year-old Empress visited Toronto's new city hall, the hospital for Sick Children and the Royal Ontario Museum.

Empress Farah was greeted by Mayor Philip Givens and Mrs. Givens and members of city council. Mr. Givens' daughter Eleanor, 12, presented her with a bouquet of yellow tulips that made a splash of color against her green and white outfit.

She wore a white suit and a forest green blouse, shoes and purse and a close-fitting green turban on her dark hair.

Mayor Givens presented the empress with a small gold pin in the shape of a maple leaf.

Student nurses in blue and white uniforms lined the stairway of the hospital as the empress climbed the steps passing a sign which read: "The Hospital for Sick Children urgently needs $13,900,000 in public donations."

STOPPED OFTEN

Quiet-voiced and smiling she stopped often to talk to patients who gazed at her from their rooms.

As she walked along the infant medical ward, an Iranian doctor visiting the hospital where he once worked for two years, stepped forward and spoke to her in Iranian.

Dr. M. Farzad said he told the empress: "I know you are active in welfare work in Iran. I hope you will build a beautiful hospital for infants there such as this one."

As she was leaving the hospital the empress was presented with a pair of toy seals made in Montreal for her children, Crown Prince Reza, 5, and Princess Farahnaz, 3.

THIS FAIRYLAND OF CLAY

"All the arts which refine and elevate human life being connected with one another, the improvement of anyone of them leads in the end to the improvement of all . . . " — Sir George Birdwood.

Princess Badoura! Do you remember her?

The fine associated with the famous Arabian Nights stories.

These stories you will recall, "are of the Sultan Shahriar, the greatest monogramist in all history.

Having been deceived by his first wife he had her put to death and then proceeded to avenge himself on a thousand others, the idea being that he married one wife every day and on the next morning became a widower.

His intentions proceeded along these lines until a prospective victim, Scheherazade comes along.

Through her enchanting powers of narrative she was able to outlive the Sultan. She being witty, courageous and resourceful tells a story or collection of stories for a thousand and One Nights, always interrupting when the interest of each story was at its height thus daily postponing her execution.

In the end he bestows on her his "free pardon". Badoura is merely the character around which the stories are woven by Scheherazade. She is a woman of beauty and brain who rules a Kingdom during her husband's absence by impersonating him."

What can such a story possibly have to do with the Royal Doulton Sesquicentennial display now in Belleville (one of the dozen Canadian cities honored) at Stroud's Gift Shop?

The answer is: In this showing is included, in the field of ceramic sculpture a figure of Princess Badoura created by a Royal Doulton artist with unrivalled artistry, that takes one immediately into a world of song and story by the very magic of such clay wizardry.

"One looks, in fact, into a well of color," we are told, "for the artist who created it not only had to have each detail pertaining to form and story perfect, but the colors had to be fired separately. Since some colors are fired at a higher temperature than others, the artist must know, of course, which colors come first.

"This represents endless skill and patience. You will note for example, that the figure shows Princess Badoura riding on a State Elephant on the way to her wedding feast. The elephant, as much of it as you can see, (the head and the feet), is gray.

"The lady herself is dressed in pink and the mahout (the driver) in cobalt blue. The drapings on the elephant are mainly rich red and heavily traced in gold. The under-draping is emerald green with tiny floral gold tracings. There is a dragon motif on the outer draping and this is in green on a pale blue background. The ribbons are pink and the bowdah is heavily traced in gold on a lacquer background."

One will observe quite perfect specimens of the animal kingdom. "The companion piece of the figure of the tiger there," it is further explained, "is a lion, now in possession of one who is fond of going on safaris in Africa and who has captured many lions. He declares the model he owns is a piece of perfection even to the smallest muscle."

And here is what Lord Mackintosh of Halifax, an ardent collector of that enchanting hobby of collecting Toby jugs (best-known of all jugs in human form, though who first designed it, is not known, fascinatingly executed by Royal Doulton artists) says:

"As a collector I have had more fun with Toby jugs than anything else, and I think "fun" is the operative word. I believe that the Toby jug owes its universal appeal for over two centuries to the fact that it seems to sum up all that is meant by English humor.

"One cannot imagine any other nation having produced the Toby jug. It is one with our great English comic characters from Falstaff to Pickwick. A Toby jug has a solid sensible, humorous ring about it. It fits into any room of any period: it is always just right. It suggests good cheer and good company and is as English as the parish church, the village inn, and cricket on the green."

It is surely a world of its own: this bewitching fairyland of clay.

Urban Wives To Be Aided By Institute

LONDON (CP) — The Women's Institute, a society founded in Canada and exported to Britain as a rural mutual-help club, has decided to extend a friendly hand to urban housewives in Britain.

The National Federation of Women's Institutes, voted Wednesday for a constitutional change permitting formation of WI branches in communities of more than 4,000 population, heretofore the upper limit of WI operating territory.

Some members argued that letting in townswomen and suburbanites would change the movement's character. The WI, brought here from Canada in 1915, has about 300,000 members in Britain but net enrollment has declined 25,000 in a decade.

The decision to go into the towns could lead to friction with a counterpart urban group the National Union of Townswomen's Guilds. Townswomen chief executive Marjorie Erskine-Wyse, forgetting gender for a moment, commented that there had always been "a gentleman's agreement" with the WI that the institute would stay out of towns.

The guilds would react to the WI decision by "recruiting with even greater vigor," the Townswoman said.

What Women Are Doing

Holloway Street U.C.W.

Mrs. Ross Taylor, President

The United Church Women is a new organization in the United Church, formed by the amalgamation of the former Women's Missionary Society and the Women's Auxiliary. The purpose is "to unite all women of the congregation for the total mission of the church and to provide a medium through which they may express their loyalty and devotion to Jesus Christ in Christian witness, study, fellowship and service.

The membership is divided into units with leaders and officers in each unit who hold monthly meetings as well as the general monthly meetings. Programs are planned to include the different committees on citizenship and social action, community friendship and visitation, Christian education, home and overseas missions, stewardship and recruiting and the study book which this year is based on Brazil and Trinidad.

The members raise money through their envelope givings, organizing teas and bazaars and catering. This money is used to pay the allocation to the United Church and to make donations to the Fred Victor Mission, the Victor Home for Girls in Toronto and Quin-Mo-Lac Camp on Moira Lake and many others. This year the church's new Christian Education building was completed and a large sum of money has been spent to furnish the building.

Good used clothing is collected by the supply secretary and sent to the depot in Toronto where it is sorted and sent to Overseas Relief Depots, Portage La Prairie, Manitoba, and the Alderville Indian Reserve, Roseneath. Old nylon stockings are also collected and shipped to Korea where the women unravel the threads onto empty tin cans. These threads are woven on large hand looms into fabric from which they make many items.

The flower convener on each unit looks after the sick and shut-ins and at Christmas time the elderly people are remembered.

Members volunteer to work at the local cancer clinic and lunch has been provided for the CNIB meetings.

The UCW has a representative on the VON committee. This year the VON annual tea was held in Holloway Street Christian Education Building.

This is the 70th in a series about women's organizations in Belleville and their activities.

Club Activities

RAWDON HI-C GROUP

RAWDON — On Wednesday evening, May 19, Rawdon Circuit Hi-C group under the leadership of president Lyle Couch held ball practice at Wellman's Public School grounds. Later they gathered in Wellmans Church kitchen where a short business meeting was held.

Kenneth McConnell was elected Captain of the ball team with Fred McAdam assistant.

Plans were made to close the activities in June with a box social. The group in charge secured refreshments.

SPONSOR HOOTENANNY

The Rawdon Hi-C group sponsored a Hootenany recently in Stirling Community Hall with several other groups invited. The guest entertainer was folk singer Gordon Sly of Collins Bay. Musical dance records were under the direction of Dave Charles of Radio Station CJBQ.

ATTEND CONFERENCE

Nancy David and Paul Bailey represented Rawdon Hi-C Group at the sixth annual conference on Christian Vocation held at Queen's University, Kingston on a recent weekend. The expenses for this venture were shared by the UCW, the A.O.T.S. and the Hi-C group of Rawdon Circuit.

University Women's Club Elects Officers

An active and successful year was reported at the May meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and District. A detailed report on the 20th annual Spring Fair was presented by its convener, Mrs. R. S. Burtt.

After hearing the results of the centenary project questionnaire, the membership decided that the centenary project of the Belleville club would take the form of a scholarship.

Members approved donations of $50 to the Elizabeth Fry Society; $50 to the CFUW Relief Fund; $50 to CUSO; $50 to the Winnifred Cullis Fund; $50 to the CFUW Centenary Book project; $50 to Miss Ashun, a Ghanian student, for post-graduate work; and $25 to the Belleville Ballet Guild to assist in the initiation of their scholarship fund.

For the year 1965-66 Mrs. J. Ormsby will be chairman of the reading group, and Mrs. R. S. Burtt and Mrs. D. T. Thompson will co-convene the bridge group.

After the general meeting the annual meeting was held. The adoption of the annual reports of the executive members took place.

The following members were elected to serve on the executive for the coming year: past president, Mrs. J. E. Pugh; president, Mrs. R. E. Barrett; vice president, Mrs. R. G. Walsh; recording secretary, Mrs. E. Clark; treasurer, Mrs. R. W. Cass; Federation representative, Miss K. Grout; corresponding secretary, Miss M. Gibson; membership convener, Mrs. B. C. Smith; committee, Mrs. B. J. A. Foxton, Mrs. F. H. McCoil, Mrs. H. T. Turley; program convener, Mrs. J. H. Forrester; co-convener, Mrs. J. R. Connell; publicity, Mrs. H. S. Okke; hospitality convener, Mrs. D. W. Dibben; committee, Mrs. T. J. Lally, Mrs. H. W. S. Lebel, Mrs. F. W. Pearce; members-at-large, Mrs. R. K. Jeffrey, Mrs. R. N. McNicol. The new auditor for next year will be Mr. Robert McIntyre.

Following the meeting, entertainment by Mrs. F. H. Bellstedt and Mrs. R. K. Patterson provided a light and amusing note and was much enjoyed by those present.

Local Group Visits Homes Of Diplomats

MARMORA — The fifth annual House and Garden Tour in Ottawa sponsored by the Laurentian Chapter I.O.D.E. was attended by 37 ladies from Marmora by way of chartered bus on Thursday morning. They were accompanied by Mrs. Rod Webb, Norwood and Mrs. C. J. Meiklejohn, Regent of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E.

On arrival in Ottawa, lunch was served by De Laurentian Chapter in St. Barnabas Church on McKay Avenue. This church known as the Governor-General's Church, was donated by a Scotsman, John McKay, in 1864, on the condition that there never be pew rent charged, or the land mortgaged. Crests of every Canadian Governor-General adorn the walls, the first one being that of Governor-General Monk. There is a special seat in the church for occupancy by the Governor-General.

Special feature of the tour was a tour through the houses of foreign Ambassadors to Canada. Modelled in Tudor style, the residence of the Ambassador of Turkey and Mrs. Carim was purchased by the Turkish Government in 1954. The reception room is beautifully decorated with Louis XVI furniture, with chippendale furniture in the dining room, where the large table was laid for a formal dinner with Turkish silver.

The residence of the Ambassador of Belgium and Baroness Daufresne de la Chevalerie displays furnishings from the 18th and 19th century with Flemish and Napoleon III furniture predominately. The Baroness is a renowned artist and paints in oils on aluminum. Guests were privileged to visit her studies and view some of her works.

Enamel examples of German porcelain and pictures by modern German painters were contained in the home of the Ambassador of Germany and Mrs. Oppler. Also tourned were the homes of Mrs. Duncan K. MacTavish, Mrs. Louis C. Assaly and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rose. Each home was different in decor with magnificent antique furnishings.

Mr. Rod Webb, local member of Parliament entertained the group to afternoon tea in the Parliament Building, and escorted them to points of interest.

U.C.W. Meetings

PLAINFIELD U.C.W.

PLAINFIELD — Mrs. H. Palmer opened her home for the May meeting of the U.C.W., with an attendance of 18.

The president, Mrs. C. Hall, opened the meeting. An invitation was extended from Camiffton U.C.W., to attend an open meeting, in their church parlors, in June.

It was agreed that Reverend G. Southall conduct a Bible study on 'God and His Purpose," at the regular U.C.W. meetings. Sending a delegate to the school for Leaders in August, was discussed. Mrs. A. Hall, Mrs. H. Palmer and Mrs. G. Southall were appointed to pack the bales of new and used clothing, for overseas relief, this month. It was agreed that each member make a cash donation, in place of the annual fall tea and bazaar.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. B. Lipsfcot, assisted by Mrs. G. Kerr. The Bible Study, and the mission study on "Trinidad" was conducted by Mrs. H. Harrison, assisted by Mrs. A. Gibson and Mrs. G. Southall.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Counsel Argues MacMillans Did Not Start Disorderly Fluctuation in Windfall

TORONTO (CP) — A royal commission analysis of the phenomenal rise and fall of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. shares is expected to be completed by Aug. 1.

The report will be made by Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly, whose one - man royal commission wound up hearings Wednesday after 13 weeks and more than 1,000,000 words of testimony.

The commission was appointed last August to try to fathom the reason for the rise of Windfall shares to $5.60 from 36 cents a share and then its collapse to 80 cents on the Toronto Stock Exchange last July.

Joseph Sedgwick, counsel for George MacMillan and his wife Viola, told the commission Wednesday in his summation that the MacMillans had in no way instigated the disorderly fluctuation of Windfall shares and had, in fact, tried to prevent it.

The MacMillans were the key figures in the hearing. Mr. MacMillan, president of Windfall and Viola MacMillan of Canada's best known mining figures was the promoter-financier of the company.

The stock soared after the company acquired a property in the Timmins area for $100,000 and 250,000 shares of stock. It was located 4½ miles from a $2,000,000,000 copper - silver-zinc discovery by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co.

BLAMES RICHARDSONS

Mr. Sedgwick charged that the wild trading might have been prevented if the Toronto investment firm of T. A. Richardson and Co. had not short-circuited an attempt to maintain an orderly market by Mrs. MacMillan.

He reiterated earlier testimony that Mrs. MacMillan had delivered 100,000 shares before the opening of trading on the exchange July 6 to T. A. Richardson because the brokerage house said the shares were needed to fill a strong surge of buy orders from Northern Ontario.

"That attempt failed," Mr. Sedgwick said. "It might have succeeded if all that stock had been used to fill the opening orders, but in fact some 38,000 of those shares were short-circuited to Richardson partners or traders."

The shares rose to $1.95 at the close from $1.01 at the opening July 6 when trading in the stock totalled 1,570,700 shares.

The commission was told that Mrs. MacMillan had asked John R. Kimber, chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission, to investigate the purchases of Windfall shares by the T. A. Richardson firm, but was subsequently told there was nothing to substantiate the allegation.

'ONE WONDERS

"One wonders what kind of investigation was conducted and what statements the T. A. Richardson officers made to the Ontario Securities Commission, because it is now abundantly clear that Mrs. MacMillan's suspicions were very well-founded," Mr. Sedgwick said.

Mr. Sedgwick said the stock exchange should not have allowed the Windfall shares to open at $1.01 on July 6, up 45 cents from the previous close.

"Things, I think, would have been different if, on that day—July 6 — the exchange had stopped trading in Windfall until the situation had been examined and the underwriters consulted."

Following the Texas Gulf Sulphur ore find, coupled with the MacMillans' own reputation, the exchange decision to open Windfall at $1.01 was like "pouring gasoline on dry tinder," he said.

He said the fact that Windfall did not disclose an ore body on its property does not reflect on Mr. MacMillan.

"Had it (the property) disclosed an ore body he would have been a hero. That it did not disclose such an ore body does not make him a scoundrel or a reprobate. It merely makes him, for the moment, unlucky."

Martin Step Ahead of Que. In Current Foreign Problem

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

External Affairs Minister Martin, employing some nimble footwork, is keeping one step ahead of Quebec in his current "domestic" foreign problem.

The problem has to do with Quebec's desire to negotiate and enter into educational and cultural agreements with France.

The federal government insists that it alone can sign international treaties and that any Quebec - Paris agreements are not binding in international law unless sanctioned by Ottawa.

This ticklish three-way imbroglio began last year when negotiations opened on an educational exchange program between Quebec and France. The Quebec-Paris agreement and an Ottawa-Paris exchange of notes approving it were signed simultaneously in Paris and Ottawa Feb. 27 this year.

FEDERAL SANCTION

Given Ottawa's claim to be the sole treaty-signing authority, it is important that Mr. Martin be able to say that he had held consultations with French authorities before Quebec has entered detailed negotiations with Paris. This gives the negotiations an aura of federal sanction in advance.

So far, Mr. Martin has been successful in having prior consultations with the French authorities.

In the case of the education agreement, Mr. Martin discussed the matter with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and other French authorities some months before negotiations opened.

Quebec now wants a cultural agreement with France and earlier this month Mr. Martin had discussions in Paris on this point—before the arrival there of Quebec Cultural Affairs Minister Pierre Laporte.

MASTER AGREEMENT

Jean Basdevant, general director of cultural affairs for the French foreign ministry, met Mr. Martin in Ottawa Tuesday before going on to Quebec City.

The Canadian minister, however, wants something better than this perpetual track meet with Quebec.

That is why he discussed with Mr. Basdevant a general or master agreement between Canada and France under which the provinces could negotiate agreements with Paris in fields where they hold jurisdiction.

Officials say such an agreement would lead to eliminate the bickering between Ottawa and Quebec which arises every time the province wants a new accord with France.

Cross-Canada Survey

Universities Struggle To Hold Line on Fees

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian universities, faced with costs coupled in many directions, are struggling to keep the lid clamped down on students' fees. Most of them expect to get through the 1965-66 academic year with their present rates.

Some of those boosting fees have been faced with student demonstrations on a scale unprecedented in Canada over this issue. Elsewhere, provincial government funds were rushed to the rescue, notably in staving off increases at most of Ontario's 17 institutions.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that more than half of Canada's 41 universities will hold the line for the coming year (most of them had increased fees within the last two years.) A few remain in doubt, chiefly in British Columbia pending a July announcement of government grants.

The boosts are most prevalent in the provinces, where all the larger institutions are raising rates to near-top levels for Canada. The student demonstrations were most clamorous there, too.

QUEBEC DIVIDED

The majority of Quebec universities plan to get by on this year's charges including Université de Montréal, Canada's biggest. But another big one, McGill, has announced increases averaging $100 though it promises a recount of its financial resources in the face of strong student protests.

A $17,000,000 increase in the Ontario government's grant toward operating expenses of university kept most of them in that province from moving fees up. Saskatchewan also came through with enough aid for the purpose.

Neighboring Manitoba's only institution, University of Manitoba, had a one-day student strike and march on the legislature when it announced a $75 across-the-board boost in February. U. of M.'s fees remain among the country's lowest.

Manitoba students claimed the university should refrain from increases until the federal government gets the final report on the Bladen royal commission on the financing of higher education, a view that impelled the University of Alberta to hold its general rates unchanged. However, Alberta boosted some miscellaneous extra courses including an additional $85 for post-graduate students.

Around the country, the new range in tuition fees between various institutions is wide. It goes from the University of Saskatchewan's $265-$285 in arts (chemical engineering $340-405) to McGill's $635 (engineering $640).

In between are such figures as Dalhousie and St. Mary's in Halifax and University of New Brunswick at Fredericton with $400 apiece for arts and $500, $400 and $600-$630 for engineering; Laval at Quebec with $300 and $500; University of Toronto, $330 and $700; University of Manitoba, $375 and $475; University of Alberta, $300 and $400, and University of British Columbia, $401 and $461.

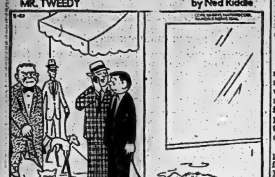
COSTS SOARING

The CP survey showed costs soaring in a multitude of ways. A common factor was staff and faculty salary levels. At the University of British Columbia, for instance, faculty pay increased an average $813 last year and is going up $1,300 this year.

Faculty size also is increasing in relation to student body. Waterloo Lutheran in Ontario is increasing the faculty by 25 per cent this year while student enrolment remains unchanged—a major element in causing the university to break that province's hold-the-line ranks with a general $70 increase.

Other factors include new buildings, higher maintenance costs and leaping laboratory expenses as research equipment becomes more sophisticated.

A complaint here and there is of rigidity in the federal grant formula of $2 per head of provincial population. The grant makes up a substantial part of university revenue. An average figure might be around 12 per cent of operating costs, though in some cases it rises considerably higher. However, university enrolment generally is climbing more steeply than provincial population.



During an anti-increase demonstration by students in March, Premier Stanfield of Nova Scotia said students from outside that province are putting the universities in the red and limited admissions on their number. He said non-Nova Scotians make up 35 per cent of the student body in a normal year, student fees cover between 25 and 30 per cent of operating costs.

The 1965-66 fees are getting their stiffest boost in Nova Scotia, with St. Francis Xavier at Antigonish boosting them between $76 and $115. Room and board at St. FX also is going up $82. The province's largest university, Dalhousie, is raising tuition $75-$100 and accommodation $13-$25.

University of New Brunswick and Mount Allison, at Sackville, N.B., are putting up fees, respectively $35-$6 and $75 for tuition and $25 apiece for room and board.

In the two smaller Atlantic provinces, there are no increases at St. Dunstan's, Charlottetown, and Memorial, in St. John's, Nfld. The Newfoundland government is embarking this year on a $2,000,000 extension at

Vietnamese Disfigured By Wounds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of South Vietnamese are so badly disfigured by gunshot wounds and burns that they never will be able to lead useful lives, says an American plastic surgeon who recently returned from the Southeast Asian country.

Only four South Vietnamese plastic surgeons are available for 14,000,000 people, says Dr. Richard B. Stark, chief of plastic surgery at St. Luke's Hospital, New York.

Stark returned recently from Saigon after spending a month training and assisting the four South Vietnamese plastic surgeons who face, he said, a staggering task of treating casualty cases that includes civilians and soldiers. Stark was an emissary of MEDICO, a non-governmental medical group that provides aid in underprivileged areas of the world.

Reach $6 Billion

U.S. Farm Exports Setting New Heights

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — States exports of farm products are riding high, and rising.

Sales abroad in the period ended last June 30 were worth a record $6,400,000,000, including $1,300,000,000 as food for peace and other foreign assistance.

That represented 25 cents of every dollar earned from exports, compared with a record low of 18 per cent in 1953, and the prospects for this year are even better, farm officials say.

"The one consistent element in all the various projections of U.S. farm exports made over the last several years is the tendency to underestimate future export levels," says Lester R. Brown, agriculture department economist.

The U.S. is banking on further liberalization in world trade through the tariff-cutting talks at Geneva to speed export expansion.

But even without such help, the record shows, progress has been impressive, both in aid markets and to countries able to pay cash. Exports equal the combined sales of Canada, Australia and Argentina and shipments under the food-for-peace plan alone are greater than by any other country.

Wheat now is the leading item, with Japan the biggest customer at a rate of more than 2,400,000 tons in recent years. This is expected to exceed 3,000,000 tons of American wheat—Canada is the leading competitor—by 1970.

Brazil is taking 3,000,000 tons a year—that's about 110,200,000 bushels—with half as aid and half commercial. India, Pakistan and Egypt are other major aid recipients and customers.

The U.S. has moved into China's former position as the world's third-largest rice exporter and stands close to Burma and Thailand. Exports in 1963-64 at 1,500,000 tons nearly doubled the average in the 1950s. Most goes to Asia.

Feed grain sales, being carefully cultivated in Europe and elsewhere, are three times the pace of the 1950s.

U.S. soybeans, worth $500,000,000 in exports last year, dominate the world market with the decline of China as a competitor. It is only a matter of time until soybeans reach the $1,000,000,000-level, officials say.

Cotton and tobacco face stiffer competition and may only hold their own.

But livestock products, once regarded as a dead in U.S. exports, were worth $800,000 last year and may continue as Europe, Japan and other countries continue to eat higher off the hog.

Restrictions by the European Common Market on frozen poultry, starting a little tariff war, curbed sharp export expansion but other markets are taking up the slack.

Japan was the leading buyer of U.S. farm goods in 1964 at a record $742,000,000 worth and there is confidence that if trends continue, Japan in a few years will be the first $1,000,000,000 farm customer on the U.S. books.

DRUNKS DROPPING OFF

LONDON (Reuters) — Fewer Britons are getting drunk—but the drop in drunkenness among young people may be due to more widespread drug-taking, says a report published here, Thursday. The report was published by a private, inter-denominational body, the Christian Economic and Social Research Foundation.

Britons Heavy Gamblers Says Church Report

LONDON (CP)—Betting Britons spent an estimated $365,000,000 ($2,715,000,000) on organized gambling in 1964 and the odds are the national wheel of fortune is spinning even faster this year.

This is the conclusion of the Churches' Council on Gambling which issued its annual report today. The Interdenominational council is the only organization in Britain that keeps track of gambling statistics.

The council's figures, based on educated guesses because bookmakers never publish their profits, show that their annual turnover in gambling has mounted steadily since the 1960 figure of $280,000,000 when off-track betting shops were legalized.

In an analysis of the social and personal consequences of gambling, the report says British is "swiftly evolving from a nation of small-time punters to a nation of compulsive gamblers."

Britons must soon decide, says the report, whether they want their way of life to become a continuous bingo session or whether they want to impose limits on the "fever."

All told, the gambling outlay amounted to about four per cent of the country's total spending on all goods and services. Britons spend almost as much on games of chance as they did on alcohol.

FAREWELL TO SERVICE is marked in handclasp between retired deputy-chief J. Clair Hayes (left) and Chief Constable J. B. McLauchlan at last night's banquet.

Former Deputy Police Chief, J. Clair Hayes, Honored by Association, Given Chair

Belleville's police force last night saluted the service of a man who has seen almost as many years service as his department had badges.

Honored guest at a city Police Association banquet and dance was deputy chief J. Clair Hayes.

Recently retired from the department, the deputy chief was nonetheless customarily hailed for his service by the men he had commanded in more than 31 years of police work.

To mark the occasion, the department turned out at the ANAF club with their former second-in-command as honored guest.

After a sumptuous turkey supper, prepared by the women's auxiliary of the Police Association, he was presented with an armchair and engraved silver tray.

The deputy, now in active retirement as one of the few Justices of the Peace, whose writ runs right across Ontario, became a police officer in days when law enforcement was still a matter of individual preference.

COMMUNICATIONS BIG KEY

"Communications has been the key to a great big change in police work, he says.

"Police work was much more difficult 31 years ago," he said. The introduction of radio and better communications have helped to step up police work."

His first introduction to police-ing came with the appointment himself as police chief of Tweed. However, his duties were far outside the municipal boundaries — far enough as to make his post a reflection of history of law enforcement.

"I did all the traffic work from Roslin to Kaladar on highway 37 and 7 and Highway 41 north to Denbigh," he recalled.

But his commission covered more than that.

"My job in the area was general law enforcement," he said.

"I covered the north end of three counties — Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac. My beat along that line stretched about 70 miles."

And he had little help to call upon in the prosecution of the law over such an area.

"In those days there weren't any provincial police stationed in the place except at Belleville and—Shannon Lake," recalled deputy chief Hayes.

In 1944 he was appointed to the Belleville police with the rank of inspector. The department at that time numbered a total of 14 men — all ranks.

When he recently retired the situation was numerically reversed. The city counted 41 men all ranks in the department — plus a modern organization including such things as traffic-safety officers, a full-time detective unit, radio, teleprinters, and audio burglar alarms.

Communications he sees as the key to modern police work — the key which has unlocked the door to the greatest changes.

The instant link with fellow officers is a far cry from the lonely days of patrolling 70 miles of north-country highway in the interests of "general law enforcement."

Top patrol covered all manner of human situations — from seeking paycopaths to illicit stills.

"In the moonshine days around the north country, I've been shot at a couple of times," retired deputy chief Hayes commented. "Of course none of them hit."

As of now he continues active participation in law enforcement as a Justice of the Peace.

Some of his enthusiasm has brushed off, also.

His son is Constable Fred Hayes, who now presides in Metro Toronto courts.

Judge Rejects Argument Made By Defence

RIMOUSKI, Que. (CP)—The Crown completed its case Wednesday at the capital murder trial of college student Claude Poisson in the bludgeon-slaying of Brother Oscar Lalonde, 59, doorman at the Matane Classical College.

The 40th and last Crown witness was Rev. Jean - Pierre Audet, 27, whose testimony was heard after Mr. Justice Georges Pelletier rejected defence arguments that his statements should not be introduced because he was a spiritual adviser of the accused at the time.

Brother Lalonde was killed apparently by hammer blows, in his room at Matane College in April, 1964.

Father Audet testified that the 20-year-old college student told him just after the killing that he was "disgusted" by the fact it was impossible for him to feel remorse because of the death of Brother Lalonde, although the latter was one of his friends.

On another occasion, Father Audet said Poisson told him to stop thinking he might be involved in the killing and instead to keep his eyes open.

The witness said Poisson told him on yet another occasion that he knew the identity of the murderer and that this person "was someone on the inside."

Traffic Slowed Through East German Border

From AP-Reuters

HELMSTEDT (CP) — Autobahn traffic through the East German border to Berlin was slowed again early today. West German customs officials reported.

It was not clear whether the slowdown was because of road repairs, routine holiday traffic —today is Ascension Day—or as a protest by the East German regime against the presence of West German politicians in West Berlin for the visit of Queen Elizabeth.

A border official said that cars were backed up nearly half a mile at the Helmstedt checkpoint this morning.

Wednesday night, traffic entering the autobahn to Berlin was held up for about an hour —the first delay since the Communists partially lifted their 11-day last month in protest against a plenary session of the West German Bundestag (lower house) in Berlin.

The East Germans have ignored the Queen's state visit to West Germany, except to say they have no objection to monarch visiting her troops in Berlin or meeting West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt.

Board Agrees With Settlement By Court

PEMBROKE (CP)—The Renfrew public school board has agreed in an out-of-court settlement to return about $40,000 in grants to the Ontario education department.

The settlement, filed in Ontario Supreme Court here Wednesday, said the board would pay $11,847 to the department and forfeit $28,333 it sought in unpaid grants when the department severed further benefits in 1963.

Agreement came after a disputes between the board and the department over falsification of school attendance records by a school principal.

The department claimed that it paid out a total of $70,977 in grants—$40,000 more than the board should have received.

The sum will be paid through deductions of 10 per cent of the yearly provincial grant to the board.

Allen M. Gay was sentenced in 1961 to three years for theft and conversion of funds. He admitted stealing $15,593 from the board and evidence indicated he had raised attendance figures to cover up the theft.

University President Gets $5,180

TORONTO (CP)—Claude T. Bissell, president of the University of Toronto, and his wife Christina were awarded a total of $5,180 damages in Ontario Supreme Court Wednesday as the result of an automobile accident Dec. 24, 1962.

Mrs. Bissell, who suffered a compound dislocated right ankle and a cut scalp and was confined to bed and a wheel chair for five months after the accident, was awarded $4,980.

Dr. Bissell, who claimed he was deprived of his wife's services for about eight months as a result of the accident, was awarded $200.

Arthur J. Archer of Toronto, driver of the car which struck the Bissell automobile, and William Phillips, owner of the car, were the defendants.

Quebec's Mood Could Bring Good or Evil

TORONTO (CP) —The mood of rebellion in Quebec "could create a force that could regenerate the country" or could "lead to very destructive ends," Robert Cliche, leader of the New Democratic Party in Quebec, said Wednesday night.

He told a party meeting here that three revolutions are in the province, a nationalist revolution, a social revolution and a revolution in fundamental beliefs.

It was the third that could be most important, he said.

"There are real dangers here. How many of our working youth are secretly in sympathy with acts of terrorism? Unless we replace those traditional values and leaderships with something new, God knows what the future will hold."

Argosy Carriers Ltd. Opens $45,000 Warehouse Here

Argosy Carriers Ltd., with a branch warehouse in Belleville since 1949, yesterday officially opened its new $45,000 terminal warehouse at the corner of Adam and University Ave., in the city's Hillcrest area.

Attending the opening were company head office officials from Toronto, city representatives and industrialists from Belleville and the Bay of Quinte area. Alderman Donald Jose and building inspector Grant Sticks represented the city.

Visitors were greeted by Company president J. J. Richardson of Toronto and J. A. Dearman, Belleville district manager, who took them on a tour of the new warehouse facilities and then enjoyed a smorgasbord dinner served by local caterers.

During the luncheon period visitors were entertained by an all-girl Toronto instrumental trio.

Argosy Carriers Ltd. established its first terminal in Belleville in 1949 and since then has operated from its warehouse at 7 South Front Street.

Today the company operates 32 units of all types from the local warehouse and has a personnel of 38, including office staff.

The new terminal, with an area of approximately 5,000 square feet, has five loading bays, garage space and office quarters.

Mr. J. A. Dearman, formerly of Cobourg, is the district manager, coming to Belleville from Picton three years ago.

Charge Woman With Exposing Obscene Matter

TORONTO (CP) — Dorothy Cameron was charged Wednesday with exposing obscene matter to the public view as police seized seven pictures from the Dorothy Cameron Art Gallery.

The pictures were from the show Eros '65 which opened at the gallery last week. Last Friday police ordered Miss Cameron to take one picture down and took photographs of 15 others.

One picture seized Wednesday was Lovers No. 1, the painting police ordered Miss Cameron to take down Friday.

The picture, by Hamilton artist Robert Markle, is a tampers brush drawing showing three reclining female nudes as three figures in black square. Mr. Markle said the painting represents sexual love between women and shows the three nudes all "floating into one another."

Miss Cameron, who will appear in magistrate's court June 28, said Tuesday that David Cook, chairman of the attorney - general's committee on obscene literature, had said last week the picture is not obscene.

Other pieces removed from the gallery by police Wednesday included Lovers No. 6, Lovers No. 7 and Paramour, all by Mr. Markle; the Lovers, a chalk drawing by Lawrence Chaplin; and Lovers, by Fred Ross.

Miss Cameron said police took the names of some art students in the gallery and asked them their ages.

Dempsey and Tunney Most Critical of Recent Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—"This is the worst, most offensive debasement of boxing that I've ever seen or even read about."

—Gene Tunney.

"Maybe the federal government will act now. Boxing is going from bad to worse. It's gotten to be a joke."—Jack Dempsey.

Stunned by the strangeness of Cassius Clay's one-round knockout of Sonny Liston, boxing's most prominent citizens condemned Wednesday the principals in Tuesday night's heavyweight championship bout in Lewiston, Me., and joined forces in a petition for federal supervision of the sport.

Tunney, former world heavyweight champion, was the most caustic in his denunciation of the fighters and most vehement in his demand for government action.

"I wish Jack Dempsey and I could go back and take on those two," he said in an interview with Bob Considine in the New York Journal-American. "I was particularly offended at the presence in the ring of the United States Marine Corps guard and the playing of the Star Spangled Banner at an event involving two completely reprehensible characters like the fellow who calls himself Muhammed Ali and this fellow, Liston."

Tunney, who witnessed the fight on television, added:

"I'll never go back to a heavyweight title fight as long as I live. I'm through. I'm finished with boxing."

Dempsey, who lost his title to Tunney, said he did not see the fight, but he had read about it.

"From the look of it, I don't like it," he said. "The federal government should waste no time appointing a commission to run boxing on a national level.

Man at 57 Will Receive B. A. Degree

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — John W. Madden, 57, expects to graduate next week from the University of Western Ontario with a bachelor of arts degree.

But, he says, if his health holds up, he may continue towards a master's degree.

Mr. Madden started toward the bachelor's degree in 1953 by taking extension courses from Western while an executive with Outboard Marine Corp. here. A heart attack forced him to retire in 1960, but he kept up his studies finding them good therapy.

He said in an interview Wednesday the reasons he decided at middle age to start a university degree course were to broaden his education and to inspire his children—John (Bucky), 22, and Martha, 19.

The inspiration worked.

John expects to graduate next year from the University of Windsor with an engineering degree in chemistry.

Martha entered Trent University here last fall.

FIRSTBORN HONORED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Margaret Florence McNeil, the first settler's baby born in Vancouver, received a present of flowers and a cake on her birthday. Miss McNeil, now living in Portland, Ore., was born six weeks before fire destroyed Vancouver in June 1886.

Astronaut Will Take a Walk Into Space

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Stralling through space at 17,500 miles an hour about 100 miles above the earth could be hard work for any astronaut.

The man who is scheduled to take such a walk June 3 is ready for it.

Edward H. White II officially got the assignment Tuesday from his boss, Dr. Robert R. Gilruth, manned spacecraft center director.

The 34 - year - old air force major will climb out of his Gemini-4 spacecraft over Guaymas, Mexico, during the second orbit, and cavort through space for 10 to 12 minutes before he climbs back into the cabin over the Florida coast.

The walk will be one of two firsts for the United States, the longest mission—four days —and the first astronaut to leave his cramped spaceship to venture into space.

Russian cosmonaut Alexei Leonov was the first human to leave his spaceship. He somersaulted before European television cameras March 18.

The television cameras will watch White, his flight partner, James A. McDivitt, will take pictures through the spacecraft's windows. The entire exercise will take about 22 minutes.

The Commons continued debate on the government's proposed rule changes to speed up business.

Prime Minister Pearson said he has approached Speaker Alan Macnaughton to become permanent speaker.

Mr. Macnaughton would express his views after the Commons finished discussion.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the government is using the threat of an election as a "bludgeon" to force acceptance of the changes.

Privy Council President McIlraith denied the charge.

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. EDT (3:30 p.m. ADT) to continue the rules debate. The Senate meets at 3 p.m.

Thought Parcel of Heroin Was Books Says Accused

MONTREAL (CP) — Georges Aubert, an Air France cabin chief on board a Boeing 707 at the time of his arrest, told the court Wednesday all airlines employees should beware of requests to take "little parcels" to the other side of the world.

Aubert, three other Air France employees and a Montreal area truck driver are standing trial in the seizure of 61.3 pounds of heroin, valued at $60,000,000 on the underworld market, in Montreal last March.

The 39-year-old witness said he thought he was bringing books, not heroin, to Montreal from Paris.

The trial of Air France steward Roger Loisleur, 46, on a charge of possession of narcotics with intent to traffic ended Wednesday.

Judge Armand Tellier postponed until June 22 his decision in the case.

Loisleur testified that a "white substance" had been brought to his hotel room by a man who said he was willing to pay him to deliver a package to Chicago.

Air France employees Philippe Borel, 38, and Emile Safafin, 35, as well as trucker Roland Deslorelle, 35, await trial in the same case.

DOCKS HUM AGAIN

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters) — More than 9,000 dockworkers who went on strike May 18 in protest over their pay for unloading "dusty" cargo went back to work Wednesday. But a dock spokesman said it could be weeks before the backlog of 117 idle ships is

Shah, Empress of Iran Complete Visit to Canada

TORONTO (CP) — The Shah of Iran and Empress Farah flew to Paris Wednesday, ending their eight-day state visit to Canada with a final day of varied activities in Toronto.

The couple left Toronto on a regularly - scheduled Air Canada flight at 3:40 p.m. after being given a 21-gun salute. They made a final Canadian stopover in Montreal that was protected half an hour due to air traffic. The cortege spent the time buying a few items in the airport gift shop.

The shah, whose visit took him to Ottawa, Quebec and Montreal before coming to Toronto Tuesday, spent a busy last day here, handling the controls for the new jet-age aircraft plant, touring a refrigerator plant and visiting Greenwood Race Track, where the fifth race was named in his honor.

The race, called the Shahanshah (Iranian for king of kings) Plate, was won by Apple, a seven-year-old, and the shah presented a trophy to Gardiner Farms, the horse's owner. Earlier the royal couple saw a race won by Royal Embassy.

The 45-year-old ruler, a flyer for many years, went around the production line at the manufacturing plant of de Havilland Aircraft of Canada at suburban Downsview.

Told he could have his choice of several models to fly, the shah chose a single - engine Turbo - Beaver, a turbo - prop version of a piston-engine plane of which the Iranian Air Force has a dozen and one of which he flies at home.

The royal visitor also toured the factory of Frigidaire, a refrigerator company whose president, E. V. Rippllngille, Jr., said the shah "clearly showed he had a good technical knowledge by his questions."

Meanwhile, the 26 - year - old empress was visiting Toronto's new city hall, the Hospital for Sick Children and the Royal Ontario Museum.

Harry Hays Readies Policy

New Federal Dairy Program May Set Stability Pattern

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—With roots in the past and broad implications for the future, Harry Hays' new policy for Canada's dairy industry is beginning to take shape.

Its ultimate form is still unclear, especially the proposed federal dairy commission, but what seems certain is that what happens will be of interest to other than dairy farmers.

The agriculture minister has dedicated the dairy program could well be the pattern for securing stable markets and prices for other farm commodities.

For example, dipsy-doodling sugar prices last year make sugar beets a prime candidate for similar treatment.

The program's first and "interim" phase went into effect May 1. It introduced an old price-support device—the deficiency payment—into the dairy field for the first time.

Under the system, the agricultural stabilization board—the latest support administrator—provides a support price of $3.30 a hundredweight for milk delivered by the dairy farmer to a manufacturing plant to be made into butter, cheese or some other commodity.

When he sells to the plant, the farmer naturally tries to make the best deal he can. At the end of the current dairy year, March 31, 1966, the board will calculate the national average market price on the basis of monthly price reports from some 200 processors.

SOME GET LESS

If the national average price is below the support price, the board will fix a deficiency payment equivalent to the difference. But this doesn't mean every farmer will get exactly the difference between what he received on average and the $3.05 figure.

Say the national average is $3.18. This would mean a deficiency payment of 30 cents. But the farmer who got an average of $3.05 from the plant would end up with a total of $3.35 after receiving the deficiency payment.

Similarly, a farmer who received an average of $3.15 from the plant would, with the 30-cent deficiency payment, wind up with $3.45 a hundredweight.

The deficiency payment applies only to milk used domestically. If milk surpluses develop, then the costs involved in exports to reduce those surpluses would be deducted from the deficiency payment. This amounts to gentle pressure on the farmer not to over-produce.

While $3.30 is the support price, the actual goal of the plan is to give the dairy farmer a $3.50-a-hundredweight return for his manufacturing milk. Field milk producers (whose product is drunk) are not eligible.

To reach this goal, farmers who shipped 10,000 pounds or more of manufacturing milk in the last dairy year will receive a lump sum payment based on that output to close the gap between $3.30 and $3.50. Cheques averaging $100 will go out this summer.

The new program also means elimination of domestic government subsidies on cheese and casein.

Whether this means a general move away from subsidies in principle in the future is not known, although Mr. Hays is quick to say he is an anti-handout man.

The government subsidy on butter (the principal product of manufacturing milk) was retained but reduced to nine from 11 cents a pound, raising the retail price by two cents.

Board-supported butter and cheese prices and export subsidies also assist the dairy farmer and were retained.

Nothing much is being said, publicly at least, about the dairy commission, which may turn out to be the revolutionary aspect of the plan. The government hopes to have it operating in 1966, presumably at the start of the next dairy year.

The commission is clearly intended to carry on the work and principles of the "interim" program, but dairymen are in the dark about what its terms of reference and power are likely to be.

Mr. Hays did drop a crack last in Ottawa last month when the Ontario Farmers' Union asked for strengthening of the stabilization board. In effect turning it into a national commodity marketing board.

The minister told the union the board is not suitable for that purpose but added that the government is moving in that direction with the dairy commission.

The commission, whatever its powers, will operate on a co-operative basis with the provinces. Both Quebec and Ontario, which together produce more milk than the rest of other provinces combined, have approved the idea.

The Ontario government has already introduced legislation to set up a three-man civil service commission with wide powers to control processing and marketing of the province's milk, and this is the likely model for legislation Mr. Hays wants in other provinces, even though the wide powers envisaged for the Ontario government are causing some apprehension in the industry.

If the Ontario legislation becomes the model, the national dairy commission could wind up in an overseer role with the provinces exercising the direct control.

Mr. Hays apparently has no philosophical objection to increased government intervention, although he admits he was a "red-hot free enterpriser" before he got into government and began looking at facts he had ignored.

What significance this turn of mind will have for the future is not fully clear yet. But at least dairy farmers can look forward to "$3.50 milk," almost 43 cents more than they got in the 1964 calendar year.

If they receive this, and Mr. Hays has promised to resign if they don't, it may go far toward putting them in a proper frame of mind for the second phase of the dairy "revolution" —the national dairy commission.

Principal Misses Fun Of Older Generation

By JACK HUTTON

The dark girl in sunglasses with the ponytail flinched as two smiling policemen picked her up by the arms and legs and gently threw her back into a sitting crowd of young men and women.

Then the policemen turned to start dragging more limp bodies from the door of the consulate, stepping over placards as they did so.

Obviously a civil rights demonstration of some sort, but where? Latin America? Selma, Alabama? Piccadilly Circus in London, England?

Until six months ago it would have seemed incredible to think of a Canadian location. It isn't any more.

Scenes took place in both Montreal and Toronto a few short weeks ago to protest the treatment of Selma Negroes.

Several high schools across the country have found themselves in the public eye with highly organized protests against the banning of Beatle-like hair among the student body.

DIDN'T LIKE NOISE

More than 100 students at Toronto's Malvern Collegiate Institute (total enrolment: 1,200) actually did go on strike for one day two weeks ago to protest construction noise during the final examinations. Officials promised to cut out the heavy noise.

There's no doubt of it: the cult of social protest growing in the U.S. for the past decade crossed the Canadian border some time ago. But, possibly most significant of all, it has seeped down from universities to our larger secondary schools.

Debating Vietnam? Worrying about the plight of colored people in Mississippi and Alabama? You never heard much discussion of such issues in a high school 10 or 15 years ago.

And the difference is a simple one: This generation is becoming involved. It's a John F. Kennedy generation: it believes people can alter their lives and correct injustice by discussion and action.

I asked a high school principal who has spent 30 years either in the classroom or in the head office what changes he's noticed in his school.

MISSES FUN

"Well, I miss the fun that seems to have disappeared," he said. "Don't misunderstand me, because I don't mean no one has fun in school anymore. But students as a whole seem far more serious than they did 10 years ago."

"Maybe it's because they're warned every day about a world of change, the fact that jobs will disappear, the challenge of old values and ideas. You look at some Grade 12 students and you'd swear they had the full weight of the world on their shoulders.

"I'm convinced that youth always looks at what the older generation is doing and concludes that it's making a mess of the world. It was certainly true when I was a high school student.

"Ten years ago they were doing the same thing, but with a different reaction. The world's square, so why bother yourself? That seemed to be the philosophy of that beat generation. The way to protect yourself is to withdraw. Don't get involved.

"And what did we do in the older generation? We shook our heads and asked what was wrong with the young folks.

"Today some people miss those beat characters sitting off in dark corners, arguing against the world and reading poetry. Because this generation is rebelling in a different way: it's trying to get something done.

"They're organizing discussion groups. They're sitting outside consulates. They're leading marches. They're taking a close look at old values and deciding they want to help the world around. They're throwing away old prejudices of color and religion.

"And what are we doing in the older generation again? We are shaking our heads and asking what's wrong with the younger generation. It's a shame we're not learning — but the next generation is.

"This is a precious, swinging generation coming behind us. They care about issues and people. Maybe their methods are crude and rough, but they're trying. I hope they never lose their concern."

And there you have it, dear readers — a tribute to the '60's generation from a product of the '20's and the '30's. Let's hope you always deserve it.

India Weathers 12 Months Of Crisis Since Death of Nehru Under P. M. Shastri

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—India has weathered 12 months of crisis since the death of Jawaharlal Nehru, its first prime minister, a year ago today.

Food shortages and rising prices caused by the shortages have been the major problems for the government of India's 480,000,000 population.

While these have eased in recent weeks, the country has been swept by an almost unprecedented wave of anger and a sense of humiliation over the clash with Pakistan about the Rann of Kutch border area. The two countries also are in dispute over the state of Kashmir.

These storms have had to be faced by a tiny bespectacled man, Lal Bahadur Shastri, who succeeded Nehru as prime minister.

He started with the overwhelming goodwill of the country and now is completing his first year of office without any serious contender emerging—despite occasional criticism that he is indecisive and despite calls for stronger leadership.

STAVED OFF DISASTER

The food and prices crisis was already breaking when Shastri took over, and he said that his first task would be to solve it. Massive food imports from the United States and a bumper rice crop now being harvested have staved off disaster.

But with India's population leaping upward by 12,000,000 a year, the challenge to increase food production rapidly has not disappeared.

Now Shastri is faced with a new major problem in relations with Pakistan.

The Indian army's failure to halt the Chinese invasion in 1962 was accepted as being due to China's defeat of Indian friendliness and the use of ruthless military tactics.

But Pakistan's army's penetration by a few miles of territory, which India claims as its own, in the desolate, marshy Rann of Kutch area, has angered and humiliated most Indians.

UNITY THREATENED

The problem of national unity has been sharply undermined by violent riots in south India last February over the national language.

Hindi, a north Indian language, formally became the official language of India Jan. 26. Arrangements were made for the continued use of English alongside it as hitherto.

The zeal of some north Indians who want only Hindi and the fears of south Indians that Hindi would be imposed on them led to the bitter language riots, in which 50 died.

Meanwhile, Chinese troops still occupy 15,000 square miles of the Aksaichin area of the Ladakh area of Kashmir, which India considers its own.

Indo - Soviet relations, which became close during the Nehru-Khrushchev regimes, have continued to be cordial under new leaders in both countries. The Soviet Union has made new commitments for large - scale economic and military aid to India.

Relations with the United States, despite massive food and economic aid, have struck a bad patch since President Johnson suddenly cut off Shastri's Washington visit last month and India allegedly found Pakistanis using U.S.-American-supplied tanks in the Rann of Kutch.

Shower Speeches Worry Very Shy Engaged Girl

DEAR DORIS — What am I to say at my shower and my wedding when I am called upon to speak. — VERY SHY BUT ENGAGED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SHY BUT — At your wedding your groom speaks for you. At the shower, anything you say is quite informal and should be fun.

Having opened and admired every gift, you address grateful remarks to all present. Express appreciation for the shower, the gifts, their friendship. Give some personal details about your wedding plans, invite them to come and check up on you in your new home and on how you are using their presents. Make it cheerful — and brief!

DEAR DORIS — My problem is nail-biting. I chew them endlessly without even realizing it. Sometimes I even chew the skin around them and the result is: I hide my hands because they are one big mess and I am ashamed of them.

Do you think that fake nails are good? — NAILLESS.

DEAR NAILLESS — Try applying tincture of quassia. It tastes horrible. Fake nails could help cover up the mess while yours are growing out.

As a reward for even the first slight lengthening out, paint them with a slightly pink polish. Then sit on your hands rather than bite a single nibble.

DEAR DORIS — There is this boy that I like very much. We used to go out together a lot but eventually he just dropped me.

I think that he still likes me but what will I do to get him back? — FUZZLED.

DEAR FUZZLED — At this point your one is to drop him right out of your mind. Start fishing in more promising waters.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I have an opportunity to sing with a well established Rock and Roll band. All the men (four of them) are married and in their late twenties. They will travel about the country a considerable amount of time — including staying away on long week ends.

They are all clean living fellows, and they do not drink at any time. So would it look all right for a 18-year-old mature girl to use the opportunity and try her talent? — LOVE TO SING.

DEAR LOVE — It would look all wrong; unless an older woman were also to go along with the troupe. Or unless you were to marry one of them!

Prospect of Industry Providential for Becancour

By GERALD McNEIL

BECANCOUR, Que. (CP) — The unlikely process of industrializing Becancour (pop. 310) began in 1962 with Montreal broker J. H. Paquet quietly taking options on 11 square miles between the St. Lawrence River and Highway No. 3.

The $2,000,000 in purchases prospect of prime farmland between the biggest thing that had hit the south shore village since the Iroquois slaughtered the Abenakis two centuries ago, giving the Becancour River for a time the name "Riviere des Puants" (Stinking River).

Some of the older farmers whose families have tilled the soil here for generations, raising contented Ayrshire and Holstein dairy cattle, balked at selling and Mr. Paquet was ejected with vigor from some homesteads.

But, as former Cure August Beauchesne put it when the news got around that Becancour might be the site of a steel mill, the prospect of industry was providential.

A century of rural exodus had left the village dying of old age. Though the farms were profitable, young men were leaving for the cities. Families were dispersing.

In recent decades, Becancour's doctors, lawyers, notaries, bankers and even barbers have left or died and haven't been replaced.

The family farm might once have been the linchpin of French and Roman Catholic Canada but it became a rusty one. Cure Beauchesne offered a special mass of thanksgiving and hope for industry.

Mr. Paquet had acted on behalf of the General Investment Corp. of Quebec, created by the provincial government to spur industrial growth. This spring general director Gerard Filion of the corporation announced that Sidbec, the steel company it had formed, would begin building a $225,000,000 steel mill here next spring.

Scheduled to start producing about 1969, the mill will employ 2,000 men. In 10 years, tranquil Becancour is expected to become a bustling centre of 35,000 to 40,000.

When the big news came, the villagers celebrated by raising $12,000 in one week for materials to refurbish the interior of the towering Catholic church. Typically, they did the labor themselves.

Next they plan to renovate the historic 36-room presbytery, built in 1774. In fact, everyone is bubbling with plans and nearly everyone has money in the bank as a result of Sidbec.

The Becancour Telephone Co. was worth $18,000, and villagers each had bought $50 worth of shares for five years of free service to set up.

In a reorganization to provide better service and room for growth, the Telebec Co. was formed. It paid $40,000 for the Becancour Telephone Co., offering villagers 400 shares worth $1 each and a $100 bonus.

FARMS SOLD

About 30 farmers near the confluence of the Becancour and St. Lawrence, where Sidbec is expected to build, have had to leave their land and houses.

But about nine square miles of land is being reserved for industry expected to follow in Sidbec's footsteps, and farmers like Jules Montambault have been able to keep their homes and enough land for their cattle.

Mr. Montambault, one of the younger farmers, was paid $30,000 for land he valued at $10,000. He hopes to get a job in the steel mill.

There were plenty of doubts about the government talk of industrial decentralization in the province, one of the reasons for the decision to put the steel mill here.

But a few young men saw a once-in- a-lifetime opportunity. Raymond Cote, 32, had 50 acres of land outside the area Sidbec bought but near it. He worked in a hosiery in Trois-Rivieres, across the St. Lawrence a few miles away, and in summer he and his wife operated a hot dog stand here.

Mr. Cote sold his land—bought in 1959 for $8,000—for a tidy profit to contractor Raymond Desilets of Nicolet, then invested in a restaurant.

The gleaming varnished wood of the restaurant at the junction of Highway 3 and Becancour's main drag was the first sign of new life and some laughed at Mr. Cote's audacity.

But this spring he is adding a modern motel to the restaurant and is catching an increasing flow of business from engineers, technicians, speculators and reporters.

Mr. Desilets, 37, has set up a billboard down the road advertising commercial and housing lots for sale. He plans to build eight apartment houses, something never seen in a village where houses run to 70 rooms and backyards to 20 acres.

Robert Lethiecy's little hotel in Becancour is home to eight workers on a $35,000,000 bridge going up over the St. Lawrence eight miles west of here.

Becancour is still serene enough to allow Mr. Lethiecy to close his licensed restaurant for an afternoon snooze. He's probably dreaming of the 45-seat dining room he'll soon install and the business a new licence will bring.

Had he any trouble borrowing for such expansion? Mr. Lethiecy just chuckled. It's open house at the banks for Becancour as a result of Sidbec and the bridge.

Becancour land was assessed for taxes at $33 an arpent (approximately an acre), about 45 per cent of its real value before Sidbec arrived. The $2,000,000 it paid for 11 square miles was about three times the ordinary value.

But there has been relatively little land speculation. Most farmers aren't anxious to sell, preferring to wait in expectation of better prices later.

MANY MOVED AWAY

Becancour, first settled Aug. 16, 1647, developed into a prosperous farm village in the 19th and early 20th centuries. The farmers are still well off here, but when the rail spur from the CNR main line was torn up in 1942 for war scrap, the handwriting was on the wall.

Young men moved away. Even Mayor Pierre Blondin, 37, went to the Montreal area for a time, though he returned to get a defence department job at nearby Nicolet.

The close-knit village has a rustic cachet. And, says the mayor wistfully, "we hope we can preserve it."

It's unlikely. Speculators, government men, bridge workers and newspaper reporters have been turning up in droves, and thousands of curious come to the village each weekend just to look.

As long as Becancour was a farm community there was a sense of family continuity.

Mayor Blondin's grandfather was a notary here. A neighbor, Pierre Dumont, has been registar for 20 years and his father had the same job for 22 years before that.

Generations of Blondins, Croteaus, Lethiecys and Heberts have sworn and sailed at Petite Floride, a summer resort to the north near the St. Lawrence. There are little chalets along the Becancour among the willows, and fishing is good.

But the area is only yards from farm houses now being torn down to make way for Sidbec.

For years taxi driver Robert Croteau, 43, has picked up fares at the ferry docks at Ste. Angele, across from Trois-Rivieres, but he shared the run with nine others. Now he's limited to Becancour for $1—he won't take a tip.

When the bridge is completed the ferry service, hopelessly behind present traffic, will end. But by then Becancour will be booming and Mr. Croteau isn't worried about his future.

He'll be working closer to home.

"There's nothing in Becancour now, not even a theatre," he says. It's too quiet."

Nowya gunna keep 'em down on the farm when they can make at least $20,000 a year throwing a 16-pound ball at ten pieces of wood — and knocking them down fairly consistently.

Modern mommahs shouldn't raise their boys to be soldiers, sailors or even astronauts They can pass up baseball if he is a mill-run player and blood-and-guts professional hockey without a second look unless he has the potential of a Howe, Hull or Richard.

If he is not allergic to anything with a maple flavor, has two good arms, a pair of legs and a skull to match, boy him one of them king-size chocolate pallets, tan pins and start him throwing.

For there are huge pots of gold at the end of those ten-pin professional rainbows and they are there for the taking.

Fivtastnce six years ago a guy named Don Carter was one of a few topnotch bowlers who were touring the country for comparative peanuts. Last year Carter signed a ten-year million-dollar contract with the Ebonite Company.

The Professional Bowlers Association, according to its new handbook, has mushroomed from 33 members in 1958 to 500 today.

The touring on all fronts has been fantastic. In 1959 there were three tournaments with $47,000. This years membership will be shooting at $1,200,000 in 38 tournaments.

And in case you're interested there will be 69 "touring pros" touring the USA this year. A "touring pro" is one who can at least 15 tournaments last year.

And American youngster bowlers are taking to pro bowling" like a revenue officer to a Kentucky still. At least six unknown beardless buckaroos made the charmed circle this year.

As full-time pros they'll average at least $20,000 a year This, the pro boys brass claims, tops the average professiona baseball players annual stipend by at least $5,000.

Then the boys cut the large juicy television watermelon. You've seen them pocket cheques anywhere from $500 to $5,000 for an hour's work on old square face — and that includes the commercials.

One bowler named Sherm Gilkson made $75,000 by throwing six strikes on Jackpot Bowling while Ray Bluth pocketed $22,500 on "Make That Spare" show. Last year the networks knot together with an 18-city tour rewarded pro bowlers to the tune of over one million dollars.

This year it is estimated that the boys who make a living knocking on wood will split a pot of $1,300,000. That, as the Missouri mule snorted as he took a playful nip at the cow's tail, "aint hay."

Take Bob Strampe the 1964 Professional Bowling Association champion from Detroit. In 1959 he banked $775 and upped it to $1,335 the next year. He made $710 and $9,985 the next two years and hit the jackpot last year with $32,582.

Or Billy Hardwick the boy wonder from San Mateo, California. Billy at 18 made $550 and in 1963 staggered to the bank with $33,625. Last year he added a tournament or two and all he could must for the cashier's wicked was a puny $28,407.

Billy Allen, the Florida wizard of the bowls lugged home $29,183 last year. Some well-known television athletes have fattened their bank rolls in excess of $20,00. Harry Smith Boston made $27,-367; Dick Weber toted $23,170 to the family cookie jar, Ray Bluth was $21,295 richer last year.

Take On Anyone ★★★★★ Three In One Night

Cockerel Clay Clarions Challenge

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nothing seems to faze Cassius Clay.

In the wake of international condemnation of the first-round knockout of Sonny Liston, calls for a probe of boxing and proposals in several states for the banning of boxing, the undefeated and undaunted heavyweight champion talked today of fighting Canadian champion George Chuvalo or former champion Floyd Patterson next.

"Anyone the public picks."

"Maybe I should fight three of them — Floyd Patterson, George Chuvalo and Ernie Terrell—in one night," said Clay. "But who would bet on Chuvalo, Patterson and Terrell to beat me?"

All three want the next shot at Clay, despite his one-punch kayo of Liston Tuesday night in one minute, two minutes, or take your pick of the time.

How much power-really"was generated by that short right-hand blow is open to left cheekbone never will be known by anyone except Liston. Either the cocky champion left unleashed one of the mightiest punches ever or Liston's ability or desire to take a punch was gone.

Clay, Liston, referee Jersey Joe Walcott and Patterson all say it was a hard smash. Chuvalo, who dashed into the ring Tuesday night to argue with Clay, said the knockout was "a farce."

"Liston's reflexes were slow and his co-ordination was gone," said ringsider, Jimmy Braddock, one of the many ex-heavyweight kings at the fight. "He got hit a good shot and fell apart. A fighter is the last one to know when he's finished."

LIKE OUTER SPACE

Arriving home in Denver, Liston remarked that he got a "fast shuttle," but did not explain the statement. Sonny said he'd like to fight Clay again. "But I guess I'll have to give some other guys a chance."

"It was a real hard smash," said Patterson. He added: "I want to fight Clay more than ever now. I haven't seen anybody throw a right hand like Clay since Joe Louis. But I believe I know how to beat him."

"I'm not afraid of Clay," said Chuvalo the Canadian champion from Toronto who lost to Patterson in a savage 12-rounder Feb. 1.

"Nobody's knocked me down and Clay hasn't got a punch that is the equal of his."

Terrell, the Chicago sting-bean who was named champion by the World Boxing Association after the WBA stripped Clay of his title for signing for the return bout with Liston, has repeatedly challenged Cassius to fight him.

A Chuvalo-Clay fight would put Merv McKenzie, president of the WBA, in a terrible dilemma. He is from Toronto, one of the sites proposed for the fight.

WOULD SANCTION

McKenzie who called the Clay-Liston fight "unfitting, illegal and a disgrace to boxing," said Clay would be given WBA sanction to fight Terrell—but the fight would be for Terrell's WBA crown.

Clay, who won the title when Liston quit on his stool 15 months ago, said right after that fight that "Liston is an amateur who should be made to fight like way up again."

Clay made Liston look like an amateur again, if you took the fight as you saw it.

But just like many of the fans in the small high school hockey rink Tuesday night who chanted "fake" and "fix," newspapers from California to Montreal carried bold headlines screaming of "farce," "fraud" and "fake."

In Washington, Senator John G. Tower (Rep, Tex.) called for another congressional investigation of boxing and described the Tuesday bout as the "nadir of a sport."

Senator Philip A. Hart, (Dem, Mich.) who has had a shot at it before, said he will propose a 1965 version of his bill to create the office of a federal boxing commissioner with the machinery for investigation of controversial professional bouts.

ASK SUPERVISION

Other renewed calls for federal supervision of the battered and deflated sport came from former heavyweight champions Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, WBA commissioner Abe J. Greene, and many public officials.

Because of the controversy over the time of the knockout, Walcott's failure to pick up the timekeeper's count, the actions of a "phantom" or a "thunder and lightning" punch, more money will be added to the original purse by an added television show.

The American Broadcasting Company said the fight will be shown on its television network Saturday at 5 p.m. EDT. The sales price was not disclosed.

Clay and Liston each will gross about $600,000 for the fight.

The time of the bout may be officially decided soon by the Maine Boxing Commission. The timers announced a one-minute knockout after the bout. An unofficial check of the film Wednesday at reporters using stop watches showed Liston floored at 1:44, up at 1:56, and decleared out by Walcott at 2:11.

It appeared that the old-time record of 1:28 for a heavyweight title fight may still stand. That was set, according to the Ring record book by Tommy Burns when he downed Jem Roches in Dublin, March 17, 1908.

"If that happens, then I will have something more to aim for," said Clay. "Maybe it will be against The Rabbit—Floyd Patterson."

Foxboro Wins S.H. Opener

Two runs in the top of the sixth and final frame gave Foxboro a 3-1 win over Plane Concrete at Cannifton as the South Hastings Baseball League got under way last night.

Foxboro carried a 1-0 lead from the second frame and their pair in the top of the sixth made it 2-0 before Cannifton got the loner in the bottom of the frame.

Games scheduled for the weekend have Latta at Read Saturday night and Plane Concrete at Shannonville Sunday afternoon.

Keith Dickey spun a four-hitter for the winner's hilltop, while Butch Clapp gave up five hits over the route for the losers.

Brian Skinner rapped a pair of singles to pace the Foxboro attack, with one each for Keith Dickey, Roly Belanger and Howard Skelly.

Don Forsythe and Butch Clapp looked after the Cannifton hits, each with a pair of singles.

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—St. Catharines Athletics scored six goals in the first period of their Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior game against Peterborough Petes Wednesday night and went on to win 9-5.

It was the first win of the season for the Athletics and the third defeat for the Petes. Both teams now have played three games.

Pete Bergs, Ron Roy and Gerry Cheevers scored two goals each for St. Catharines, while Doug Smith, Red Armstrong and Ted Howe got the others.

For Peterborough, Cy Coombes scored two. Ken Rutten, Jim Grady and Jerry Byrne each had singles.

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Merv McKenzie, president of the World Boxing Association, said Wednesday night that Cassius Clay will be given every opportunity to fight Ernie Terrell, when the WBA recognizes as world heavyweight champion. But the title at stake would be Terrell's.

The WBA stripped Clay of the title a year ago for violating a WBA ruling by signing a return bout clause before his first title bout with Sonny Liston.

McKenzie said in an interview that Clay was a victim of circumstances, being forced to sign for the bout in Miami Beach on Liston's terms in order to get a shot at the title.

Clay won the title when Liston declined to come to the corner at the start of the seventh round claiming a shoulder injury. Referee Jersey Joe Walcott stopped the contest at 2:12 in the first round of their return bout at Lewiston, Me., Tuesday night.

"We must start to regulate the promotion of boxing matches so that this cannot happen again," said McKenzie of the widely-criticized Lewiston fight.

"Federal control of boxing would stop the money-hungry promotors. A bout that was not approved by one state could not be staged in another."

McKenzie, also president of the Ontario Athletic Commission, defended Jersey Joe Walcott, the former heavyweight champion who handled the Lewiston fight.

"I had him in Toronto for the fight between Floyd Patterson and Tom McNeeley and gave him explicit instructions," McKenzie said. "He even wrote down what I said and referred to those notes during the fight. He refereed a great fight.

"What instructions could he have received from the state of Maine, which had no previous experience with boxing at such a level? As it is now, Walcott may never referee another championship fight."

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Kwik Kat boosted his season's winnings to $740 Wednesday night by winning the featured $2,000 invitation pace at Mohawk Raceway.

The horse, owned by Ed Arthur and Cyril Strebb of Otterville, Ont., and driven by Arthur, did the pace in 2:05 2-5.

Eagle Armbro, owned by the Eagle stable of Kilcheran, and Lochinver Duke from the Certified Stable of Rexdale finished in a dead heat for second place.

The Kwik Kat-Eagle Armbro combination produced a $12.20 quinella payoff, while the Kwik Kat - Lochinver Duke quinella paid $7.80.

It was the second win for Arthur during the evening's races. He also reined E. and A. M. Arthurs' Governor Dillon to a $13.10 upset in the third race.

The combination of Yonder in the first and J. R. Spencer in the second meant a $9.10 daily double.

Twins' Homer Bombs Blast Boston

8 In 2 Days

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Minnesota Twins' bombs soon may be banned in Boston.

In fact, Red Sox pitchers may stage a sit-down demonstration at home plate in Fenway Park until they are.

The Twins unloaded three more home runs Wednesday night as they outlasted the Red Sox 9-7 and moved into first place in the American League.

The barrage gave the Twins eight homers in their first two days in Boston this season. That put them far ahead of their 1964 pace at Fenway when they hit 18 nine games.

Earl Wilson was the victim of the Twins' latest assault. Bob Allison ignited the attack, slamming a three-run homer in the first inning. Harmon Killebrew clouted a bases - empty blast in the third and Tony Oliva added a leadoff homer in the fifth.

Wilson, however, didn't suffer the cruel a fate as another Red Sox hurler, Bob Heffner. Reliever Heffner was the target of two of Minnesota's five home runs Tuesday night in only 1 2 3 innings of pitching.

Just about 24 hours later, the Red Sox shipped Heffner to Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League. Of course, there may be some consolation in the move. Heffner most likely won't be with the Red Sox July 21—when the Twins return to Boston.

DROP INTO SECOND

While Minnesota was winning its fifth game in six starts, Chicago White Sox were losing their sixth in seven, a 3-1 decision to Cleveland Indians, and dropping into second place, seven percentage points behind the Twins.

In other AL games, Kansas City Athletics defeated Baltimore Orioles 6-3 and Los Angeles Angels edged Washington Senators 3-2. Rain washed out New York Yankees at Detroit.

Oliva's homer, his eighth, tied the Red Sox 6-6 and touched off a four-run rally. Early Battey doubled in two of the runs. Boston erupted for five runs in the second inning. Carl Yastrzemski driving in three with a double.

Cleveland's Luis Tiant and Gary Peters of the White Sox were engaged in a scoreless duel until Chico Salmor tagged Peters for a double with two out in the seventh inning, starting and a three-run rally. Tiant (5-2) pitched to five hits.

Diego Segui pitched a five-hitter and rapped three singles while Bert Campaneris contributed three runs batted in to the Kansas City cause. Campaneris homered following a Segui single, tying the game 3-3 in the fifth inning. Jim Gentile then socked his 8th homer, putting the Athletics ahead to stay.

Pete Richert held Los Angeles to one hit through eight innings —Joe Adcock's fourth - inning home—but had to give way to Bennie Daniels in the ninth because of the heat. The Angels went 4 in the last inning when Jose Cardenal singled, stole second and came home on Jim Fregosi's single.

Lombanks Blank Madoc 9-0

MADOC (Special) — Three-run eruptions in the sixth and eighth innings broke up a tight game and gave Tweed Lombanks a 9-0 triumph over Madoc in B. and D. Softball action here last night.

The winners also scored single runs in the first, third and seventh frames while Eldon Gray on the Tweed mound stopped Madoc on just three singles. It was Gray's second consecutive victory in as many nights. He gunned down batters on third strikes and passed four.

Darrel Kramp was tagged for 12 hits over the route on the Madoc pitching end to equip the strikeout method and did not issue a batter but five errors added to his woes.

Two of the bobbles, Salmond's two-run triple and Shires' single scored the game - clinching trio in the sixth. Shires blasted a three - run homer for his club's final trio, in the eighth.

Four players looked after all 12 Tweed hits. Terry LeSage had a double and three singles, Len Shires his homer and two singles, Bill Salmond a triple and two singles and Eldon Gray a double and single.

Madoc's only safe hits were singles by Brian Gray, Clayton Whiteman and Albert Reid.

Madoc has a home game, against Stirling, on Friday night. Both clubs are winless to date.

Cheesemen Win Over Point Anne

Black Diamond Cheese scored twice in the final frame to defeat Point Anne Cementmen 7-6 in Commercial Softball at the Point last night.

The clubs were tied 3-3 after six frames and 5-5 after eight in the scheduled seven-inning game. Black Diamond's pair in the ninth won it.

Sonny Holway pitched the route, allowing six hits and whiffing 12, for the winners. He walked four.

D. Browning, relieved by Dennis Hull in the fifth, pitched for the Cementmen. They gave up eight hits. Hull had three strikeouts and one walk while Browning strolled three.

Homers played a major part in the contest. Ray Summers hit one for Point Anne in the sixth, Sonny Holway clouted a two-run shot for a 5-3 Black Diamond lead in the top of the eighth and Vern Whalen tied it with another of the same in the bottom of the same inning.

Wood had four of the winners' hits with one each for Cruickshank, Hughes, Francis, Archer, Holway and Douglas.

Karate Clay's Weapon?

LONDON (Reuters) — Sonny Liston was knocked out by a karate blow of the kind that can kill' or paralyse a man, The Sun newspaper says.

The Sun says Cassius Clay's "twister punch" was developed from karate, a deadly Japanese method of combat.

The paper says British karate expert Dillon MacCarthy, after seeing the television film of the fight, sent a telegram to the British Boxing Board of Control saying:

"Urgent protest—Liston was knocked out by karate blow. Imperative you act."

The Sun quotes MacCarthy as saying: "That fight was no fix. Liston probably doesn't know how lucky he was.

"The blow was delivered just behind the ear — a classic karate blow at the carotid artery which can kill a man.

MacCarthy also said that Liston's retirment in his first fight with Clay was caused by a karate blow.

The Sun also summoned expert advice from Prof. Tatsuo Sunaki, chief karate instructor at Tokyo University and currently on a visit to London.

The professor said: "It looks like typical karate style. The contact below the ear, even in a boxing glove, can knock a man out, provided the wrist and fist are right in the karate style at the moment of contact."

Blanks Troubled 2-0 Bloomfield Wins Again

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

PICTON — Bloomfield held Blanks to two hits and one unidentified club in the B. and D. Softball League here last night by edging Belleville Trudeau Motors 2-0 in a keenly-contested affair.

The victory was Bloomfield's third in as many starts and the same two clubs go back at it again at the Belleville Fairgrounds tonight at 8.00.

Ken DeMille, and newcomer Bill Baldwin on Trudeau's, hooked up in a tight pitching duel all the way.

Bloomfield scored their runs in the first two innings and the pitchers took it from there, cutting off the Blanks scoring threats.

The opening run came after St. Denis chopped a single into left field and reached second on a wild throw. A two-base error at short sent him home and Baldwin got the next two batters.

Yorke made it 2-0 leading off the second, slamming a home run to centre.

DeMille scattered five Trudeau hits, striking out nine batters. Baldwin and Trudeau men stranded, pitching out of tough holes in the seventh and third frames.

TRENTON (Special) — Belleville Ellis Juniors came from behind runs in the top of the 11th inning to snatch a hard-fought 7-5 B. and D. softball victory over Trenton Commercial Printers last night.

The Juniors had carried a lead into the middle frames after scoring singletons in the second and third plus two in the fifth. Trenton battled back for pairs in the sevenths and eighth and one in the ninth, tying it 5-5.

In the extra frames, Ellis' hit paydirt with one out in the 11th on a walk to Glancey. After the next man fanned, Souls fashed a double, plating the winning run in a nip and tuck play at the plate. He took third on the throw in and made it 7-5 on a passed ball.

Bobby Boyle hurled fine ball until tiring in the eighth for Belleville. He fanned four and walked two. Bob Miller came on to get the win, fanning four and walking one. They scattered 13 hits between them.

City Hotel Edges Belvedere 6-5

City Hotel need a pair of runs in the bottom of the sixth to nip Belvedere Hotel 6-5 in a Commercial League softball tilt at Prince Charles School last night.

Belvedere had moved ahead 5-4 in the top of the sixth with three markers but failed to hold City in their half of the frame.

Gerry Genereaux pitched three - hit ball to earn the victory. He struck out seven but walked eight.

C. Klug was touched for six hits in a losing cause, fanning none and walking only one.

Each side scored twice in the first and City took the lead for the first time with two in the fourth.

B. Brooks batted a home run and a double for City Hotel with Bucky Ethier rapping a triple and a single. J. Martin had a double and Doug Hull a single.

B. Laienti, D. Lucas and G. Rogers collected Belvedere's three singles.

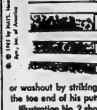
"THINKING MAN'S" SHOTS



Ingenuity and imagination play a big part in golf and the player who can improvise successfully will be a step ahead of the field. Today we have illustrated three ways to turn impossible situations into potential pars. These are shots, suggested by my friend, the cartoonist Paul Hahn, that any golfer can play.

In No. 1 we see how a golfer can dislodge his ball from a narrow rut or washout by striking it with the toe end of his putter.

Illustration No. 2 shows one way to play a shot when an obstacle prevents a normal backswing. Just chop down on the ball and drive it back between your legs.

Illustration No. 3 shows another way to negotiate an obstacle. Strike the ball away from the hole, toward the obstacle, and then watch it rebound back onto the green.

Bob Veith Not Scared By Fords

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Ford-powered cars should be the ones to watch in the Indianapolis 500-mile race Monday, but veteran driver Bob Veith says his rear - engine Offenhauser will beat them in the long run.

"I'm not worried about the Fords," said Veith, of Fort Bragg, Calif. "Actually, I don't think many of them will finish. One of the four drivers Veith considers his chief rivals is Billy Foster, 27-year-old Victoria car dealer who became first Canadian to qualify for the race when he averaged 158.416 m.p.h. in his rear-engined Offenhauser May 16.

The others are Offy driver Jim Hurtubise of Odessa, Tex.; and Movi drivers Bobby Unser of Albuquerque; N.M. and Jim Hurtubise of Norto Tonawanda, N.Y.

"I think they have the machinery to go competitive for the full race," Veith said.

Veith will start from the inside position of the fourth row in his No. 54 liquid suspension special. Ahead of him will be seven Ford-powered cars, including A. J. Foyt, pole sitter and defending champion, and Jimmy Clark, world road racing champion, the No. 2 man.

"There are some of them that in qualifications," said Veith, who won his 10th spot with a trial speed of 156.417— about five miles an hour less than pacesetter Foyt.

"But even though I can't hope to keep up with those fast ones, at least for the first 30 laps or so, they are going to have to desoup their fuel or make three pit stops to go the 300 miles.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Uncle Blue, a five-year-old gelding owned by Bill Beasley of Toronto, won his first race in 13 starts and caught most of the punters off guard in the seventh race at Greenwood Raceway Wednesday.

He came charging from fifth place to whip Muskey by a nose right at the wire, returning $17.50, $6.80 and $3.30.

Apple won the Shahanshah Plate named in honor of the Shah of Iran, who wound up an eight-day visit to Canada by attending the day's races.

The daily double of Land Of Ice and Meteric returned $32.10, and the quinella paid $30.30 on Irish Joe and Gay Bride.

A crowd of 6,587 attended.

FORMER V-P DIES

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — Abel Gilbert, 71, vice-president of Ecuador from 1949 to 1952, died Wednesday.

Let's Go Fishing

TORONTO (CP) — Warm weather that invaded Ontario last week greatly improved fishing conditions in the provinces.

The north country benefited most from the bleak weather, with generally good to excellent angling reported for speckled trout, lake trout, pickerel and pike.

The Ontario department of lands and forests, in its weekly report on fishing conditions, also said fair to good conditions existed in other parts of the provinces.

Reports from 17 of the department's 22 districts as of Wednesday:

NORTH

Fort Frances — Pickerel and pike fair to good. Lake trout good.

Gogama—Speckled trout fair to good. All other species good.

Kapuskasing — Speckled trout generally good. Pike and pickerel good in all warm-water lakes.

Kenora — Lake trout good in the Dyment and Vermilion areas but poor in the Kenora area. Pike fair. Pickerel generally poor because of uneasonable weather.

North Bay — Pickerel excellent in Rabbit Lake, fair in McLaren's Bay and poor in the Martin River. Lake trout excellent in Lake Nipissing. Whitefish excellent in Thieving Bear and Rabbit Lakes. Speckled trout fair in streams.

Fort Arthur — Pike, pickerel and speckled trout fair. Lake trout fair to good.

Sudbury—Pike and lake trout good. Pickerel fair.

Timmins—Pickerel and pike excellent. Lake and speckled trout good.

White River — Pickerel, pike and speckled trout good. Lake trout fair.

SOUTH

Lake Simcoe—Speckled trout fair in Peal County and Credit River, fair to poor in Dufferin and Simcoe counties. Lake trout poor in Lake Simcoe. Pike and pickerel fair to good.

EAST

Kemptville — Pike and pickerel good in the St. Lawrence River; fair to good in the Rideau watershed. Fishing generally poor in lakes St. Lawrence and St. Francis. Pickerel generally fair.

Lindsay—Trout fair to excellent. Pickerel fair to good.

Pembroke—Lake trout good. Pickerel fair. Speckled trout good in Ryan Lake, poor in others.

WEST

Tweed — Lake trout good to very good in lakes Ashby, Limerick and Eagle. Pike fair. Pickerel very good. Speckled trout good.

WEST

Lake Erie—Pickerel good in Detroit River. Lake St. Clair and lower Thames River.

Lake Huron — Speckled trout poor to fair in southern areas and fair to good in northern part of the district. Pike fair and pickerel fair at Chesley Lake.

CLARK SIGNS FOR 200

TORONTO (CP) — Scotland's Jim Clark, second fastest qualifier for next Monday's Indianapolis 500, has signed for the international 200-mile races for sports cars at Mosport June 5, it was announced Wednesday. He will be competing with, among others, three top sports car drivers—John Surtees of England, 1964 world champion, Bruce McLaren of New Zealand and Jim Hall of Texas.

Major Baseball Looks For Expansion

WASHINGTON (AP)—American League president Joe Cronin and National League president Warren Giles indicate little support for quick expansion of their 10 - member leagues.

But they figure it'll happen eventually.

Six Democratic members of the U.S. House of Representatives recently asked for an expansion of major league baseball, giving clubs to Buffalo, Dallas - Fort Worth, Milwaukee and one other city, and creating three eight-team major leagues for the 1968 baseball season.

Cronin, in letters to the congressmen made public Wednesday, said the problems to be surmounted for expansion are manifold.

"To cite one of the most important problems," Cronin wrote, "we must provide a stability for existing franchises, particularly for those resulting through expansion in 1961. It is a personal opinion that we have enjoyed progress along these lines in the comparatively brief span of four championship seasons.

"Hopefully, baseball's supply of talent will continue on the increase, and our aims may be achieved in the foreseeable future so that we may adapt suggestions such as yours into a concrete plan of action."

Giles wrote that he agreed there are many cities desiring major league baseball and expansion will no doubt come some time in the future.

Crackers, Toronto Share Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two pitchers nearly 3,000 miles apart combined to give Atlanta Crackers a virtual first-place International League tie with Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night.

Dick Kelley hurled a six-hit shutout in Jacksonville, Fla., to give the Crackers a 7-0 win over the Suns, while Denny Bruhaker pitched Syracuse Chiefs to a 10-7 victory over the Leafs. The results cut Toronto's margin over Atlanta to 10 percentage points.

Elsewhere, Rochester Red Wings defeated Buffalo Bisons 8-4, and a game between Columbus Jets and Toledo Mud Hens was postponed because of rain.

Actually, Bruhaker (9-2) scattered 13 hits and needed misthing relief from Tom Timmerman, but the Chiefs rewarded with some solid hitting of their own, including three runs each batted in by John Mashchick and Bill Tuttle.

Tony Horton was the Leafs' batting ace scoring two runs including a 400-foot solo homer in the fifth inning.

Kelly, meanwhile, struck out 10 batters and walked only one as he pitched his second complete game of the year and brought his record to 5-5.

The Bisons, leading 4-2 after six innings, lost five runs after two men were out in the seventh, as the Red Wings hammered three Buffalo pitchers for seven hits.

Green Gaels Unbeaten In Four

OSHAWA (CP) — Oshawa Green Gaels remained atop the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A standings by registering their fourth consecutive victory, a 24-10 win over Long Branch castrollies Wednesday night.

Oshawa outshot Long Branch 36-17 in the wide-open game.

Jim Higgs scored four goals for Oshawa. Ross Jones and Phil Clayton added three each. Neil Armstrong, Mike Lewis, Dwight Parker, Brian Thompson, Gaylor Fowless and Don Stinson got one each.

Bob Richard scored three for Long Branch. Stan Cox and Ian Orr added two each and singles went to Rod Campbell, Paul MacDonald and Fred Comeau.

The only other scheduled junior game, Toronto Township at Etobicoke, was postponed by rain.

Chuvalo 'Onliest' Foeman

LEWISTON, Me. (CP-AP) — Cassius Clay, who retained his world heavyweight boxing championship here Tuesday night, said Wednesday "the onliest man I think has a chance with me is George Chuvalo," the Canadian champion.

Clay also said he would like to make his next title defence outdoors in New York City, "to let the people see it."

Clay said Sonny Liston, his victim in a one-minute, first-round knockout Tuesday night, was "the onliest man who had the power and the chance of getting to me."

"The onliest man I think has a chance with me is George Chuvalo. He's from Toronto. He takes a lot, he's determined, and he's not afraid. He climbed in the ring last night and they had to pull him off of me. He's serious."

Clay said he would fight anybody, but it is expected that his next bout will be with the former champion Patterson, probably this fall in New York.

YOUNG DRIVE BADLY

Drivers aged 19 and under have a disproportionate number of "non - collision" accidents— 17.3 per cent, as opposed to other drivers' 7.7 per cent.

Latta Shades Shannonville

Latta edged Shannonville 2-1 in what almost turned out to be a ludicrous Ontario Hardball Baseball League game at Latta last night.

The winners scored one run in the first inning, unearned, and made it 2-0 in the third on their lone hit, a single by Errol Cronkright, plus an error, stolen base and a fielder's choice.

Shannonville collected a total of two hits in all, both by Wayne Brant. He doubled in the first inning and crashed a home run in the fourth.

Howard Meeks sweated the roots for Latta, striking out half a dozen batters and walking but one. His club scored but once.

Bill Barberstock was the starter and loser, giving way to Bobby Hill in the fourth frame. Barberstock fanned four and passed none. Hill struck out three and walked one. The club committed two errors.

ASKS TOO MUCH

ROTHERHAM, England (CP) Always South knows the rules bad goes up, but he was not prepared for the £5,821 ($15,063) bill he got in the mail. Council officials later confirmed the billing machine had made a mistake, and £21 was his correct assessment.

Mr Pep Returns To Ring

TORONTO (CP)—Willie Pep, former world featherweight champion, will be permitted to fight only an exhibition on an afternoon boxing card here Sunday, June 6.

Pep, who held the crown twice and lost it on both occasions to Sandy Saddler, retired in 1959 but resumed fighting this year.

He was to be the headline attraction at an open-air show at Maple Leaf Stadium.

But Merry McKenzie of Toronto, who has the dual role of World Boxing Association president and Ontario Athletic Commissioner, has ruled that Pep can fight only an exhibition because of his age. He is 42.

McKenzie explained Tuesday that while the WBA favors retirement from boxing at 36, it is up to member athletic commissions to rule on the matter. He said he made the Pep decision in the interest of the fans and boxing in general.

Rock Hudson Again Voted Germany's Popular Star

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene—

Rock Hudson continues his escape from the bedroom farces. His next film will be Seconds, which he describes as a horror picture, but not the Vincent Price variety. This one will stress psychological horror. It is being directed by John Frankenheimer, the young suspense master who made the Manchurian Candidate and Seven Days in May.

Rock recently made a trip to Munich to pick up his sixth Bambi, symbol of his position as Germany's most popular male star.

"It's the fourth time I've gone to accept the award, and I tried something new. Making my speech in German," said Rock. "I did it in the Bavarian dialect, which seemed to please them. In fact, I never got so many laughs."

Carroll Baker wasn't too exhausted after finishing Harlow to toss a wing-ding party at her house. Between dances she commented that the film was the toughest she has tackled. And not only because of the virus that kept her out of the picture for two weeks.

"It was the first time I have done a picture that was glamorous and beavily dramatic," she said. "That meant two or three hours of being made up and then going into emotional scenes all day."

Carroll complained about the break-neck speed of the film because of the competition of the other Harlow. Her comment: "It can't hurt us. We would have done better to take our time and come into the theatres next fall." The Joseph E. Levine epic is aimed at nationwide openings next month.

Carroll's reward for her labors: Three months rest on the Riviera.

Harlow never had it so good.

PRIZE HOPES FALL

SWANAGE, England (CP) — Constance Puckett expected to get a £490 mini-car when she won first prize in a competition organized by the Dorset Playing Fields Association. Instead she was offered a £30 transistor radio. Organizer Eric Milner explained the campaign had brought in only £35 instead of an expected £2,500.

Twisters Whip Seven States; Two Are Killed

CHICAGO (AP) — Tornadoes and thunderstorms hammered eight states Wednesday, killing at least two persons, injuring several others and causing extensive property damage.

The twisters whipped across sections of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, and Oklahoma.

A lineman was killed in Elkhart, Ind., when strong winds blew a dangling power line against him. One person was killed by lightning in Sylvania, Ohio, a Toledo suburb.

The Chicago metropolitan area was lashed by violent weather including five tornadoes. At least 11 persons suffered injuries. Twisters hit some populous areas. No deaths were reported.

In suburban Skokie, high winds ripped parts of a roof from a junior high school while 850 pupils and 30 teachers huddled in the hallways. None was injured.

A tornado struck a Roman Catholic school in suburban Rosemont while some 350 pupils participated in services. A section of the roof was ripped off. There were no injuries.

George Meany Praised Anew By Congress

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. labor leader George Meany was praised anew Wednesday for bucking the federal trusteeship still imposed on the Canadian International Union of Canada.

Seven presidents of the AFL-CIO, had left the 12th biennial convention of the SIU of North America when SIU president Paul Hall recalled Meany's attitude to the Canadian trusteeship dated from late 1963 and said Meany hasn't changed his mind.

The SIU's Canadian problems were a recurring theme which left gut fuller discussion before the convention ends June 3. Former Canadian SIU head Hal Banks, who resigned and jumped $50,000 Canadian ball last year, was present in spirit if not in body.

The Canadian government imposed the trusteeship after a bitter Canadian waterfront violence and to clean out the SIU. It remains in force on the SIU and other marine unions.

Port Burwell Woman Killed

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—One person was killed and three others injured in a car-truck collision at a point in Fowler's Corners Wednesday night.

Dead is Marie Almon, 47, of Port Burwell. Her husband, A. James, 54, driver of the truck, is in hospital here with undetermined injuries.

Catharine Downey, 19, of Lindsay, driver of the car, and her brother, Mrs. Jean Almon, 54, were treated for minor injuries in hospital and released.

Hopes of Early Agreement On Rule Changes Fading

OTTAWA (CP) — Hopes of early agreement among the Government and Opposition parties on proposed Commons rules changes faded slightly Wednesday after arrangements for a meeting worked out on a couple of points of disagreement.

The parties had agreed informally on a trial period for proposed rules changes and to an increase in the membership of some of the new standing committees suggested in the rules-change resolutions.

But negotiators were reported to have struck a serious snag over a proposal for allocation of time to debate various legislative measures and on the question of a permanent Speaker to preside over the Commons.

There was no immediate indication whether the negotiation among House leaders of the five political parties will be resumed.

The trial period for the new rules was expected to cover the rest of the current parliamentary session and at least another session after which the rules would be reviewed.

BOOST MEMBERSHIP

The 15 new standing committees, the government had proposed total membership of 22 MPs. This is to be boosted to 34 MPs, providing the New Democrats with two committee members instead of one, as envisaged in the government's original proposals.

The two main points of disagreement involve Progressive Conservative insistence that the length of debates on individual items of business must not be fixed without the approval of Opposition MPs, the 265 MPs.

Under the government's proposal the allocation of time could be made by simple majority.

In effect, the Opposition proposal would give the Progressive Conservatives, who since they hold 94 Common seats.

On the question of a permanent Speaker, the official Opposition is reported to be holding out for adoption of the suggestion of Opposition House Disenbaker that the present presiding officer, Alan Macnaughton, be given the job.

WOULD CONCEDE SEAT

He said in the Commons the Conservatives would not contest Mr. Macnaughton's Mount Royal riding in the next election if the government agrees. Mr. Macnaughton was elected as a Liberal.

However, Mr. Macnaughton is reported to have advised Prime Minister Pearson he is interested in giving up the speakership at the end of the current parliamentary session or before.

Government representatives are reported to have proposed as an alternative to Mr. Macnaughton his current deputy, Lucien Lamoureux, who represents the Ontario riding of Stormont.

Informants indicated this was unacceptable to the Conservatives.

Mr. Roy Evans, who is working at Brockville spent the weekend at his home here.

A number of ladies attended the Women's Institute district annual at Hazards' Church on Tuesday.

GRISLY GALLOWS GONE

INKPEN, England (CP)—The inhabitants of this Berkshire village are annoyed because someone has cut down their gibbet. Built in 1676, but used only once, the 21-foot solid oak gallows has been a landmark for years. Villagers believe someone with strong anti-hanging views cut it down, but they propose to re-erect it.

Dramatic Anthology Series Will Return Says Susskind

NEW YORK (AP) — David Susskind, whose principal occupation is producing programs for network television, is convinced that the dramatic anthology series soon will return to popularity.

"Television moves in cycles, and we have now completed the life cycle of the social significance show," he says. "In fact, we overdid it as usual, with too many series determined to hit the audiences over the head with dramas hammering at current problems."

These "social significance" series included Susskind's own East Side, West Side, and such programs as The Defenders, For The People, and Slattery's People. All except Slattery's People will have disappeared by September. CBS is giving Slattery's People, a second season in which to prove itself.

"Right now it is apparent that audiences want relaxation and escape, probably because they have enough serious problems in their own lives. Most are living out personal dramas," Susskind says. "That seems obvious in the success of shows like Goldfinger and Mary Poppins.

The producer says that "in spite of the TV theory that the continuing hero is essential to a program's success, people do not patronize theatres showing plays or movies because there is one character they follow, but why should this be television law?"

Drama lovers will hope Susskind is right, but in recent seasons two pretty good anthology series—The Richard Boone Show and Premier Theatre—died from poor ratings.

Anthology programs like the Bob Hope Theatre and NBC's Thursday night Suspense Theatre have not done well.

Ann Landers

Charm Defined as Gentle But Packing a Wallop

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I enjoyed your definition of "class." And now will you please give us another definition? What is charm anyway? — MG.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR MG. — Charm walks on art gum soles. It is gentle. But it packs a wallop like a bag of wet cement.

Charm is a magical quality that defrosts, disarms, delights and fascinates. It is not a sudden attack of sweetness that can be turned off and on like a faucet. It is woven into the fabric of the personality like a silver thread. It glistens. It shines and it never wears off. For months. For years. Forever.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I married at 25 and I've had three children in the last five years. I worked through all my pregnancies but I'm not complaining because I felt very good the whole time. (The last baby was almost born in the store.)

I want to quit work but my husband says he can't make it on one cheque and it's unfair of me to put the whole burden on him.

For the past two months I have kept a penny by penny record of what I have spent because I am sure my husband, a good the housekeeper, added up the taxis, lunches, buses, income tax on my salary, payroll deduction and the salary for a nurse when my youngest child was sick, I cleared an average of $73 a month. This does not include the cost of clothes I need because I work downtown.

Am I being unfair to my husband? What shall I do? RASSLING WITH MY CONSCIENCE.

DEAR RASSLING — Quit. Your young family needs you more than you need the $73 a month.

Most of the pre-school children belong at home unless there is a good reason why they must go out and work. The only valid reasons are

(a) There is no other breadwinner in the family.

(b) A doctor has told the mother her kids are driving her nuts and she must get away from the house for their good as well as hers. These women should not have their children of course, but they did have them and a program of separation must be worked out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband's boss is the most proper, courteous, and soft-spoken person in the world — when he is sober. When he gets drunk (which is about once a week) he is profane, vulgar and rude, and he loves to call people and talk on the telephone regardless of the hour.

Last night at 2:30 a.m. he called from a bar and sang two choruses of "Well 'Fil The Sun Shines Nellie." He then put a few buddies on the line — men he would not have been caught dead with if he had been sober. They sang some dirty songs my husband recognized from the army.

We resent having our sleep broken up this way, especially on Saturday night because we like to go to church on Sunday. My husband is afraid to talk to the boss about this for obvious reasons. I think he should. Please give us some advice. — BLOODSHOT EYES.

DEAR EYES — Mentioning this to the boss won't accomplish a thing. Telephone drunks are incurable — unless they go off the air.

The telephone company can install a jack-type phone which can be plugged out, or a bell control which will shut off the bell at the flick of a lever. The cost is nominal compared to what a night's sleep is worth to a family.

Do you feel ill at ease — out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Lander's booklet, "The Key To Popularity," enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Commission Backs Record

LEWISTON, Me. (AP) — Despite the furore over heavyweight champion Cassius Clay's quick knockout of Sonny Liston, the one - minute time will stand until the Maine state boxing commission is convinced otherwise.

So said state commission member Duncan MacDonald Wednesday when Clay held a press conference in the motel he made his headquarters.

Clay himself was more than a bit responsible for the chaos that beclouds the time of Tuesday night's knockout in the ring box arena.

A short right to the left jaw sent the hulking Liston to the canvas. But referee Jersey Joe Walcott, the heavyweight champion of a decade ago, had his hands full trying to push Clay to a neutral corner. Clay insisted on standing over the fallen Liston.

TOLD FIGHT OVER

By the time Walcott did move Clay to a respectable distance and could get to timekeeper Francis McDonough, Walcott was told the fight was over—that McDonough had actually counted to 12.

But Liston had regained his feet and he and Clay were fighting again.

Walcott stepped in between them and raised the hand of the brash, 23-year-old Clay.

The time was announced as one minute but some quarters reported timing the action as 1:43 or4 1:44.

Both MacDonald and Clay were in the audience Wednesday when sportswriters, equipped with stop watches, timed the action in the filmed version of the bout.

These unofficial times showed that Liston was floored at 1:44 and got up at 1:56. When Walcott finally got around to stopping the fight, two minutes 11 seconds had passed.

"We will get a copy of these films for all three members of the commission to view before we make a decision," MacDonald said.

Palmer Method

THE ARNOLD

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

"SOMETHING LEFT" STARTS DOWNSWING

No golfer can be successful unless his weight shifts to his left leg early in his downswing. Without this weight transfer, his clubhead will not remain "inside" the target line until it reaches the hitting area, and his wrists will not delay their unhinging until late in the downswing.

The golfer who starts his downswing with hand movement (No. 1) will not achieve this proper shifting of weight.

Instead, you should start your downswing with something on your left side. This first movement may be a lowering of the left head, or a lateral movement of your left hip to the left (No. 2). Such moves will help delay the unscalding of your wrists and encourage the return of your right elbow to your right side, thus keeping the clubhead "inside."

Many golfers go awry at this stage of the swing. I suggest you practice this initial move of the downswing until it becomes automatic. The dividends you will receive in added distance and accuracy from a proper weight transfer will make all the work worthwhile.

What's That? Porridge A-la Cordon Bleu?

By HAROLD MORRISON

GLASGOW (CP)—Two young Canadians are graduating this year from a unique British school where the emphasis is not so much on reading, writing and arithmetic as in the production of gracious hosts and fine culinary skills that may turn Scotland, the land of haggis and oatmeal, into one of the great food centres of the world.

Delicate aromas float from the kitchens of Ross Hall, Britain's only residential hotel school which attracts students from many parts of the world, ready to seek jobs as hotel managers after a strict, three-year course involving bed - making and cooking, serving meals and drinks, planning menus fit for tourists and kings—and learning how to make the hotel business pay.

Among those graduating this year are John Armstrong, 23, and Eric Keene, 21, both of London, Ont., first Canadians to enter and succeed in this gastronomic edifice which has won acclaim among the European hostelries.

"We have nothing like this in Canada," says Armstrong, whose ambition, along with that of Keene, is to capture an executive post in some leading Canadian hotel. "The course is stiff but we made it and we think we've got the best training money can buy."

Head chef is portly, beaming Edward Renold, captain of the 1964 British culinary team in the Frankfurt competition at Frankfurt where he won the top prize of Chevalier du Merite Agricole. He'll be spending the summer aboard a Canadian transatlantic liner, preparing sumptuous fare for the tourists.

And to show what he can do, Renold, with the help of his students, turned out a seven-course luncheon that could delight the taste buds of the most lavish epicurean.

Spey trout, smoked in oak chips, were "garnished with a sauce of horseradish and raw beetroot. Then came a soup of mountain hare and feathered game, flavored with claret and brandy, followed by savory, wafer-thin pancakes filled with a dice of sweetbreads and chicken breasts.

A Scottish lunch, of course, might be meaningless without prime fillets of Angus beef. The Ross Hall students added a rich mushroom sauce flavored with sherry wine.

And to top this "mere knicknocon" a concoction known as Perthshire brandie, mixed apparently before delighted eyes, Bramble mist is a combination of crushed blackberries, fresh cream from Ayrshire herds, sugar and kirsch, served in goblets.

But don't go away. There are petticoat tails to come—dainty fingers of shortbread, flavored with caraway seeds—and a platter of assorted scotch cheeses, including Orkney, Dunlop and Crowdie.

Each day some of the students cook, some do the shopping, some prepare the menus and some do the serving—to other students who eat and criticize under the watchful eye of the instructors. Sometimes a few invited guests do the eating.

Schoolboy Oarsmen Set Record

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. CP The largest entry in the 20-year history of the Canadian Schoolastic Rowing championships will square off on the Royal Canadian Henley course here this weekend.

Some 400 oarsmen and scullers from 25 high schools in 12 United States and Canadian rowing centres will row 17 heats Friday and 10 finals Saturday.

Honors for coming the farthest belong to Sheringham Lake Boys School of Vancouver Island, here with a heavy eight.

The Handguns

Louis Kuiesar scored 264 to pace the field at the Quinte Marksmen's regular shoot this week.

Other scores were: Frank Allin 257, Cliff Smith 253, Don Parks 246, Roy Read 240, good for a club total of 1,250.

Third Spot Team Wins Rally Title

TORONTO (CP)—A special appeal board Wednesday night awarded the trans-Canada 4,000-mile car rally championship to third-place finishers Klaus Ross and John Bird of Toronto.

Paul McLennan of Toronto and John Wilson of New Dundee, Ont., originally declared the winners when the rally ended in Vancouver April 30, were relegated to second place by the board.

The special board was set up by the Canadian Automobile Sport Club, and it overruled an earlier decision by a regional club board in Vancouver.

Ross and Bird, winners of the 1964 Montreal - to - Vancouver grind, had complained they were penalized 10 points too many because of an error in a time control clock on the fifth day of the six-day rally.

Henry Taylor of London and Robin Edwardes of Fabreville, Que., originally second, fell to third place in the official standings with 100 points. Ross and Bird had 96 points and McLellan and Wilson 89 after the hearing.

Company Director Tells Inquiry Information on Firm Was Too Scanty

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — A director of Farmers' Allied Meat Enterprises Co-operative testified Wednesday the financially crippled co - operative might have done better had it been more secretive in its transactions.

Harold Schmidt of Baden testified at a royal commission inquiry that he was unable to secure pertinent information on what F.A.M.E. was doing even though he was a director.

The inquiry, before Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court, was ordered earlier this year by Premier Robarts. The 13,000-member co-operative lost a $1,500,000 down payment on F. W. Fearman Packing Company of Burlington last November when it failed to meet a $1,000,000second-payment deadline.

Mr. Schmidt said that at a meeting Sept. 1, 1964—the day after F.A.M.E. announced purchase agreement to buy the Fearman plant — the lengthy purchase agreement was read to directors.

He said he moved that copies be made for all directors to give them a better chance to analyze and digest the information, but was told it would be too costly. The motion was defeated.

"So I brought my own copying machine to the next meeting, but was told that no copies could leave the F.A.M.E. office."

Mr. Schmidt said the co-operative would have received a great deal more help from other farm organizations if it had been freer with its information to them.

Mr. Justice Grant said previous testimony "was fortified" by Mr. Schmidt's and that "there was a great element of secrecy" in what the co-operative was doing.

Asked the reason, Mr. Schmidt said his ability to keep things confidential was doubted.

Mr. Schmidt said he often asked F.A.M.E. President Charles McInnis where the supplementary information was coming from for the Fearman plant and who was to carry the mortgage, but he received no satisfactory answer.

He said that when he first learned the Fearman transaction was being proposed by fellow directors, whom he did not identify, he recommended that the co-operative proceed slowly.

He said he opposed any outright purchase and felt the proper procedure would have been to take an option which would give the board enough time to completely investigate the proposal.

Mr. Schmidt said he never was "keyed in" on finances. Up to the day the preliminary agreement was signed Aug. 24, he had no knowledge of its terms or its financing.

He said he was concerned that the image of farmers as poor businessmen might prejudice Ontario after the F.A.M.E. problems.

Testimony earlier Wednesday said a Scarborough co-operative paid $185,000 for a meat packing and slaughter plant with the same volume of business as the Fearman one which cost F.A.M.E. $3,500,000.

James Simpson, general manager of the First Co-operative Packers Ltd., in Barrie—known as Copico—said his firm purchased the fixed assets of the Wirths Packing Co., at Stratford for $185,000.

The company has a sales value of about $9,500,000 annually, he said.

The Wirtyn Company is about 108 years old and the present buildings about 75 years old.

The Fearman company's volume was about $10,000,000. Processing facilities are about four years old.

Mr. Simpson said the Stratford plant could double its volume. Earlier testimony by Fearman owner E. R. Gunner of London, England, indicated the Burlington plant total volume could be increased to about $18,000,000 annually with present facilities. This would be about the same as the Stratford plant.

Young Men Who Deliver Headlines Seldom Make Them

Youths with nothing constructive to do in their free time may wind up in trouble, making newspaper headlines with their delinquent behavior.

On the other hand, the young men who deliver our nation's newspapers operate spare-time businesses that give them the satisfaction of serving their communities. They learn the value of property, so they're not likely to destroy it deliberately.

Route management experience also instills integrity, self-reliance and courtesy—qualities that help mold good citizens and successful adults.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 28

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Avoid extremes. Exchange knowledge, ideas. Being secretive only arouses suspicion. If money question arises express your views fairly . . . then you earn respect.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23): Flurry of activity indicated, but check any legal implications. Be aware of policies, leases, prior rights. May be necessary to make adjustments. Be forthright, specific.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Financial status of one close to you may be in spotlight. Follow policy of informed skepticism. Some areas require added research. Be thorough and prevent future embarrassment.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Some statements made should be taken with grain of salt. It might be wise to hold off on new ventures. Obtain hint from today's Libra message. Investigate before acting.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Co-operate with Gemini individual. Combined effort proves profitable. Work for better relations with associates. Much can be accomplished. Go to it!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Time to apply knowledge. Accept new methods, ideas. Shake off lethargy. What you seek might be closer than you realize. Have courage, and full steam ahead.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 19): Practical affairs dominate. You cannot successfully skip details. Be observant. Watch. You advance . . . but pace may be slow. If you are confident and try, success is yours.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Obtain hint from today's Aquarius message. Don't rush along. Patience is truly a virtue now. Do the job at hand today and make agreements later.

If today is your birthday . . . you have "spark" which causes others to sit up and take notice. You are no ordinary person!

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Taurus, Gemini. Special word to Scorpio: Check procedures and be sure of rights, permissions before acting.

Awards Presented to Air Cadets at Annual Inspection

The Royal Canadian Air Cadets, 608 Belleville Squadron, held its third annual inspection last night at the armories.

The 83 boys on parade, aged 14 to 18, were inspected by Group Capt. Charles Robert Thompson, Commanding Officer, 6 Repair Depot, Trenton. He was assisted by FO J. R. Chandler, 437 Squadron, Trenton and Mr. D. Whitley of Trenton, Air Cadet League representative.

Also, at the Belleville harbor, cadets from RCSCC Quinte were also on parade, being inspected by Commander Hugh G. Cheeseman, Commanding Officer, HMCS Cataraqui.

At the Air Cadet inspection, Group Capt. Thompson congratulated the boys on a fine showing.

Following the inspection proper, awards were presented. Sgt. Bob Argent, 16, a grade 11 student at Moira Secondary School, was presented with the trophy for Cadet of the Year.

Other award winners were: squadron rifle trophy, WO2 R. Barrick; perfect attendance, first year, LAC R. Gansel, LAC G. Bonkon, LAC D. Brown and LAC B. Thompson; perfect attendance, second year, Cpl. P. Jones, Cpl. S. Riley, and LAC D. Welch; perfect attendance, third year, Sgt. N. Crawford, Cpl. R. Martin, Cpl. P. Boulton, Cpl. K. Campbell and WO2 R. Barrick; graduation certificates, Sgt. Fred House and Flt. Sgt. Woodley; instructor of the year, Jim O'Bryan; flying scholarship, Cpl. John Andrews; and senior leaders course, WO2, Ray Barrick, who at only 15 is cadet commanding officer of the squadron and was the cadet of the year in 1964.

A crowd of over 100 adults turned out to watch the air cadets on parade.

Radically Different Views Expressed on Economy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada's influence on the national economy was emphasized in testimony Wednesday before the board of transport commissioners. But the arguments took two radically different views of it.

John L. O'Brien, head of Bell's legal team to the board's public hearing, said any decision on changing the telephone company's permissive earnings level should take into consideration the stimulating effect Bell spending has on the economy.

In effect, he argued that what is good for Bell is good for the nation. Bell is proposing that the board increase its permissive profit level, now $2.45 a share.

C. S. Jackson of Toronto, president of the United Electrical Workers (Ind.), said the company has become too big and too important to be left under private control. It should be taken over by the federal government.

Bruce Magnusson of Toronto, head of the Communist Party in Ontario, said a study should be made on the question of nationalizing Bell and its subsidiaries in the public interest.

Both Mr. Jackson and Mr. Magnusson urged the board not to increase the permissive earnings level. They said the big Ontario and Quebec telephone monopoly is making enough money now. A higher level would only encourage it to seek higher telephone rates.

FIRE LOSSES DOWN

MONTREBELLO, Que. (CP) — Fire losses in Canada during 1964 decreased slightly to $115,625,000 the previous year, the Canadian Underwriters' Association annual meeting was told Thursday. Both figures were still up fairly sharply from 1962's $107,800,000 said H. G. Flower of Toronto, chairman of the property department of the association representing 107 firms.

East Germans Lob Tear Gas At Canadians

BERLIN (Reuters) — East German guards lobbed tear gas grenades today when four Canadian journalists went close to the East-West border wire.

Stanley Burke, correspondent of the CBC based in Paris, said eight gas bombs were hurled from a border watch tower near Gatow air base, where Queen Elizabeth flew in today to visit West Berlin.

Burke said he and three colleagues were taking pictures near the wire. The bombs were thrown when they attempted to film guards in the tower.

"I think we were technically a few feet into East German territory," he said. "We moved back with one or two tears in our eyes."

He said the bombs did not come over the wire. They landed on the East German side and the gas drifted through.

Carves B. C. Ranchland Out of the Wilderness

CHETWYND, B.C. (CP) — A 13-ton iron ball will rumble back to work in mid-summer, ripping out 20 acres of bush an hour on the 155,000-acre Del Rio ranch, 30 miles north of here in the Peace River country.

It will be followed by a giant roller made from a railroad tank car as crews continue to clear brush from about three-quarters of the ranch or more than 115,000 acres.

"If we can get all those trees cleared away and seed the land to pasture, we can get 15,000 head of Herefords on the range instead of the 1,000 we're running today," says ranch manager Eric Williams.

The same resourcefulness which produced the brush clearing methods has been applied to the problem of winter-feeding cattle. Mr. Williams says the answer lies in feed made from wood pulp.

The cattle on the ranch wintered this year on feed prepared from ground cottonwood and white poplar, mixed with rolled oats. But at four tons a day costing $9 a ton, it was "fairly expensive."

However, Mr. Williams said: "If we had our own mill to process the wood, we could probably cut the cost by two-thirds. At that rate it would be really economical."

But the major job is clearing land on the ranch, spread in an angle formed by the junction of the Peace and Pine rivers. In this, Mr. Williams said "this roller is the best implement we have."

Two crawler tractors drag the iron ball on lengths of anchor chain through treed areas. Blade bulldozers windrow the debris and disk plows then work the land before the roller comes in.

The Del Rio Ranch Ltd. is headed by President Wilburt L. Griffith of Calgary, former owner of the Waldron ranch near Claresholm in southern Alberta.

A CURSED STRIKE

CARDIFF, Wales (Reuters)— A strike over an exchange of swear words between two mine workers a month ago spread to three more coal pits Wednesday, leaving 32,000 men idle and paralysing 35 of the 85 South Wales mines. Some 3,500 mine officials are on strike because a man was moved to another pit after an exchange of bad language between him and an 18-year-old miner.

Fear 300 Indian Coal Miners Killed In Blast

BHANBAD, India (Reuters)— The Press Trust of India reported today that more than 300 coal miners were feared killed in a pit explosion in Bihar State.

The Indian news agency said the explosion took place at a mine 60 miles from Dhanbad, which is about 130 miles northwest of Calcutta.

If the death toll is confirmed, the disaster would be the worst since 298 West German miners died in February, 1962, after a gas explosion at Saarbruecken.

The world's worst recorded mining tragedy occurred in April 1942, when 1,549 men were killed in the Honkeiko colliery, Manchuria.

The blast early today at the Bhori mine occurred at a time when workers were changing shifts.

The underground explosion caused wreckage over an area of about 200 square miles, with a huge cloud of coaldust ascending.

A spokesman for the ministry of mines said in New Dehli initial information indicated that the explosion might have been touched off when underground gas accumulated.

The mine is part of the Bokaro Ramgarh group.

It provides fuel for the Bokaro steel mill which the Russians built for India when the United States agreed to construct it but then withdrew the offer.

Officials said rescue teams had penetrated isolated areas of the underground pits several hours after the blast, indicating there was not any extensive tunnel collapse.

The minister of mines said unverified reports were that at least 200 miners were dead.

"But our officials there are too busy directing rescue operations to get in touch with us," mine ministry sources said "so we don't know exactly what happened."

A large number of casualties was feared because the explosion occurred when the number of coal underground was double the number who normally work.

A huge blast was reported to have shot up the mine shaft, killing men working nearby on the surface.

The mine turned out 20,000 tons of coal monthly.

Helicopters Collide Killing Nine GI's

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — Two U.S. Army helicopters collided in the air and crashed in flames today at the Bien Hoa air base. Nine Americans were killed and four badly injured.

A 10th American was killed when Viet Cong guerrillas and U.S. marines fought a grenade battle before dawn six miles west of the Chu Lai beachhead 82 miles south of Da Nang. It was the first serious attack on the marine installation at Chu Lai, where U.S. Navy engineers are building a jet airstrip.

The marines were wounded, two of them seriously. Six Viet Cong bodies were found and a wounded guerrilla was captured.

The two helicopters collided about 50 to 100 feet up and crashed 200 yards from the helicopter area of the Bien Hoa base 15 miles north of Saigon. Both were troop-carrying craft.

Also, Viet Cong Vietnamese air force planes pounded three today sites and one ferry in North Viet Nam with bombs and rockets today. Heavy antiaircraft fire was reported at some points, a spokesman said, but all planes returned safely.

Attacking with mortars and recoilless rifles, Viet Cong forces overran a government outpost 15 miles southwest of Saigon, killed 24 regional forces troops and wounded 12.

U.S. military spokesmen said an unknown number of regional troops also were missing following the attack on the outpost at Ba Thanh Ha. One Viet Cong was reported killed.

Forty Viet Cong were reported killed and 18 captured in a search and clear operation in Phong Dinh Province 95 miles southwest of Saigon. The operation continued today. Government casualties included 30 South Vietnamese killed, 39 wounded and two U.S. Army advisers wounded slightly.

A Viet Cong battalion hit government positions in at least six places 45 miles south of Da Nang today.

U.S. Air Force and marine jets in the repeated strikes against the guerrillas. One pilot reported a large 200 Communist with rocket and cannon fire.

Viet Cong guerrillas also assaulted a Vietnamese command post in Tam Ky and blew up a medical dispensary.

Hamburg Is Queen's Final Stop Of Triumphant Visit to Germany

HAMBURG (Reuters) — Britain's Queen Elizabeth arrived here by train today to spend the last day of her three-day West German state visit in the country's greatest port and second city. Thousands greeted her.

Prince Philip wore the uniform of admiral of the fleet for the arrival.

The royal couple were due to sail for home tonight aboard the royal yacht Britannia.

On the way from Hannover, the royal train passed the spot on the Luenenburg heath where Britain's Field Marshal Lord Montgomery took the surrender of the German armies in 1945.

The people of Hamburg, normally undemonstrative and strongly socialist, applauded the Queen warmly as she drove past.

A girl dashed through the string of cars in the motorcade to hand a bouquet of flowers into the royal car.

The Queen's visit followed a trip to Berlin Thursday during which the Queen and Prince Philip drove past the Berlin Wall but did not stop.

At the Brandenburg Gate Prince Philip smiled and waved at armed East German border guards who watched through binoculars.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Unusually cold air covers the area around Lake Superior and it is gradually moving over the Great Lakes. Considerable day time cloudiness is expected over most of Ontario. Israeli Troops Raid Sabotage Bases In Jordan

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli parstroopers and infantry made three raids into neighboring Jordan Thursday night and claimed destruction of a fuel depot and six buildings used as bases for sabotage raids on Israel.

A Jordanian military spokesman said the Israelis, in blowing up two farmhouses, killed two farmers and two children and injured four other farmers. The Israelis said they made sure all the buildings were uninhabited before destroying them.

An Israeli communique said seven Israeli soldiers were injured, four seriously, when a grenade exploded accidentally as they were returning to Israel.

The Jordan spokesman said Jordanian forces clashed with two of the Israeli patrols, injuring the commander of one of them. Neither side reported any Jordanian military casualties.

The Jordan government said it reported the attacks to the Arab joint supreme command, the Israel Mixed Armistice, the Arab premiers and the UN Security Council. It also called for an urgent meeting of the UN mixed armistice commission in Jerusalem.

The spokesman said Jordan would not retaliate for the raids because it had previously told the Arab command in Cairo it would retaliate to an Israeli attack only in accordance with the unified command's plans, not on its own.

Gen. Itzhak Rabin, the Israeli army chief of staff, told a press conference the raids were a warning action and the raiders had tried to cause "as few casualties as possible."

The Israeli communique said the raiders struck at three centres which the El Fattah sabotage organization had cited as bases for strikes Israel despite "repeated warnings" to Jordanian authorities.

Moving Close To Changes

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The five political parties in the Commons moved closer to agreement on reforming its rules on procedures Thursday and awaited Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's return to consider the question of a permanent Speaker to arbitrate its debates.

An amendment proposed by Labor Minister MacEachen to provide more time to discuss spending programs than was originally proposed and to ease the "guillotine" rule that could be used to end debates was approved by all sides.

Mr. Diefenbaker's reaction is awaited on an invitation issued by the labor minister to comment — along with other party leaders—on the acceptability of former Speaker Roland Michener as permanent Speaker.

The opposition leader was out of the capital on a speaking engagement when Mr. MacEachen made his proposals. His comment on the amended resolutions is not expected until next week because today's Commons is to debate an interim supply motion and hold a foreign affairs debate.

CHOSEN BY MPs

The Speaker now is chosen by all MPs at the opening of each session after being nominated by the government of the day. Mr. Diefenbaker says experience is crucial because he wants a permanent Speaker removed from political life is essential if the new rules are to work.

The issue has fostered a cat-and-mouse game between Prime Minister Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker. When he urged the creation of a permanent Speaker, Mr. Diefenbaker said that Speaker Alan Macnaughton, would be a competent man.

The prime minister countered with Mr. Michener's name in the event neither Mr. Macnaughton, Yukon; Lamoureux, his deputy, was available.

Although each leader is expected to back his own MPs, the other's party for candidates, neither Mr. Macnaughton nor Mr. Michener may get the nod in the event it is decided to have a permanent Speaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker appointed Mr. Michener in 1957 but was known to be less than happy with some of his decisions. After his defeat in Toronto St. Paul's riding in 1962, Mr. Michener was given high commissioner to India in 1963—by Mr. Pearson.

Some of Mr. Macnaughton's decisions have been unpopular

U.S. Foots Dominican Payroll, Putting OAS in Paymaster Role

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — The United States gave the Organization of American States a new lever against the Dominican junta today by making the OAS paymaster for government employees.

OAS Secretary-General Jose Mora announced that Washington has given his organization $6,000,000 to pay the salaries of government workers.

Mora said troops from the newly created inter-American force have been stationed inside the bank to prevent the junta from using the funds to pay salaries.

No reason for the move was given, but presumably it was aimed at putting pressure on the junta into negotiating with the rebels to form a coalition government.

An attempt by special envoys of President Johnson to get the rebel and junta factions to set up a coalition headed by former agriculture minister Antonio Guzman has been rejected by the junta president, Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera. Imbert denounced the plan as a "frank intervention in the internal affairs" of the Dominican Republic.

Imbert assailed the coalition formula before several thousand cheering followers Thursday at a rally in front of the National Congress Palace in Santo Domingo.

"This is an unequivocal manifestation that as Dominicans you'll not accept that Dominican sign to our nationality impose a government on us," he declared.

Imbert accused the OAS of exceeding its authority in occupying the government's central bank without permission of his junta.

Imbert said his troops had surrounded the bank and bottled up the OAS watchdog team inside. It consisted of six U.S. members of the inter-American force.

Later U.S. sources said there had been a misunderstanding which was quickly cleared up and that the junta troops had been withdrawn.

Imbert told U.S. officials Wednesday the junta needed $3,500,000 to meet government payrolls in the next two weeks. Since he took over a little more than two weeks ago, the United States has given the Dominican government $3,950,000 to keep it from collapsing. The money came from pesos accumulated by the United States in Dominican payments for U.S. supplies.

Economists reported that with no revenue coming in, the $3,950,000 has been used up.

Montreal Credit Union Robbed Despite Watch

MONTREAL (CP) — A cashier used as a hostage and an innocent passerby remain in critical condition in hospital today following an Ascension Day credit union holdup while 300 persons were celebrating the Roman Catholic holiday in an adjacent church.

Provincial police were staking out the Caisse Populaire in suburban St. Leonard, one of three such establishments they were watching following tips of gangland activity.

A large black 1964 car pulled up outside the two-storey brick building housing the credit union shortly after 12:30 p.m. Three men, two of them white hoods, raced for the credit union, while the other man stayed at the car. One man stayed outside the door.

Police moved in from hiding places near the St. Leonard church and a tree in the credit union lawn. The bandit in the car backed his horn to warn his confreres, then managed to escape.

Inside the credit union, the two hooded men scooped up $3,000 from the till. An employee managed to sound the alarm and one of the bandits answered a telephone call from St. Leonard police, assuring them a report, and replied "take us if you can."

TAKE HOSTAGES

After an exchange of gunfire in which the gang's look - out man was wounded by police gun, escaped through nearby fields, the two hooded stickup men took with them as hostage cashier Lise Paquette, 20, and credit union manager Claude Poitras as hostages.

The police held their fire as the quartet made for the car.

About the time Lise Sine, credit union employee Gildas Brisson, the first of the worshippers out of the church, was warned by police hiding nearby to return, and slammed shut the front door of the church.

The congregation filed out of a side door as police reinforcements arrived, bringing the total force to about 200.

The quartet headed for their car, the bandits holding .45-calibre automatics at their hostages' heads. Within moments, local resident Clifford Racicot, 54, walked by, unaware of the incident.

SHOT IN STOMACH

A bandit ordered him to halt, then shot him in the stomach. He remained in critical condition.

Police said almost two-thirds of the cashiers in Montreal's credit unions are women.

Students Will Get Bonuses

TORONTO (CP) — The government announced Thursday its intention to give bursaries to all Ontario agricultural students going to school in the province.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart said bursaries will amount to $125 a year and will be available to students at the Ontario Ag ricultural College, the Ontario Veterinary College and Macdonald Institute, all affiliated with the University of Guelph.

In addition, scholarships for 200 will be available for students with first-class honors in Grade 13 examinations written one year.

The government was asked by Murray Gaunt (L — Huron-Bruce), opposition agriculture critic, to help farmers who earn less than $500 in net income a year who have received loans from the government.

Mr. Gaunt said the agriculture depart ment discourages farmers' bank loans up to $4,500 for the purchase of feed, but expects to be repaid within three years.

CITES RENFREW

He said almost two-thirds of the farmers in Renfrew County in eastern Ontario make less than $2,500 a year, according to statistics, and it would be impossible for them to repay such a loan in a three-year period.

He criticized the government for doing nothing to aid farmers in drought - stricken areas of eastern Ontario. Greater use could have been made of the agricultural rehabilitation and development agency, he said.

He asked the government to forgive loans to farmers who make less than $500 a year during a period of two years or more.

"Where a farmer has had less than $500 income over the last two years after deducting expenses from gross income and allowing for capital depreciation on buildings and machinery but not including his own labor, the department of labor should forgive the debt of that farmer provided he is a full - time farmer," said Mr. Gaunt.

In other farm business, it was decided to promote country or district "farmiaad im provement contests" as a cen-

Hospital Doctor Became 'Somewhat Testy' After Finding Unconscious Patient Tied To Chair

TORONTO (CP)—A mongoloid patient who suffered from epilepsy was found unattended, unconscious and tied to an armchair by a sheet three hours after he had fallen and injured his head at the Ontario mental hospital here, a coroner's jury was told Thursday.

The jury was investigating the death of William Sheppard, 47, who died about 12 hours after a fall in the hospital Feb. 16.

Coroner Dr. Gerald Blanchet adjourned the inquest until June 1.

Dr. Robert Prueter, full-time medical consultant to the hospital, told the jury he walked past an infirmary door about noon the day of the fall and saw Sheppard strapped into the chair.

"Having found him unconscious, blue and tied to a chair, I will admit I became somewhat testy," he said.

John Krumins of Toronto, an attendant on the ward, said Sheppard apparently fell while watching another patient being shaved.

He testified that he heard a noise, turned and saw Sheppard lying on his back unconscious.

He and another attendant put him to bed but Sheppard regained consciousness within 25 minutes and demanded he be allowed to sit in a chair, Mr. Krumins said.

He permitted the man to be put in the chair because attendants would otherwise have to hold him in bed.

The sheet was placed around him and tied at the back to support him in case he fell, Mr. Krumins testified.

Dr. Alan Davidson, psychiatrist in charge of the 108-bed ward, said he was not aware Sheppard was subject to epileptic seizures.

Dr. Ronald Ryder, pathologist, said Sheppard died of asphyxiation caused by aspiration of stomach contents. He said this was a condition consistent with unconsciousness which could have been brought on by the head injuries.

Dr. Prueter had ordered an x-ray of Sheppard's head to be taken, but when he went to examine the picture he found the x-ray had not been taken. The autopsy showed a slight fracture of the skull.

Sheppard died in the same ward from which Barry Foster, 22, escaped on April 26. Foster was found dead in his suburban North York home from a rifle wound.

A coroner's jury Tuesday found Foster's death was a suicide.

Prices of Milk Up One Cent Quart in City

As most housewives in the city possibly have realized by now, the price of milk in Belleville went up a cent a quart this week.

As of May 24th, the delivered price of milk was increased to 26 cents per quart, and the price at the dairy 22 cents for one quart and 21 cents per quart for three or more bottles.

But at that, apparently local householders have been getting off a bit easy with respect to milk prices which have been one cent below the price, even as nearby as Trenton.

One local dairy official said the new price brings Belleville up level with the price charged for milk in Trenton, Kingston and Peterborough.

Belleville householders can thank local competition for the delay in the milk price increase.

Most centres increased milk prices slightly more than a year ago when fluid milk producers in the Belleville area received an increase of 10 cents per cwt.

But until this week the Belleville dairy representatives absorbed the price increase to the producer which for more than a year has been $3.12 per cwt.

Belleville Men Graduate At RMC Today

LARRY GEORGE MILLS

KINGSTON — Officer Cadet Larry George Mills and Officer Cadet Eric A. Johnson, both of Belleville, today graduated from the Royal Military College of Canada.

Officer Cadet Mills has completed a four year course in Honors French and receives his Bachelor of Arts degree and regular commission as a Lieutenant in the Canadian Army.

He attended Quinte Secondary School, graduating in 1961. During his senior year at RMC he held the appointment of Cadet Flight Training Officer. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mills, 100 Catharine St.

Officer Cadet Johnson has completed a four year course in chemical engineering and receives his Bachelor of Engineering degree and regular commission as a Flying Officer in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

He attended Quinte Secondary School, graduating in 1961. While in his senior year at RMC he held the position of Cadet Wing Pipe Major.

Officer Cadet Johnson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Turner, 65 Grier St.

The Hostings and Prince Edward Regiment reaches another milestone on its long and honorable record trail on Sunday.

For the first time in its history the regiment will "troop the color" in impressive ceremonies at the Fair Grounds.

The ritual will start at 2 p.m. sharp and is expected to last about an hour.

The regiment was presented with a new Queen's Color at ceremonies last May.

Sunday it will honor its Regimental Color at the trooping.

The trooping on Sunday will record another important event in the archives of the unit.

It will mark retirement from the Canadian Army of one of its famous general officers, Lieut. General Howard D. Graham DSO, a former commanding officer of the regiment's famous "Plowboys" First Battalion which covered itself with glory on the bloody fields of Europe.

Gen. Howard Graham went to semi - retirement some time ago.

His last official army act before he retires permanently will be taking the salute as his former regiment marches past following the "trooping" ceremonies.

Lieut. - Colonel W.H.E. Williscroft will lead his regiment during the ritual and the post ceremonies parade through city streets to the armouries.

The crack band of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, Kingston will be in attendance.

Receptions will be held in the officers' and sergeants' messes following the trooping.

Col. Willcocks extends an invitation to the general public to see the ceremonies.

Predicts Switch To Metric Scale Of Measures

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—The days of the foot, ounce and quart are numbered, but a switch to the metric system of weights and measures in Canada will present a complicated problem.

"It will have to be done if Canadian industry is to compete in foreign markets," Dr. L. E. Howlett said Thursday.

"But it will have to be done in stages."

Dr. Howell, director of the applied physics department of the National Research Council is in an interview that some sections of industry, especially in the photographic and drug fields, already have switched to metric measure.

Assaulting Police Officer Brings 18-month Term

A 30-year-old man today was sentenced to 18 months for what even his own lawyer called "a stupid and senseless act" in assaulting a police officer.

Clifford Leroy Sharpe, pleaded guilty to the charge of attacking constable Sam Morgan outside a city restaurant, April 28 while the officer was breaking up a fight.

The officer needed hospital care for severe face injuries before battling Sharpe to the ground after the accused came out of a crowd and unexpectedly attacked him for no reason.

"Obviously he has a very deep hate for policemen," commented Magistrate R. C. Jackson as he sent Sharpe to the Ontario reformatory. "And it was that hate that caused him to act in this instance."

"Why don't you just give me two years (in the penitentiary) — it would make them happier," Sharpe called from the dock.

"Keep quiet Sharpe," snapped Lorne Maraska, the defence counsel.

"I know a few things about those police," I know what I'm doing," retorted the magistrate dryly.

Constable Morgan said someone else also grabbed him from behind while he was sending Sharpe sprawling outside the early Sunday morning melee outside Gerry's Steak House on Victoria Avenue.

"The newspaper report said there was quite a crowd here. Is that correct?" asked Mr. Maraska.

"That's correct sir," said the officer.

"And no one offered to assist you?"

"No sir."

Magistrate Baxter said the conflicting with arrested persons was a hazard of police work. However, officers in the execution of their duty were duly shielded in protection.

Apparently there was a large number of police standing by and didn't lift a finger to prevent this," he noted.

He expressed surprise that from such a large number of people there was no one "young enough and healthy" to aid the officer.

Canada's 100th Birthday Subject of Talk to Lions

TRENTON — Canada's 100th birthday party in 1867 is going to be a "dandy" according to Gil McDermott, the man who should know, because he's the public relations officer with federal government's Centennial Commission. He calls himself "the sales manager for the Centennial," and he has travelled from one end of the country to the other, stimulating municipalities and individuals to "do something different for 1967—something that will be remembered."

Speaking to members of the Trenton Lions' Club, a baker's dozen of Lions from Belleville and local and area municipal leaders in Trenton last night, Mr. McDermott advised them to "stop sitting around and thinking about the centennial, and do something about it."

"Time is running out," Mr. McDermott said. With 19 months left until 1967, and with provincial and government grants on centennial projects due to be cut off this August, Mr. McDermott said it was time for every Canadian, and especially municipal leaders, and members of service clubs or other organizations to give serious thought about their "birthday present for Canada."

More is being done throughout the country than the average citizen realizes, the speaker said. The capital city in each of Canada's ten provinces has already settled on projects, and the two governments will "match" the two and a half million dollars each capital has agreed to invest. In Ontario, 165 projects have been approved, and ten million dollars has pledged to date, Mr. McDermott said he hoped to see 1800 to 2000 projects completed in province by 1967.

Recreational centres, such as Trenton's waterfront park, are the most popular form of project, he said, with libraries second, followed by rinks, picnic grounds, municipal buildings and such isolated items as town clocks bringing up the rear.

QUEBEC NOT LAGGING

(Present at last night's meeting was Councillor Gerald Noel of Murray Township, and it was especially mentioned that the township's project, a municipal building, had been approved at provincial level and was now in the hands of the federal government authorities.)

Quebec, where plans for 60 cultural centres, ($300,000 each) have been approved, isn't lagging behind in centennial planning, Mr. McDermott said, adding that it was expected the province would spend around 36 million on 1967 projects.

A Confederation train, comprising 17 units with six exhibition coaches and travel from Victoria, B.C. to Expo in Montreal, will bring exhibits of Canada's past, (from the Ice Age), present and future to Canadians along its route. The train will stop for several days in Kingston in August, 1967.

Complementing the train, and travelling to "off-rail" centres, will be eight Centennial Caravans—six exhibition trucks and this will be in the Trenton-Belleville area in July, 1967.

Meanwhile, the Centennial Commission started last year to sponsor trips for young people across Canada. Those who live in the east are sent to Western Canada, and those from the west to Eastern Canada. This year 13,000 young people will be "on the move" and several from Belleville will visit British Columbia with 24 from Saskatoon visiting in Belleville in July.

A government helicopter is making a "roof top" photo "story of Canada," and this will be shown in theatres across the country in Centennial Year. Military tattoos will be held indoors and outdoors and the combined bands will put on three really big "shows" at Vancouver, Toronto and Expo.

MUST GET BUSY

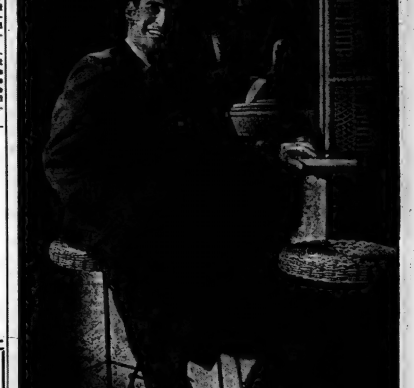
But all these plans will only come to a successful conclusion if Canadians "get busy", said Mr. McDermott.

"Now is the time for every good man to come to the aid of the party . . . Canada's 100th birthday party."

Projects may be large or small, but all should have one thing in common . . . they should be projects which will help everyone . . .

At last night's Lion's Club meeting were ex-mayor Kenneth Couch, chairman of Trenton's Centennial Committee; Mayor D. James MacDonald; Clerk Comptroller O. W. Larry and Councillor Peral Tripp, chairman of council's industrial and economic development committee.

Mr. McDermott was introduced by Lions' past president Walter Wrightman, who was celebrating a birthday of his own and had a birthday cake to prove it, and he was thanked by Lions' president Earl Cruickshank.



Gil McDermott, second from left, the public relations' officer for Canada's Centennial Commission, was the speaker at last night's meeting of the Trenton Lions' Club. Shown with Mr. McDermott, admiring his "made in Trenton" gift from the Lions, are ex-mayor Kenneth Couch, chairman of Trenton's Centennial Committee, Lions' president Earl Cruickshank and Mayor James MacDonald.

Foxboro Minister Urges Term 'New Curriculum' Be Discarded

KINGSTON (CP)—The Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada is urging the church's general council to drop the term new curriculum as the name for the church's revised Sunday school teaching program.

Rev. Robert Reid of Foxboro, told the conference Thursday the term gives the impression that a new theology was being imposed on Sunday school pupils when it was merely a more modern approach to teaching methods that had been adopted.

Rev. George Southall said the new method should simply be known as the curriculum of the United Church of Canada.

Rev. Kenneth G. Purdon of Lindsay said the revised curriculum had proven in its first year that it can attract teenagers back to Sunday school.

"For the first time, the church has applied rules from the secular world to improve religious education," he said.

Radio religious messages by United States comic Stan Freeberg came in for criticism by several delegates to the conference.

Mr. George Greer of Trenton, audio-visual counsellor for the conference, defended them as being beamed "to those on the fringe of Christianity."

"Should we always speak to the 'in group?'" she asked.

The conference voted to continue operation of Albert College, Belleville, as a United Church residential secondary school, despite financial strain.

The conference ends today with the installation as president of Rev. Harry M. Davis, of Belleville, who succeeds Rev. Robert McLean of Lindsay.

Councils Can't Challenge CAS Budgets

TORONTO (CP) — A municipal council's right to challenge the budget of its local Children's Aid Society has been taken away by a legislative committee. The action must still be approved by the committee of the whole house.

Under the provincial government's new child welfare act, municipalities will be forced to pay for 80 per cent of the costs of Children's Aid Society operations, with the province paying 40 per cent.

As the act was first written, the CAS budgets would be subject to the approval of municipal councils. But social workers and politicians claimed some councils might scrimp on child care costs.

AGREES TO MOVE

In the face of this opposition, Welfare Minister Louis Cecile agreed before the legislature's welfare committee Thursday to remove the council's veto powers. However, the council may negotiate with the CAS in the drawing up of its budget.

Mr. Cecile introduced a new section in the revised act to allow hard - up municipalities to seek special government grants for relief from child welfare costs.

Grants to children's aid societies for the construction of special group homes and treatment centres are to be doubled over the amounts first contemplated, Mr. Cecile announced.

'Y' Attendance Over Double Previous Year

The Belleville Family Y.M.C.A.'s organized program for fall and winter comes officially to an end on May 31st., thus completing one full year of activities at the new Y.M.C.A. on Victoria Avenue. Attendance during the first year of operation were 48,722 compared to 20,538 for the same period a year ago when the 'Y' operated on 20 Campbell Street.

Adult members for the next three months, June, July and August will continue use of the 'Y' facilities for individual exercise only, the steam-room, and swimming according to the summer schedule. Also on Monday and Thursday evenings for family swims and on Tuesday evenings when a mixed adult swim is included in their program.

For Youth, boys and girls 8 to 17 years old, a special three month summer outdoor sports program has been planned featuring soccer, soft ball, track and field, outdoor volley ball and basket ball, and many periods of recreational swimming, as well as instruction classes for non-swimmers. For this special program, there is a nominal fee of $3.00 for 'Y' members and $7.00 for non-members.

As in the past, youth memberships continue to be annual from the date of joining, exclusive of June, July and August. During these months memberships are not valid. Then in September, youth resume their 'Y' activities till date of their membership and the Y's new facilities, youth members were allowed the use of 'Y' facilities at no extra charge.

Included in the summer schedule are also two evenings a week, Wednesday and Saturday for public swimming and Friday evening for a mixed youth splash (ages 15 to 18). These are by admission—youth 40c—adults 75c.

Tormented By Creditors Says Accused

HAMILTON (CP) — William Alexander Edwards was tormented for three years by creditors before he turned to a life of crime his lawyer told a county court judge Thursday when Edwards and his wife, Muriel, pleaded guilty to defrauding a 62-year-old widow of $4,000.

Edwards was remanded to June 4 for sentence. His wife was given a three-month suspended sentence.

When the trial opened Jan. 29, the 50-year-old former evangelist and used-car salesman and his wife pleaded not guilty to the charge.

But two days later, Edwards had disappeared, leaving a note for his wife saying he "could not face tomorrow" and was going "to face a far greater judge" and another to Judge John Latchford who was hearing the case. A warrant was issued for his arrest.

He was found by police May 15 in a Windsor, Ont., rooming house.

Wants New School Division

The voice of Metropolitan Toronto has distorted the true facts about religious education in Ontario's public schools. That is the opinion of Leo Copp, a former principal of Peterborough Teachers' College and the member of an inter-church committee examining public school guide books in religious education from Grades 1 to 8.

Mr. Copp speaks with the authority of dual roles, arising from his connection with the teaching profession, on the one hand, and his church associations on the other.

It is his contention that "over the years thousands of immigrants from countries not necessarily Christian settled in and around Toronto," with the result that many parents object to their children being given religious education.

His view of the role of immigrants in fostering the climate of public opinion in Toronto is open to question. This, though, is beside the point. Even if one agrees with his diagnosis, surely one cannot agree with his proposed treatment.

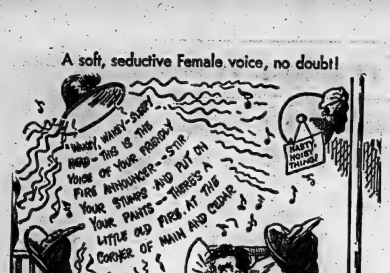
Mr. Copp wants Metropolitan Toronto dealt with as a separate entity by the Ontario Department of Education. If this means anything, it can only mean that he is prepared to accept a different policy regarding religious instruction in Metro Toronto public schools and in public schools in the remainder of the province.

Ontario's elementary school system is now split into two parts, separate schools for Roman Catholics and public schools for those of all other faiths, or of no faith. Mr. Copp's proposal would divide the school system into three divisions, separate schools for Catholics (pursuing, we may be sure, the same policy of religious education regardless of whether they were located in or outside of Toronto), public schools outside of Toronto, presumably offering non-compulsory instruction in Protestant Christianity, and public schools in Toronto, perhaps without any religious instruction or with a course giving students the basic facts about all religions.

There are many people who regret the necessity, (and under existing circumstances it is a necessity), of dividing the school system into two parts. Surely, even those who approve of this division will, in the main, consider it inadvisable that there should be yet another split, and this on the basis of geography.

Canadians move around a lot and in recent years there has been a well-established flow of Torontonians to other parts of the province, to offset partly the natural attraction any big city holds for the young and adventurous in smaller centres and in the country. If Mr. Copp is right in his analysis of what is true of Toronto today, it may be true of the remainder of the province, or at least of the more thriving areas tomorrow.

Consistency alone suggests that any arbitrary division in school policy would be unwise. But even if this were not true, even if public opinion differed today between Toronto and the remainder of the province, and would continue to differ, is there a compelling reason for adopting a different policy? The trend, we suggest, ought to be towards greater uniformity in educational standards, rather than away from it.



Montreal Sit-in

Quebec's largest separatist movement plans a sit-in campaign to force bilingualism in those Montreal restaurants where only English is now in use.

We trust that the separatists are going to be fair about this thing and that they will also insist that menus be printed in English as well as in French.

They are treading on dangerous ground. When it comes to food, the French have had the inside track ever since 1066, when William the Conqueror invaded England. From that day forward the beasts of the field and the fowl of the barnyard were known by English names, but as soon as they were slaughtered and prepared for the table their designation was in French. Cow is Anglo-Saxon but beef is derived from the French; sheep is Anglo-Saxon but mutton crossed the Channel. Nobody needs a guide-book to guess the derivations of pig and bacon.

Perhaps English-speaking Canadians ought to join the separatists in their sit-in. We can think of no pleasanter setting than Montreal's restaurants. If they got hungry enough, the two groups might even collaborate, with the separatists translating the menus and the English-speaking group instructing the waiter.

Rust Won't Cause Tetanus: Lockjaw Caused by Germ

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: It is said that one can get lockjaw from an injury from a rusty implement. Where I live the water, often comes through rusty, due to old pipes I suppose. Could one get lockjaw if there was a small wound in the mouth or digestive system? — R. M.

Rust has nothing to do with tetanus —lockjaw. Tetanus comes solely from a germ which breeds only in stirless places.

The rusty nail idea probably developed because, first, a rusty nail probably has been lying around somewhere in dirty surroundings, and hence may have picked up the germ; second because a nail or similar object makes a puncture wound. The germs can be trapped deep under, side, and begin to multiply once the wound closes over and excludes air. A cut, on the other hand, usually bleeds freely (washing the germs out) and is more likely to remain open so air can enter.

So stop worrying about getting lockjaw from rusty pipes.

Nevertheless, let's be up-to-date about things, and take a couple of precautions.

First, the water probably is drinkable but the pipes need attention. The rust itself won't hurt you. But if the pipe rusts through, making a small leak it becomes a place through which some other form of contamination could enter.

Second, the lockjaw germ can lurk anywhere — barnyards, city streets, manure pits, cesspools, rubbish heaps or dumps.

If you were hurt in a bad accident of some kind, it would be a routine precaution for doctors to give you an anti-tetanus injection. But what if you pick up the germ from what seems to be a minor injury? A splinter since it makes a puncture-type wound, can be dangerous.

Your protection against that is to have a tetanus inoculation with a simple booster every five years.

If I had my way, everybody would be protected from infancy throughout life.

Remember, tetanus was virtually unheard of among our troops in Korea. It is a legacy of all the dreadful wounds and the dirt of battlefields. Vaccinations is the sure way to prevent lockjaw.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is your opinion of testosterone for impotency? I have had such a miracle drug, why isn't it incorporated in hair tonics and shampoos? — Curley

First, because it isn't a miraculous hair-grower. Second, because it is a powerful hormone which must be used with care. It can stimulate hair growth but it can't create new roots where one has become bald.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband smokes cigars and inhales. He argues that it does him no harm because it is only cigarette smoking that has been identified as a health hazard. — Mrs. J H.

He's a little bit right — so far as we can say now. Cigarettes have been identified as related to greater risk of lung cancer. Nobody yet knows exactly why.

It might be that cigars would carry the same risk, except that few people inhale cigar smoke the way most inhale cigarette smoke. However we don't know.

Lung cancer, though, isn't the only danger connected with tobacco. It may not even be the most important one. Smoking in any form can impair circulation, put added strain on the heart, and sometimes causes quite a variety of problems. I think most people would be better off without tobacco, but I don't think we have the right to tell others that they mustn't smoke. All we can do is point out the risks and let them decide.

"TIPS On How to Stop Smoking," by Dr. Molner, will help you give up the habit. To receive a copy of the booklet, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope.

Crime—What A Waste of Human Talent

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When we think of such things as crime and delinquency, it is almost always in a negative way — how to prevent them; how to apprehend the offenders, how to make sure they do not repeat their activities.

What we rarely, if ever, think about is the tremendous waste of natural resources and abilities in these people. Many of them have qualities that, properly channelled, could add much to the world's wealth and welfare.

I read about a 17-year-old boy captured by the Chicago police the other day, when he tripped a burglar alarm in a jewelry store. The detective who arrested him said the boy had a record going back to the time he was 11 years old.

He had committed so many burglaries that he couldn't remember all of them. Most were successful. He was bold, imaginative, fleet, crafty, and strong — all the adjectives that Homer applied to Ulysses. But this boy was a juvenile delinquent, not a classic hero.

Now it is by no that he is emotionally sick. He may be what is called a "sociopathic" personality. But then again he may not be. Given a different milieu in which to display his assets, he might have become a courageous, resourceful person in any of a dozen different spheres of action.

Brahms once remarked that if Beethoven had not possessed such mighty musical talent, and was not made aware of it at an early age, he might have become a "master criminal."

He meant that the passion, the energy, the resentment against society, the violent qualities in his temperament, could have turned Beethoven into a tremendous destructive instead of the creator he actually became. If he had not found his metier, who is to say how he might have used his demonic drives?

Many criminals, of course, are mere morons or retarded. And many others are moral imbeciles. But the most proficient of them have talents that society badly needs. The leader of a gang is given nothing better to lead; he makes the maximum use of the opportunity at hand. We should feel glorify him, of course; but neither should we downgrade him, for the same qualities that propelled him to gang leader might easily have elevated him to leadership in more legitimate enterprises.

Conservationists bemoan the waste of our national resources. But our most terrible waste is that of human beings. Brains and courages and energy and imagination are always in short supply; we must seek out and develop these traits wherever they can be discerned. Instead, we wait until the 11-year-old boy has turned 17 and is labeled "incorrigible," when society has retired to make him corrigible?

How to Understand China

BBC London Letter

The fact that China is fundamentally a civilization that has lived in terms of a temporal doctrine (chiefly Confucianism) rather than a religious doctrine as in Europe and most other parts of the world, is one of the clues to understanding the Chinese character put forward by three experts with long experience of China in a discussion broadcast recently in a BBC program titled "Asia Observed." The speakers were Richard Harris, Asian specialist of the London "Times", Robert Guillain, Far Eastern correspondent of the French newspaper "Le Monde", and the distinguished American historian Owen Lattimore, who lived in China for 8 years and is now Professor of Chinese Studies at Leeds University. All three emphasized the vital importance of the outside world getting to know more about the character of a nation which in the past 15 years has emerged as one of the world's great powers, and contains one-fourth of the world's total population.

Robert Guillain mentioned that a very important trait was that, as a compensation for the non-religious character of society, the Chinese had developed intensely the art of human relations. Every occasion has certain rights, certain gestures. The whole aim was — and is, when still possible — to soften the relations between men." A Chinese would be delighted his worst enemy if he came to his house, provided that the correct rules for the situation were applied.

Richard Harris suggested that the Western concept of individualism, in the sense of a distinct personality making its own significant mark, is something foreign to the Chinese mind. From birth, a Chinese was part of an association of some kind, and throughout childhood he was forming a series of associations which provided an insurance for his life: when he had to flee, as many refugees into Hong Kong in 1953, he had had the strongest impression that there were only people running away from Communism, but people who, deprived of all family and home through civil war, found it intolerable to be alone, and so ran somewhere looking blindly for help.

Professor Lattimore agreed, and added that as a result, of China being the least religious, least mystic of all the great civilizations (a statement in comparison with India's) the Chinese had always reduced every religion-like thing to a still existing body of human conduct. This always worked out in collective terms, and the ideal was always a kind of village, "where the individual in the old culture never acted except in the light of a very intricate web of obligations to others and the behavior he was entitled to was very clear-cut." This aspect of the old Chinese culture represents the richest part of the past on which it has been possible to plant Marxist collectivism."

The speakers agreed that the family system had been under attack during the 40 years before it came to power in 1949. They had used the elements of conflict and tension which existed in the Confucian ethic to destroy that ethic, replacing the old village which was the social unit of the old family, which had exercised too great a domination over the individual citizen, with the idea of the surrender of the individual's life to an all-powerful State — a state now a reality near, instead of very far away as in the old days.

In discussing how far the Chinese would transform the alien importation of Marxism to their own ends, Professor Lattimore stressed the importance of the historical context, and the way that for two thousand years the Chinese had had a massive confidence in their own particular ways viewing their version of everything as being as the civilized version. It is transformed Buddhism into a Chinese Buddhism, grown a new Buddhism, and in the nineteenth century the Taiping rebels had translated Christianity into their own Chinese form. But he thought it was a great mistake to assume that a revolution directed by imported ideas must be primarily destructive, and he was impressed by the almost overwhelming proportion of construction in China today.

Robert Guillain spoke of the sharp contrast between the old China, where a man would discuss everything in a lively and humorous way, and the attitude of today when, if one merely asked "is it raining?" a man would reply "I'll go and ask".

Professor Lattimore said that it had to be borne in mind that there had always been two directly opposite factors in the complex Chinese culture. One was their deep scepticism; they examined everything presented to them critically before they believed in it. Despite this, the great Confucianist school of ethics which gave continuity to all their history was highly authoritarian. He thought that the Chinese were going through a phase in which the authoritarian tradition of Confucianism was emerging with the authoritarian tradition of the discipline of Communism. "This is not necessarily permanent. The emphasis on the importance of the intellect, of examining and understanding — which means criticizing, — will reassert itself in time, and we shall then have a balance, as there has always been in China, between respect for authority and the individual's right to the individual exercise of his intellect."

He thought that the isolation of the Chinese from the rest of the world was, so to speak, not nearly as great as the isolation of the rest of the world from China.

Letters to the Editor

Let Us Endeavor To Be Worth Saving

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer;

With regard to your lead editorial in the issue of the 8th. of May, and in particular Bertrand Russel's belief that eventually the human race will press slowly to death in the flickering rays of a dying sun, if man is not previously destroyed by his own act, or by some earlier disaster or fate, it is evident that Bertrand Russell has not considered all the possibilities indicated by current science. There is a theory, not the least established theory, but nevertheless one that cannot be ignored, regarding the universe as containing within its extreme concentration and extreme dispersion. The theory of oscillation holds that every 94,000 million years, the universe collapses into itself, into a state of intense concentration and then bursts. According to this theory, the last burst occurred 4 or 5 or 10 or 15 thousand million years ago. The universe is at present expanding, but eventually will turn back on itself. 60 or 70 thousand million years hence, according to this theory, the sky will blaze, with galaxies falling into a common centre, and when they reach that centre, will burst again, going through another 94,000 million years cycle.

Whether this theory of the oscillating universe has validity, I am sure I don't know— and really, neither does anyone else. But, it does seem to me that it is quite as reasonable as that it is going to continue indefinitely not for the future of man.

It seems no more reasonable to me that the Ontario Intelligencer could be published six times a week without intelligent beings in charge, than that the universe, or even our earth, could function without God.

The scientists can no doubt estimate whether the sun will be burned out and the earth become lifeless all the constellations and galaxies fall together in a flaming mass, 60 or 70 thousand million years hence, supposing that this theory is true. If there is a Mind behind the universe, as seems to me self-apparent, then why not let that Mind find the solution to the problem of saving the human race and all the rest of His creations. Let us try to concentrate on becoming a race that would be worth saving.

Jaycee Likens Park To Intell Building

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

On May 19th, after reading a very informative article about the virtues of ketchup, I noticed an ill-informed editorial about the Bridge St. Park now under construction by the Belleville Jaycees. It came to my mind that about 200 feet to the east there is another site that at present looks as if considerable money, some time and virtually no "imagination" has been spent. However, there is no doubt that when this building has been completed it will beautify and enhance the whole downtown area. If the editor will have some patience he will soon see that this park will also beautify the downtown area.

Richard Chapman,
Chairman Bridge St. Park
Project, Belleville Jaycees.

"Your brakes and the other traffic laws are often all that stands between safety and tragedy in traffic," says a folder issued by the Chief Constables' Association of Canada.

A simple brake test has been recommended by that Association. It is made by placing an object one inch thick at the base of the brake pedal and pushing down on the brake pedal. If it strikes the object before the brakes begin to take hold, they are inadequate and may be in a dangerous condition. Brakes which do not grip until the pedal is within one inch or less than the floorboard, require up to 60 feet to stop at 20 miles per hour. The legal stopping distance in most provinces is 30 feet at 20 miles per hour.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Fractional losses pitted the main list in moderate morning stock exchange dealings today.

Speculation was quiet and mostly lower. Banff Oil fell 7c cents to $7.65 and Dynamic dropped 14 cents to 76 on volume of 88,000 shares.

Among industrials, National Drug, Dominion Textile and Distillers Seagram each fell ¼ to 15¾, 38 and 40¼, respectively.

Hudson Bay and Denison each added ¼ among senior base metals at 77¼ and 29¾. Inco lost ¼ to 97½.

Golds traded quietly. In slow trading in the western oils, Home A fell ½ to 30¾.

On index, industrials fell .57 to 174.36, the Toronto Stock Exchange index .38 to 153.86 and western oils .39 to 197.86. Golds rose 1.12 to 182.08 and base metals .22 to 83.08. Volume at 11 a.m. was 677,000 shares compared with 980,000 shares traded at the same time Thursday.

Thursday, industrial prices dropped in value for the fifth consecutive session in modestly heavy trading.

The decline, blamed by securities analysts on a tense international situation and a slight "technical correction" after months of rising prices, was aided by a lack of firm leadership from the New York Stock Exchange where prices also fell.

Golds fulfilled their traditional role in a falling market and gained considerably. Speculative issues traded more actively than in some recent sessions. Senior base metals took a severe beating.

In the main list, Bank of Nova Scotia, BA Oil and Dominion Textile each fell ¼ to 78, 33¼ and 38¼ respectively. Canadian Utilities dropped 1¼ to 39¾ and Union Gas 1¼ to 22, the latter despite a report of higher profits. Great Lakes Paper fell a point to 22¼.

FALCONBRIDGE DIPS

Hudson Bay fell 1¼ to 77¼ among senior base metals and Falconbridge 1¼ to 101¼. Denison lost ¼ to 29¾. In golds, Dome rose 2 to 40 and Giant Yellowknife ¼ to 14.

Dynamic traded 285,800 shares among speculative oils and rose 5 to 80 cents. Merrill Island gained 2 to 74 cents in penny issues and Aluminum 2 to 220,300 shares.

Volume was 3,510,000 shares compared with 3,606,000 Wednesday.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Choice slaughter steers brought higher prices in active trading at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Choice heifers and lower grades of cattle were in demand, steady prices. Good cow prices were strong; canners and cutters traded fully steady. Replacement cattle demand was broad and prices firm. Veal calves were steady, hogs strong to higher, and sheep and lambs generally unchanged.

Receipts at cattle, at 11,300 were down 300 from last week.

Slaughter cattle 11,300: Choice steers 25.00 to 28.50 with high yielders 29-27 with sales to 27.90; good 23.50-25; medium 20-23; common 18-19; good heifers 20.50-21.50; choice 22-23; fancy to 24; mediums 18.50-21; commons 15-18; choice cows 15-16; canners and cutters 10-14.50; good heavy-bologna bulls 19-19.25; commons and mediums 15-17.50.

Replacement cattle: Good stockers 22-24 with good steer stock calves to 25.50; common and mediums 16-21; good heifer stock calves 19-20.

Calves 1,900: Choice vealers 31-34 with odd singles to 36.50; good 28-32; medium 25-27; commons 19-23; boners 13-18.

Hogs 7,200: Grade A at Toronto 21.05 to 23.05; heavy sows 21.30-21.90 with a $3 premium on light sows; boars liveweight 12.10 per hundredweight.

Sheep and lambs 600: Good feedlot lambs 33-33.50; sheep 4-13 depending on quality; 70-80 lbs. spring lambs 35-36 per hundredweight.

Cheese Exchange

Only cheese made up to the first of April was sold on the Belleville Cheese Exchange this week. Sold were 1,945 boxes of large cheese, 7,804 square cheese and 4,240 specials.

The average price received for white cheese was 37.9 cents and for colored 38 cents per pound.

Municipal Officials Should Work on Regional Basis Minister Tells Workshop

The old concept of local government by individual municipalities is on the way out and in its stead municipal officials should be working together on a regional basis to better serve the interests of the people they represent.

This was indicated here yesterday by Hon. J. W. Spooner, minister of the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs as he spoke to a noon luncheon meeting held in connection with the municipal workshop held Wednesday and Thursday at the Hastings County administration building.

Approximately 150 representatives from 29 local municipalities in the two counties attended the two day seminar whose keynote was regional government and the planning on a regional rather than on a local municipal basis.

TWO COURSES OPEN

"There are two courses of action which go together if you would give the leadership necessary to realize the great possibilities of this part of Ontario," Mr. Spooner told local government representatives at the luncheon meeting.

"Separately, you must continue to strengthen those services that can be more appropriately provided by your respective municipalities. And at the same time you must find ways to work together in the interests of the 100,000 citizens who work, play and worship in the communities you represent."

Mr. Spooner said that already local governments in this area were starting to think along regional lines of local lines.

Instances of this was the joint ownership of Belleville General Hospital by the city and the county of Hastings; a children's aid society serving the county, Belleville and Trenton, fire fighting services and construction safety inspections.

HASTINGS IS HOST

Hasting county played host to both the workshop sessions, and also for the luncheon held at the Quinte Hotel.

County warden Fred Beckett officially welcomed luncheon guests while Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis added his own civic welcome. Prince Edward county warden Barney Hepburn introduced Mr. Spooner, while Trenton Mayor James MacDonald expressed appreciation.

Hastings East, MLA, Clarke T. Rollins said that municipal workshops providing answers to problems of municipal government were an important phase of today's government activities. He hoped that all municipalities would take advantage of the opportunity of attending.

RANGE OF SERVICES

Mr. Spooner told the luncheon meeting that over the years his department had maintained a range of services adapted to meet the changing needs of rural and urban municipalities.

These services included supervisory, advisory and consultative forms of assistance in the fields of administration, accounting, assessing, financing and community planning.

Because of the inter-relation of these basic functions of local government, municipal workshops had been instituted last year so that municipal employees and representatives of local councils could meet together with Department personnel.

However, this was the first time that such a workshop had been held at the county level in co-operation with the centralurban areas in the case Belleville and Trenton. Mr. Spooner congratulated municipal county clerks of Hastings and Prince Edward for their co-operation in assisting the joint county effort a success.

MORE QUESTIONS

He said that the discussions arising out of questions submitted during the workshop should provide a better understanding, not only of local difficulties, but of those of neighboring municipalities.

"Of course", he said, "you may leave the last session today with more questions than when you came but as long as we keep trying to get the answers we will be doing our job."

Growing pains and changing needs would make it imperative that local councils be ready to accept unprecedented changes and at the same time be willing to implement the means to mean this change so that public services will become more efficient and effective.

So that regional problems might be aired before they are considered critical, Mr. Spooner urged some form of public relations with surrounding municipalities.

MORE DIRECTNESS NEEDED

Joint planning boards had some responsibility in maintaining this liaison, he believed that the need still existed for more direct communication between councils, quite apart from those contacts which are routine between municipal administrators or special committees appointed for short term purpose.

Decisions regarding future development in municipalities were listed as most important and thus proper long term planning was an absolute necessity. Too often, however, councils chose actions are repeatedly motivated by vote getting possibilities pose the greatest threat to the effectiveness of local government.

"It is no longer practical nor politically wise to assume that only the immediate pressures on the council should be the basis for a policy decision," Mr. Spooner said.

Change, rapid change, is creating major upheavals in our society. The local government that attempts to do its job without anticipating the results of today's greater mobility, of sweeping technological change, of accelerating standards of education and living, will invite a short term in office.

Not only that, the inadequacies of this outmoded kind of administration will bring public condemnation.

Legislature Just One Day Short of Record

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature was one day short of a record for the longest session in the history of the province when it met at 10:30 a.m. today.

This is the 81st sitting day of the house, tying the mark set in 1922.

The second longest was on in 1923—71 days.

Last year the legislature sat for 69 days, proroguing on May 8. But this year it is sure to extend well into June.

The house still has to deal with the estimates of three major departments — education, health and welfare, plus the estimates of the department of mines and the department of agriculture, which began Thursday.

Optimists figure the third session of the province's 27th legislature may end by June 11, but a more likely date seems to be June 18.

The usual two night sittings a week — Tuesday and Thursday —will be expanded to four night sittings next week as the house begins its closing drive.

Kerry John Soden, son of Adj. and Mrs. Ken Soden, 213 Foster Ave., Belleville, will receive his Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Toronto graduation ceremonies, to be held Thursday, June 3. Kerry has accepted a position with the Thorold High School Board for the coming year.

OFF THE RECORD

"Would you mind leaving a few bolts loose? My husband loves to find something wrong."

What's the price of a beautiful '65 Studebaker?

A lot less than you guess!

Before you make any "guess-timate" of a Studebaker's price-tag, get an eye-full of the extra-value features you get as standard equipment on every Studebaker model:

Windshield washers, aluminized rustproofing, big 15" wheels for longer tire life, padded dash, all-vinyl foam cushion seats, luxurious carpeting (on many models), sturdy Armor-Guard frame construction for added safety and strength, full instrumentation, roomy interiors with plenty of hip-room for six adults, ceiling room for hats as well as heads, flat floors for easy getting in and getting out. And a solid 19-gauge steel body that's thicker than other cars in its class. All standard equipment!

In the Daytona Sport Sedan you even get an amazing transistorized ignition for sure-fire starts, improved engine performance, longer life for plugs and points. As standard equipment. (A very low-cost option on all other models.)

When you add up all the quality features you get in a '65 Studebaker, you're going to guess high on the price! Come in — take a look, take a drive, make a deal.

Public Relations Talk Given At Council of Home and School Associations' Annual Meeting

"Good public relations is everybody's business from the new member to the top "dog" in any organization," so stated Mr. George Gray well known in the field of industrial public relations as he addressed members of the Belleville and District Council of the Home and School Associations at the annual meeting held in Tabernacle United Church, last evening.

Mr. Gray, who has been a dedicated supporter of Home and School for quite some time and who also does public relations work for Canadian General Electric was introduced by Mrs. B. Stenson.

HEAD TABLE GUESTS

Immediately following the tasty turkey dinner served by Tabernacle U.C.W. the president Mrs. A. J. Fort welcomed the gathering and called upon the Worship Master Jack Ellis who brought greetings from the City of Belleville and wished the Council every success in its future endeavors. She also introduced head table guests and those who brought greetings included Mrs. E. Hull from the Ontario Federation; Mr. H. Brown from the Catholic P.T.A.; Mr. E. A. Orr, Bay of Quinte High School Board superintendent and from Mr. L. A. Kelk, Belleville Public School Board superintendent. Other guests were Mr. J. Ritchie, president of Centenary Secondary School Teachers' Federation; Mr. J. H. MacDonald of CJBQ; Mr. N. McKibbon, Belleville Public School Board; Mrs. J. Sine, F.W.T.A.O. (Bellerville); Mayor Ellis; the guest speaker Mr. George Gray and Mrs. Gray; Mrs. E. Hull, Provincial vice-president, Area 10; Mr. H. Brown, Provincial treasurer P.T.A. (Separate Schools); Mrs. L. Jourard, vice-president; Mrs. G. Stenson, immediate past-president of the Council; Mr. M. Workman, P.E.P.M.P.T. (Belleville); Mrs. J. Ferguson, vice-president; Mr. R. Rowe, chairman of the Bay of Quinte High School Board and Mr. G. Rutledge, vice-president of the Council.

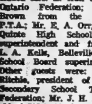
Mr. G. G. Williams expressed thanks to the ladies who catered for the dinner and in turn the president expressed appreciation to Mrs. Williams and to Mrs. W. J. Canniff and the committee who made arrangements for the annual dinner.

ANNUAL REPORTS

The annual reports compiled in an attractive booklet form were circulated and these were adopted by the members, as written.

Mrs. Fort also gave a detailed report of the recent Home and School Associations Council convention held recently in Niagara Falls, which she attended as a delegate.

GUEST SPEAKER



Mr. Gray, a most humorous and forthright speaker, based his talk on "Public Relations at Home and School," and dealt primarily with the functions of public relations. He displayed a slogan which he felt should always be kept in mind, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." In pointing out several examples in this respect he stated that the social part of any organization was most important and to always greet others with a smile. He felt that explanations should be given when things go wrong and these should come from the proper source.

There is the possibility of the raising of association membership fees due to a decline in membership, especially during the past year but with increased membership this possibility could be avoided. A door to door canvass was recommended if necessary to bring an increase in members.

NEED FOR LEADERS

The speaker felt that there was a great need for leadership and that the local associations should retain their leaders for longer periods of time; also for good programming with which Mr. Gray felt was outdated. He believed that more members should take an active part in Home and School work and that training should come from within the local organizations. Leadership, he stressed, should be born in the local association by participation.

An advertising campaign for membership is planned and each of the local groups must make this a success in order to survive. He felt that parents should not go out just to join, and he further described the four types of members as: those taking office; the quiet worker (who accomplishes much); interested listeners and the joiners, with always an ex cuse.

JOB TO DO

In concluding the speaker stressed the fact that there is a job to do—to try to cure a disease—the disease of apathy. Every effort should be made to bring down the barriers of apathy and disinterest. Everyone has a task of some sort and that one word is enthusiasm.

Mr. E. Frisk, principal of Queen Victoria School expressed thanks to Mr. Gray for "his warm words of practical experience which every association can use."

Mr. J. E. Welch as chairman of the nominating committee brought in the slate of officers who were installed by Mrs. E. Hull, Provincial vice-president. Mrs. Ruby Udall of Ottawa, chairman of the national International Co-operation committee.

The other two, Mrs. W. D. Tucker and Muriel Jacobson, were unable to attend the meeting of the four-day annual VoW meeting at Carleton University.

Mrs. Tucker, a co-founder and first president of the organization, is working in India and Miss Jacobson is in Saskatchewan on business.

The meeting continues today with business sessions.

A reading followed by a duet by Hazel Rockman and Ethel Slingerland, accompanied by Mrs. Gordon Paterson. Mrs. Rockman led community singing assisted by Mrs. A. Bates at the piano. Mrs. K. Sharpe read a lovely poem followed by piano selections by Miss Barbara Bates.

Rev. Black was called to the guest of honor's chair and Mr. John Palmer read the address. The wardens and parishioners presented Rev. Black with a corrective lumber pull edged Bible and the W. A. presented him with a pen.

He expressed thanks to the Parish of Roslin and closed with prayer and blessings.

Russia Has Great Distance To Travel Before Achieving A Real Consumer Economy

By JOHN BEST

The price was forbiddingly high—the equivalent of $7.02 for one metre, or 39.37 inches. Nevertheless a Western housewife decided to buy a metre; the material would make a nice cushion cover or cardtable cover.

She was rudely disappointed. "It's not possible to buy one metre," said a sales attendant in the cold crisp tones that are the hallmark of Moscow saleagirls. "There is only a little less than three metres left so if you took just one metre, there wouldn't be enough for another customer who may wish to make a dress.

"You have to buy all of it or none."

Obviously she had never heard of a remnant sale. The housewife went without her cover material.

Incidents such as this, repeated in one form or another many times daily, bring home to the observer here the great distance Russia has to travel before it achieves anything like a consumer economy.

MARKS STEP FORWARD

Mighty efforts are being made to improve the standards of goods and services. Old Moscow hands say things are much better in this respect than ever before. But an economy that for decades took only the most grudging account of consumer preferences and demands can hardly be changed overnight into one that satisfies them.

The House of Fabrics both symbolizes the efforts that are being made and illustrates that they still leave much to be desired.

Spacious and well - appointed compared to the general run of Moscow retail outlets, if offers a bewildering variety of fabrics and fabric colors, nicely presented.

Muscovites swarm in through the store relishing a long-denied opportunity to pick and choose. But the quality of goods in relation to the price is low.

A metre of flanneelette cotton costs $2.16. In Canada it is possible to get the same material —only of better quality—for 49 cents a yard.

The materials bear no signs other than the price; no indication for instance of whether they are washable.

MONEY RETURNED

They run heavily to cotton. Most of the cloth is presented in a gaudy color design; true colors are few.

Simple Method Being Used By Britons

HARROGATE, England (Reuters) — Some 11,000 British women have successfully used a new simple method of contraception under trial conditions, the Family Planning Association announced Thursday.

It is the low-cost "loop" — a piece of plastic inserted into the womb. If used by a woman for 100 years or if that is possible — she could expect statistically to become pregnant only twice, officials claimed.

Already the "loop" has the backing of international medical authorities. Its mass use now becomes standard procedure in Britain's family planning clinics.

The Family Planning Association is an independent body with 400 clinics throughout British. It is staffed by specially trained doctors and nurses and financed by donation and subscription.

Its main work consists of giving contraceptive advice to couples or advising on infertility.

Institute Women Meet In Ireland

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP) The 11th triennial conference of the Association of Country Women of the World will be held in Dublin, Ireland, in September. It was announced Thursday by Mrs. J. Philip Matheson of Oyster Bed Bridge, P.E.I., national president of Federated Women's Institutes.

Mrs. Matheson, addressing the annual convention of the New Brunswick Women's Institute, said 1,500 women from 176 member societies all over the world will meet to discuss cooperation among individuals.

Mrs. Matheson said the Women's Institute of Canada now has 12 branches existing in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

Marital Status of Friend Gives Bachelor Some Doubt

DEAR DORIS — I did what you said and told the man I am going with that I was married before and have two teen-age children. He said it was O.K. but I can see he doesn't like it. He comes to see me but not as often.

Once he asked me about the children and where were they and how old I was. He told me he thought a lot of me and that if I was single he'd fall in love with me.

What should I tell him when he says he shouldn't be going with a married woman? — BABSY.

DEAR BABSY — If you are now free point this out. At least you have stopped living a lie with him.

But a man likes to enter marriage with a background like his mate's. Your marriage experience puts you in an entirely different world: and he wonders about this.

Next step is to introduce him to your girls. If he is right for you he'll think it all through it's a big decision for a bachelor.

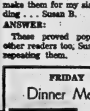
QUESTION:



Your recipe for Brown Eyes (cookies) is wonderful. You gave it about two years ago, I think. But, you've guessed it, I've lost my copy. We want to make them for my sister's wedding . . . Susan B.

These proved popular with other readers too, Susan, so I'm repeating them.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Pan-Fried Trout; Lemon Wedges; Parsley-Buttered New Potatoes; Creamed Asparagus; Orange and Italian Onion Salad (see Tuesday); Blueberry and Cherry Roll with Spice Sauce; Tea.

BROWN EYES:

(This recipe makes 2 dozen chocolate sandwich cookies put together with mint cream and decorated with green or red cherries.)

½ cup margarine (or ¼ cup margarine and ¼ cup butter); 1 cup light or dark brown sugar, 1 large egg, 1¾ cups unsifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup cocoa, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream margarine (or butter and margarine) with the brown sugar until very light. The electric beater makes quick work of this. Beat in egg. Measure and mix together the dry ingredients and stir into creamed mixture along with the vanilla until well blended. Chill thoroughly — at least 2 hours.

Roll between palms into balls not quite 1" in diameter. Try to make them all the same small size. Place 1½" apart on ungreased cookie sheets. We made 48. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 11 minutes, remember that chocolate cookies burn easily, so do not overbake. Eleven minutes is long enough. Remove cookies from pans with spatula and cool on cake racks. (These little cookies wanted to stick to the spatula when Eleanor lifted them from the pan — so she picked them out with her fingers.)

When cool, put together in pairs with this Mint Cream: One and one-half cups confectioned icing sugar, 2 tablespoons soft margarine or butter, 1 tablespoon cream, 1 tablespoon evaporated milk (or cream), ¼ teaspoon peppermint flavoring. Put all icing ingredients in bowl. If too thin, seconds in electric beater on high to mix this. (Caution: Be sure your mint flavoring is not too strong. If it is peppermint oil use only 5 or 6 drops.) Put about 1 teaspoon on bottom side of half of the cookies. Press bottom side of remainder on icing to make a small sandwich. Dot top of each cookie with about ½ teaspoon of mint cream and press half of a red (or green) glace cherry into it. Showy and easy.

Rebekahs Entertain at Coffee Party

STIRLING — Approximately 150 people attended the coffee party Thursday evening in the I.O.O.F. banquet hall, Stirling, sponsored by Lenrel Rebekah Lodge No. 211. Guests were in attendance from Campbellford, Belleville, Thomasburg and the surrounding area.

Mrs. Ruby Tompkins convened the party and various members served at half hour intervals.

Noble Grand, Mrs. Helen Hulin, welcomed the guests and the financial secretaries were Mrs. Gene Spry and Mrs. Doris Sine.

Music for the evening was supplied by Mrs. Muriel Sharp, Mrs. Margery Stapley and Miss Nancy Tompkins.

Tickets on a driftwood floral table centrepiece were sold by Mrs. Joyce Richardson and Mrs. Helen Bailey. Mrs. Vera Woodbeck was the winner.

The table tabbies were convened by Mrs. Isobel Good.

The tea room was convened by Mrs. Bessie Patterson and each quartet table was centred with a pink topiary crepe paper tree. The tea room was decorated with a pink floral centrepiece, and flanked by silver tea services.

Mrs. Lillian Johnson, Vice-Grand, was tea room hostess and those who poured were District Deputy president Mrs. Rhea Mitchell, Belleville, and Past Noble Grand Mrs. Erma Clancy, Mrs. Ethel Dudfin and Mrs. Leatha Thompson of Lansdowne.

The event was a financial success and those in attendance enjoyed a pleasant evening.

Women's Institutes

WALLBRIDGE W.I.

WALLBRIDGE — Mrs. A. Spencer, Tweedsmuir History Convener, opened the Wallbridge Women's Institute at the Hastings County Museum, for the May meeting.

Mrs. Jack Sargent, curator of the museum and Miss Cheryl Hall welcomed the 25 members and one visitor. Mrs. Sargent then conducted a tour of the Coulter Gallery of European Antiques, and the Canadiana collection. Each room was then used a special display of primitive Indian artifacts.

The business of the regular meeting was held at the museum with the new president, Mrs. Don Clary, in the chair. Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. B. Hinchcliffe reported on correspondence and assisting yarns to attend meetings of the police station and at Stirling for the C.N.I.B.

Leadership training courses chosen were "Possibilities With a Flare" and "Hats for You." Plans were made to cater to the District annual.

Mrs. Jack Cooper, convener of home economics and health, chose for her topic "Welfare Work." She discussed social welfare, mental health, rehabilitation of prisoners, and foster homes for children.

During the program, Mrs. H. Fletcher gave a reading on the comparisons between the assassination of Lincoln and Kennedy. Mrs. Ethel Sharp read an account of a Buckingham Palace garden party.

Courtesy cards were appointed to take charge of the Institute display at the Trenton Fair.

The meeting closed with the serving of refreshments.

MAKES BIG AWARD

NEW YORK (AP)—A Bronx Supreme Court jury Thursday awarded $180,000 to a pressman who lost part of his left arm in a printing press accident. The verdict went to Jack Taik, 38, a former employee of the Guardian Printing Co. The award was against Miehle-Goss-Dexter, Inc., of Chicago, manufacturers of color offset presses.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

STIRLING — The annual Girl Guide banquet was held in St. Paul's United Church dining hall with 143 girls and their leaders in attendance. The United Church Women catered for the event.

The Brownie leaders were Tawny Owl, Mrs. Lillian Johnson and Snowy Owl Mrs. Mary Cooke. Guide Captain is Mrs. Pat Anderson and her lieutenants are Mrs. Beverley Campbell, Mrs. Donna Coughlin, Mrs. Earle Crossman, Mrs. J. Little and Mrs. Mary McAllister. Ranger captain is Mrs. Maude Bell and her lieutenant is Mrs. Margery Chambers.

The president of the local association, Mrs. Marion Bastedo was master of ceremonies. Mrs. Phyllis Patterson, badge secretary, presented two guests of honor, Mrs. Millie Harding and Mrs. Laura Shortt with badges of thanks for their year's work. These ladies are retiring from active duty.

Mrs. Maude Bell introduced the guest speaker, Miss Eva Baker, Toronto, who has been her special friend for many years. Miss Baker is the Area Ranger secretary and last year she supervised 18 girls at Camp Tahuya which is situated 45 miles from Mexico City.

Miss Baker gave a description of her tour of Mexico and of her days at the camp, followed by a travelogue of colored slides. The large audience expressed their thanks.

The head table guests were introduced by Mrs. Pat Anderson. Miss Gail Armstrong gave the toast to the mothers and Mrs. Beverley St. Pierre replied. Miss Susan West gave the toast to the Guiders and Mrs. Earle Crossman replied. Mrs. Ted Bell thanked the cadets and Mrs. Isobel Good replied.

The program consisted of a selection of songs by the Guides and folk dances and songs by the Brownies. Ranger Jane Dornan contributed a trumpet solo with Miss Sharon Mathews as accompanist.

Church Groups

BETHEL - ZION U.C.W.

BETHEL - ZION — Mrs. J. Ketcheson was hostess for the May meeting of the Bethel-Zion United Church Women.

The president, Mrs. Delbert Rowe, opened the meeting and Mrs. Harry Ketcheson led in the devotional period. The Reverend Southall conducted the study group with Mrs. H. J. Ketcheson, Mrs. Earle Sayers, Mrs. Delbert Rowe and Mrs. Richard Cranston assisting.

The president was in charge of the business portion of the meeting and during this time it was announced that Bethel - Zion would join with Roslin Church for Sunday services in July.

Mrs. Rowe closed the meeting and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

MAY INVITE PRINCESS

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson expected Thursday to look into the question of inviting Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, to Canada. The matter was raised by Eric Winkler (PC—Grey - Bruce), who asked whether such an invitation had been issued in view of Princess Margaret's acceptance of an invitation to visit the United States.

Port Credit Woman First To Be Honored

BOSTON (CP) — Mrs. Doris E. Dodds of Port Credit, Ont., Thursday became the first Canadian woman to be elected to the board of trustees of the Unitarian Universalist Association.

Mrs. Dodds, a member of the Unitarian congregation of South Peel at Port Credit and chairman of the church's board of management, was elected at the annual general assembly of Unitarians and Universalists which convened here Wednesday and continues through today.

Harold Koehler of Toronto was elected to the four - man business committee of the association.

Mrs. Dodds, born in Lark Harbor, Nfld., has been prominent in Unitarian and civil liberties circles in Ontario.

Koehler is a member of the Unitarian council of Metropolitan Toronto and a member of the board of directors of the St. Lawrence Unitarian Universalist district.

Ann Landers

Thoughtful Boy Renews Writer's Faith in Youth

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The letter from "Bitter 18" told how selfish most teen-age boys are — how they chase the two or three good-lookers while the plain girls sit home, dateless and miserable.

Not all teen-age boys are that way. A few months ago I had an experience that proved it.

ANN LANDERS

My hobby is photography. I was asked to run the photo committee at a prom. The big problem was the repeater — those who kept coming back again and again.

One young raggedy handsome fellow kept returning with a different girl every 30 minutes. I finally said, "You've had about 10 pictures taken, aren't you overdoing it?" He gave me a wink as he handed me his quarter.

A few minutes later he came back alone and whispered, "If you don't mind I'd like to bring a few more gals over. Some of the girls don't have dates tonight and I'd like to see that they have at least a souvenir picture."

This chap had been seeking out the wall-flowers and paying for the pictures himself. Sweet? — RENEWED FAITH.

DEAR RENEWED — You bet! I always knew there were such teen-agers around but I'm glad to let millions of others know it, too.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS—Vera and I are successful, middle-aged, unmarried career people. We're often congratulated each other on the joys of freedom.

Last night we discussed marriage as a "sporting proposition." We both know couples who, when their marriages failed, tore each other apart in the divorce court.

We are considering marriage with the understanding that if things don't work out we will meet in a lawyer's office, shake hands, sign the papers and part company in a civilized manner. There would be no settlement or alimony jazz.

What do you think of this? — MATURE.

DEAR MAT — Not much. If you are interested in a "sporting proposition," why not bet on the Irish Sweepstakes and let it go at that?

Marriage is a promise to love and cherish one another for so long as you both shall live. It is not an agreement that you will stay together as long as she has her figure, or as long as you have your bankroll—or until somebody more attractive comes along.

Unless you two view marriage as a permanent arrangement — a heavy emotional investment, well worth the agony of learning to live together — you'd better stay single and save the court costs.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Both my husband and I teach. For several years summer school has kept us from enjoying a real vacation. This summer we want to take a two-month trip.

Yesterday my husband's mother announced that she'd like to join us. She is financially independent and will pay her own way. My husband said, "If mother comes along the trip will be ruined. I'd rather stay home."

My husband's two married sisters who live in this city go off on vacations very suddenly. We never know when they are going until we get a post card from 800 miles away. I'm sure they disappear quietly to avoid unwanted company.

I don't want to hurt my mother-in-law's feelings. What should be done? — NINE O'CLOCK BELLE.

* * *

DEAR BELLE — Your husband should tell his mother that you have been looking forward to this "second honeymoon" and you want it to be just that.

Feeling as you do, if your mother-in-law is permitted to blast her way into your vacation you will wish you'd stayed home.

* * *

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the bootyraps of teen-age drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Young Drinking," enclosing with your request 30c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LONG HAIR TYPES

Dear Susanna: If your beautiful long haired dog or cat has a favorite mat, small rug, or place on the carpeting where he loves to lie, and you are experienced trouble because of shedding hair, do try my method for removing it.

I have set aside a sponge mop just for this purpose. Dampen it slightly and start at one end of the rug, pushing the mop in straight push motions as you go. The fur just rolls off! Furthermore, the action of the damp mop helps to freshen and clean the rug too! — Mrs. E. Barnsley.

Residents Help Capture Car Thief

PICTON (Staff) — A case in Magistrate's Court here this week told how some Consecon village residents left their beds in the middle of the night to help capture a man later convicted of car theft.

Evidence related how a Consecon car dealer was notified of strange noises at his car lot recently. Two minutes later one car was being driven away. The dealer's shouts aroused neighbors, who hurriedly entered their cars and stopped the runaway stolen vehicle. One of the residents recognized George McCoy of the village as one of the occupants of the stolen car. McCoy was convicted of car theft and remanded one week for a pre-sentence report.

FAILED TO STOP

Ken Stephenson of Cobourg pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to stop at the scene of an accident. He was fined $150 and costs. Joseph McConse of Camp Picton pleaded guilty to a drunk driving charge and was sentenced to two weeks in jail. Walter Bongard of Picton pleaded not guilty to a charge of impaired driving. The case was dismissed. Picton lawyer William Lane acted as defence counsel for the accused.

PLEADS GUILTY

A broken romance cost a Cobourg youth $13 more than he figured on. William Harris 18, was found in a parked car by Provincial Police. The constable, Jack Hodgins said the youth had passed out and later said his reason was because he and his girl friend had broken up. Harris pleaded guilty to the charge of consuming liquor while a minor.

in critical condition by hospital authorities early today.

The bandits made it to the car and raced off. Police followed to nearby St. Michel where the car was found abandoned. In between, the gunmen let off the credit union manager, who was unharmed, and Miss Paquette who was pistol-whipped and received a skull fracture. She was in the operating room of Jean Talon Hospital most of the afternoon and night and her condition remained critical.

Awards for Life Saving Given at Belleville 'Y'

PICTON (Staff) — Parents and some twenty award winners gathered at Belleville YMCA Wednesday night for the presentation of awards for Life Saving. Murray Workman of Belleville YMCA, and instructor of the groups, presented the awards of the Royal Life Saving Society of Canada and acted in the capacity of Red Cross Water Safety Chairman.

The number of awards were as follows: "One-Bar" to the award of Merit, received by George Mason. There were also presented four awards of merit, three bars to the bronze medallion, eight bronze medallions, 18 senior and one junior awards for artificial respiration.

In making the presentations Mr. Workman said that although the bronze medallion was the basic award of the Royal Life Saving Society, it was without question the most strenuous to earn. There were four awards of merit, he said, and although they were a higher award they may in a few years become the basic award.

The recipients of the award of merit were: Alexandra Gorkowska, Doug McPherson, Dianne Schroder and Joseph Black, all of Belleville. Three distinction awards were presented, this is the second highest award given, to Garth Stevenson, Bob Farrow and Barb McPherson of Belleville. Four Picton swimmers received their senior artificial respiration and bronze medallions; they were David Strachan, Judy Sharpe, Judy Dawe and Pamela Thompson.

The swimmers worked on their course during the winter months and were heartily congratulated by Mr. Workman for the many hours of study and hard work put into the earning of their awards. He said that he would like to see many of those receiving awards continue their work and go on. "Don't stop here," he advised. "I would like to see many of you get into instruction, where you would be needed as well as being a benefit to your community and this program."

Power Squadron Holds Dinner, Installs Officers

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward Power Squadron held its annual dinner at the Yacht Club, Picton, on Wednesday, May 27. District Commander Hudson officiated at the swearing in of the new executive, consisting of Commander Jack Cooper, Lieut.-Commander Dr. Earle Taylor; Treasurer Dr. John Pearce; Secretary David Taylor; Lieutenants Ronald Thompson, Howard Seeley, John Mornick, Russell Alexander and Fred Rose.

The junior piloting course graduates, Garry Harris, Dr. K. McQueen and David Grimmon were sworn in as new members of the Canadian Power Squadron. Two graduates, John Cornick and Donald Ball were unable to attend the meeting.

Dr. John Pearce announced that nine power squadron members had advanced their knowledge of safe boat handling and navigation. Graduates of the seamanship course were Howard Seeley, Fred Rose, Marcelle Boisvert, Dr. Earle Taylor, J. Cooper and Russell Alexander.

Graduates of the advanced piloting course were Dr. Sally and Bob Clapp and Dr. Gordon Caughey. Commander Jack Cooper announced that the Quinte District Rendezvous will be held on Saturday and Sunday, July 3rd and 4th at the Prince Edward Yacht Club. An exhibit is also planned for the County Fair this year.

WOMEN WORE BLUE

The first Canadian women to wear military uniform were the volunteers of the RCAF women's division, organized in July, 1941.

Two Children Struck by Cars While Playing

PICTON (Staff) — The second accident in four days involving Bloomfield children has sent two-year-old Paul Noah to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital. Parents of the injured boy are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Noah of Stanley St. Police report the youngster suffered an injured left leg and cut to the head when he chased a dog onto Highway 33, the main thoroughfare, through the village. Driver of the car was Bruce MacDonald of Milford.

John Fox, eight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fox of Moscofield, is in Kingston General Hospital with broken ribs and possible internal injuries and facial lacerations received when he was struck by a car when he ran across the highway while playing ball.

Prove it to yourself.
Test drive it on your choice of road:

Comet Caliente has the perfect combination of beauty, luxury, and performance to make it the outstanding compact on the road today!

Comet Villager is a standout with rich, mahogany coloured side panels, power rear window and spacious 78.5 cubic foot cargo space!

The Comet 404 Sedan is ideal for the economy-minded yet offers all the handsome styling, extra touches of luxury, and satisfying performance!

Experience Comet's extra luxury, extra performance, extra size.

Test drive Comet on any road you like—and Comet will smooth it out with its solid, smoothly relaxing ride. Driving through a quiet village . . . or hustling down a thruway, Comet performs beautifully, luxuriously, amazingly. No wonder we call it—owners call it!—best compact on the road today.

Stand a moment and look at it: the clean styling of the vertical headlight arrangement, the sweeping profile that makes Comet look like it's moving before you're even in it, the wide sweep of the rear deck. If you want styling, you've found it.

Open the door: inside, Comet is sheer comfort and luxury. Deep, foam-padded seats let you ride mile after mile relaxed. (Take your choice of individually adjustable bucket seats or wide, roomy bench seats.) And choose from a variety of vinyls, fabrics, plaid and striped upholstery in today's most fashionable colours, textures and patterns. Plus rich colour-keyed loop-yarn nylon and rayon carpeting!

On the Caliente, for instance, there are vinyl and foam-padded door panels, rich walnut-toned insets in the instrument panel and doors, and door-mounted courtesy lights!

What is Comet like to drive? Superb is the only word. Choose either of Comet's two lively sixes, the zippy 289 V-8 or the blazing 4-barrel, 225 horsepower Cyclone V-8. Then choose your transmission. There's an effortless 3-speed dual range automatic, 3-speed manual (fully synchronized with V-8's), and a snappy "four-on-the-floor". The result: no road is too much for Comet! Up hills, up mountains, around tight corners—Comet gives you driving like you've never enjoyed before!

Comet's size is just right, too. It's longer for greater legroom—wide enough to seat six of you in complete comfort. The trunk offers ample room for your parcels and bulky suitcases.

See Comet at your Mercury dealer's. Test-drive it. You'll love it!

Sunday School Lesson

High Cost of Sinning

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Life is like a chemistry laboratory. And the Bible is the laboratory note-book in which men have written down the results of some of the most intensive experiments ever performed in living. So wrote Carl Sumner Knoff in his book, "The Student Faces Life, p. 37)

It is like a new class entering a laboratory to learn about chemistry. On the shelf are the chemicals with which the students will experiment. Before each student is a text-book and a note-book. The professor says, "Study the text-book. Learn the properties of each chemical. Man did not invent these properties. Experimentation revealed them to be true. When you know these properties, and some of the laws governing their reactions, perform your experiments and write the results in your notebook."

But one freshman gets rebellious. He thinks, "Who wants to follow the text-book all the time?" So when he thinks the teacher isn't looking, he begins to mix several chemicals in a test-tube to see what will happen. And it happens. The mixture explodes. When that particular experiment comes down from the ceiling, the student doesn't have to write the result in his note-book. The stain on the note-book is the result of his fool-experiment.

Some one in Biblical times, tradition says it was David, experimented with faith, and the result is beautifully recorded: "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want." But one day David thought the Teacher of the universe wasn't looking, so he experimented in wife-stealing and murder, and the experiment exploded on him. No one tried to hide the stain because it was David whose selfish passion caused it. It is spread all across the 11th and 12th chapters of II Samuel to show that even a king like David cannot break the laws of God without serious consequences.

PUNISHED BY SIN ?

David was not so much punished for his sin as by his sin. From the very first his conscience bothered him, so that he tried to hide his sin from Uriah. When Uriah unknowingly blocked David's attempt to do this a remaining true to his military vow, David resorted to murder to keep Uriah from finding out. But David's desperate ruse did not work. Other eyes had seen what was going on, and David's sin caught up with him when Nathan's accusing voice said, "Thou are the man." (IISamuel 12:7)

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 30: "Consequences of Sin," II Samuel 11 through 13.

Sin is both selfish and stupid. One who yields to sin refuses to think of how others may be hurt by his sin. Sin blinds him to the possible results of his actions. Others may get caught, but the sinner is sure he can get away with it. And sometimes he does seem to get away with it. But who knows what toll his sin takes under the surface where it does not show? Who knows, asks Dr. Knopf, "what millenia of uncontrolled sexual perversion have done to the racial stock? What have ages of intemperance in eating, drinking, and general living done? What has warfare cost in time, racial resources and physique? What do subtle poison has hatred, distrust, and conflict poured into the blood stream? Are the cells, corpuscles and glands of today but a shadow of what they might have been? Is the finer spiritual aspect of life but crippled, broken thing, compared to what these God-like creatures might by now have been?" (The Student Faces Life, p.99).

Whatever the answers to his first questions may be, the answer to his last question is fairly obvious. Sin does cripple and destroy man's spiritual nature. This is what Paul meant when he said, "The wages of sin is death." (Romans 6:23) The Bible does not say "Be sure your sin will be found out." It says, "Be sure your sin will find you out." (Numbers 32:23). The cost of sin in the human soul is graphically described in Psalm 51. And what about the person who feels no remorse for his sins? Perhaps he should be pitied most of all. He condemns himself to live a life made more ignoble by his own thoughts and deeds.

While the results of sin remain the broken relationship with God caused by sin can be healed by repentance and forgiven e s s. This is the message of the 32nd psalm. "When I declared not my sin' . . thy hand was heavy upon me . . I acknowledge my sin to thee . . then thou didst forgive the guilt of my sin." Psalms 32:5 NEV) In spite of his sin and its tragic results, David acknowledged his sin, and God was able to use him as a great leader of Israel.

Teen-agers, Beware!
Hijinks Can Haunt Your Life
A judge warns that a juvenile police record can prevent getting a job or entering a profession no matter how minor the offense. In June Reader's Digest read how "the word 'chicken' has created so much trouble . . and so have fraternity initiations". All teen-agers and parents should read this article in Reader's Digest, now on sale.

with the government front bench.

Despite the discussion of candidates for the job, the government has given no indication whether a permanent speakership will be created.

Transport Minister Pickersgill said such a position may be contrary to the provisions of the British North America Act. The act says that after each general election the House shall be appointed with "all practical speed."

His questioned whether permanent speakership could be created without an act of Parliament.

When the labor minister invited the comment of other party leaders Robert Mc. Michael's acceptability, Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) asked whether the government would open a riding for him and ensure his automatic election.

Mr. MacEachen indicated this was contingent upon the government's compromise proposals being accepted.

The compromises involve the amount of time to be spent each session on spending programs, and the "guillotine" rule concerning limits of time to be spent at each stage of a government bill.

Under the resolution the government proposed all spending programs and supply bills, which provide appropriations for opposition non-confidence motions—be debated within 36 days of appearing.

The revised version cuts the time limit to 30 days, but allows an additional eight days for four main supply motions which the government is required — with the realtor furnishing the proper information to see that the lawyer can incorporate them into proper legal form.

Another precaution is necessary. The buyer should independently engage either a realtor, lawyer or real estate counselor and not rely on the selling broker for it really is a duty bound to serve his principal, who is the seller.

That is an ideal solution. It is an expensive procedure and, unfortunately, rarely followed. However, this method is the proper way for a buyer to protect himself.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Three years of hard labor went into building a fine, five-room cottage that I now find is on someone else's land. My lot is just west of the road intersection. The surveyor set the stakes 1,100 feet from the road intersection — a mistake of only 100 feet but my cottage is now on his adjoining lot.

The surveyor says that it is not his fault for his assistant, whom he has since fired, did the job. The broker from whom I bought the lot and the township officials tell me nothing can be done. The company from whom I bought the building material says it is the owner's wrong lot or not. Please tell me what I can do! — Mrs. J. L. F.

ANSWER: Get a good lawyer and let him do the fighting for you. The surveyor, as a professional man, cannot lightly dismiss a negligent mistake of this type. I'm sure he will not give the same answer to your attorney — and get away with it. At I see it, you have no cause of complaint against the broker, the township officials or building supply company — they had nothing to do with placing the cottage on the wrong lot.

I know of two cases like yours. In one instance it was possible to buy the lot on which the building was located at a reasonable price. In the other case, the building was moved on to the right lot. In each instance, of course, the surveyor paid the cost of correcting his mistake.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Normally I am pretty easy going but even people take advantage of me I get mad. I think you'll agree that being cheated out of $1,500 is enough to make a person mad.

As a personnel manager, people naturally come to me with their problems. One of the men in the office who wanted to sell his house asked that I refer to him all transferred employees who inquired about a house.

The third person I sent to him bought his house for $20,000. If a real estate broker had sold the house he would have been entitled to a $1,200 commission. My colleague refuses to give me anything. He thinks that a "thank you" is all he owes. I want a more substantial expression of his gratitude. — Cheated

ANSWER: It is necessary to be a licensed real estate broker to enforce a claim for a commission. It may appear harsh but it is a fact of life. If your co-worker will not voluntarily show his gratitude in a tangible way, I am afraid, a "thank you" will be the limit of your compensation.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I can cope with meddling neighbors but what do you do with a busybody boss? At least once a year, and sometimes twice a year, the bank holding my mortgage sends out a young man. He goes over the house from top to bottom and asks all kinds of prying questions.

I have never missed a mortgage payment. I keep my house in good repair and never complain or cause any trouble. Why are they picking on me? — Don't Like Snoopers.

ANSWER: I think your mortgage lender is a gem. I wish I could send a man to snoop about their investments. The young man visiting you is an inspector to ascertain whether the mortgagor (that's you) is properly maintaining the property. No one is picking on you — the bank is just doing its job.

If you will read your mortgage you will find that not only did you agree to keep the property in good condition but the bank also has a right to inspect your home to see that you have complied with this consideration. If more mortgage lenders were as diligent as your bank there would be fewer foreclosures.

• • •

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate

"What's Your Problem ?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

The exact role of the realtor and the attorney in the real estate transaction often is hard to delineate. Each frequently trespasses into the other's field of competence and practice. Usually with resulting unsatisfactory consequences for the client.

The following communication vividly points up the problem.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm buying my third house and want to avoid the mistakes I made on the previous two occasions. The first time, as seemed reasonable I let a lawyer handle the whole transaction. The legal technicalities were correct but I ended up with a house in a location I did not like, at too high a price, and with the wrong mortgage.

The second time I let a realtor handle the whole transaction. On this occasion I ended up with a swimming pool instead of a basement and the builder thumbing his nose at me. Whom do I use this time — my realtor, or even perhaps my milkman? — Twice-Burned

ANSWER: This complaint, in various forms, is a common criticism. When a professional man steps into fields outside his competence and training the results often are unsatisfactory. The lawyer is competent in preparing and passing on legal documents. The realtor's competence is real estate markets, practice, finance and prices. Therefore, when a realtor is required — with the realtor furnishing the proper information to see that the lawyer can incorporate them into proper legal form.

Another precaution is necessary. The buyer should independently engage either a realtor, lawyer or real estate counselor and not rely on the selling broker for it really is a duty bound to serve his principal, who is the seller.

That is an ideal solution. It is an expensive procedure and, unfortunately, rarely followed. However, this method is the proper way for a buyer to protect himself.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Three years of hard labor went into building a fine, five-room cottage that I now find is on someone else's land. My lot is just west of the road intersection. The surveyor set the stakes 1,100 feet from the road intersection — a mistake of only 100 feet but my cottage is now on his adjoining lot.

The surveyor says that it is not his fault for his assistant, whom he has since fired, did the job. The broker from whom I bought the lot and the township officials tell me nothing can be done. The company from whom I bought the building material says it is the owner's wrong lot or not. Please tell me what I can do! — Mrs. J. L. F.

ANSWER: Get a good lawyer and let him do the fighting for you. The surveyor, as a professional man, cannot lightly dismiss a negligent mistake of this type. I'm sure he will not give the same answer to your attorney — and get away with it. At I see it, you have no cause of tensial project for rural areas.

Competitions to encourage farmers to beautify the countryside will be launched, said Mr. Stewart.

The idea is to spur farmers to beautify rural areas by improving buildings, removing dead trees, repairing and painting fences, renovating old cemeteries, and generally, cleaning up the countryside.

Separate competitions will be launched in each county and district, with the winners competing for the grand prize—$500 and a championship trophy. Second prize will be $400, and third $300.

The department will make grants to each district on the average of $3 an entry with a maximum grant of $1,500.

Two bills in which religion figured were discussed by members.

One, introduced Thursday, would remove the University of Ottawa from religious control, thus making it eligible for provincial government grants.

PRESIDENTS BILL

The bill granting a new charter to the university was presented to the house by Fernand Guindon (PC — Stormont) a graduate of the university.

A new institution at Peel University will be created within the original University of Ottawa's house in Toronto.

Allan Eagleson (PC—Toronto Lakeshore) said no child up for adoption should be reared a home simply because of the religion or lack of religion of the prospective parents.

SUGGESTS CHANGE

He suggested in the legislature's welfare committee an amendment to the government's proposed child welfare act which would have the principle of inter - faith adoption spelled out.

The amendment suggestion was withdrawn by Mr. Eagleson at the request of Welfare Minister Louis Cecile.

Mr. Cecile said the bill makes no provisions last month for faith adoption, while not encouraging it.

Health Minister Matthew Dymond told the legislature that staff morale in his department had been seriously affected because of what he called abuse and disparagement.

Some conditions "will make employment in the service so unattractive that a steady decline in the quality and efficiency of the staff will be inevitable," he said.

Relations Between France And U. S. Said on Rockiest Ground Since Second War

PARIS (AP)—Top-level relations between France and the United States seem to be on the rockiest ground since the Second World War. But so far, it is impossible to detect a penetration of ill feeling on the person-to-person level.

France's policy battle with Washington is being conducted almost exclusively from one battle here — President de Gaulle's Elysee Palace. A salvo aimed at President Johnson echoes with regularity from behind its walls.

But the ordinary Frenchman has not taken to digging ideological trenches for a showdown with the Americans.

The French Communist Party tried three times to whip up trouble in front of the U.S. embassy because of Viet Nam. But the small groups of chanting youths who turned up didn't really have their hearts in it. The Communists—who pick up about one in every five votes in French elections — haven't even bothered to call their followers out to demonstrate in the Dominican crisis.

France's most eminent political exile, Ahmed Ben Bella, Algerian, picks holes in some of de Gaulle's policies. This week he said it was high time Washington and Paris buried the hatchet.

When Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko made an official visit to Paris last month French officials kept their American colleagues informed of his progress.

When word of Johnson's "drink American" order got around in France, it brought smiles instead of grumbles. Americans in official position here kept right on drinking French wines. And a popular American soft drink still was selling well at sidewalk cafes, being built.

children Sandra and David and two English cousins were thought to be bound for the Caribbean. A cargo vessel reported sighted off the Tryphlet under full sail 31 miles off Land's End late Thursday night.

The Tryphlet is a three-bolled sailboat that her builders, Multi-Hull Services Ltd. of Wadebridge, Cornwall, claim is the world's biggest trimaran at 64 feet long, 32 feet across the beam.

Burpee has been living for the last 18 months at Padstow, a fishing harbor in the Camel River estuary on the north Cornish coast, while the Tryphlet was being built.

EODA to Promote Creation Of National Park Between Kingston and Smiths Falls

OTTAWA (CP)—The Eastern Ontario Development Association decided Tuesday to promote creation of a 305-square-mile Rideau Highlands national park in a wilderness area along the Rideau Canal between Kingston and Smiths Falls.

The proposed park, situated north of Kingston and largely west of the canal, would include all of Bedford Township (130 square miles), and parts of Oso (15), South Sherbrooke (1), North Crosby (16), South Crosby (40), Loughborough (45), Storrington (52) and Leeds (two) townships.

The decision—turned into the association's centennial project—was made following a report on the Rideau Canal system prepared by association President R. F. Muckleston, a Brockville consulting engineer.

The report also recommended that the 124-mile Rideau Canal system between Ottawa and Kingston be restored to its original condition of 125 years ago and that no additional federal canal lands be sold, so that it can be kept "as a physical reminder of eastern Ontario's past."

ASK ACTION

The report requested fast government action to prevent further land development for summer cottage resorts in the area to preserve the present wild and isolated areas for recreation in the future.

Proper docking facilities, parking areas and camping sites should be provided at regular intervals along the length of the canal to enhance its use by the boating and motoring tourist, the report said.

It asked for a study of the canal system's drainage areas to ensure adequate supplies of water, and the creation of one federal government agency to co-ordinate all the facilities of the park lands and the Rideau Canal.

Harry D. Callan of Smiths Falls, general manager of the association, said 19 new industries have located in the Ottawa - Kingston - Pembroke triangle in the last 12 months.

He said early predictions that secondary industry would locate in eastern Ontario following completion of the St. Lawrence Seaway "are beginning to come true."

"A total of 137 new industries employing more than 8,000 people located in the region since 1954. I'm not over - optimistic when I say it shows a trend," he said.

Delegates were told progress in eastern Ontario has fallen short of that in the province's larger metropolitan areas because of a lack of industrial development funds.

A brief from the association's industrial committee blamed this on "the evident lack of interest of the lending institutions to provide funds for expansion purposes" at competitive rates of interest.

The meeting decided to ask the government to encourage lending institutions to make funds available to municipalities with populations of 50,000 or less through guarantees similar to those supporting the Farm Improvement Loans Act.

A second method to provide industrial investment funds would be the joint initiation of such a program by the provincial and federal governments themselves.

Agnes MacLean (PC — Queens) opposed the setting of time limits for debate on various bills.

Mr. MacEachen adopted a suggestion that Speech from all parties be heard under the one - day limit for certain clauses of bills.

The Commons continued discussion on the government's proposals to streamline House rules.

Labor Minister MacEachen asked Opposition leaders for opinion on Roland Michener as permanent Speaker.

Mr. Michener was Speaker under the Diefenbaker administration and was appointed ambassador to India by the present government.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) asked whether the government would open a sent for Mr. Michener to be elected by acclamation.

Mr. MacEachen indicated this would be contingent on Opposition acceptance of the rules changes.

OBSCENE ART CHARGE — Gallery proprietor Dorothy Cameron, charged Wednesday with exhibiting obscene paintings, says she will "fight as far as the supreme court if necessary" to clear her name. Police impounded seven pictures from the Eros '65 art exhibition currently on show in Toronto. The exhibition displayed the work of 22 Canadian artists, all of them dealing with the act of love. Dominican Republic Crisis Can Mean Many Difficulties Ahead for U. S. Diplomacy

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

LIMA (AP)—The crisis in the Dominican Republic may prove to have been the agent of revolutionary change in the relations of Latin American countries with the United States.

The crisis can mean painful difficulties ahead for U.S. diplomacy. Yet, in the long run, it could mean a change for the better.

Latin American politicians obviously have noted that in cases where governments — such as the one in Peru—openly deplored U.S. military action in the Dominican Republic, they tended to pull some of the teeth of the extreme left, depriving it of an important tool of propaganda attack.

On the other hand, where a government, such as that of Colombia, did not denounce U.S. action unequivocally, the extremists were provided with more propaganda ammunition with which to support new violence.

OBSERVE CLOSELY

It seems likely that Latin American governments will carefully observe the experience of Peru and Venezuela, both constitutionally elected regimes which published to a poor view of U.S. action in the Dominican capital.

Peru is a good example of what seems to be developing. There seemed in the country to have been an initial feeling of shock at the original landings of U.S. forces in Santo Domingo.

The U.S. troops nailed down a security zone in Santo Domingo and set off a conflict in which Washington suspected of pro-Cuban Communist leanings.

Extremists started to plan to capitalize on the action. In Peru there were some minor demonstrations. But any attempt to direct these against the government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry have been frustrated, largely because of the attitude of the government itself. It not only criticized the U.S. action but refused to participate in an international military force under the Organization of American States.

Thereafter, attempts of Cuban Communist agitators to mount demonstrations seemed to lack steam. Even an outbreak of stoning at the U.S. embassy building was a passing incident, staged by two dozen demonstrators who failed to rally any public support.

Gradually, the shock of the Dominican crisis has begun to wear away here. Gradually, arguments on the U.S. side have begun to find their way into influential organs of the press.

While there has been a waning emphasis on the Dominican crisis as a whole, denunciations have continued.

Most violent of these have come from the Apra party of Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, which proclaims itself militantly anti-Communist and to which the United States has looked hopefully in the past as a leftist safety valve to offset extremist pressures and offer a peaceful alternative to the left in general.

Apra, which failed to win the presidency in the elections 1963, has an unlikely alliance with the followers of the former dictator, retired Gen. Manuel A. Odria, and holds a balance of power in congress. But there is a sort of give-and-take between the president and congress which permits Peru to move at a fairly respectable pace toward curing some of her ancient political and economic ills. Despite all the ferment going on elsewhere, Peru is relatively tranquil politically.

John Cummings of Point Anne brought home a five pound lunker that weighed 15 pounds 10 ounces.

The big fellow was 32 inches long and had a girth of 18 inches.

Mr. Cummings landed the beauty while fishing in Kaminiskeg Lake in Bangor township. He also brought home among others, a smaller edition that weighed over three pounds.

He caught the fish with a hook minnow.

With Mr. Cummings were Bob Cook, Fred Dorna and John George.

Quinte Parley Asks Angola Admit Pastors

KINGSTON (CP) — United Church ministers and lay delegates today asked for the re-establishment of free movement for Protestant and Roman Catholic missionaries in Angola.

Their action came less than 24 hours after Rev. Dr. Allen Knight, Angola cultural missionary, revealed to the 61st annual Bay of Quinte conference here that his re - entry had been blocked by the Portuguese government.

Rev. Philip Romeril of Blackstock, Ont., chairman of the conference's world mission committee, said his group urges that unremitting efforts be made by the church's board of world mission to re-establish free movement of all missionaries in the country.

B. C. Paper Decides to Remain Daily

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Times, which had announced it would leave the daily newspaper field to become a weekly publication, has decided to remain a daily—at least for the time being.

In a statement Thursday, The Times announced it would continue as a daily until Wednesday, June 2, and that a publication meeting would be held that night.

News paper executives declined further comment.

In a statement Wednesday, President William Val Warren said the afternoon newspaper would publish its last daily edition Monday, switching to weekly publication the following Thursday, June 3.

At that time he said the newspaper, which began publication Sept. 5, 1964, had lost "more than $1,000,000" in the first nine months of operation. He said then that The Times would revert back to a daily publication after solidifying its financial position.

Meanwhile, Harold (Brud) Delany, managing editor of The Times, said in a statement Thursday he has resigned over policy differences with management. He said he has no immediate plans.

Parliamentary Notebook

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—A non-political, private war is headed for a new stage as anti-smoking forces in the Commons assume the offensive against tobacco.

The anti-smokers plan to expose their uncommitted colleagues to a film on cigarette smoking and disease which is said to have shaken the members of the British Columbia legislature when they viewed it a few years ago.

Heading the anti-smokers are representatives of each of the five political parties. The organizer is Barry Mather, New Democrat MP for New Westminster who is head of a non-smokers group called the "Never Touch 'Ems."

Mr. Mather's allies are P. B. Rynard, a medical doctor who is Progressive Conservative MP for Simcoe East, Chesley W. Carter, Liberal MP for Burin-Burgeo, Social Credit Leader Thompson and Antoine Belanger, Creditiste MP for Charlevoix.

In a way the anti-smoker's film is a reply to the activities of the MPs who represent tobacco-growing areas and who have been outspoken critics of Health Minister Judy LaMarsh's anti - cigarette campaign and Mr. Mather's persistent prodding for controls of cigarette advertising.

The tobacco-area spokesmen in the Commons have been Jack Roxburgh, Liberal MP for Norfolk, and Wallace Nesbitt, Conservative MP for Oxford.

SHOWED DOCUMENTARY

Mr. Nesbitt last month sponsored a film showing for MPs of a new documentary on the tobacco industry which is aimed at promoting tobacco sales. It will be sent on the foreign market film circuit.

Mr. Mather has been pressing Miss LaMarsh to have cigarette ads banned on the publicly-owned CBC.

He lost a round in that battle when the corporation informed Parliament it would be useless to ban such ads when its privately - owned rival television network accepts them.

Banking on the experience of the B.C. legislators when they viewed the anti-smoking film, Mr. Mather and his allies plan a showing for MPs June 10.

He says newspapers reported after the B.C. showing that many MLAs came away shaking their heads and swearing off cigarettes.

He's so confident of results from the anti - smoking film among the MPs that he's considering special wastebaskets for the members to throw away their full packs.

"And . . . Away We Go . . ."

Former Fire Chief Gerald Vance did not exactly do a "Jackie Gleason" in traveling music when he fired first impression at me but he showed as much enthusiasm as the party emcee.

Actually he was putting on the act for the big guy is taking his new position as president of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club seriously.

No wonder. The big guy has been working his head off with club directors in an effort to give the Driving Club's first meet of the season a colorful kickoff.

And he has done an excellent job with the co-operation of the city parks board.

"Nearly forty pacers and trotters will be on hand Saturday night in what we hope will be the forerunner of sixteen seasonal Saturday night meets," Gerald said.

"There will be nine heats, one dash and four double heat events. We have a lot of the best horses in the district lined up. I personally contacted 20 drivers at the recent Kingston meet and they assured me they will be here," he said.

Belleville's "Greenway" will show a new look to the Saturday night racing aficionados. President Vance tells me there is 700 tons of rock dust powdering the track lady's face. This, he says, makes for a faster, safer track. Rain will not convert it into a muddy sticky mess.

The chief told me there is a special event for lovers of the trotter. "We have one special race for those fans. The third race has trotters. We have riders but these were classified with the pacers."

The "trot" event will be a feature of the weekly meets if enough horses are entered, said Vance.

The chief was optimistic over the season's potential. "The club wound up with little or nothing in the kitty last year," he said, "and I'm going to do my best to put it in the black this season."

Just as a teaser look at this is the free-for-all. Whirlwind Vic, J. J. Wann, Chuck's Delivery, Direct Dillard, Bradcliff, Dalemale, Early John. Beat that one.

The stage is set for the opener here tomorrow night. The track, as was noted, is in excellent condition. The pari-mutuels will be on hand. The grandstand is free to ticket holders.

And here is an important note.

"A lot of people," said President Vance, "are under the impression that all is not well with the pari-mutuel system. Some have alleged it is 'fixed.'

"I want to go on record as saying that the pari-mutuels are absolutely on the level. They cannot be 'fixed.'

"They will be here—and this is important—they are operated under the personal supervision of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. What more can they ask?"

And another argument-stopper, says Vance is the photo-finish cameras. These will be in action all season from stop the grandstand.

The ex-fire chief spoke highly of the chief judge, Mr. Oscar Frederick of Enterprise. "Oscar," he said, "is the best harness-racing judge in Ontario and we have obtained his services for the entire season. He doesn't fool—and the drivers know it. They hold him in high esteem."

George Rutledge, the popular announcer of last season will again be at the press-box microphone. George's head-by-head commentary is one of the popular features of the meet and I understand he has his tonsils overhauled and is ready and rarin' to get started.

So it looks like the harness-racing stage is all set.

"And . . . Away We Go!"

Ted Shaw Tosses First No-Hitter

Ted Shaw, of the bantam Park Dale team, pitched the first no-hitter of the season while the seven-lanning no-hitter while issuing three walks. He retired the first 13 men he faced but all three walks and an error in the middle scored the losers' run in the fifth. Eddie Christopher was Shaw's battery mate.

Jim Potts also pitched well in defeat, allowing just two hits before giving way to Lee Baker in the fifth. Baker allowed one safety. Potts struck out 10 and walked eight while Baker had two of each. Butch Curtain did the catching.

The Park Dale hits went to Garry "Red" Burnette, with a double, Eddie Christopher and Barry Burnette.

In the preview tilt, Terry Meagher pitched five-hit ball for Sico's Shell, whiffing 13 and walking five. Barry Collins was his catcher.

Allan Neill was the starter and loser for Jaycees, relieved by Brian Cousins in the fourth. They gave up 11 hits but no record of strikeouts or walks was available. Daniel Chatterley was the receiver.

Terry Meagher had four hits in as many trips and scored four runs to spark his own attack. Brother Rick Meagher got three hits in five trips.

Names of Jaycee hitters were not made available.

Boston Blanks Twins ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Tigers Tab Yanks

Senators Take Chance, Whip Angels

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dean Chance, the Cy Young Award winner last season, lost his fourth straight game Wednesday, absorbing his worst pummelling in two seasons as Washington Senators battered Los Angeles Angels 9-4 and emerged with an inflated 4.72 earned-run average.

The only thing swift about Chance against the Senators was the time it took Washington to knock him out. The Senators assaulted him for seven runs and eight hits in 2 2-3 innings.

You have to go back to May 21, 1963 for a similar assault on Chance. That day he gave up five runs in 1 1-3 innings against Chicago White Sox.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston Red Sox dropped Minnesota out of first place by blanking the Twins 3-0 and Detroit Tigers tagged New York Yankees 4-1. Baltimore Orioles and Kansas City Athletics were rained out while the White Sox and Cleveland Indians had an open date.

A two-run triple by relief pitcher Marshall Bridges knocked Chance out in the third as the Senators posted six runs. Joe Cunningham and Frank Howard homered for Washington.

Whitey Ford, who shut out the Senators for New York in his last start, quit after just one inning against the Tigers, saying simply that he "didn't have it."

If Ford didn't have it, Detroit's Joe Sparma did. The young right hander drove in two runs with a double and held the Yankees to five hits with Roger Maris' two-out homer in the ninth providing his shutout bid.

The Twins, who had eight homers and two victories in their first two games against the Red Sox in Fenway Park, were limited to three hits until the ninth inning by Dave Morehead. Then he got into a jam by loading the bases on three walks with only one out.

Dick Radatz, ineffective in relief so far this season, hamstrung out of the Boston bullpen and added the threat by issuing pinch hitters Don Mincher and Sandy Valdespino.

Stirling Defeats Madoc 11-5

MADOC (Special) — Sparked by the heavy hitting of second baseman Bob Donohoe, Stirling trounced Madoc 11-5 here last night for their first win in Belleville and District Softball League play.

Madoc now rests alone in the basement, the loop's only winless squad.

Donohoe accounted for eight of Stirling's 11 runs. He picked up eight runs batted in with a two-run homer and a bases-loaded triple, scoring two others himself on throwing errors.

Stirling exploded for five runs in each of the third and sixth innings.

Rob Hunter received the pitching victory, with relief help from Wayne Shaw in the sixth inning. They gave up nine hits between them and each struck out six batters. Hunter issued the lone walk.

Darrel Kramp started and lost, knocked out in favor of Larry Griffins in the third frame. Kramp and Griffins combined 13 hits. Kramp fanned five and walked none while Griffins struck out nine and passed five. Six bobbles hurt their cause.

Besides Donohoe's power hitting, Stirling got a pair of doubles from Shaw and two singles each from Clare Hagerman, Roger Smith and Rob Neal. Doug Potts hit a triple, Hunter and Ken Smith a single each.

Brian Gray poked four singles for Madoc while Kramp and Griffins each clouted bases empty homers. Larry Stickwood had two singles and Albert Reid a triple.

The game was held up for a period when the lights failed to work when first turned on mid-way through the game.

Toronto International
Track Meet Studded With Stars

TORONTO (CP) — In 1908 a spindly - legged teen - ager and a budding track star got his first taste of Olympic glory. He carried the torch on its last jog around the jammed 100,000 seat cricket stadium in Melbourne.

The wildly cheering, shirt-sleeved Australians gave Ron Clarke a standing ovation.

Seven years later, on the same brick - red cinder track, bigger and hardened by training and with muscular legs, the same young man shattered two world records. The crowd: 25 paid admissions.

The record performances came over the 10,000-metre and six-mile distances in the twilight of a December evening after most of the crowd had gone home for supper.

But nobody will be going home early here June 10 when Clarke runs the three - mile event against a star - studded field that includes Olympic gold medallist Bob Schul of the United States, Alby Thomas of Australia, Bill Baillie of New Zealand and Toronto's Dave Ellis. They'll compete in the Toronto International track meet.

WAS OLYMPIC CHAMP

Clarke, who holds the world three-mile record with a 12:07.6 clocking, could get his biggest threat from the 27 - year - old Schul, who won the Olympic 5,000 - metre run last year in Tokyo.

Thomas, a sub - four - minute miler, held the world three-mile mark at one time while Baillie, a 30-year-old veteran of 14 years of competition, finished sixth just 2.2 seconds behind Schul in the Olympics.

Ellis, the United States Amateur Athletic Union cross country champ, has had a big indoor season this year and equalled Thomas's old three-mile record while finishing second to Billy Mills of the U.S. in New York in February.

Clarke, who also holds the best world time over 10 miles at 47:12.8, ran the three-mile run in 12:7.4, 2.4 seconds faster than the previous record held by veteran Murray Halberg of New Zealand.

In 1963 he was clocked in 27:17.6 over six miles, 38.3 seconds better than the existing standard, and 26:15.6 over 10,000 metres, 2.8 seconds faster than the previous old mark.

Mets Claw Cubs; Astros Whip Cards

Dodgers Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Shortstop Dick Schofield, the newest member of the Giants, was telling about shopping for a place to live in San Francisco.

"A lady showed me a place and she wanted $700 a month," he said.

"She must think I'm Willie Mays."

At the moment, the lady may have a point. Mays is hitting .368 but Schofield is hitting .389 for the Giants.

Schofield, a lifetime .228 hitter who wound up with San Francisco in a shortstop swap that sent Jose Pagan to Pittsburgh Pirates, hit safely in his fifth consecutive game for the Giants Thursday, driving in three runs with a double and a single in a 9-2 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

The 30-year-old switch hitter now has seven hits, including three doubles, in 18 at-bats for the Giants. Pagan, who was hitting .305 when he was traded, has yet to play for the Pirates. DODGERS WIN AGAIN

Elsewhere in the National League, the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers edged Milwaukee Braves 3-2, Houston Astros whipped St. Louis Cardinals 8-4 and New York Mets outlasted Chicago Cubs 8-5. The Pittsburgh-Philadelphia game was rained out.

Schofield started his performance when he drew a walk in the third inning and scored on singles by Jesus Alou and Willie McCovey, putting the Giants ahead to stay 2-1. He then slapped a two-run single in the three - run fourth inning and added a run-producing double in the eighth.

The Astros put it out of reach against the Cardinals in the first two innings, scoring three runs with only two hits off Ray Washburn.

Jim Wynn hit his eighth homer for the Astros while Dick Farrell brought his record to 4-1 by scattering seven hits.

Ed Kranepool, Johnny Lewis and Ron Swoboda drove in seven of the Mets' eight runs against the Cubs. Kranepool accounted for three with a sacrifice fly and a two-run double.

Lightfoots Win Four In Row

Lightfoots racked up their fourth consecutive Commercial Softball League win last night, dumping Stewart Warner by a 10-7 score.

The winners built up an early 6-0 lead and pitcher George Young had a no-hitter until the losers broke loose for a trio in the fourth to make it a tight contest. Lightfoots picked up threesomes in the fifth and sixth, with the losers scoring four, to end it 10-7.

Young gave up eight hits over the route, striking out five and passing three.

Harry Powers was the loser before giving way to Lewack in the fifth. They gave up nine hits, struck out 11 and walked nine.

Don Smith spearheaded the Lightfoot attack with three hits, one of them a double. Jack 'Deacon' Whiting, Jon Clapp, Don Wood and Jack Gilby each hit a two - bagger with singles going to George Young and Rusty Gervie.

Lewack slammed a two-run homer and Gary Goe a bases - empty round-tripper for Stewart - Warner while Hytle Bryant got a double and single, Jack Caddick singled twice, Chuck Rowbotham had a double and Bob Benn a single.

Two Sunday games are scheduled this weekend, both at Prince Charles School. City Hotel and Black Diamond Cheese clash at 2.00, Belvedere Hotel and RCAF at 4.30 p.m.

Soccer Game Switched

A change in scheduling has switched Belleville Parson's Cleaners first game in the Kingston and District Soccer League, "from here to there".

Parsons will play Kingston Rails, at the Kingston Fairgrounds, Sunday afternoon, at three o'clock.

The game at first was slated for Belleville on Saturday evening.

Belleville was unable to secure a satisfactory playing field for the contest.

Minor Softball Results

The bantam division of the Belleville Minor Softball Association opened its schedule with a pair of games last-night.

Jets gunned down the Air Cadet Sabres by an 18-11 count while Aces blasted the Air Cadet Yukons to the tune of 35-0.

Bloomfield Drops First

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

A two-run homer by Larry Mavety brought an end to Bloomfield's unbeaten string in C. and D. Softball League play at the Fairgrounds last night.

The homer was the key blow as Trudeau Motors stopped the boys from Prince Edward by a 6-4 score.

Trudeaus had their hands full turning the trick, despite off-color fielding by the locals. Bloomfield pitcher Ken DeMille hurled no-hit ball until the sixth frame but the best his mates could do was give him a 4-3 lead at that point.

Twin errors in the first scored one Trudeau marker and Bloomfield erred twice again in the fifth, allowing another Trudeau run for a 3-2 score.

Gene Yorke put Bloomfield back into a two-run lead in the top of the sixth with his second homer in as many nights.

Rick Locke broke DeMille's no-hit bid by beating out a slow roller to second base opening the bottom of the sixth. He scored after a pair of wild pitches and a ground out and it was 4-3.

An error started the winning rally in the seventh and Mavety lined a rising shot to left that Fawcett at first misjudged, then failed to reach.

Ralph Plane beat out a perfect bunt, Bob Green singled to left and Locke's hit scored the final marker. The five hits in the two innings were all DeMille allowed while striking out 10 and walking none.

Bob Green scattered eight hits in a strong game on the Belleville hillcop. He struck out seven and walked but two.

Bloomfield tallied three runs in the third after a two-out error. Ostrander's bases-loaded single plated two and another scored while he was caught in a run-down. Carson and Fawcett set up the situation with base hits, but Green never allowed more than one safety scoring from there out, and he got errorless support from his mates.

Warren Ostrander collected two hits while the losers' others were shared by Gene Yorke, Keith MacDonald, Frank Forester, Dave Lockwood, Jim Guernsey and Eldon Carson.

The loss left Bloomfield in a three-way tie for first, with Ellis Juniors and Tweed, all with marks of three and one. Trudeaus and Fenaco each own 2-2 records.

Actor Lee Marvin Lands Two Big Ones in Row

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The acting business is fickle. One day you're really desperate to land that big catch, you'll never make it. But if you play it cool, you might come up with a whopper."

The alfresco came naturally to Lee Marvin, 41, who would rather fish than act—almost.

The tall, craggy actor has had Marvin will be a front-runner for the Oscar next year because of his role in Cat Ballou.

Not only that, he comes on like a tropical hurricane in Ship of Fools, according to preview reports.

"I've been acting for 18 years and I've been in pictures for 12," he said. "I waited a long time and this to happen—and now I get two in a row! Boy, it feels good."

Son of a New York advertising executive, Lee didn't think much about acting until after his war service in the marines.

STARTED AT BOTTOM

He got interested in a little theatre in Woodstock, N.Y., where he studied under Antoinette Perry, Broadway and television.

His first film was You're in the Navy Now with Gary Cooper.

"I played an endless number of angry young men," he said. "How far can you go playing angry young men?"

He saw an out in a television series, M Squad. His reasoning: "Everybody knew me, but nobody knew my name. Every young actor should do a TV series to establish himself. That's the only way you can stand out from the crowd."

His labors for M Squad have brought him $300,000. That gave him the independence to wait for that big catch. Lee was 40 before it arrived, but the wait was worth it.

Producers already are looking at him through different eyes. Columbia has signed him to four pictures in five years at more than double his previous salary.

CHAMP WRESTLER PLAYS COLD KILLER

"Cheerful looking wrestlers do bruise," says Harold Sakata, champion athlete turned actor for his role of a cold-blooded killer in "Goldfinger," continuing its highly successful engagement at the Belle Theatre, in Belleville.

Sean Connery again stars as James Bond in this latest Ian Fleming story which is brought to the screen in Technicolor.

Recalling his early career as a professional wrestler, Sakata (known to TV audiences as "The Great Togo) admits he wasn't popular as a clean-cut college boy type. Than one day he snarled and fans started booing him and he knew he had found the secret of success in the ring.

Today he is agreeably well-off, owning lavish homes in Honolulu and Tokio and an assortment of other real estate holding in the United States. Another lucrative endeavor has further guaranteed his future. Sakata continues to be a "heavy" on the screen for his role in "Goldfinger."

As a starter, he paints an attractive girl's body with gold paint, suffocating her. He displays another beauty by breaking her neck with his metal brimmed hat. And in a violent encounter with James Bond, he gives Fleming's indestructables here the fight-ing fright of his life.

Although he has appeared in over 2000 professional bouts and demonstrated his karate skills often, Sakata never has been called upon to act. He was discovered for "Goldfinger," by the producers.

"Goldfinger" will not be shown at the Belle Theatre Saturday matinee, but will be on exhibition tonight and Saturday night, at 7.30 and 9.10 p.m.

Three Major TV Networks Gripped With Space Fever

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The three major television networks, once again, are gripped with space fever, a competitive disease in which each tries to outdo the others in covering the journeys of the astronauts.

The four-day Gemini shot is scheduled next Thursday morning and the television audience will receive its briefings earlier in special programs on all networks. NBC's G-74 Preview will come Tuesday night (9-10 EDT) while CBS's Gemini Preview follows Wednesday night (8-8:30 EDT) as does ABC's Preview on its Scope program (10:30-11).

On launch day, all networks will start their coverage at 7 a.m., about two hours before the planned blast-off.

It is expected that all of he networks will stay with the story at least until 11 a.m., and longer if circumstances warrant.

IT'S PRESTIGE JOB

As usual, basic coverage of the launching is a prestige operation with each network assigning its top men to the running story and filling in the dull moments with assorted interviews and demonstrations. NBC will have color cameras for the blast-off.

All networks plan hourly reports on its progress of the flight plus updating during all news programs. In addition, each network will have a 15-minute special program lightly from 11:15 to 11:30 EDT.

Radio stations will be covering the flight with the same concentration that television will give it.

Viewers will have to wait until some time after Monday morning's planned splash-down to see any space pictures including a film of Mrs. Edward H. White II if he attempts a walk in space. Unlike the Russian space ship, the Gemini capsule is not equipped with television cameras.

For the first time, a TV pool representative will be permitted to travel in the rescue helicopter when it goes to the astronauts after the splashdown, so recovery pictures will be received sooner than before.

Weekend TV programming will be highlighted by film of the controversial Liston - Clay fight on ABC's Wide World of Sports program Saturday (5-6 p.m. EDT). On Sunday afternoon (4-5) there will be the American premiere of Gian-Carlo Menotti's new opera, Martin's Life on CBS.

Wants New Agreement

CAHA Votes Finish To Pro Sponsorship

By VERN LACE

VICTORIA (CP)—The decks have been cleared for a new round of bargaining between professional and amateur hockey but prospects of early agreement appear slim.

The negotiations were precipitated Thursday by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association when its annual meeting voted unanimously to terminate the CAHA's working agreement with the National Hockey League.

The CAHA's decision is unlikely to have any immediate effect. NHL President Clarence Campbell said in New York Thursday night he expects the league governors will invoke a clause in the seven-year-old agreement requiring two years' notice if either side wishes to terminate it.

In an interview following the CAHA annual meeting, President Lionel Fleury said the association will seek to end sponsorship of amateur teams by NHL clubs and introduce a universal draft of players graduating from junior ranks.

REDUCES INTEREST

Fleury said the sponsorship system funnels the best players into a few powerful junior A clubs and reduces spectator interest in other centres by depriving them of their top stars.

"They love their No. 1 attraction," Fleury said. "How do you think Montreal would feel if they lost their Jean Beliveau and Henri Richards?"

Nearly all junior A clubs are NHL-sponsored, together with hundreds of minor teams affiliated with the junior organizations.

Fleury said the Maritimes are particularly hard hit by the present system. Their unsponsored teams took regular beatings from Ontario and Quebec opponents in intersectional junior competition.

SAY TALKS FUTILE

Gordon Hicken of Melville, Sask., CAHA secretary-manager, said the decision to terminate the agreement followed a winter of futile talks with the NHL aimed at modifying its terms.

Campbell said the NHL is unable to comply with the CAHA's demand to drop sponsorship immediately because "95 per cent of the players entering pro hockey today are the product of sponsored teams."

He said the NHL agrees with the principle of universal amateur draft but wants the age lowered from 21 to 19.

There is also disagreement as to the disposal of draft fees. The CAHA wants to collect the money and have it distributed to clubs across Canada by a committee of amateur and professional representatives. The NHL favors direct payment to the club from which a player is drafted.

VOTE AFFILIATION

In other activities, the CAHA meeting voted to affiliate with the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union and to require all minor hockey players to obtain written consent from their parents before playing for a CAHA-affiliated club.

A committee was set up to negotiate a new player transfer agreement with the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States providing for payment of transfer fees.

The Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League was fined $4,000 for failing to meet the deadline for the start of Memorial Cup competition.

Dates were set for the start of the 1966 Allan and Memorial Cup finals, the senior championships beginning May 4 in Western Canada and the junior final getting under way May 1 in the East.

Because of financial setbacks, the CAHA decided to abandon coast-to-coast competition in eastern Memorial Cup playoffs in favor of straight elimination series.

The centre stats of officers, headed by Fleury and vice-presidents Fred Page of Port Arthur and Lloyd Pollock of Windsor, Ont., was elected to a second term.

Men's Championship

80 Golfers Seek Crown

Peter Jones the Bay of Quinte Country Club's 1964 men's golf champion had better look to his laurels.

Some eighty "Palmers and Nicklaus" tee off tomorrow in an effort to grab the coveted crown.

Jones defeated the veteran Val Smith for the links bauble last year and the field looks like the champion will get some tough competition.

A club spokesman said today that the field is a record one and it is expected a new score mark will be set.

The low eight scores plus P. Jones will qualify for the Quinte Cup Match scheduled for the club for June 26 on the club's course.

It is 36-hole match play and each of the 8 qualifiers will get some handicap.

Note to other golfers. The club's tees will be closed on Sunday from 8 a.m. to 11.15.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 29

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Proposal now may not be practical. Head your own course set when it comes to money. Today you could get valid bargains. Be alert and ask questions.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Chances for progress highlighted. Key is romance, glamor. Tonight you can be at your best. Others are impressed . . . If you remember basic values.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Be aware of details. Minor matters need attention. What appears a setback may boomerang in your favor. Be patient. Thorough approach brings good results.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Young person could have ulterior motive. Keep guard up! Day proves beneficial. Social affair tonight would be stimulating. You learn from others now.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Mystery is cleared up. You find the direction to go for greatest profit. Emphasis on home base. Plan for inviting unusual people to visit you.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Obtain hint from today's Leo message. Explore ideas. Read and write. Stress greater knowledge. Discuss questions with people you respect. Be giving — and you will receive.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): If reward is received today give credit to past effort. Be a gracious "winner." Avoids can. Utilize innate charm. Many watch so be at your best!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Finish what you start. Extend influence. People may be attracted to you with their problems. Be a sympathetic listener. Do not become involved with underhanded scheme.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Be aware of promises and don't jump to conclusions. Keep resolutions! Very significant day! Much can happen behind-the-scenes.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Favorable lunar aspect highlights love, romance and travel. Day when you get unusual offers. Make sure you really know what you want! Study all angles.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Avoid harsh words with others over money matters. You gain most through tact, diplomacy. Surprise visit not unlikely. Others may be ultra-sensitive today.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Recreation indicated. Postpone long journey if practical. Communication lines may be snarled. Review instructions. Read your paper for helpful information.

If today is your birthday . . . you are highly intuitive. You tend to permit emotions to rule logic. Would make fine salesman or actor.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Taurus, Gemini, Cancer. Special word to Sagittarius: Your ideas are being discussed by important people. Maintain dignity!

Another new and outstanding model from the design division of Maurice H. Rollins Construction Limited, the Kensington is a departure from the conventional. This model brings to Belleville home buyers for the first time the classical Mansard Roof formerly found in expensive homes only. This distinctive roof style sets the house apart from all others as much as many estate homes are set apart in more exclusive areas.

The house is situated in Glenarden on the west side of town where all services, including paved road, are paid for. Included in the services supplied is underground electrical and telephone wiring. No unsightly poles and wires to mar the beauty of the landscape.

From the spacious front vestibule, entrance is gained directly to the kitchen, to the left to the living room, and to the right up a few steps to the sleeping area. Likewise to the right from the vestibule is entrance to the future recreation room. On this lower level is also found the laundry area.

The kitchen, beautifully finished in white, gold and blue, provides an unusually large area for day to day informal dining. There is an abundance of easy to reach cupboard space.

The living room is decorated in a soft neutral pastel shade. There is a seldom seen bay window which permits a variety of decoration. This window when viewed from the outside is indeed a conversation piece normally reserved for the far more expensive homes.

The dining area is L shaped from the living room and provides adequate space for that large party.

The bedroom wing provides 3 bedrooms with large closets. Each bedroom tastefully decorated in soft pastel colors. The bathroom, accessible directly from the master bedroom is equally well decorated. It has a large vanity with mirrored wall.

The attached garage gives the house the appearance of a long low ranch style so much in demand today. The rear door into the garage is ideal when using the garage for storage of garden tools, etc.

On the whole this outstanding model should fill the bill for the so many purchasers who are seeking something different, practical, and in the price range most can afford.

See OAS Threat to UN Force

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

OTTAWA (CP)—Government sources say Canada is concerned lest its patient efforts to build a permanent United Nations peace force be torpedoed by the United States' drive to form a regional force under the Organization of American States.

The fear here is said to be that the current U.S. initiative could produce a series of regional peace forces, each of them tied to an area alliance and dominated by a single world power.

This would be a far cry from the truly international force, controlled at least in part by the many - nation UN General Assembly, which this country has been seeking for some time.

The American proposal for a permanent OAS force, first voiced by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, was renewed Friday by President Johnson in Johnson, Texas, speech. He applauded the arrival of Latin American troops in the Dominican Republic and suggested that "out of the Dominican crucible, the 20 American nations may now forge a stronger shield against disaster."

SUPPORT OAS FORCE

Both Prime Minister Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin have made it clear on numerous occasions that they support the creation of an OAS force to work in the Dominican Republic.

The Canadian position has been that, without any UN machinery available to act, a force under the aegis of a regional organization is vastly preferable to unilateral U.S. action.

But on the idea of making the OAS force more permanent, the Canadian reaction is somewhat different, particularly in the absence of any suggestion by U.S. spokesmen that the regional force will be tied to the UN in any way.

As Johnson was speaking Friday in Texas, Mr. Martin was telling the Commons:

"It must be recognized that only the authority of an ordinary peace-keeping operation can serve to remove any possible misuse of a regional organization. I think that is clear."

OPPOSES DOMINATION

While the external affairs minister didn't spell it out, sources said the "misuse" he had in mind was clearly the domination of any regional force by a single great power.

Canada, it will not play any role in the proposed OAS force, is convinced, sources say, that the force will be controlled by Washington. Will creation of any OAS force, they wonder, produce a Southeast Asian "peace force" under Chinese domination or an Eastern European force under Soviet control?

Anglican, United Church Union Principles Set by Study Group

TORONTO (CP) — A set of common principles that could form a basis of union between Canada's two largest non-Roman Catholic Christian churches has been agreed upon by a study group representing both churches, it was learned Friday night.

The Committee of Ten of the two churches have agreed on a document called The Principles of Union between the Anglican Church of Canada and the United Church of Canada. Its contents will be made known at a press conference here next Tuesday.

The document will be mailed to the clergy of both churches Monday, to reach most of them the same day as the conference.

Spokesmen for both churches emphasized that the proposals to be unveiled Tuesday are merely the basic principles that might underlie a possible agreement, not a detailed blueprint for church union.

They also stressed that the proposals have many stages to go through before they can be said to constitute the position of the two churches on the subject.

Very Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, former moderator of the general council of the United Church, said the document is only a study paper and not the basis for union.

But he said he is glad that after 22 years of negotiations, representatives of the two churches have finally put something down on paper.

No spokesman for either church or for either of the Committees of Ten would indicate the nature of the proposals or even their subject matter, except in the most general terms.

They did say that the principles on which the two committees finally agreed earlier this month are in the fields of faith and order — what the Christian religion is and what the Christian church is — with reference to the teachings of Christ and his apostles.

The document will be studied by the Anglican General Synod in Vancouver this August.

In the United Church, it will go to the executive of the general council in September and to the full general council in 1966.

Dr. Mutchmor said that at least 66 per cent of United Church presbyteries — church districts, of which there are more than 100 across Canada — would have to agree to the proposals before they could be said to represent the United Church's position.

Girl and Soldier Die In Station Street Crash

POLICE clear spectators from Station Street death scene, fearing explosion from leaking gas tank after hydro pole knifed through automobile, killing two.

A teen-age former Belleville girl and an unidentified soldier died in the wreck of a car on Station Street early today—under the eyes of friends in an automobile they had just pulled out to pass.

Two others were seriously injured. The car hit a hydro pole. The dead girl was 17-year-old Margaret Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cook, R. R. 3 Brighton. The Cooks moved three weeks ago from 94 Cannifton Road.

Police have withheld the identity of the dead soldier, stationed with the Royal Canadian School of Signals at Kingston. They said his wife is presently undergoing critical hospital treatment and they would not release his name until she had been told of his death by Army authorities.

A second soldier, 23-year-old Richard Kreger, suffered a broken neck. Bonnie Smith, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Smith, 1 Emily Street, was hospitalized with a broken shoulder and pelvic injuries. Kreger was later transferred to Kingston military hospital.

The accident happened around 1 a.m. on Station Street, just west of Albion Street.

CAR HITS CURB

Police say the car, driven by the dead soldier—with the Cook girl as front seat passenger—had pulled out to pass a car driven by the Smith girl's brother. The car hit a curb, took off from the ground and smashed on its side into the hydro pole. The impact shifted the base of the pole about six inches in the ground as it knifed into the car roof, say police.

Police had to continually warn spectators away from the wreck for fear of a gas explosion.

Both soldiers were on week-end pass.

Kreger was later transferred to Kingston Military Hospital.

Russians Charge Canada Bugged Ottawa Embassy

By FRED COLEMAN

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, in a burst of outraged virtue, accused Canada today of conducting a witch hunt against Soviet officials in Ottawa.

The Soviets accused Canada of bugging the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa with hidden microphones, of spying on Soviet officials, and of kicking them out of the country on trumped up spy charges.

There also was an implied charge that Canadians murdered a Soviet scientist.

The Soviet attack came in the newspaper Sovietskaya Rossia, the newspaper of the giant Russian Federation, largest of the Soviet republics. Publication there means the article had both government and Communist party approval.

The paper said two Soviet embassy officials in Ottawa, A. E. Bychkov and V. N. Polushin, were asked to leave Canada because they "infringed impermissible activities."

The two Soviets were expelled last week ago on espionage charges.

CHARGES VIOLATION

The newspaper cited their expulsion as a gross violation of universally accepted standards of treating foreigners.

"Canadian authorities have long been resorting to all kinds of provocations against Soviet

Train Service Approved

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature gave approval in principle to two government measures Friday, one in an unusual show of unanimity and the other after opposition criticism.

The government's plan to subsidize a train commuter service along the shore of Lake Ontario between Burlington and Dunbarton found general approval from both sides of the house on second reading.

It was described by Kenneth Bryden (NDP — Toronto Woodbine) as the most intelligent and constructive step the government has taken in the field of transportation in living memory.

Bernard Newman (L—Windsor — Walkerville) wanted the government to consider the transportation problems of other areas of Ontario, suggesting the removal of the tax on diesel fuel to help municipal transit systems.

The government bill to make pension plans portable for the benefit of workers, however, was criticized by Mr. Bryden as "watered down."

Premier Robarts said the bill provides a firm foundation for extending private pension benefits in the province.

Viet Nam Policy Defended

OTTAWA (CP)—Government and official Opposition spokesmen joined Friday to defend United States policy in Viet Nam against charges by NDP Leader Douglas that the U.S. is embarking on a new kind of colonialism.

External Affairs Minister Martin and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, in rare unanimity during a day-long foreign affairs debate, told Mr. Douglas they doubted he is fully aware of the menace posed by communism.

The NDP has been critical of U.S. policy for many months, but Mr. Douglas' hour - long speech was his most comprehensive attack to date. Several members of the Voice of Women organization broke Commons rules by applauding from the public galleries at the conclusion of the speech.

The quarrel involved U.S. motives in South Viet Nam, which Mr. Martin says are above reproach and Mr. Douglas claims are to preserve economic and political interests. There also was disagreement over the reasons for other Asian countries about any U.S. withdrawal from Viet Nam.

The U.S. intervention, Mr.

U.S. Astronaut To Propel Himself With 'Space Gun'

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — When astronaut Edward White floats away from the U.S. Gemini IV spacecraft, he will use a "space gun" to try and move within 20 feet of an orbiting, spent rocket.

It will be the world's first rendezvous in space.

The dramatic additions to the flight plan of the Gemini IV—following quickly the announcement that White will leave his craft—were revealed Friday by a panel of U.S. space agency officials.

"If we are successful," said Dr. George E. Mueller, acting director of the Gemini program, "we will have done something the Russians have not tried, although I am sure they have the capability."

Meanwhile, at Pad 19 in the Cape Kennedy complex, technicians unseated the Gemini spacecraft from its perch on the nose of a nine-storey-tall Titan II rocket, speed a faulty battery, and remated the two. Officials said that barring further difficulty Gemini IV will lift off on time early next Thursday.

DESCRIBES SEQUENCE

Mueller described this sequence after Gemini IV slides onto orbital path during the actual trip:

—Following separation of the spacecraft from the second stage booster, six minutes after launching, command pilot McDivitt will hold a tight formation with the spent rocket, trailing it by about 300 feet.

—During the first orbit, the astronauts will depressurize the cabin while pressurizing their space suits. McDivitt will manoeuvre the 7,000-pound spacecraft to within 25

Stevenson Defends U. S. Policy

TORONTO (CP)—Adlai Stevenson walked past one demonstration protesting United States policy in Viet Nam and drove past another, then delivered a firm defence of that policy Friday night.

"I am grateful for your welcome even if it is not by acclamation," he told 1,300 persons, after receiving an honorary degree in laws from the University of Toronto.

"I understand there is some question whether this presentation should take place—whether Canada should import live hawks."

Several members of the university faculty had protested that conferring an honorary degree on Mr. Stevenson might indicate approval of U.S. policy in Viet Nam, since he had defended the policy at the United Nations. The university senate rejected the protest 148 to one.

Mr. Stevenson, United States ambassador to the United Nations, told the convocation that the U.S., like Canada, feels problems such as those in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic would better be solved by international action rather than national intervention. But this was not always possible.

UN IS HAMSTRUNG

The United Nations is hamstrung in two ways, he said—by Russia's use of the veto in the Security Council and by the refusal of Russia and France to pay peace - keeping costs approved only by the General Assembly.

May Curb Freedom Of Press

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Favreau said in the Commons Friday he is considering possible restrictions on publicity given to the names of accused persons before they are convicted.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker interjected that such a step would be a "denial of" and "gross interference" with freedom of the press.

Mr. Favreau called a press conference in his office later to emphasize that he too is concerned with press freedom and that he has reached no decision on the matter. It was not one of the most urgent problems before him.

He said the Criminal Code already contains two restrictions on the right of news media to report criminal proceedings. The code prohibited publication of the names of juveniles standing trial and confessions or admissions of guilt introduced at preliminary hearings.

Unfavorable publicity prior to the acquittal of innocent persons was a "serious social question" and he was considering ways of dealing with it. He stressed that he has made no recommendations to the cabinet.

The issue was raised in the House by Ralph Cowan (Lotbinière-Humber), a former executive with the Toronto Star.

Mr. Cowan prefaced his ques-

Three Killed In Plane Crash

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP)—A rescue plane left Kapuskasing airport early today to evacuate two injured persons and the bodies of three others reported killed in the crash of a single-engined chartered plane about 45 miles south of here Friday.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Today will be quite cool and there will be considerable cloudiness. Showery activity is likely to be very light and confined mostly to high terrain. A weak disturbance is just now entering southwestern Ontario and it is expected to sweep southeastward across the province. The main affect of this feature will be to cause cloudiness and light breezes tonight so that frost will again be likely. More cold air will flow in behind it for continued very cool weather with some danger of frost Sunday night if skies clear and winds become calm.

New Honor for an Historic Name

Dr. Clare Brant Becomes Fifth Member Of Mohawk Family To Earn Degree

With the frequency of school drop-outs causing concern throughout Canada, the record of a Mohawk Indian family from the Tyendinaga Reserve deserves encouragement to educationists across the country.

Five of the ten children of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brant of Shannonville have gone on to higher education and today their youngest son, Clare, will graduate from Queen's University as a medical doctor.

Two of Dr. Brant's older brothers Reginald and Wilton have degrees in business administration while one sister, Lorraine, is a graduate nurse and nursing science and another, Marlene, has her master's degree in social work.

"People on the Reserve thought we were crazy to encourage our children to get an education, but I never wanted them to have to work as hard as I did," said the mother of ten on the eve of her youngest son's graduation.

As far as is known her son is the first Indian from the Tyendinaga Reserve to become a medical doctor.

"We tried never to let anything stand in the way of education for our children," Mrs. Brant said.

She did admit, however, that it had been a bit of a struggle. "We thought we'd never see the last of those six years in college for Clare," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Brant are understandably proud of their family. But at the same time they are extremely modest and attend to shy away from publicity.

"We would rather not have any publicity at all," the mother said.

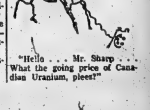
A carpenter by trade, Mr. Brant was forced by failing health to give up regular work about 10 years ago. Now he tires after working an hour or so but still manages to grow a vegetable garden.

Nine of the 10 Brant children have now scattered from the parental homestead at Shannonville, Two are in Rochester, another in Syracuse and still another in Buffalo, New York State and one in Toronto and other Ontario centres.

"It's a bit lonely now after raising 10 children," Mrs. Brant admits.

During his high school years at Quinte Clare was a four-year member of the student council and student council president in his final year.

Becoming a doctor has been a lifetime dream formed as early as his fifth year.



"I've always wanted to be a doctor; possibly my sister being a nurse had something to do with it," he said.

His next year will be spent as an intern at Kingston General Hospital and following that he hopes to do post graduate work before setting up a practice.

Organization of Business Complex Two-way Street Home Economists Are Told

Organization of a business complex is a two - way street on which employees and employer are both active, national home economists were told here yesterday.

Businessmen should run their companies so each employee may best serve his own interests through serving his company, says Montreal business executive John E. Conner.

Mr. Conner, president of International Systcoms, was guest speaker at the annual meeting at the business section of the Home Economists Association of Canada at the Sun Valley Motel.

The modern approach to company management assumes that employees are intelligent, responsible and willing to cooperate with company objectives.

Too many businessmen operate on a paternal approach in business, while others assume their job is to be merely dictatorial he said.

STARTED AWAY BACK

"This attitude started in the days of the (feudal) barons when peasants and serfs were pressed into war service," he said.

This approach was carried over into the industrial revolution.

In modern business the results of practical scientific research are pressed into use immediately.

There is a contrast with the utilization of social science.

"There has been fifty or sixty years of progress by social scientists, but no one has taken cognizance of their work."

OFFICERS NAMED

Business must be economically successful, said Mr. Conner. However, a co - operative attitude which combines employee and employer within a single business complex has reaped dividends in dollars and cents, he added.

The day - long convention elected Frances Little, Montreal home economist as chairman of the group for the next year.

Other executive officers are Kay Hodgins, Toronto, vice - chairman; Michelle Montreal, secretary; Regional officers - Eileen Norton, Vancouver; Gleonre Pearce, Saskatoon; Marjorie Fenacherley, Edmonton; Marjorie Sadd, "Saltonia; Deanna Burns, Montreal.

Will Rent Anything at New Store

Overweight? Want to lose 20 pounds of winter fat? Why not get an exercycle or a vibrator belt and exercise those pounds away?

Building a new cottage in the north country and worried about the temporary lack of hydro facilities? What you need is a power generator.

Finally going to build that new garage? Need a cement mixer, shovels and a wheelbarrow?

If you are doing any of these things, or just about anything else, and you need expensive equipment but can't afford it, don't give up hope yet. There is a solution.

Rent.

Yes, rent just about anything you need from the newly-opened Quinte Rent-Alls at 113 Front Street. . . .

The new store, now being stocked with all types of merchandise for rent, is a division of Moira-Schouten Limited. Jay Collins is store manager.

"The idea of the rent-all store," Mr. Collins said, "is to make costly items available to people at a very minimum cost. For example, if a man building a garage wanted a cement mixer, it would cost him about $200 to buy one. If he were going to use it all the time, fine, but probably he would only be using it about once a year. Well, instead of tying up all that money in something he is only using periodically, he can rent it from us for $3.50 a day.

"We will be in a position by next week to have a grand opening. We're renting now, but all of our stock isn't in yet."

Eventually the new store plans to handle sanding machines, contractors' equipment tools, plumbing tools, moving equipment, household equipment, painting equipment automotive supplies, and numerous other items of equipment.

"If we aren't handling it and you can show us there is a demand for it," Mr. Collins said, "then we'll buy it for you and rent it."

Obituaries

CHARLES ARNOLD FORESTELL

In ill health for the past seven weeks, Charles Arnold Forestell, 22 Brown St., died on Friday in Belleville General Hospital. He was in his 70th year.

Born at Springbrook, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Forestell and had farmed in Rawdon township, near Springbrook, before moving to Belleville 13 years ago.

He was a member of St. St. Michael's Church and belonged to the Holy Name Society and the Knights of Columbus, and also the Third Order of St. Francis. Legion of Mary. He was an active member of the Belleville Senior Citizens Club.

He is survived by his wife, the former Clare McGillen; two daughters, Mrs. Kitchener (Mary) Ward of Belleville and Sister Mary Magdalene, House of Providence, Kingston; and three sons, Joseph of Stirling, Donald and Gerald of Belleville. There are 15 grandchildren.

Also surviving are three sisters, Mrs. John (Lena) Legrow of Nepanee; Mrs. Harry (Annie) Sheridan of Campbellford and Mrs. Charles (Hattie) McGillen of Detroit, and two brothers, Frank of Stirling and Tobias of Belleville.

Resting at the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Brien, the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

ROBERT CUNNINGHAM BROWNING

Following a short illness, Robert Cunningham Browning, 11 South Park Street, died in Belleville General Hospital on Friday afternoon. He was born at Wellington, 70 years ago, being the son of Allen Browning and late Mrs. Martha Browning and had resided in this city for the past 47 years where he was well known and highly respected. Mr Browning was employed with Reid's Dairy for 28 years before purchasing a corner grocery store near his home which he has operated for the past 18 years.

He was a member of College Hill United Church and was also an Associate Member of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association Branch No. 201 in this city.

Surviving are his wife, the former Josephine Evelyn MacAdam, his father-in-law son, Robert Lee Browning of Monmouth, two stepsons, Maxwell and Allen Browning of this city, three stepdaughters, Mrs. Harold (Valerie) Carr and Miss Dianne Browning of Belleville, Mrs. Clinton (Sandra) Hass of Toronto and three brothers, Allen H. Browning of Point Anne and John and Irvine Browning of this city.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, 80 Highland Avenue. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

"It wouldn't be wise to approach too close to a tumbling booster," said an official. White will take pictures with a camera mounted on the spacegun. McDivitt will take pictures of White.

—About three hours later, at the beginning of the fifth orbit, McDivitt will maneuver from about 10 miles away to within 10 feet of he booster.

Then White and McDivitt will get on with the mission's primary objectives—to test the performance of the spacecraft during a long flight, and to measure the effects of prolonged exposure to weightlessness on the two-man crew.

Two Mishaps Cause Damage, Minor Injuries

TRENTON — Shortly after 11 p.m. yesterday, Harry Badger, 40, of R.R. 1, Carrying Place, lost control of his car on the Second Dug Hill Road, west of Trenton, and went into the ditch. He was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital by Rumbell Ambulance, and reported to be in satisfactory condition.

About the same time as the first accident, Trenton police were called to another accident, at Dufferin John Grills, 27, of Roseland Apts., south of Trenton, lost control of his car on Dufferin Ave. South in Trenton, and ran into a telephone pole.

Mr. Grills was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital by Constable Douglas Bradshaw in a police cruiser. He is reported in satisfactory condition. Damage to his car was estimated at $1500.

Brighton police apprehended a juvenile from Toronto, Friday, on Dufferin Ave. South, reported stolen from Toronto. He had been involved in two minor accidents in Brighton. The juvenile and the car were returned to Toronto.

Kiwanis Club Members Hear From Golf Pro

TRENTON — Michael Roche, the golf professional at the Trenton Country Club was the guest speaker at Thursday night's meeting of the Trenton Kiwanis Club. He was introduced by Douglas Adams and thanked by Kiwanis president Fraser (Babe) James, who presented him with a year's subscription to the Kiwanis national magazine.

Mr. Roche, who came to Trenton from the Toronto area by way of Ireland, told the Kiwanians that he has been in the golfing "business."

SPORTS NEW UNIFORM

Trenton's Acting Police Chief, R. J. Rutherford, is sporting a new uniform. Acting Chief Rutherford was placed in charge of the police department last summer when Police Chief F. J. Taylor resigned to take up duties with the Attorney General's Department. He was raised from the rank of Inspector to acting chief by the Trenton Police Commission a few months ago.

223 REGISTERED

V. P. Carswell, supervising principal of public schools, said on Friday 223 children had been registered for kindergarten by their parents on Wednesday. Mr. Carswell said this was less or than former years but that he knew personally of another 28 who would be attending, bringing the total to 251. Others may be registered on the first day of school, Mr. Carswell said. Mr. Carswell expects upwards of 2,400 public school students for next autumn.

Stained Glass Window to Be Dedicated

TRENTON — During the 11 a.m. morning service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Trenton, the presentation of a stained glass window, in memory of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dougall Bleecker, will be made by Dougall F. Bleecker of Toronto and Mrs. Mary (Bleecker) Thompson of Ottawa.

The window will be unveiled by Mrs. Thompson and dedicated by the pastor, Rev. Douglas Wilson.

Dougall Bleecker, a former Marmora Street resident, was a direct descendant of the town's first settler, John Bleecker, who came to Trenton area in 1790 with another United Empire Loyalist, John Smith.

IN MEMORIAM

DEETAW — In cherished memory of a dear husband and father, Joseph Deetaw, who died on Saturday, May 29th, 1954, and son David William, drowned May 30th, 1954.

Sleep on dear Joe and David, and take your rest,
With sweet Mary's rosary over your breast.
Sometimes it's hard to understand,
But God in His great wisdom has planned.

Each night your names are whispered in prayer,
With a smile, a tear, and a fervent wish to meet you there.

Dear Daddy and David how we do miss you,
But we will try to live and die,
As it is God's will,
Until God calls us too.

Sadly missed by your lovingly remembered wife and mother Doris and family.

ROSNOCOM — In loving memory of our dear father, Joseph Mary (Mary) Rosnocom, who passed away May 29th, 1964.

Also our dear father, Earl Rosnocom, who passed away May 30th, 1954.

Dear Dad, your heart lies a picture,
More precious than silver and gold.
In memory we fondly treasure,
The memory will never grow old.

It broke our hearts to part from you,
But they did not go alone,
For part of you went with them,
When God called them home.

Without a word we fell asleep,
With only memories for me to keep.

I have tried but God has replaced,
One of the best mothers the world ever knew.

Gone but not forgotten by her —daughter Barbara Irene.

POPE — In loving memory of a dear son and brother Norman Pope, who died May 30th, 1944.

Without a word his life was brighter,
Not when your years were best
But when he left this world for heaven.

To a home of eternal rest.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by dad, sister Ruth, brothers Keith Morgan and Henry.

107 Men and Women Earn Awards, Program 5 Ends

Mr. C. Keeble, chairman of the East Hastings Progressive Conservative Association, has a friendly comment for Robert Temple, M.P. for Hastings South. Edward J. Buckley, left, looks on. Mr. Buckley is Provincial Co-ordinator of Program 5, and all three men appeared at the program's graduation ceremonies last night.

Emil Brodofski is 42. A few months ago he was unemployed and had a Grade Six education. Any future for Emil and his family looked dim.

Today he has a chance.

Glenn Hawley, aged 20, dropped out of school after Grade Eight. He too was unemployed and was on the verge of giving up all hope.

Today, a few months later, he has self-respect.

What happened to Emil Brodofski and Glenn Hawley happened to 107 other men and women last night — they earned their certificates from Program No. 5 and prepared themselves for a useful place in society.

Emil and Glenn and most of the other successful graduates of Program 5 have a job to go to now. Emil, arriving in September with Grade Six, obtained an average of 84 per cent in the Grade 10 level He was awarded a certificate by Leo Lucciola, Chairman of the Belleville and District Trade and Labor Council, as the trainee making the first place as the person making the most significant progress while on the program.

Glenn Hawley was awarded a certificate for second place. He rated his educational level from Grade Eight to a remarkable 90 percent average in the Grade 11 level.

Program 5 is sponsored jointly by the Federal and Provincial governments. Trainees must be over 16, unemployed, and referred to the course by the National Employment Office.

According to provincial re-ordinator, Edward J. Buckley, the program is designed to "provide the shortest possible route from the embarrassing and unsatisfying position of being unemployed to the satisfying position of being gainfully employed.

"It is only for those people who can learn to control their energies and direct their abilities with purposeful intent, declared Mr. Buckley to the people with pride in themselves and their abilities.

GIVEN CERTIFICATES

Last night in the auditorium of Quinte Secondary School the graduates of Program 5 were presented their certificates. Robert Temple, MP for Hastings South, was guest speaker.

Mr. Temple said, "It is encouraging to note that enrolment in the program this year more than doubled over last year. I'm happy to report that 85 per cent of last year's graduates have found permanent, gainful employment and are playing their part in adding to the productivity of Canada.

"In all cases a goal has been reached, and it is time to set a new goal. Learning is a continuing process, and the future is brightest for the man or woman who recognizes that success is never static.

"Canada has a serious shortage of manpower in skilled occupations," he said, "and it is time to meet the demands of industry that the technical and vocational training program was launched by the federal and provincial governments."

Mr. Temple also pointed out that many companies have on-the-job training programs of their own. "These companies," he said, "have recognized the need to upgrade under-trained employees who can make a contribution in less demanding jobs while acquiring the skills for something better."

It was pointed out that with additional and better facilities, the number of enrolments in the Belleville program this year might have doubled. However, facilities were available for potentially large classes of welders and machine operators.

JOBLESS DECREASED

Mr. Temple said, "while training of unemployed workers in a program such as the one being carried on here is not the only reason for improvement in the unemployment problems, it is an important factor.

"In the latest count, unemployment in Canada had decreased by 32,000. The figures show Canada's unemployment is now 370,000, a figure that includes 63,000 teenagers, drop-outs from secondary schools for the most part.

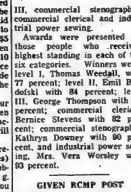
"It is just such a program as instituted here in Belleville that gives these young people back into the labor force. It helps them to regain their confidence and turns them into useful members of society."

Mr. Buckley also addressed the graduates. The said, "the concept of students being paid to study is hard for some to accept—single men receive $3 or $6 a day, and married men with families receive $9 to $10 a day. The final acceptance of this program will be made by the benifitors of it, the trainees.

"If employers find that our trainees are as good as men from other sources, then acceptance of the program will grow."

Mr. Buckley said later to reporters, "When they (trainees) come to us, they're all zombies. Everything's wrong. They lack confidence. But you saw them tonight— confident, assured, feeling a sense of importance they never had before."

The graduates were presented certificates in six courses last night. They were, basic training level I, level II, level III, commercial stenographic, commercial clerical and industrial power sewing.



Awards were presented to those people who received highest standing in each of the six categories. Winners were: level I, Thomas Weedsall, with 97 percent; level II, Emil Brodofski with 84 percent; level III, George Thompson with 91 percent; commercial clerical, Bernice Stevens with 82 percent; commercial stenographic, Kathryn Hawley with 90 percent, and industrial power sewing, Mrs. Vera Worsley with 93 percent.

OTTAWA (CP) — Promotion of Assistant Commissioner J. R. W. Bordeleau of Montreal to be one of the RCMP's two deputy commissioners in Ottawa was announced Friday by RCMP Commissioner George McClellan.

FALLOUT SHOWS

OTTAWA (CP)—First signs of radioactive fallout from China's second atomic bomb test are showing up over most of Canada but they have been far below the levels detected after the first blast last October. Dr. P. M. Bird, head of the health department's radiation protection division, said Friday he had received reports of higher radiation levels in air samples from most points in the country. The samples were taken this week.

Leo Lucciola, right, chairman of the Belleville and District Trade and Labor Council, presents an award to Emil Brodofski at graduation ceremonies of Program 5 last night at Quinte Secondary School. Mr. Brodofski was chosen as the trainee making the most significant progress while on the program.

Douglas argued, was to bolster a "puppet" regime which lacked the support of the South Vietnamese people. The U.S. was less afraid of Communist aggression than of the country getting a government to manage its own affairs.

Any attempt to make the war in Viet Nam a "holy crusade against communism is to swallow propaganda wholesale and ignore the facts, Mr. Douglas said.

He was opposed to communism but also was opposed to using allegations of Communist aggression to prevent a nation from determining its own destiny.

Mr. Martin said there is no doubt Communist aggression was responsible for the Viet Nam crisis. If successful, it would pose a grave threat to other nations in the area and have serious international implications.

If the U.S. withdrew, asked Mr. Martin, would Mr. Douglas and other critics want countries such as Thailand, the Philippines and Malaysia "left to fend for themselves with nothing between them and Communist China?"

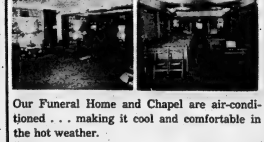
tion by saying that a defendant "was cleared absolutely and the plaintiff was assessed costs" in a civil court case Thursday "in a large city in Canada."



Mr. Cowan asked whether the Justice department has ever considered "Making it illegal for a mass communications media to mention names of accused before they are convicted. . . . Has any consideration been given to such fair treatment being afforded to people who are improperly accused of offences they have never committed?"

Mr. Favreau said it had been suggested that the same rule might well be applied sometimes in the Commons.

The Justice minister added: "I must say that this, together with other sectors of information given either at the time of preliminary inquiry or during trial and before conviction, is one of the questions which I have under very serious consideration."

nations," the paper said.

"Not content with constant surveillances over citizens of the U.S.S.R., who stay a long or short missions in Canada, the police conduct secret searches in their flats. It is also known that police have set up microphones for eavesdropping in the embassy.

The accusations sounded similar to Western charges often placed against the Soviet Union.

"Since this dirty espionage does not produce results," the paper said, "the provocateurs resort to direct and brazen blackmail. They make various offers to Soviet nationals and even go to the length of persuading them to betray their country." The paper did not elaborate on this point.

MISS MARTHA A. TWIDDY
Kelowna - Stirling

KELOWNA, B.C. — A former Trenton VON nurse, Miss Martha Anna Twiddy, died in Kelowna General Hospital on May 8 in the age of 77.

Miss Twiddy was born and educated in the Stirling area. Later she attended Albert College in Belleville.

She took her nurse's training in Saskatchewan and graduated from the school of nursing at Moose Jaw General Hospital. After serving with the Canadian Army Medical Corps in World War I, she went to the University of Toronto where she studied public health nursing.

She joined the Victorian Order of Nurses, spent about six years in Trenton and went to Oliver, B.C., in 1928 where she organized a VON district comprising Okanagan Falls, Oliver and Osoyoos.

After leaving Oliver, she went to Penticton in 1931 where she remained until her retirement in 1941. She was the first public health nurse in Penticton.

She edited the first paper written for British Columbia Public Health Nurses. Many of the still flourishing social and health agencies throughout the Okanagan were organized at Miss Twiddy's suggestion.

The Oliver Chapter of the Registered Nurses Association honored her last year by naming its annual bursary after her.

Miss Twiddy was an ardent student of the Bible, having taken several courses in Biblical literature. She also was a painter, first in water colors and later in oils.

She is survived by one brother, Walter E. Twiddy, formerly of Stockdale and now of Ottawa; a niece, Mrs. Gerald (Lois) Kemp of Newmarket, and three nephews, Richard and Irvine Twiddy of Stockdale and Dr. Warren Twiddy of Caledon East, Ont. There are several other relatives in the Trenton, Belleville and Stirling area.

Funeral services were held in Penticton on May 13.

MRS. H. CUNNINGHAM

The funeral for Mrs. Herbert Cunningham, of 276 Charles Street, was held yesterday from the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home to St. Thomas' Church.

Interment was at the Belleville cemetery, with Archdeacon A. S. McConnell officiating.

Bearers were: Walter Hiddleston, Derek Riordon, Donald Riordon, John Woods, David Fulton and Ronald Scott.

Limits on the world whale catch will be reduced for 1965-66. Last season only 6,904 of the available units were caught.

Minor Baseball

Jaycees defeated Demiller Construction 8-5 in a tyke baseball fixture last night.

David Rutherford and Mike Hayes shared the mound duties for the winners, giving up six hits, whiffing 10 and walking eight. Murray Dales did the catching.

Danny Coulson and Wayne Andrews pitched for the Jaycees also giving up six clouts while striking out 13 and walking four.

Andrews hit a three-run homer and single for Jaycees with Coulson collecting two singles.

Mike Bell had two singles for the winners with Richard Bell and Mike Hayes getting one each.

Policeman's Lot Changes

The other evening the city's Police Association honored former Deputy Chief J. Clair Hayes.

In paying tribute to the man, the policemen were also marking the evolution of a new era in police work in Ontario, a change which has taken place wholly within the comparatively brief span, three decades, of Mr. Hayes' connection with law enforcement and its problems.

Like the good policeman he is, Mr. Hayes not only recognizes the change but has no difficulty identifying its primary cause. Communications, he says, have been the key.

Police work was much more difficult when he started, Mr. Hayes recalls. Partly this was because there were far fewer policemen, and those there were had to cover large areas.

Modern roads and improved automobiles have, of course, played a part in better communications.

But there were roads linking virtually every settled area and cars capable of travelling at today's speed limits when Mr. Hayes first became a police officer.

The real change in communications is linked to the introduction of radio. Today's policeman is really seldom alone. He has friends and colleagues waiting to receive instructions or to give them, and verbal aid, at least, is as near as his car.

One senses that Mr. Hayes likes the change and approves of it—as a sensible policeman must.

But there were those policemen, a few years Mr. Hayes' senior, who found it more difficult to adapt.

We know one provincial police sergeant who, when a radio transmitter and receiver appeared in his office, referred to it bitterly as "that damned office spy."

It cramped his style. His superior was always wanting to know where he had been, what he was doing and where he was going.

He had been used to getting into his car and roaming. A plain car. Not one of those "Hoisteins," his name for the recently introduced black and white patrol cars now so familiar to all of us. Driving wherever the urge took him, dropping in on a friend in this village, a social office in that hamlet, he knew more of what was going on in the vast area for which he was responsible. Sometimes he might stop and fish —and he felt no qualms of conscience. Probably he would be up all night—there was no such thing as shift work. Then, too, a fishing rod was a good disguise if one were hunting for a still or looking for a cache of stolen goods.

The old-time policemen, the good ones, served the taxpayers well. There were some incompetent ones, too, and they were less likely to be quickly detected than today. But the best of the policemen who had beats of seventy miles and more, as Mr. Hayes did when he started, probably knew more about what was happening in their territory than any one policeman does today. Now the policeman is an organization man.

Mr. Hayes is one of that handful who knew both systems, and were good policemen in both of them.

First-class People

Continuing his entertaining and revealing series on what constitutes first-class men and women, Globe and Mail columnist Richard J. Needham quotes this definition of a first-class woman by a Toronto reader: "A first-class woman is one with whom a man can communicate freely on all levels of the human personality. She is a true kindred spirit."

The Toronto contributor then puts his finger on one of the real tragedies of society today. "Failure to communicate with those around us," he says, "is regarded as one of the chief obstacles to human happiness. Contacts in our society above are for the most part superficial, trivial, and do not reach down into the lonely soul."

He goes on to say the chances of meeting such kindred spirits "are made close to impossible in our puritanical society, for there is little opportunity for the kind of social intercourse that would allow such men and women to discover each other.

"A man (in Ontario) cannot even talk in an interested way with a female friend, nor dare to join her in a casual cup of coffee if they should happen to meet downtown, without drawing down on his head a storm of suspicious and self-righteous criticism from the puritans."

Needham suggests only a first-class person could have written such a letter and goes on to invite the writer to a "first-class lunch, embellished with a couple of first-class women," running the risk of course that the puritans "will grab us as we emerge."

To Your Good Health

More Men Color Blind, But Women Not Excluded

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please settle an argument between my husband and me. Which sex is more commonly susceptible to color blindness? — Mrs. H. S.

This is another question that sounds simple, but, as the song says, "it ain't necessarily so."

If you want to know which is more likely to be color blind, that's easy. Men. However, some women are color blind.

So, if you and your husband argue whether the new draperies are beautiful reddish hollyrose or are just a dismal gray, because one of you is color blind and won't admit it — I can't decide the fight.

You, madam, have percentages on your side, but you still might be color blind and your husband not. The only way is to have some rather easy tests which will tell who does and who doesn't see colors the way they really are.

If, however, you are arguing over whether the mother or father is responsible for a child being color blind, then both become what used to be called a Mexican standoff. You can't settle it (and I can't) without knowing the hereditary background of the parents.

A father cannot pass color blindness along to his son. Only the mother can do that.

But if a father is color blind, he will pass the trait on to all his daughters. They may not be color blind (unless their mother also carries the trait or is color blind herself), but they will carry the hereditary trait.

If you want to know why this is so, come around some Saturday afternoon and we'll discuss some books on genetics, the X chromosomes, and recessive genes and stuff like that.

It's something like hemophilia a hereditary disease which is even more closely related to sex. Boy babies may have it; girl babies rarely do. Yet the trait can be carried by either sex, and transmitted to children.

In that case, the boys, having the disease, often do not live long enough to grow up and have children. Girls, having the trait but not the disease, do grow up and have children.

Therefore women transmit the disease, yet rarely if ever have it.

I fervently hope that this is not and will not become a subject for "women below the sex." So far as I am concerned I favor a continuation of the established custom of having two sexes. Neither one amounts to anything without the presence of the other.

If male and female choose to argue with each other, for whatever pleasure it gives 'em, who am I to protest? But if either one tries to "prove" that the other sex causes all the trouble, it won't work. It will be, today, tomorrow, and forever, a Mexican standoff.

Dear Dr.: I am considering surgery to have my breasts enlarged. What does the operation involve? How do you contact a doctor to perform it? What risk is involved? What is the length of disability? What are the aftereffects? What is the cost? — E. S. D.

I don't like to be blunt, but you haven't been considering this. You've been dreaming about it. If you have some hundreds of dollars to try this, you can well afford to go to your family doctor and discuss the matter seriously.

Note to C. H.: Yes, hepatitis can be fatal. It's a dangerous disease. But vastly more people recover from it than die from it.

Fleming Does an About Face, Prepares to Re-enter Politics

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Look who suddenly is back in the political action.

The man who said never again, and kept on saying it.

It was little more than two years ago that former Conservative Finance Minister Donald Fleming swore he was leaving Ottawa and politics for keeps and forever.

"This is the end of all that, Period," he declared, and he so sounded as if he meant every word of it that everybody believed him.

He was so emphatic that from that day forward his time would be fully occupied with law, business, club and good social works.

And for two years that was it.

He concentrated on his legal business.

He immersed himself completely in the world of finance and commerce.

He entrenched himself exclusively with the individual initiative and private enterprise spheres of the market place and the law courts.

The only glimmer of any remaining interest in politics service was his church and club work — and this was no more than any business or professional man would show.

SSSHHH

He became so utterly nonpolitical that even business was strictly of the courts and markets, and definitely not of politics — however, he did, infrequently to the Capital, he would dart onto Parliament Hill, go quickly and quietly to whatever appointment he was keeping and dash back to his hotel, hoping nobody saw him. Even those places he had sworn to shun evermore.

And when you did catch him in the corridors of the Hill Centre Block, as twice happened through those months, he was embarrassed, even panicky, as was almost any man caught in a furtive. Then there were painstaking explanations of what precisely he was doing back in the old haunts, and earnest declarations all over again that no, never, ever would he again return.

And what a switch this was in those so short years.

How different this new mildfighting Finance Minister of yesteryear.

Then he was No. 2 Man on Parliament Hill, second only to the prime minister, and he had his mind and heart firmly fixed on making it as Pill himself.

He wanted to be Finance.

For only twice in the nearly 100 years since Confederation had a Finance Minister ever got to the prime ministerial pinnacle of power. One was Sir John Abbott, the other Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and neither survived for much longer than a year. No examples, these, surely.

The cold, hard fact of political life, as Donald Fleming correctly saw it, was that the Member of the Federal Cabinet who drafts the budget and proposes the taxes can seldom hope to win any popularity contests.

Taxpayers, he knew from the long record, just don't warm to the man who makes sure they'll never be able to take it with them.

SWINGING AGAIN

So, as Finance and into Justice he went, with the promise of 17 good and productive Parliamentary years before them in the Cabinet) he hind him, and the prospect of ultimate political power ahead.

He had a lot going for him, too.

If not the pull of warm personality, then very much the power of sheer ability, limitless energy, capacity and perh a p s more important, driving ambition.

He was tough. Rock hard. Unafraid. In Parliament the Opposition left him strictly alone. For to halt him was to run the risk of an almost certain and usually savage clobbering.

Then great personal tragedy and the approaching rapid disintegration of the Conservative Cabinet sanded the dream.

And with departure from the Capital and return to Toronto there was the new, the mild, the entirely different Donald Fleming.

It was over. The book was closed. A new life was ahead.

And that is the way it was.

Until just the other day when suddenly, without warning — boom — like the crack of a cannon, there was the old Donald Fleming of yesteryear, whacking away mightily, and exhibiting every lick of it, at Finance Minister Walter Gordon and the fiscal policies of the Pearson Government.

Political as ever. Back in the fine fighting form Parliament will remember.

His friends and former Parliamentary associates read into his dramatic return to the stage of political controversy a readiness to return to public life — and perhaps even an availability as a candidate for the Conservative leadership.

Regardless of what he might attempt now by way of dramatic denial — and he is sure to try to shrug it all off — his former political colleagues are convinced he will enter — or be entered through a draft — the leadership stakes. He tried once before. This time, they say, he might make it.

Montreal Gazette

Of all Canadian industries, uranium has perhaps had the most drastic fluctuation of fortune. And at the present time, when in a languishing state, it is hoping for a turn in its favor. At the end of last year, only four mines were producing, compared with 25 in the top-pier days of 1959. Three mines stopped producing during 1964.

The Canadian uranium industry is a very new one. It began active production only some 23 years ago. It underwent spectacular expansion in wartime. When the United States had first decided to use uranium in wartime weapons, Canada's Eldorado mine was the most important and most readily accessible source on the continent. It had also the only plant on the continent capable of refining uranium.

Under pressure of American demands, the industry in Canada expanded rapidly. But the United States gradually developed its own uranium resources and refining plants. By 1959 it was virtually dependent on Canadian production.

At the same time the United Kingdom found its needs for uranium growing less, as her nuclear program was curtailed. With the waning of demand, and the development of a surplus world supply, it was no longer Britain's wish to acquire so much uranium so quickly, or at such a high price. In 1962 the Canadian Government concluded a deal with Britain to adjust the price and extend the time orders over a longer period.

Little could be done in this period of the industry's doldrums. The Canadian Government has given some temporary help, as at Elliot Lake and Bancroft, by itself purchasing some uranium and stockpiling it. It has also helped by the fact that it was aimed at keeping some breath of life in the debilitated industry.

Such measures have been justified, because the uranium industry is not simply one that has petered out, because the demand is gone for good and will never return. Uranium is a product of the future. Waiting for the future to arrive has been an amateur and expensive experience. But that future seems secured based on the gradual development of nuclear plants for the efficient production of power.

Already interest is being shown by some nations in securing some portion of Canadian output in advance. Canada is in the strong position of possessing a large portion of all the world's known uranium reserves. By the early 1970's it is likely there may be a storage of what is known as "cheap uranium"—that is to say, uranium that can be produced at a price permitting its economical use.

In the present time negotiations are taking place with France for very large orders, and a long-term contract. Canada, in these years of peace, is the chief ally of the Atlantic community in its commitment to sell uranium only for peaceful purposes and has thus made sure that it is diverted abroad to any military use.

France has developed nuclear weapons of her own. The likelihood that France would purchase Canadian uranium for her purchases of Canadian uranium are used seems very remote to Canadians. She evidently needs uranium for her industries, and this point of difficulty has been largely adjusted.

The rising demand for uranium for industrial power may come from many nations. Mr. Arthur Laing, Liberal Minister of Northern Affairs and Natural resources, returning from a trip to Europe, spoke of a "ready market" opening up for Canadian uranium to supply the growing demand for uranium for gram for generating nuclear power.

Uranium may have a future in other ways. It may be increasingly used as an alloy in uranium steels. It is used also with unrotsteel pipe, cord and cable. The federal Department of Mines and Technical Surveys has been studying the possibilities of using uranium as an alloy with both ferrous and non-ferrous metals. The Mines Minister in Ontario has said that if one-half of one per cent uranium were contained in final steel products it would create a market in Canada for 2,000,000 pounds of uranium a year.

This Canadian industry with its many closed mines and its ghost towns, is only a shell of its wartime self. But it may yet become one of the great industries of Canada, under new conditions.

Montreal Le Devoir

There's no denying it — Quebec's quiet revolution is essentially a bourgeois phenomenon. It displaces many of the old ruling element but doesn't create new rich people in the process. Above all, it's the bourgeois who get the benefit of this upheaval, and not the masses.

For instance, when Liberal Ministers are given to French-Canadians, the appointees generally have a long record of loyalty established in the middle class. Also, all the economic undertakings of the Quebec government, such as expropriations and new industries, favor the bourgeois elements particularly, whose technical or administrative competence already has taken them to the top of the ladder. . .

Economists will tell you that all this was inevitable, there being so few financiers and industrial administrators among French-Canadians. But evidently needs uranium for her industries, and this point of difficulty has been largely adjusted.

Women Mayors Appearing In Increasing Numbers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Miss Carol Casey, an honor graduate of St. Patrick's College, Ottawa, received the degree of Bachelor of Arts at convocation on May 23. She is the daughter of Mrs. Laura Casey, Belleville, and the late Donald M. P. Casey.

Women mayors, once a rarity in Canada, are appearing in increasing numbers, at least from Quebec to the West Coast.

Seventeen are named in a list of women in public life compiled by the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Clubs. This year's list was prepared under the direction of Sigrid Kohlhaerdt of Calgary and the number of women mayors is up from 15 a year ago.

British Columbia and Ontario lead with five each, Alberta has three, Manitoba two and Quebec and Saskatchewan one each.

British Columbia: Lillian Carnell, Port St. James; Kathleen Gronhel, Ladysmith; Mildred Child, Lake Cowichan; Edith A. Ogle, Mission City; Carrie Cates, North Vancouver.

Alberta: Therese Garesu, Bonnyville Beach; E. Summerville, Clive; Alma Evans, Raymond.

Saskatchewan: Mrs. T. Jackson, Arborfield.

Manitoba: Isabel Wallace, Chartwell; Vigia Einarson, Gimli.

Ontario: Mamie Cunningham, Cobalt; May Mooney, Goderich; Beth Neelon, Leaside; Isobel Post, Orillia; Agnes Wing, Parry Sound.

Quebec: Mrs. J. B. Dubeau, Neuilhatel.

NAMED UN DELEGATE

A variety of firsts and other achievements is contained in the list.

Mrs. Saul Hayes of Montreal has been named to the Canadian delegation at the forthcoming United Nations sessions; Vera Bernard of Schleich, Man., is chairman of the town planning board, and Mrs. Percy Prudes of La La Biche, Z., has been elected chief of the Beaver Lake Indian band.

In music, Margarita Marzantowitsch of Edmonton is listed as the only woman concert master of a leading Canadian symphony orchestra.

Hilda Hellaby of the Yukon is identified as the first Canadian woman to receive a licentiate in theology and honorary doctorate of divinity at Anglican Theological College, Vancouver.

Caroline Palmer of Auburn, N.S., is the first woman granted a bachelor of divinity degree in the 126 years of Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S.

Mrs. Thomas Pringle of Winnipeg is president of the Duke of Kent branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Dr. Kira Obrazcova of Corner Brook is the first woman president of the Newfoundland Dental Society, and Lois Saunders of St. John's is the province's first woman Queen's Counsel.

Prince Edward Island's Islander of the Year is a woman Ruth Osborne of Charlottetown.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

"AT HOME"

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Wiltse, formerly of Wellington and now of 14 Danbury Street, Dundas, Ontario, will be "at home" to friends, relatives and neighbors on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary on Saturday, June 12, from 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m.

* * *

Mrs. Al Bump, Goldale Rd., left Malton Airport Wednesday evening for England where she will spend a monthly vacation visiting friends and relatives in the London area.

On Friday evening, May 21st, Mrs. A. Calnan, 57A West Bridge Street, was delightfully surprised when a birthday dinner party was held in her honor.

Cohostesses were Mrs. John Ross and Mrs. Clinton Calnan. Guests present were Mrs. J. Sheetz, Mrs. McCoy, Mrs. Lottie Fox, Mrs. Kempston, Mrs. Howard Calnan and Mrs. Wm. Faulkner.

A feature of the dinner was a five tier heart-shaped birthday cake made by Mrs. Howard Calnan. Prior to the cutting of the cake, a contest was conducted by Mrs. Ross, which brought back many old memories and caused much merriment.

Callers during the evening were other members of the family. Two grandsons, Charles Calnan and Fred Faulkner were also celebrating birthdays.

The guest of honor entertained her guests by playing several piano selections, a hobby she has kept up through the years.

Women Have Right to Be Heard VoW Members Told

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of the Voice of Women were urged Friday night to be tireless in their fight to be heard on questions of worldwide significance.

They heard Mrs. Dagmar Wilson of Washington, who is to be sentenced there next week on a charge of contempt of the United States Congress for having refused to testify before an in camera session of the House un-American activities committee.

Mrs. Wilson, 49, an illustrator of children's books and mother of three daughters ranging in age from 13 to 20, was one of the founders of an organization called Women Strike for Peace. Its members have appealed to governments around the world to work for disarmament.

She told the annual meeting of the VoW that, although women have had the vote for many years they are like slaves who are freed and do not know what to do with their freedom. Women have been brainwashed into thinking they have nothing to offer.

"The freedom that we must pursue today is not only the freedom to participate in the great decisions of world affairs; it is the freedom to participate as women — to be accepted as women and not merely as numbers."

Mrs. Wilson added that women must impress upon men the fact that the world cannot be controlled solely by men, but that women, who have the unique ability to give birth, have as much at stake as men and as much right to be heard.

MR. and MRS. JOHN WATSON ADAMS

Adams – Nicholls

Canon E. B. Wright was the officiating minister on Saturday, May 22, 1965, when Patricia Rose Nicholls, daughter of Mrs. Patricia Nicholls, became the bride of John Watson Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Adams of Newmarket.

Mr. John Withers played traditional wedding music and accompanied the six choir boys in their renditions.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. James Cottrell, was gowned in a floor length dress of white organza, highlighted with Chantilly lace appliques. The fitted bodice featured elbow length sleeves and the skirt was outlined with Chantilly lace as was the flowing train. Her veil of tulle illusion fell from a lace headdress. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses mingled with white daisy 'mums.

Mrs. Lloyd Churchill as matron of honor, sister of the bridegroom and the bridesmaids, Misse Joanne Whaites and Miss Lois Rogers, cousin of the bride, were identically attired in pale yellow organza over fuilla street-length dresses, featuring scoop necklines and elbow sleeves. The little flower girl, Miss Kimberley Churchill, niece of the bridegroom, was dressed in a white frock with pale yellow sash. Each of the attendants wore a circlet headdress and carried a nosegay of white daisy 'mums.

Mr. Darryl McDermaid was groomsman, while Mr. Michael Nicholls, brother of the bride and Mr. David Mitchell were the ushers.

The reception was held at Christ Church Parish hall, were the bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue dress with matching duster, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a pink suit, black accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

For the wedding trip to Lake Placid and Nova Scotia the bride chose a pink suit with white accessories and a white carnesia corsage.

Previous to the marriage the bride was entertained at a bridal shower at the home of Mrs. F. Beeby, Ritchie Ave., with Miss Joanne Whaites and Mrs. D. Mitchell as co-hostesses, and at the home of Mrs. Rene Colden with Miss Carol Colden as hostess.

Guests were present from Ottawa, Nova Scotia, Hamilton, Oakville, Stratford, Picton, Allisonville, Wellington and Niagara Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams will reside in Newmarket.

Home Economists' Advice
Pencil Woman Into Every House Plan

If home economists had their way, a woman would be penciled into every house plan, and that woman would be a qualified home economics consultant.

"Men plan houses with no regard for the convenience of the women who will live in and look after them," said Miss Frances Little, newly elected chairman of the Home Economists in Business Section of the Canadian Home Economists Association. Miss Little was in Belleville Friday to attend the annual HEIB committee meeting held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

"I feel home economists should be employed by architects and construction companies to plan kitchens and decide on the location of closets and light switches and the direction doors should open," she said. "This is a field our group hasn't tried to enter yet, but we should be in there playing our part."

Mrs. Margaret Carr, food columnist of the Toronto Daily Star, agreed with Miss Little. "Men in the food processing industry are listening to women more and more. They have to; we do most of the buying. But there is room for improvement in kitchen plans and in the design of small appliances and utensils," she said.

Miss Carol Taylor, director of Chatelaine's Magazine's Seal of Approval laboratory, said that Canadian companies, Frigidaire, Moffat and Westinghouse, have home economists on their staffs. "Engineers are beginning to take their advice," she said, "but too many appliances still have hard to clean, grease-catching corners."

A PET PEEVE

"My pet peeve," Miss Taylor added, "is the fact there are no home economists working for textile companies." Canadian textile manufacturers have gone through a rough period financially and the first department to go was the home economics section. Synthetic fibres, nylon zippers, automatic sewing machines, all have complicated the textile field and made expert advice for consumers more necessary than ever, she contends.

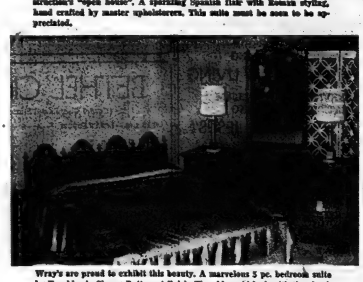
Most members of the HEIB committee work with food, or with service industries, like gas or electric companies, or in public relations and journalism. But home economists are finding new job opportunities in industrial research. A case in point is Gail Hoyt of Montreal. Miss Hoyt works for the House of Seagram, but not, she hastens to add, in the blending or taste testing department. She researches uses for grain by-products after starch has been removed by fermentation. Right now, she is testing a new starchless flour.

The cooking experts have no magic solution for the housewife's three - meals - a - day routine. Miss Marjorie Flint, who spends five days a week preparing Kraft Food's television commercials, brought her husband along to babysit their two children during the conference. "Some days after work, I boggle at the thought of feeding my family," she confessed. "At times like that, fish and chips are wonderful."

WOMEN DRIVE BETTER

Women are better drivers than men, says George McCulloch, new traffic chief for Victoria, in Australia. "Male drivers are too venturesome."

A REMINDER



Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Ontario Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony, as a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot promise publication of weddings sent in later.

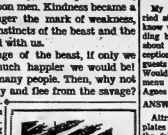
Man Has Not Shaken Off His Primeval Savagery

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Man is a very young animal, but he is still an animal. We are still unredeemed from the animal instincts bequeathed to us by our evolutionary history. Our ancestors were savages, too. Then came civilization, at the dawn of history, and imposed ideals, laws, codes, and visions upon men. Kindness became a human possibility, no longer the mark of weakness, but of strength. But the instincts of the beast and the habits of savagery are still with us.



If we had no heritage of the beast, if only we could be civilized, how much happier we would be! So runs the thinking of many people. Then, why not rid ourselves of the beastly and flee from the savage?

Some have tried this flight—by escape — from their own humanity. Few have succeeded. In his remarkably interesting book, Lord of the Flies, William Golding tells us that even children are not exempted from the passions sated the flights of savagery. Those children, at the tender age of six and seven, were left to re-build civilization after the rest of the world had been destroyed. But they, too, destroyed their own little Island. Not because they were uncivilized, but because they were human. And being human, they were still inescapably savage.

Society cannot easily change human nature. Proper social conditions, good economic levels can indeed assist man in rising higher on the scale of value. But none of these can fundamentally alter the nature of man. We can only re-direct man's nature, or that it seeks, constructive outlets for its animal energy, ambition and power, and can find satisfactions in such outlets.

How do we re-direct man's nature and re-channel our passions? Only if we possess a philosophy of life. And nothing else will do. Only when we direct ourselves to the fundamental questions of life are we free to live new levels: What is man? What is life? What is the meaning of our striving? What is the purpose of our living?

The trouble with our society, however, is that it has taught us how to make a living and not how to make a life. We have it in our power to become more than savage. But only if we give more time, more energy, to thinking about what we should be, can we ever reach a higher rung — a rung that exalts those who care enough about life to become more human.

WHEN SAVING IS LOSING

From Montreal, Canada comes the story of a wealthy miser. His neighbors had never seen him wearing clothes that were new or even clean. He even used cord for shoe laces to tie his broken boots. His clothing, for the most part, was found in the city dump. His most lavish repast consisted of hot dogs. Yet, following his death at 84, police found $350,000 in cash, stuffed in an old rusted boiler on his property. He owned several pieces of property, and his total assets were valued at over $500,000. Yet he died as the result of an accident suffered, trying to repair a garage attached to one of his houses.

"Safety first" may be a good rule for a railroad system, but it is a poor one for the road of life. Our selfishness in sparing ourselves a little inconvenience at the expense of others; or scrounging a few pennies; or refusing some worthy cause, results in our losing the best things in life.

Our hearts become hardened, our souls shrivel up; our spirits become sour, and our personalities are dwarfed. Consequently we lose our friends, and are with loneliness. Happiness and peace of mind have gone out the door. To live life at its highest and best, we must remember that "giving is living."

TEXT FOR THE DAY: "Whosoever wants to save his life shall lose it but whosoever wants to lose his life for my sakes and the Gospels' shall save it." (St. Matthew 16:25)

STUDENTS' AID

WINNIPEG (CP)—A three-man counselling service at the University of Manitoba has given professional advice to more than 100 students since it opened in September. Guidance director Dr. Robert Hudson said most students sought help on their studies were not progressing satisfactorily.

Ann Landers

Missionary-minded Teener Has Problem With Weight

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I just read the letter from the girl who has a weight problem. That makes two of us, only she is 19 and I am 14.

You suggested she see a physician or a counselor. My mother says I am too young to see a physician or a counselor. I am not arguing, because I know what my problem is.

I keep seeing pictures of starving kids from foreign countries. They are holding empty bowls and spoons and their eyes are so sad. This fractures me. Some weeks I give my whole allowance to missions but I still feel I'm not doing enough. I've already decided to join the Peace Corps.

ANN LANDERS

I keep thinking of those starving kids and I can't stop eating. What shall I do? — FAT MISSIONARY FROM CANTON.

DEAR MISS. — Try reverse psychology. Find some pictures of fat people. Whenever you feel like gurging yourself, look at a picture.

A fat missionary would have a very tough time in the jungle. For the sake of humanity you must keep your weight down.

If this doesn't work tell your mother that people of all ages need to be checked periodically by a doctor.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My wife is always shoving your column under my nose, especially when you have a letter about a husband who likes to drink beer and sit in front of the TV set. Please print this letter so I can shove it under her nose.

We have three good sons, the oldest 12, the youngest 7. Whenever one of them has a fight with a neighborhood kid my wife jumps right in, phoning mothers and going over in person to "make sure our boy comes out all right."

The kids always make up but my wife is not on speaking terms with half the neighborhood. Please print your advice. — THE OLD MAN.

DEAR MAN — A mother who becomes involved in the petty squabbles of her children is more childish than they are.

Ask your wife to please wait until you get home before she "does anything." By then the trouble will have been settled — by the kids.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our niece, who is duly 37, lost her young husband in a tragic accident six months ago. They had been married less than a year.

Her parents felt that Regina would be better off in another city — away from memories — so they asked if she could live with us until she found a job and an apartment of her own. We were delighted to help.

Regina has been with us four months. She found an excellent position as a bilingual secretary at $125 a week and seems to have recovered from her grief. She has a date almost every night.

The girl says nothing about finding her own apartment. In the meantime I am doing her washing and ironing and preparing her meals. She entertains in our home and hands me the grocery list for her parties. She has never offered to pay for anything — says she wouldn't insult us by suggesting our hospitality is purchasable.

We are pleased that Regina feels at home here but we think she should start to pay for room and board. On the other hand, she has suffered a great tragedy and we feel sorry for her. Advice us please. — JUST FOLKS.

DEAR FOLKS —, If Regina is dating every night she has recovered. Suggest that she "insult" you with about $30 a week until she finds a place of her own — which will cost her at least twice as much.

READERS' SATURDAY COLUMN

QUESTION:

My daughter is being married at 11.00 A.M. and I don't know what to serve at the wedding breakfast. There will be about 34 or 35 in all. The reception for all of the other guests will be later in the day. Would you please suggest a menu for the breakfast? . . . Agnes P.

ANSWER:

Attractive individual salad plates could be made up from the following menu. All of these items could be prepared in advance and assembled by your helpers at home before you return from the church.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Baked Sausages with Pancakes or Waffles and Maple Syrup; Sliced Tomatoes and Serrated Cucumber Slices; Roquefort Dressing; Chilled Cantaloupe Wedges; Bread and Eyes (see Friday); Coffee.

WEDDING BREAKFAST MENU:

On Individual Lettuce-lined Tea Plates arrange:

Chicken Salad Moulds (see below)
Pickled Crabapples or Pears
Tomatoes Stuffed with Macaroni Salad (see below)
Stuffed Deviled Eggs
Ripe Olives
Radish Roses
Serrated Cucumber Slices
Hot Small Rolls
Bride's Cake or Petit Fours
Bonbons
Coffee

I have suggested Bride's Cake because it is white and you probably will have a tiered traditional wedding cake at the reception later.

CHICKEN ASPIC (serves 24):

4 tablespoons (4 envelopes) plain gelatine, 8 cups water, divided (or strained and skimmed chicken broth), 6 chicken bouillon cubes, ¾ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon grated onion, ¼ teaspoon pepper (preferably white), 6 cups cooked chicken meat, cut into attractive small bite-size pieces, 1½ cups diced inner celery, 1/3 cup finely chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento.

NOTE:

Chicken bouillon cubes may be omitted if chicken broth is used.

Sprinkle gelatine on 1½ cups of the cold water (or broth) to soak. Add bouillon cubes, stand dish in boiling water and stir until gelatine dissolves. Remove from heat and add remaining 6½ cups water (or broth), Worcestershire sauce, onion and pepper. Chill to unbeaten egg white consistency. Fold in chicken meat, celery, green pepper and pimiento. Turn into 24 lightly oiled individual moulds and chill until firm. These may be made 24 hours in advance (but no longer).

TOMATOES STUFFED WITH MACARONI SALAD (serves 24):

Select 24 uniform perfect small tomatoes. Make the Macaroni Salad Filling 24 hours in advance, cover and chill thoroughly. For the filling use 2 cups cooked elbow macaroni, 1 cup chopped tender inner celery, 4 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 10 ripe or green olives, stoned and chopped, ¼ cup chopped bottled sweet pickle, 1¼ cups mayonnaise, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper (preferably white), 2 tablespoons chopped chives or parsley, and enough cream or tomato juice to moisten. Cut a slice from the stem end of each tomato and scoop out centre pulp. Sprinkle inside of tomatoes with very sharp pointed knife. Fill with macaroni salad and chill until immediately before serving time.

Bayshore Lady Bowlers Enjoy Turkey Dinner

The Bayshore Gals' Bowling League held its annual presentation banquet at K. of C. Hall recently, with the ladies of the Knights of Columbus serving a delicious turkey dinner.

Fred Phelan, Plaza Lanes manager, presented the championship trophy to the "Shoestrings." Members of the team were: Linda Pock, Doreen Weese, Nancy Weese, Marion Yorke, Gladys Graham and Aileen Dwyer.

The second place "Bobbsetter" also received a trophy. Members of the team were: Marjorie Robin, 77 Jones, Marjorie Caterior, Hazel McQuarrie, Wendy Wannamaker and Joan Campbell.

Gifts were presented to the remaining four clubs.

Individual trophy winners were: Marion Dempsey with a high triple of 722; Marjorie Robin with a high single of 326; Leah Dunkerley with a high average of 196; Joan Redner for the best "beat your average" mark, of 63 pins.

Trophies went to Hazel McQuarrie, Joan Poste and Doreen Murray for "over 200" scores; to Marion Dempsey, Vi Jones, Joan Mitchell and Kay Corcoran for perfect attendance; to Jean Bishop for the least blows and to Ann Weese for most blows. Carol Emerson received a gift certificate from Plaza Lanes for the best bowman in her "average."

The new executive elected for next season has Hazel McQuarrie as president, Doreen Murray as vice-president, Joan Mitchell as treasurer, Doreen Weese as statistician and Carl Dawson as secretary.

Adanac, with music by the "Tropadours," spot dances and numerous draws, completed the successful evening.

SPORTSLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

The Canadian Fitness Council is well-named. It believes in our athletes keeping fit and in shape and even goes out of its way to help them maintain a high level of physical well-being.

With a little special attention to the sport of weight-lifting, Manager Ken Carr-Brulé of the Apollo Barbell Club of the city tells me.

The Canadian Weightlifting Championships will take place in Regina starting June 13 and lasting nearly two weeks.

Belleville Olympics' middle-heavyweight lifter and Canadian champion of the 198 pound class, John Lewis, hopes to defend his title in the Prairie City.

Carr Brulé's promising young heavyweight, Price Morris who shaves his chest title, also hopes to make the trip and bring back all of the title.

"If both John and Price are successful in their quests for the crowns, the Apollo Club will be the only weightlifting organization in Canada that will boast two national champions," he says.

And Barbell manager-coach believes he has another champion in the making. He is Bill Hayes, a fourteen year old who has been lifting for only 18 months and won his first Canadian junior championship at Woodstock last April. He is a 114-pound flyweight.

An odd thing about weightlifting is that its athletes are "juniors" until they win a senior title, regardless of age.

Now back to that bigbearded Fitness Council.

As far as weightlifting athletes are concerned the Council will see to it that they reach Regina.

And there they wash their hands of the matter.

They put a hand in one pocket and pull out one-way transportation. Once in Regina the lifters are on their own. They pay their own hotel expenses and "live it" by making their way back home the best they can.

Let's hope the Canuckish and the Scout don't go on the warpath when the boys' wages train pulls out for the east. I suppose they could remain in training by tossing a few braves over the prairie landscape.

They could hitch-hike the odd two thousand miles that separates Belleville from Regina. Perhaps some of the "Fitness Council" would tack one or two away in the bottom of their convertibles.

So Coach Carr-Brulé has a problem. He says some $200 would cover the expenses of Lewis and Morris during their stay in the western city.

He particularly wants Lewis to go. The youngster as it known, made a highly creditable showing at the Tokyo Olympics. At the Regina championships a four-man lifting team will be chosen to represent Canada at the world championships to be held in Iran this October.

Let's hope the Fitness Council can both hands and both pockets when it comes to selling our expensips for the world tournaments. The boys might run into trouble making their way back home from the world's biggest oil well.

"I do not want to appear to be begging," Carr-Brulé said today, "But the club will be extremely grateful if sports-minded citizens could see their way clear to help the boys out financially. Donations should be sent to the Apollo Barbell Club or to me at 67 Sorrell Street."

Or they could be sent to this department. All donations will be published.

So let's rally round the money bag, boys. There are not many, if any other villages of this size that has sent one of its athletes to Olympics competition. Lewis, Carr-Brulé thinks, is pretty sure to be selected for the Canadian team. If he repeats in the middleheavy class in June he should be definitely "in."

National May Stay At Aintree

LONDON (AP) — The Grand National Steeplechase, the most famous race of its kind in the world, may continue at Aintree.

Three British Appeal Court Judges turned down Friday the appeal of Mrs. Mirabel Topham to sell the 360-acre race course for $2,330,000.

Mrs. Topham appealed against an earlier court order that she must not sell the race course during Lord Sefton's lifetime except for horse racing or agriculture.

Mrs. Topham wants to sell the course for a housing development. It has been the home of the Grand National since 1837.

Boston Eyes Leaf Goalie ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Ready With $150,000

Wings, Bruins Swing 7-Player Deal

BOSTON (AP) — The lowly Boston Bruins, first - place Detroit Red Wings head for the National Hockey League draft both eyeing a goaltender and another defenceman after completing a multiple-player deal. The Bruins, who have the first draft pick because of a last-place finish for the fifth straight year, are ready to pounce on Toronto's Vezina Trophy winner Terry Sawchuk or Johnny Bower — whichever one the Leafs leave unprotected.

The Red Wings, first in the regular season but first-round Stanley Cup playoff victims of Chicago Black Hawks, want a second goalie to back up 1954-55 Rookie - of - the - Year Roger Crozier.

IS SECOND DEAL

For Detroit it was the second major deal in nine days. Previously the club had sent Marcel Pronovost, Larry Jeffrey, Eddie Joyal, Aut Erickson and Lowell MacDonald to Toronto for Andy Bathgate, Billy Harris and Gary Jerrett.

Detroit general manager-coach Sid Abel now says he's one defenceman away from the team he wants for next season. The Red Wings had hoped to get Stephanoff, a rough bodychecking type, depending on the Boston farm club in Minneapolis last season, in the draft.

This Red Wish may be known to be goalie-hunting as well.

Boston wants an established NHL goalie and figures the Leafs will drop either Sawchuk or Bower from their protected list in order to keep promising youngster Jerry Cheevers from Rochester. The Bruins are ready to part with Jack Norris, a fill-in for injured Ed Johnston late last season.

It has been learned the Bruins are ready to spend $150,000 in the draft—five players at $30,000 each—as well as any money tossed their way if any of their athletes are drafted.

LOOK FOR OTHERS

McCord, a veteran of 10 years in the minors before getting his NHL chance, finished 1954-55 on the farm with the recurrence of a chronic back ailment.

The deal was the first major move by recently - named general manager Leighton (Hap) Emms of the Bruins.

"In Langlois we've obtained an experienced left defenceman," said Emms. "In MacDonald we get a fellow who always scored goals in his NHL career."

A veteran of seven years in the NHL, Langlois has scored 17 goals and 61 assists in the majors. MacDonald has 126 goals and 126 assists in nine years including a 33-goal spree for the Red Wings on a line with Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio two years ago.

Dillabough, 24, is an exceptionally fast skater the Wings have twice brought up for playoff duty. He had 13 goals and 25 assists for Hershey Bears in the American League. Harris, 23, was 18-18 for Memphis Wings in the Central League playing both right defence and right wing. Ab McDonald, at Boston just one disappointing season after being acquired from Chicago, is going to his fourth NHL team in nine years. His injury - slowed 9-0 season gave him 104-132 career totals.

Patrick May Coach West Club

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says Lyna Patrick, former general manager of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, is expected to become a manager - coach in the Western League, probably with the Los Angles Blades.

Patrick, general manager of the Bruins for 11 years, was replaced recently by Leighton (Hap) Emms, manager-partner of Niagara Falls Flyers, 1965 Canadian junior champions.

Patrick is still a vice-president of the Bruins.

Patrick has declined to discuss his future plans but recently sold his home in the Boston area.

Al Pike, former New York Rangers coach, has coached the Los Angeles team for the last two seasons. It finished in last place last season and Pike's contract was not renewed.

F. Buckland Given CAHA Top Award

VICTORIA (CP) — Frank Buckland of Peterborough has been presented by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's meritorious award for "outstanding service" to amateur hockey at the CAHA annual meeting.

Buckland, treasurer of the Ontario Hockey Association, has served in executive capacities with the OHA since 1934. He is a past president of the OHA. The award was presented Thursday by president Lionel Fleury of the CAHA.

Robinson, Radatz Back In Form

Alouettes 'Defeat' Baltimore

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes have won an important off - the - field battle with Baltimore Colts of the National Football League in the acquisition of John Paglio, 23, a promising tackle and end from the University of Syracuse.

Paglio, a six-foot-three, 255-pounder, signed a contract early this year with Baltimore despite the fact he had signed two months earlier to play for the Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference.

Alouettes protested to G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, that the Baltimore contract was illegal. Halter took the case up with NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"I was advised after an investigation the NFL authorities upheld the contract," Halter announced Friday.

ATHLETICS SIGN MOSSI

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Athletics announced Friday the signing of Don Mossi, veteran left-hander who has played with several American League clubs the last 13 years. At the same time the Athletics released Tom Hession, 30, a rookie right-hander, had been claimed on waivers by the Washington Senators. Mossi was a free agent.

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It took Brooks Robinson one game to get back into shape. Dick Radatz needed six weeks.

Robinson returned to the Baltimore line-up after a 19-day absence as the Orioles divided a doubleheader with Los Angeles Angels Friday night, losing the first game 3-1 before taking the nightcap 3-2.

Radatz made his third straight appearance as Boston Red Sox whipped Kansas City Athletics 9-3.

The American League's most valuable player last season, Robinson suffered a broken right thumb when hit by a pitch May 8. He played part-time the next day but hadn't appeared in a game since.

Against the Angels in the opener, he went 0-for-3 with three trips to the plate. The rust were off quickly, however, and he started the second game with a second-inning single.

Then, in the fourth, the ace third baseman doubled across two runs and scored on Jerry Adair's single.

HAS BAD TROUBLE

Radatz, the Al's fireman of the year in 1964, had been having trouble this season prior to the last three days. Consistently ineffective, the six-foot-five veteran saw his earned-run average soar to 7.43 two weeks ago.

But in 5 1-3 innings of shutout relieving in the last three days Radatz allowed only two hits and one walkwhile striking out 13 of 19 batters he faced.

He relieved Jim Lonborg Friday night in the seventh inning with two runs in, two Athletics on base and one out. He got out of the jam and finished the game allowing one hit and striking out seven batters.

George Brunet pitched a two-hitter for Los Angeles in the first-game while Steve Barber came back in the nightcap and held the Angels to three hits.

Hank Aguirre pitched a two-hitter as Detroit Tigers edged Cleveland Indians 1-0, and Chicago White Sox trimmed New York Yankees 2-0 behind Joe Horlen's six-hit hurling. Minnesota Twins defeated Washington Senators 4-1 in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader. Rain washed out the second.

JUST TWO HITS

The only Orioles hits off Brunet in the opener were Jack Brandt's first-inning single and Bob Johnson's double in the seventh. The Angeles scored all of their runs in the third, highlighted by a two-run double by Bobby Gene Smith.

Felix Mantilla supported Lonborg and Radatz with a two-run homer in the third inning and a run - scoring single in the eighth. Larry Green and Ed Brezsond added homers for the Red Sox.

Don Wert's eighth-inning homer off Cleveland's Ralph Terry gave Aguirre his fifth victory against two defeats. Terry, 4-3, gave up just five hits.

The White Sox were held hitless by Bill Stafford until the sixth inning. Then Johnny Romano led off with a single, moved to second on a sacrifice and scored on Don Buford bounced a single off the glove of first baseman Joe Pepitone.

Tony Oliva drove in three Minnesota runs with a single and a homer. Bob Allison also homered for the Twins. Dave Boswell held the Senators to three hit through 1 2-3 innings until he was forced to leave the game with a blistered finger.

Mets Feel At Home; Back In Cellar

Bucs Swap Places

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The next time Dick Schofield's phone rings, it may be that little old landlady with the 3700-a-month place to rent giving it another try.

Schofield, who hasn't been able to locate a place to live in San Francisco, continued to remain right at home on the field for the Giants, again playing a key role Friday night in a 13-7 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

Acquired from Pittsburgh Pirates in a straight shortstop swap for Jose Pagan, Schofield adds to his value every day with the Giants. He has hit safely in all six games for his new mates, building a .364 batting average.

And against the Reds, he led off with his first homer of the season, beat Cincinnati from moving ahead in the fifth inning with spectacular fielding and then got a seventh rally started in the sixth inning by walking and scoring the run that put the Giants ahead to stay.

Elsewhere in the National League, Milwaukee Braves knocked off the front-running Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4, Houston Astros edged St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in 12 innings, Philadelphia Phillies downed Chicago Cubs 3-1 and Pittsburgh made it seven in a row with a 6-1 triumph over New York Mets.

Besides Schofield, Jim Hart homered for the Giants while John Edwards and Tommy Harper connected for the Reds.

The Dodgers built a 4-0 lead against new Milwaukee pitcher Ken Johnson, but the Braves came back with two runs in the fourth and then put it away against Claude Osteen, 3-6, with a three-run fifth.

Jim Wynn's single and a double by Walt Bond accounted for the Astros' winning run in the 12th as Jim Owens spurred his record at 3-3 with three innings of perfect relief pitching.

Cardinals starter Ray Sadecki limited Houston to five hits and had a 2-1 lead until Bob Aspromonte led off the ninth with a homer.

Ray Culp got home run support from Tony Gonzalez and Roberto Pena and held Cubs to the ninth inning before subduing the Cubs.

The Pirates moved out of the cellar and the Mets moved in when Bill Mazeroski's sacrifice fly scored Bob Skinner's three-run homer produced a four-run eighth inning against Warren Spahn.

Bisons Win Over Leafs 6-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Friday night rain in Buffalo was just enough to soften the hard hitting of Toronto Maple Leafs as they dropped an International League series opener to the Bisons 6-2.

In other games Toledo Mud Hens defeated Atlanta Crackers 5-4, Syracuse Chiefs downed Rochester Red Wings 4-2 and Jacksonville Suns edged Columbus Jets 1-0.

In the relief pitching department, the Leafs were defeated at their own strong game by Gordie Richardson, who took over in the second for Buffalo.

He allowed one run and struck out four in the rain-shortened six - inning game. Richardson also hit a home run as did Joe Hicks and John Stephenson in the first Buffalo win of the season over Toronto.

We Made It Six

Gary Schreider Has Five Solid Fans

By BOB MacKenzie

OTTAWA (CP) — Gary Schreider feels equally at home in the courtroom and on the gridiron and hopes he will feel the same way when he starts dealing with football general managers.

The 31 - year - old defensive halfback with Ottawa Rough Riders became president of the Canadian Football Players Association when it was formed in mid-May. Now he is looking forward to a meeting with the Canadian Football League's executive to seek official recognition for his organization.

"I hope we can meet them in June," he said in an interview at his law office in the firm of Chilcott, Binks, Fraser and Schreider.

All this adds up to a busy schedule for the lawyer-halfback who also tries to spend as much time as possible with his wife and four pre-school sons.

"I'm the same as the average man during the off-season but when the football training camp starts I don't get home until late in the evening.

"But it's nothing compared with 1963 when I was living and going to school in Toronto and playing football in Hamilton for the Tiger-Cats."

That was the only one of his nine seasons in professional football that he did not play for Ottawa. He was traded to British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference at the start of that season, then left the Lions after seven games to return to his studies.

He finished the season back in the Eastern Conference with Hamilton and went on to play in the Grey Cup.

WANT PENSION PLAN

The next year he was back in Ottawa, setting up a law practice and playing for Riders.

Schreider said the idea of a players association had come up before but it wasn't until last November that it got on a solid footing.

The Ottawa players got together for an informal discussion on the possibility of a pension plan, "then during the winter about 16 of us who live here all year decided to see what could be done about it."

"Russ Jackson and I were elected to represent the team in discussions with other teams."

Schreider last says how the other teams got started in this field, "but I guess it was a spontaneous move."

Now the association has two immediate goals: recognition and a pension plan.

"I think the pension plan will be a great thing for the game. It will help the players and should be a big asset for management when they try to recruit American college players. Both major pro leagues in the U.S. have pension plans and the means a lot to a young player.

"We're not sure what type of plan would be best but a committee is working on the matter now and has contacted several insurance companies.

The five - foot - 11 native of Belleville, Ont., has come a long way since he left home to attend school and play junior hockey at St. Michael's in Toronto. He found he concentrated on football, "although I did play some games for the Toronto Marlboros for the Junior B Buzzers."

INJURED KNEE

"But I was a goalie and a combination of eyesight trouble and a ruptured appendix cut that out.

"Funny thing is I only wear my contact lenses for night games. I've short-sighted and everything seems' fuzzy under the lights without glasses. But I never have trouble in day games."

There has been talk in Ottawa that Schreider might not play this year. He has been hampered by injuries the last two seasons and missed a lot of action in 1964 with torn knee cartilage.

"As far as I know now I'll be back. I've been lifting weights with my knee all winter and have been playing golf without any pain.

"I won't know for sure until I start running, but if don't anticipate any trouble."

When training camp starts he will go back to his role of father, lawyer and football player, with the additional duties of president of the players association.

"I don't know whether this disrupts my home life. I've never known anything else during the football season.

"I don't get much time at home with my boys, but my wife took the oldest—he's five now—to the games last year and the second will be joining him this year.

"They're both crazy about football—like their dad."

BACK IN 1964 — Gary Schrieder and a proud father Ed. Schrieder, both well-known here, pose with the Grey Cup after the Ottawa Rough Riders had won the coveted mug in Vancouver. Gary now a full-fledged lawyer is the first president of the new Canadian Football Players' Association.

33 Get Tests Today

First Canadian Qualifies For '500'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Three hours of carburetion tests at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway today gave 33 drivers their last chance to handle their cars on the track before the 49th 500-mile race Monday.

The contestants include Billy Foster of Victoria, B.C., first Canadian to qualify for a Speedway final.

In the past this period has been largely an extra practice, but the tests have a closer meaning this year.

Many crews, particularly those with new Ford engines, have been trying to find a way to send their cars the full 500 miles on the two mandatory pit stops.

Some mechanics have admitted privately that if they use alcohol, three pit stops will be necessary. A possible solution is to use gasoline but that would mean sacrificing horsepower and would also add a fire hazard.

MAY HELPED FUELS

Some mechanics apparently hope to use a blend of the two fuels and tested varying formulas today.

The carburetion test period meant much to two 500 veterans, Parnelli Jones and Lloyd Ruby.

Both got into trouble and their cars hit the wall after they had qualified, causing heavy damage. Both were expected to be in shape for the last warmup.

The apparent readiness of he two cars seemingly dissipated the last chance for veteran Rodger Ward to make the race.

A starter in 14 straight 500s, former winner Ward was the first alternate on the basis of his 34th fastest qualifying time.

Ward apparently was re-signed to not racing, since it was announced Friday he will do the commentary on a closed-circuit television showing of the speed classic.

Morland Wins Tournament

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bill Morland of North Bay shot a four - under - par 67 Friday to take top honors in the Tournament of Champions golf meet here.

Morland was the only one in the field of 81 to break par. Runner-up Dave Lee of Anchaster shot a par 71, one stroke ahead of George Spencer of Sarnia. Tied for fourth place with 72s were Bill Wiley of Galt and Jack Lowry of St. Catharines.

Morland was one over par on the front nine, but shot a five-under-par 30 on the back nine to win. Lee also came back strong, going out in 32 and finishing in 32.

TREES YIELD MUCH

Wood pulp is made nowadays into explosives, imitation leather, printing ink, and alcohol rubs.

GILLIAM REACTIVATED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers reactivated first base coach Jim Gilliam Friday, making room for the veteran infielder by sending third baseman - outfielder Darrell Griffith to Spokane. Gilliam, 36, played with the Dodgers for 12 seasons before becoming a coach last year.

AT THE BELLE — The exciting British actress, Honor Blackman, plays the exciting Pussy Galore, in the latest James Bond suspense adventure film, "Goldfinger". The Technicolor film starring Sean Connery as the famous agent 007, is holding over today, Monday, Tuesday—is positively the last day in Belleville for "Goldfinger", at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Warm scene . . . Well, it's cold outside and Debbie Reynolds and Harve Presnell, playing the young married couple of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown", take advantage of a pot belly stove to warm certain parts of their anatomy. It's one of the fun moments in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's big screen version in Panavision and color of Broadway's triumphant musical hit opening tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. 2nd feature attraction, also in color "Swordsman of Siena" features Stewart Granger, Sylva Koscina and Christine Kaufmann.

AT THE PARK — Bryant Halliday and Hugo, the dummy who kills on command, in a scene from "Devil Doll", opening Monday at the Park Theatre and co-starring William Sylvester and Yvonne Romain in this shock-packed drama. On the same program the second shocker "Wild Youth" stars Robert Hutton and Carol Ohmart. Both features are first showings. Complete shows at 7.00 and 8.40 p.m.

Jane Wyatt Getting Paid For Sixth Rerun of Series

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It has been five years since Jane Wyatt cooked her last meal for the Anderson family, and still the residuals for Father Knows Best keep rolling in.

Jane is living testimony of the benefits of having a successful television series. She still gets a regular, sizable check for her six years of service to Father Knows Best, and this pleasant practice may well continue for years to come.

"I'm now getting paid for the sixth rerun—think of that!" says Jane. "After we went off the air, the show ran for three years in prime time, and for two years it has been playing every day on the network. It's also playing all over the world."

Doing a series for six years went like this!

GOT TOUGHER

"The first year was sheer joy. The second year was when the problems started to set in. But we licked them and the third year was smooth going. Fatigue began to set in during the fourth year. We got through the fifth year only because we all thought it would be the last. The sixth? Pure hell.

"Being a family show, we all had to stick around."

The series finally expired out of sheer exhaustion, says Jane. The final count: 203 half-hour episodes, about the equal of 50 feature movies.

Now she has returned to the big screen, playing Maureen O'Sullivan's close friend in Never Too Late. It's a bit of a wrench, but the technique is coming back to her.

"Paul Ford and I and others who have been working in television have a little trouble getting used to the close-shots," she said. "In television a close-shot means you're rubbing shoulders with the other actor. But with the panavision wide screen, you can be several feet apart. It's amazing."

Jane, whose movie career dates back to Lost Horizon and before, is learning to adjust.

NEGRO JOINS RAWHIDE

Raymond St. Jacques, fast-rising young Negro actor, will appear in a regular role on TV's Rawhide next season.

AT THE PARK — Treasury agent Robert Hutton . . . star of "Wild Youth", opening at the Park Theatre Monday, stars on the bookout for border dope runners. On the same program the supershocker "Devil Doll", stars Bryant Halliday and Yvonne Romain. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.40 p.m.

HAYLEY JOINS CHURCH

Hayley Mills will star with Rosalind Russell in the forthcoming film Mother Superior.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Sean Connery, Honor Blackman, Gerte Frobe, in "Goldfinger". 1.30-3.35.

AT THE PARK — All color musical comedy show, "Fiesta" featuring Tommy Kirk, Annette Funicello, Pat Buttram and Frankie Avalon. 2.45 - 5.55, 9.05 Rainer Se Haak, Sandra Dee, Robert Goulet, Andy Williams, Maurice Chevalier. 4.40-10.00.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN—(Doors starts at dusk) "The Unsinkable Molly Brown", color — Debbie Reynolds, Harve Presnell. 2nd feature in color "Swordsman of Siena" stars Stewart Granger, Sylva Koscina, Christine Kaufmann.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Conn Smythe's Northern Minx and Northern Doll carried his blue and white silks to two wins in Friday's racing at Greenwood track.

Northern Minx took the third race at $5.10 and Northern Doll won the featured seventh for filler, paying $8.10. Jockey Jerry Harris was up for both races.

The daily double paid $42.50, coupling Shining Sun in the first and Valecrest Lady in the second. Attendance was 6,838.

RACKUS WAS GOLFER

Veteran actor Jim Backus was a keen-age golf star, and played charity matches against Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 30

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Emphasis now on journeys, ideas, special research. Good time to express yourself. Gratuitous manner. Be alert and optimistic. Attend church or choice. Smile works wonders!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Gain indicated through special activities. Emphasis on possessions, collections, hobby. Family friends can bring pleasure. Day to check details of future plans.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Cycle high. Joys previously closed are easier to open. You can now impress people. Important to look your best. Stimulating conversations provide enlightenment.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Day to transform hopes into realities. Cycle moving up. New Moon stresses organizational activity. Fine time for co-operating in community or church project.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Invigorating day. You see the light . . . make headway in creative project. Important people can lend encouragement. Inspiration and good will are indicated.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): New Moon highlights community activity, personal fulfillment. Fine for consulting experts, reading special features in your paper. Keynote is progress. Obtain ideas from Aries message.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Join forces with one who has made special study. Day to learn — and to share knowledge. Maintain principles. Stand tall! You impress people . . . and gain spiritual insight.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Check savings, plans for future security. Mate or partner may be much concerned. Key is confidence. Spotlight originality, independence. Throw off secret fears.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): New Moon highlights favorable reaction to your efforts. Key is cautious optimism. Individual born under Cancer could play significant role. Don't be afraid to seek advice.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Emphasize simplicity in routine. You benefit now from emotional lethargy. Look to future. Need spiritual uplift.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): New Moon spotlights romantic interests, children, ties of affection. Day to be creative. Don't get bogged down by display of temper. Keep tight rein on emotions.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Good news likely to be received. Family member provides encouragement. Excellent for discussing vacation and travel. Carefully keep promises and remember Golden Rule.

If today is your birthday . . . your interests are varied, far-reaching. Seldom satisfied with the status-quo, you would make a fine reporter or writer.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Gemini, Cancer. Special word to Capricorn: Confidence is key to future plans.

FOR MAY 31

Aries (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19) — No time for extravagance. Realize aid will be forthcoming. Good result indicated from correspondence or short business journey. Need for proper rest indicated. Be considerate of co-workers.

Taurus (Apr. 20 - May 20)— Keep expenses under control. If called upon to entertain tonight, emphasize quality, simplicity. Avoid extravagance. Loved one has hidden problem. Be patient!

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)— Cycle remains high. But avoid dispute at home by being diplomatic. Stress beauty, harmony. Purchase which improves appearance can add to comfort and smooth way.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)— Be perceptive. Note moods and feelings of associates. Read today's Taurus message. Important person may try to contact you at home or office. Be available!

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 23) — Emphasize on friends, desires, special attainment. You profit from personal contact. Not best time for buying now. Get additional facts. Utilize your wonderful intuition.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) — Sudden changes indicated. Be ready for surprises. One phase of activity could be nerve end. Have new plans ready. Sincere individual wants to be helpful.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)— Good lunar aspect accents ideas, communications, future plans. Be an innovator. What succeeded in past may be outmoded. Fine for contacts. Nothing half-way today.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)— Friends and money may not mix now. Be a good listener, and amiable. But keep mind on finances. Dubious scheme could prove expensive. Respond with skepticism.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21) — Key is patience. Don't fight city hall! Be aware of public relations. Strive for harmony. Try to avoid legal disputes. Be especially considerate of associates.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) — Don't attempt to force issues. Handle routine matters early. Manage time well. Read Taurus and Cancer messages. Keep temper under control! Very productive if you exercise care.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) — One who means much to you could make money request. Be frank, but tactful. Clear air of misunderstandings. Some changes may be indicated. Explain situation—then you are happier.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20)— No time to write or mail letters in anger! Choose words with care. You might be misquoted. Tonight emphasize relaxation. Family member needs your attention, understanding.

If Today is Your Birthday... you are versatile, artistic —but have both feet on ground. Would make excellent research specialist.

General Tendencies — Labor-Management confrontation is indicated in news.

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE ONTARIO...

MEMORANDUM WITH REFERENCE TO RETAIL STORE HOURS:

Much has been said and published during the past several months concerning the antiquated restrictive retail shopping hours within the City of Belleville.

Shopping hours, to date, have been established by a group of Belleville merchants, without consultation with the consumer. We feel the consumer, the "LIFE BLOOD" of merchants should have an influencing voice in deciding shopping hours and, therefore, respectfully present the following comment for your consideration.

The basic issue appears to be a sharp difference of opinion between the Downtown Merchants' Association and the Belleville Plaza Merchants' Association. Of course the issue has a much greater horizon, in that, it is the opinion of this Company, after careful survey and analysis that restrictive legislation in these particular circumstances will, in the long run, have unfortunate consequences on all merchants in the City, possibly on the City itself, through the loss of Tax Revenue.

Existance of these restrictions on shopping hours will encourage diversion of goods to outlets free of restrictions. It will discourage commercial development and investment in Belleville, consequently creating diversion of consumer spending to other communities. RETAIL DEVELOPMENT IN OUR CITY WILL UNDOUBTEDLY BE CURTAILED AND BE FORCED TO LOCATE IN UNRESTRICTED AREAS.

Large merchandising chains are reluctant to invest too heavily in Belleville and as a result the consumers are being deprived of a free selection of merchandise. THEY ARE LITERALLY BEING FORCED TO TRAVEL TO OTHER MERCHANDISING CENTRES WHICH MAKE AVAILABLE GOODS FOR PURCHASE, AT A TIME CONVENIENT TO THE CONSUMER.

The essence of retailing as a business is to offer the public goods at fair market value, set in attractive surroundings, and available at a time most convenient to the shopping public, which may vary in different store classifications. Retailing is not an industry which fits comfortably into a 9 to 5 schedule.

Many industries operate on shift hours and many public services are freely available to the public at all hours. There would be an outcry by all of us if, when we left our place of business at 5 p.m., or 6 p.m., we found the employees of the Belleville Transit Commission had decided not to run buses after 5 p.m., and the employees of the Public Utilities Commission had decided not to repair any emergency breaks in the water system after 6 p.m., and the employees of the Police Department had decided to work only on a 9 to 5 basis. It is self evident that the services of these people are needed constantly, 24 hours each day, and the industries that have grown around them are greatful for their devotion.

THE CONSUMER, TODAY, IS BEING FORCED TO MAINTAIN RESTRICTIVE HABITS LIMITING THEIR PURCHASES, BY AND LARGE, TO THREE HOURS ON FRIDAY EVENING EACH WEEK.

IS IT REASONABLE FOR THEM TO WAIT UNTIL FRIDAY EVENING, WHEN THEY CAN SIMPLY DRIVE OUTSIDE OF THE CITY AND GET WHAT THEY NEED ON MONDAY, TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY EVENING, IF THEY SO WISH.

We as members of this community, have much to offer, but we cannot cater to the present, which is changing rapidly, with an attitude of past prejudices. The past is certainly history, and history has its value in assessing the present, but it is the actions of the present that create a future.

STAND UP AND BE COUNTED FOR THE FUTURE BENEFIT OF OUR COMMUNITY!

WE URGE YOU TO WRITE TODAY, WE URGE YOU TO EXPRESS YOUR POINT OF VIEW AND EXERCISE ONE OF THE MOST CHERISHED PRINCIPLES OF DEMOCRACY, NAMELY, THE PUBLIC'S RIGHT TO FREEDOM OF OPINION.

WRITE AND LET US KNOW WHETHER YOU ARE IN FAVOUR OF FREEDOM OF SHOPPING HOURS, OR WHETHER YOU ARE IN FAVOUR OF RESTRICTIONS IN MAINTAINING THE RESTRICTIONS UNDER THE EXISTING BY-LAW.

QUESTION: We are going to the Queen's Plate at Woodbine next month. Would you give us some information and history on this race? —H. J., Belleville.

ANSWER: Toronto — Royalty and racing have long been synonymous and that's the way it is with Canada's Queen's Plate as it prepares for its 106th running June 26th at Woodbine race course.

Queen Victoria gave it her blessing in 1860 and this makes it North America's oldest turf classic bar none. Her purse of 50 guineas — now paid in gold sovereigns to the value of $150 — is hardly enough nowadays to meet one horse's annual hay bill.

But to the victor go much greater spoils in this, the biggest event on the Canadian racing calendar, which draws upwards of 30,000 visitors. On hand to officiate in the presentation at this year's event will be Queen Mother Elizabeth.

It will be the fourth occasion on which a member of the Royal Family has been in attendance, with the Queen Mother accounting for three of these visits. She and her husband, George VI, visited Woodbine in 1939. Twenty years later her daughter, Elizabeth II, and Prince Philip were in the winner's enclosure for the 100th running and the Queen Mother was here in 1962.

Her Majesty will ride to the royal box in an open carriage escorted by members of the Governor - General's Horse Guards and attended by Redcoated RCMP personnel. It will be a scene of pomp and pageantry reminiscent of England's Royal Ascot, and a day on which the local set appears in formal finery.

Ontario's Lieutenant-governor officiates at other Plate ceremonies when royalty isn't present and the same glitter and glamor prevails.

The first Queen's Plate was run on June 27, 1860 at the Carleton track on what is now a traffic-strangled corner in Toronto's west end. It wasn't long before the Plate became an event of enormous social importance and political prestige, and for 20 years it was staged in a variety of centres before Toronto became its permanent home.

Many a successful Kentucky Derby rider has tried to add the Queen's Plate to his string of major victories but only four have managed to turn the trick. Most recent of these was noted U.S. jockey Bill Hartack who pulled off the dual best aboard Canadian-bred Northern Dancer, now retired to stud due to a subsequent leg injury.

The other three were Canadians Charlie Lang (1925) J. J. Mooney, Sr., (1929) and veteran Eddie Arcaro (1953).

A Plate winner can be sure he'll go home with a lot more than the queen's guineas in the traditional purple bag. His wins, in addition, a $5,000 gold cup and approximately $50,000 added stakes put up by the Ontario Jockey Club.

Last year's gross purse, for example, ran to $74,075, with a cool $49,075 to the winner, $12,500 in second prize money and $7,500 and $5,000 for third and fourth respectively.

Three major tracks now operate in Ontario, two of these —Woodbine and Greenwood — are located in Toronto. Here are their schedules this season:

Fort Erie — July 19 — Sept. 4th; Greenwood — May 10 — June 5 and Oct. 25 — Nov. 27 Woodbine — June 7 — July 17 and Sept. 6 — Oct. 23.

PENNSYLVANIA

Kutztown — the 16th annual Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival, July 3-10, will feature traditional dishes prepared by Pennsylvania Dutch women, demonstrations of craftsmen, old-fashioned medicine show and the Amish pageant "Men of One Master" among other activities. Admission is $1.50, children under 12 free- parking is $1, ren under 13 free; parking is $1.

'To Be Simply a Good Person' Asks This Retirement Prayer

By THOMAS COLLINS

"If I were a member of the retirement set or were about to join it,"the man said, "I think I would want to say a prayer. To Whomever I believed in. Or Whatever. Or maybe just to the sky."

The prayer would go something like this:

"Grant me the integrity not to squander this precious freedom that comes to me with retirement. Man and woman have not had freedom with pay before. I have it. With the privilege to speak, to shout, to go, to come, to fight, to work, to dream, to do . . . without apology to my pension or my freedom. I pray that I can comprehend what this unprecedented gift means. That I can use it to make a square foot of this world better.

"Grant me the physical powers — the hormones, the glands, the spirit or whatever it is — to fight off the laziness that comes with freedom with pay. Please grant me this, that I may kick the narcotic of security.

"Grant me the understanding to smile at the youngsters who move in to take over the job or career I have mastered so long. They know what to do . . they claw desperately for success and the money and glory it brings. So, no less, did I. Guide me to toleration of the indifference or scorn they have for one who went before them. Quiet my stomach as it rebels against the affronts to my dignity, my achievements, my efforts in my work that now seem to be cast aside.

"Grant me the common sense to know that the company of which I have worked so long is dedicated to profits, not to me. That the institution to which I have given my best so long is dedicated to its advancement and its prestige, not to me. Either the business or the institution bestows a pension on me and bids me a fond farewell because it is the proper thing to do in these times, again not because of me. Grant me the wisdom — not to forgive, because the business and the institution were not set up not to sin against me — but to understand. And to get on with my business.

"Grant me the realization that goodness, if I am ever to achieve it, must come now. It is not later than I think. At age 65 I have still some potent years to be good. To discard the shabdowy techniques I employed to mold my career and keep my job, to kill the striving at somebody else's cost, to end the envy, the jealousy, the distrust, the vanity, the bitterness, the hate. I pray that these ugly things which can give nothing to the power and glory of retirement be cast from me. And that I come, at long last, to be simply a good person.

"Grant me, I pray, the curiosity to investigate at this late time, the great religions of the world. Surely there is more to them than the Medicine Man and the ritual, more than consolation from thunder and the mysteries of the Great Beyond, more than a swap of battered asphalt for Streets of Gold. What? Surely the religions that have served mankind so long have something more meaningful than all this, more important than being usher next Sunday or being elected to the board of deacons. What? Grant me the curiosity to find out.

"Grant me the power to believe. In my retirement years it is not sufficient that I believe in the stability of the dollar, the survival of the insurance company that issues my pension cheque, the reliability of the postman that delivers the cheque, and the price of cabbage at the grocery store. I need something more. And I would ask that I be able to walk out on my front porch of an afternoon when the sun is setting, to mull for a bit over the great issues of mankind, and say, as a fellow on radio once did, 'This

St. John Ambulance Booklet On Child Care Available

DEAR DORIS — I think you will be interested in the recent St. John Ambulance publication "Child Care in the Home." This will be available shortly in both French and English.

Our book has been drawn up with the thought not only of the young baby sitter but of aunts, grandmothers and others who may be charged with the care of young children.

St. John Ambulance also gives courses on Child Care for both adults and juniors. Local branches of St. John have the information about these. — NURSING CONSULTANT, ST. JOHN AMBULANCE, NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS, OTTAWA.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR CONSULTANT — Thank you. It's a fine, 122-page booklet, with heaps of practical ideas for coping with little ones. There are paragraphs about suitable toys, the importance of vitamins, burping a baby, making the punishment fit the crime, and a hundred other posers.

I would recommend it to all readers with little ones to handle.

Police Break Up Toronto Park Riot

Self-styled Nazi Leader Beaten, Kicked

TORONTO (CP)—Eight anti-Nazi demonstrators and a self-styled Nazi leader were arrested Sunday during a riot after more than 4,000 people—some armed with clubs—gathered to protest a scheduled Nazi rally in a midtown park.

The crowd rushed six youths they thought were members of the recently-formed Canadian Nazi party. Four were caught and kicked and beaten while police in steadily increasing numbers tried to bring the mob under control.

About 500 middle-aged people—many of them eastern Europeans or members of Jewish organizations—attacked the youths while the rest of the crowd at Allan Gardens cheered them on.

At the same time, the self-styled leader of the Nazi group, William John Beattie, 23, arrived and was attacked as he stepped from his car.

Police rescued him from the mob and put him into a paddy wagon. Blood was streaming from his face and clothes.

LEADER CHARGED

Beattie was charged later with causing a disturbance and other party members were placed briefly into protective custody.

Charges ranging from possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace to creating a disturbance were placed against eight of the anti-Nazi crowd. All, including Beattie, were later released on bail.

Reaction to the riot was quick, but confused.

Jewish leaders blamed government authorities for not curbing the Nazis and their hate literature; some members of the crowds blamed the police for letting the emotional temperamental eight, whose public figures blamed Toronto news media for giving the Nazi rally advance publicity.

Rabbi Abraham Feinberg, a frequent spokesman on Jewish causes, said violence is no answer to Nazism but Sunday's violence "was bound to happen" since Ottawa has not halted Nazi propaganda.

Rabbi Gunter Plaut added: "The Nazi is not just another citizen and this not just another Sunday picnic."

2,000 GATHER

The Nazi rally had been scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. By 1:30 about 2,000 people had gathered, including many former prisoners in German war-time concentration camps. Others milled around the fringes of the park.

Six youths arrived but were turned back by police. As they headed back to the street a mob followed them, then with shouts of "kill them" and "get

Gen. Graham Bids Farewell As Hasty Pees Troop Color

By GEO. H. CARVER

A distinguished Canadian soldier said final farewell to the regiment and army he served so long and well here yesterday.

Lieut.-General Howard D. Graham, C.B.E., D.S.O., C.D., V.D., climaxed fifty years of service to his country in a colorful military setting before a capacity grandstand throng at the Fair Grounds.

The former wartime commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and honorary colonel of the militia battalion, marked his permanent retirement with the lusty cheers of the battalion ringing in his ears.

He stood tall and erect taking the march-past salute of the battalion in his final army gesture at the "Trooping the Color" ceremonies the first in the history of the "Hasty Pees."

With the former chief of Staff on the reviewing stand were Brigadier J. S. Ross, Commander Eastern Area, Kingston; and military aides; Mayor Jack Ellis of Belleville and Mayor James MacDonald of Trenton.

In a low voice touched with emotion General Graham bade his final adieux to the regiment represented by the color escort and three guards units drawn up in review formation.

Mr. Pearson took up the ides and suggested Roland Michener, former Conservative Speaker, could be considered for the post. Later, Labor Minister MacEachen asked Commons opposition leaders for comment on the suggestion that Mr. Michener, appointed Canadian high commissioner to India by the Liberal government after his 1962 election defeat in his Toronto riding, serve as per-

"This is one of the greatest thrills of my life" he said, his voice sounding clearly over the hush of the grandstand.

"I have seen the regiment parade many times but I have never seen it better than it was today. I can plainly see the many hours of hard work you have done."

"You who have taken part in the age-old ceremony of 'Trooping the Color' have done a great

"I, like a great many in the grandstand, and those not able to be present do truly appreciate the honor as do those whose privilege it was to serve with this grand old regiment."

Viet Cong Kill 500 Ere Bombs Smash Drive

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. jets struck at Communist positions in Quang Ngai Province today after three days of hard fighting in which an estimated 500 government troops were killed, wounded or missing.

Senior South Vietnamese military officers returning from the embattled northern provinces said that the U.S. air strikes appeared to have smashed a major Viet Cong offensive there.

In Quang Ngai, 45 miles southeast of the big Da Nang air base, U.S. officials said the Viet Cong appeared to be pulled back.

The government rushed in reinforcements but a counter-attack was delayed, apparently because of bad weather.

The South Vietnamese officers said that the Viet Cong had suffered about 300 killed in the Quang Ngai fighting, some 200 of them from the air strikes.

LOSSES HEAVY

U.S. officials also reported 185 other government casualties —35 killed, 99 wounded and 100 missing—at the Khe Tri outpost near the border with North Viet Nam. The Viet Cong overran the post Friday night. A government relief force took it Saturday. Then the Viet Cong struck back, dispersed the relief force and escaped before a second relief force arrived.

Senior U.S. military sources said they had confirmed the presence of two battalions of North Vietnamese troops in the area.

An estimated two regiments of Communist fighters battled the government forces before breaking off the action at noon.

Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Chang Thi, commander of the South Vietnamese Army 1st Corps, told newspaper men Sunday night he had asked for a battalion of U.S. marines to be moved against the Viet Cong in this area.

But a U.S. military spokesman there said today he knew of no such request.

The objective of the current Viet Cong offensive — the biggest for several weeks—was unclear. It could be aimed at the city at Quang Ngai itself. The city is not important militarily, but its capture would boost Viet Cong prestige.

MAY BE FEINT

Another possibility — potentially more serious, according to observers here—is that the guerrillas are making an elaborate feint to draw government reserves from strategically more important centres which would then be open to massive Viet Cong attacks.

Four platoons of U.S. marines were airlifted to an island off the coast of Quang Tin province, just north of Quang Ngai, on a search operation. They killed five Viet Cong, wounded one and picked up six suspects, spokesmen said.

On the political front, a state-

Geo. Nowlan Dies Suddenly

OTTAWA (CP) — George Nowlan, 66, revenue minister and finance minister in the former Conservative government, died suddenly in hospital here today.

He entered the Civic Hospital last Tuesday with what his doctor described as a "tired heart" and for a general checkup.

An associate said Mr. Nowlan seemed in good spirits when he was visited by Mrs. Nowlan Sunday and when he had breakfast this morning. He was stricken, apparently by a heart attack, and died at 9:40 a.m.

Junta Lets OAS Force Into Palace

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—The Dominican junta agreed Sunday night to let the Inter-American peace force occupy the national palace, scene of several recent ceasefire violations.

Dr. Jose A. Mora, secretary-general of the Organization of American States, said junta chief Brig.-Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera agreed to the move "in principle" at a meeting.

Military sources said Brazilian troops would occupy the palace, which is in no man's land between the international safety zone and rebel territory. It now is held by 400 junta troops.

Rebel chief Col. Francisco Caamano Deno agreed earlier for the peace force take over the palace. It is no longer the seat of government.

The rebels meanwhile called for the withdrawal of the peace force "as quickly as possible."

Marines Leaving

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Broadcasting Company correspondent in Santo Domingo reported today that all U.S. Marines will be withdrawn from the Dominican Republic within 48 hours.

ABC correspondent John Casserly said he learned of the move from "reliable American authorities."

Separately said the U.S. 82nd Airborne Division will take over the responsibility of all U.S. ground operations in the Dominican Republic after the marines - 4,500 of them - leave.

Speaker Key Point In Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who tossed a political idea to Prime Minister Pearson last week, could get a chance to field one himself today.

The Commons was discussing the government's proposals to streamline House rules. Mr. Diefenbaker suggested the Commons needs a permanent Speaker and said the current Speaker, Liberal Alan Macnaughton, would be a good man for the job.

Mr. Pearson took up the idea and suggested Roland Michener, former Conservative Speaker, could be considered for the post. Later, Labor Minister MacEachen asked Commons opposition leaders for comment on the suggestion that Mr. Michener, appointed Canadian high commissioner to India by the Liberal government after his 1962 election defeat in his Toronto riding, serve as per-

NATO Heads Gather

PARIS (Reuters) — Fresh doubts over France's future role in the Atlantic Alliance were voiced today as NATO defence ministers gathered for two days of strategy talks in Paris.

Maurice Delarue, chief diplomatic correspondent of the mass-circulation France - Soir said President de Gaulle's government was expected to press for a revision of the NATO treaty which would place all Allied troops in France under French command.

Under new bilateral agreements American bases in France could no longer be used "for American military operations of which France did not approve."

Delarue said France would propose the changes before the NATO treaty comes up for renewal in 1969, making clear that unless they are accepted

Canada Needs To Be Re-invented

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Montreal geographer says geographic balkanization is already a fact in Canada.

Ladger Beauregard, of the University of Montreal, told a symposium on Canadian regionalism Saturday Canada must be "reinvented" if the country is to survive intact.

He described Quebec as "a little more separatist than the Maritime provinces where it is excluded because it has no reason for being separatist."

The symposium was the final event of Saturday's meeting of the Canadian Association of Geographers, the first of 38 groups meeting at UBC for Canada's annual Learned Societies conference.

Prof. John Warkention of York University in Toronto said southern Ontario has been "consistently characterized by inhabitants who have tended to be conservative, stable, restrained, with a respect for property, a belief that material progress is a fundamental virtue, a sense of responsibility in public matters . . .

"A characteristic that has been equally persistent is that the men who have controlled the governmental, ecclesiastical, educational and financial institutions have been predominantly of British origin."

The separatist situation in Quebec is quickening the emergency of vitality in southern Ontario, whose inhabitants are consequently assuming a responsible and constructive attitude towards the continuing existence of Canada, he said.

Backwash Of Dominican Revolt Leaves OAS Dripping In Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) —The backwash from the revolution in the Dominican Republic will keep the United States and the Latin American countries dripping a long time.

They had years to prepare, but didn't, for the dilemma which suddenly hit them in the Dominican revolt and will hit them again somewhere else: How to prevent communism, already in Cuba, from seizing control in another country.

They had time to prepare for it, since Fidel Castro took over Cuba six years ago, but they preferred to rock along dreamily upon an agreement made before Communists was a problem or a danger in the Western Hemisphere.

This was when the United States and the Latin American countries in 1948 created the Organization of American States and all agreed on a charter which said:

1. "No state or group of states has the right to intervene, directly or indirectly, for any reason whatever, in the internal or external affairs of another state. . . .

2. "The territory of a state is inviolable, it may not be the object, even temporarily, of military occupation or of other measures or force taken by another state, directly or indirectly, on any grounds whatever."

Then, in 1951, two years after communism had captured Cuba the OAS agreed to a resolution that "the principles of communism are incompatible with the principle of the inter-American system."

But this resolution didn't say the OAS should do anything if the Communists tried to take over anyway and the 1948 charter, agreeing to no intervention for any reason, still stood.

In short, the OAS and the United States left themselves handcuffed, so far as any agreement went, on preventing a Communist takeover. Then the Dominican revolt began.

President Johnson sent in troops to prevent a Communist takeover, he said, explaining the Communists were already in control of the revolution. Now there are serious doubts that his information was correct.

But the point is, he went contrary to the OAS charter in sending in troops. But so did the OAS itself when later it sent in troops from several other Latin American countries to keep peace in the Dominican Republic.

Therefore, within a few weeks time, the 1948 charter was a shambles. Meanwhile, complicating the whole business further, both sides in the Dominican fighting demanded that the OAS peacekeeping force be withdrawn.

No matter the outcome, the United States and the Latin American states now have to face the issue which they didn't face up until compelled to by the Dominican trouble:

What will the OAS do in the future when there's reason to believe the Communists are trying to take power in one of the republics? The issue will have to be faced because of something Johnson said May 2:

"We will defend our nation against all those who seek to destroy not only the United States but every free country of this hemisphere."

This means the OAS must set up machinery to prevent a Communist takeover the United States; despite its agreement in the charter, will use troops.

Can the OAS set up some kind of permanent peacekeeping force which would be used not for intervention in any country's revolution but only in case the Communists are seizing power? The effort undoubtedly will be made but the wrangling ahead seems monumental.

Albert College Graduates At Baccalaureate Service In Opening Convocation

A cool but sunny May morning was the setting for the annual procession to the memorial Albert College Baccalaureate Service held Sunday at Bridge Street Church.

Entering the church in procession with the clergymen leading, the Board of Governors were followed by the members of Faculty. Next in the group was the graduating class, the men wearing blue and grey gowns with mortarboards and the students of the school.

The beauty of the service was enhanced by the fine musical efficiency of the choir singing "Let All the World" and the solo of "Lord Come Away" by Mrs. Hazelmae Reid. The organ prelude "Supplication" and postlude "Allegretto" was rendered by church organist Mr. Alec Gordon.

Rev. H. M. Davis gave the Invocation and led in the responsive reading. The scripture lesson taken from the third chapter of the Epistle of James was read by Mr. Lorne McDougall, Chairman of the Board of Governors. On the behalf of the congregation of Bridge Street Church, Mr. Davis extended warm words of welcome to all the visitors, especially the parents and relatives of the graduates and friends of the students. He also expressed a welcome to Dr. Finnie on behalf of all.

Principal and Headmaster H. R. Simpson thanked the congregation for their hospitality on this special day. In introducing Dr. Finnie, Mr. Simpson stressed the many interests that Dr. Finnie took in the world and work around him, particularly cited Dr. Finnie's work in regard to higher education.

THE SOLID SCIENCES

"A lighted cigarette tossed carelessly from a speeding car, a campfire with glowing embers looking so innocent, are fanned into flames, so they tell the hospitios, as utter disasters in its consequences". Referring to the text of the lesson this was only one of the ways we saw small mistakes being made around us everyday.

"Few of us are guilty of heinous sins. We are not thieves, we usually cross though on the right side of truth" . . . but we have faults that get fanned into flames, a temper of soul being a consumes us or our good relations, weaknesses that lead the climate of our soul being a heavy weather."

"Jesus contrasted the human problem. He came in effect (Matthew 12:36) that every careless little word or common day is projected to the Great Day of Judgement." Dr. Finnie went on to emphasize that God only as a scrutiniser but the faults of our statements will be seen in attitudes and deeds of people around us. It is the small blemishes in character that keep us from being the exact people we want to be.

A DEEPER QUESTION

"One thing holds us back from what we can be is our refused to deal with small human little sins, that can be fanned something that destroys, understanding up and facing this issue," the speaker noted "love the Jesus will conclusion to power."

Dr. Finnie said that the trouble with many of our young people is that for a scapegoat to use in avoiding fighting these conflicts many young people blame their parents, their birth and their heritage. "There are altogether too many people operating on a low life smattering of veneer of psychiatry.

"A failed answer for our small fires to continue may lie in the neglect of personal faith. We believe, but do we trust!

We speak of God, but as a distant abstract idea. Does it really mean to us that God can make Himself known in our lives? His proffered grace of forgiveness is as real as our need. We haven't been doing well at forgiving ourselves. Many things that we failed to do in this week ought to be 'old business' finished, done with, on the docket of the past. We are of Christ but as though He lived 2000 years ago. We actually don't should have lived to have been with Him then.' We fail to hear those who are with Him the past and to us, 'We should like to be with you now.' For, with 2000 years of His Living Presence still transforming the lives of men and women around the earth — we actually are in the places of bitterness, still healing the sickness of society, today what is day to walk with Jesus Christ.' Further Training Discussed at White Cane Meet

The regular business meeting of the White Cane Club was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Lorne Pratt, President Helen Wardhaugh presided and welcomed the members and guests.

Aelle Scott introduced Mrs. Verna Gray, soloist and Mrs. Dorothy Bowen, pianist. The appreciation of the Club was voiced by Mr. George Zimmerle in the words of thanks for the delightful entertainment provided.

Mrs. Rollins read excerpts from the C.C.B. Council Concentary. Of special interest to all blind students is the fact that further training can always be obtained in practically all fields of employment providing that the person has the proper qualifications. This training can be financed through the co-operation of the C.N.I.B. and the Provincial Department of Civilian Rehabilitation. An example of such training can be obtained through the Provincial Normal Schools, in which any student who has the education and therefore can qualify for this demanding higher skill.

Invitations from the Friendship Club of Kingston was received. Many members signified their intention of accepting and are looking forward to this outing on June 16th. Plans are being discussed for the annual picnic to be held in July.

Refreshments were served by the girls of the Kinette Club at the close of the meeting. Mrs. Lorne Pratt expressed appreciation to everyone responsible for the enjoyable evening.

manent Commons Speaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker was absent for the latter minister's query, but his reaction could come the day when the House returns to the Tuesday question after spending Friday on foreign affairs.

IS KEY POINT

The question of a permanent Speaker is a key point in the rules fight.

Amendments to the government's original resolutions to change the rules were announced Thursday by Mr. MacEachen and won approval from the Liberal caucus Friday. The changes would ease the proposals to set time limits on debates and would allow more time for discussion of government spending estimates.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) asked Mr. MacEachen whether the government would open up a riding for Mr. Michener and expressed surprise at the move. This would be contingent upon the government's revised rules changes being accepted, the minister indicated.

Many Conservative MPs have said the changes are being strongly opposition if there is no government action to select a permanent Speaker.

There may be more strategy moves involving possible other candidates for such a post. Mr. Diefenbaker was known to be somewhat piqued by some of Mr. Speakman's remarks from the chair and there has been a similar attitude towards some Macnaughton rulings by front bench Liberals.

Two Killed In Car Crash, Four Injured

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Two men were killed and four other persons were injured in a two-car collision 85 miles north of here Sunday.

Dead are Harold Hooper, 45, of Battle Creek, Mich., and Wilson McLean, 33, of nearby Montreal River, drivers of the cars which met head-on.

Father, Son Service Held In Church

TRENTON — Sunday night services in King Street United Church had as their theme, "Father and Son," and this was carried out in the pulpit, the choir and the congregation.

In the pulpit were Rev. H. R. Ashford, the minister at College Street United Church in Toronto and president of the Toronto Ministerial Association, and Rev. Peter Mickelson of Bowmanville, a graduate of the class of the interim-minister at King Street, Rev. (Dr.) H. R. D. Ashford. Mr. Mickelson, who is a high school teacher in Trenton and he was accompanied to the service by his wife, Peter, a Queen's student.

The theme of the addresses was each's role as son to the earthly father, Joseph and his return to His heavenly Father, God.

$2,000 Damage In Collision And Sideswipe

TRENTON — A two-car collision on Dundas Street East, at the intersection with Scott Street around 6.30 p.m. Saturday, resulted in $2,000 damage. Two cars were involved and the wife of one suffered minor injuries. A third car, parked on Scott Street was damaged to the extent of $75.

Police say James Bookhout of Belleville complained of a sore back following the accident. His wife Elizabeth riding in the front seat, suffered a lump over her left eye. The other driver, William Findlay of 26 Dundonald Street, Trenton, suffered a scrape to his forehead.

Each car was damaged to the extent of $1,000. The parked car, which was struck by the Findlay vehicle after it went into a counter-clockwise spin following the first collision, was owned by Francis Graham of Ingersoll, and was parked on a Scott Street boulevard.

The Anglican Bishop of Ontario, Rev. Kenneth C. Evans will visit St. George's Church in Trenton yesterday, to officiate at the confirmation of 23 children. Evans confirmed fourteen adults at St. George's on April 14. The children were presented by Rev. J. W. Anderson, will arrive in Trenton this week.

Ten Boats Enter Canal Over Weekend

TRENTON — Ten boats were locked through Lock No. 1 over the weekend, bringing to 36, the number of boats locked through since navigation opened on May 15. This is good, according to canal workers, John Howard, considering the weather. And better by quite a few than last year, when traffic on the Trent was virtually at a standstill, due to repairs being carried out to various locks, and in particular, the lift lock at Peterborough.

POWER INTERRUPTION

West Trenton's hydro was interrupted for about an hour Sunday morning while hydro workmen repaired transformers, knocked out by vandals, (thought for the most part to be juveniles), by such things as rocks, bullets and other means. Office workers spent the first few minutes of work today checking time and getting clocks ahead.

15 Building Permits Total $67,275 in May

TRENTON — In May, 15 permits were issued from the office of Trenton's building inspector, Wm. Anderson. Total values were $67,275.

In April, 1965, 17 permits were issued, values, $30,300. In May, 1964, 24 permits were issued; value $160,220.

Two Colborne Youths Injured

TRENTON — Two Colborne youths were injured in a one-car accident on the Dundonald Road in Cramahe Township around 3.15 a.m. Saturday.

Provincial police from Brighton say Wayne Westrope, 18, was treated for a lacerated lip, and chest and rib contusions at Cobourg hospital and released. Westrope also lost two front teeth in the accident. Another passenger in the car, Donald Post, 16, was treated for a sore neck.

The driver, Donald Jotes of Cramahe Township, 5th concession, was not injured.

Police say the 4-door car went out of control on a curve and slammed into an embankment. Damage to the car was set at $150.

TRACT BEING FILLED

Town workmen are presently engaged in "covering up" the Kenneth Street tract, and the corner of Byron Street and Stella Crescent. The large tract of land, empty but for the hydro installation in the centre, is being filled in with earth, and grading, and in its finished state will provide a much more acentic vista for Stella Crescent residents than the pile of stone and rubble they have looked at all spring.

W. C. Cooney New Councillor In Tyendinaga

Mr. William C. Cooney, Shannonville, salesman and commercial traveller is the new Tyendinaga township councillor for filling the vacancy caused by the recent death of Mr. Eugene Wahlen.

Mr. Cooney signed his declaration of office this morning with township clerk William Walsh. At the municipal election last December, he was next in the votes polled to the councillors elected for 1965.

IN MEMORIAM

CAREY — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother Catherine Carey, who passed away May 31, 1962.

Sadly missed by daughter Ruth.

Of a dear mother, gone to rest,
And those who think of her today,
Are the ones who love her best.
The flowers we bring are sweet and May wither and decay,
But the love that we always bear for you will never fade away.

CARLETON — In loving memory of Edmund Carleton who passed away May 31, 1963.

The rolling stream of life rolls on,
But the heart remembers still,
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile.

Of one who once sat there,
Sadly missed by daughter, wife and family.

CARLETON — In loving memory of a dear mother Margaret Carr who passed away May 31, 1963.

Years of striving, little of play,
Loving, caring all the way.

A cherished smile, a heart of gold,
To the dearest mother, the world could hold.

Happy memories, fond and true,
Are the things we remember of you.

—Always remembered by daughter Alma and in-law Everett and grandchildren.

CARR — In loving memory of a dear mother Ethel Carr who passed away May 31st, 1963.

A wonderful mother, helper and friend.

One who was better God never made.

A wonderful worker, loyal and true.

One in a million, that mother was you.

Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright,
Loved by friends and all you knew,
A wonderful mother, that mother was you.

—Always remembered by daughter Ruth and husband Ross, grandchildren Gordon and with Percival Carr and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to thank my friends, neighbors and relatives, who remembered me with cards, flowers, letters and visits while in hospital and since returning home. A special thanks to the ministers for their prayers and calls; to Dr. Bruce Croft, Dr. Ian Reid Ferguson and to the kind nurses and nurses aides on 3rd North.

No Substitute for Free Enterprise Jaycees Told

There is no substitute for free enterprise as a guarantor of democratic freedom, young Belleville businessmen were told Saturday night.

The advice was delivered to the city's Jaycees at their president's banquet at the Top of Motel by J. Clapinson, honorary president of Canada Jaycees and past president of Champlain Oil Products. Mr. Clapinson also is a member of the Montreal Board of Trade.

"The world is not going to progress and become a better place in which to live unless somebody is going to work towards that end," said Mr. Clapinson

"The individual will not maintain his individual freedom unless he is prepared to defend it."

Then he added: "I can assure you—and I do not speak lightly—the fate of the world depends on your generation and the generations which succeed you. The way—and the only way—to accept the challenge of our times and solve the problems which are with us is through individual self-improvement."

The social, political and economic structure of the free world "is based on recognition of the individual," he said.

The meeting—a highlight of the Jaycee year—saw Heinz Mueller, second vice-president, hailed as the organization's man of the year. Zdenek Kvarda, now Ontario Jaycee president, and a founder-member of the local organization, was inducted a Jaycee senator—the international body's highest recognition for inter-group work.

The meeting also hailed Dave Leslie as president—succeeding Don Dafoe.

Other members of the executive are: Leroy Parfitt, 1st vice - president; Heinz Melle, 2nd vice-president; Steve Davlodge, secretary; Bob McDermaid, treasurer.

Directors: Jim Weltz, Larry Farrar, Gary Williams, Dick Chapman, Ron Kristensen.

Fisher Wants Party Fights Waged in Public; Would Kill Confidence - - Jewett

TORONTO (CP) — Parliamentary practice should be changed to allow more party battles to be fought in the open, Douglas Fisher, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Port Arthur, said Sunday.

Mr. Fisher, retiring president of the Exchange for Political Ideas in Canada, told the organization's annual conference Canada should move closer to the United States system.

This could be done by de-emphasizing the tremendous influence of party discipline, exercise secrecy and ministerial responsibility for every act of a department, he said.

Pauline Jewett, Liberal member for Northumberland, and Gordon Fairweather, Progressive Conservative member for Royal, said the most interesting and exciting debates on Parliament Hill occur in party caucuses.

Miss Jewett said that if all internal party conflicts were exposed to public view, "the public would instantly lose confidence" in the party.

UNIVERSITIES CHANGE

Professor George Grant of McMaster University in Hamilton said a new kind of university is emerging in Canada that could lead to the sort of academic climate that produced riots and protest movements at the University of California.

Professor Grant, a religion teacher, said the new university will be concerned exclusively with "teaching people who are clever at techniques to be clevrer."

Emphasizing means rather than ends, he said, will result in creation of huge "multi-universities run by large, tough-minded bureaucracies."

Members of the faculty will "pursue excellence in their own fields and let the students go to hell," he said.

Thurlow Twp. General Rate Is Decreased

Tax rates for the year 1965 have been set by the Township council at a recent meeting held at the township hall, Castlefton.

The total general rates for the year 1965, which do not include Elementary School or other Special Area Rates, are Residential and Farm—47.55 mills and Commercial and Industrial—33.71 mills. These rates show a decrease from the 1964 rates of 1.05 for Residential and Farm and 1.77 for Industrial and Commercial.

This year for the first all the elementary public schools in the township are included in one Township School Area. The result of this change is that instead of some eight different Public school rates there is now only one equalized rate for the Thurlow Township School Area of 13.32 mills for Residential and Farm and 14.80 mills for Commercial and Industrial. There are two small areas in the township which are in union with the Sidney Township School Area for elementary public school purposes. These sections will pay the Sidney rate for schools.

Separate School rates for supporters of the Belleville Separate School Board are 16.14 for Residential and Farm and 17.91 for Commercial and Industrial. For the St. Anne's Separate School Board at Point Anne the rates are 19.00 mills for Residential and Farm and 23.33 for Commercial and Industrial.

IAPA to Hold Convention In City

The Industrial Accident Prevention Association, Belleville - Trenton Section, will hold its annual meeting in combination with the Central Ontario Division Annual at the Club Canarama next Monday.

Mrs. E. S. Booth, Northern Electric Co. of Montreal will be guest speaker. Mr. Booth is a former manager of the Belleville Works.

There will be tours of Northern Electric, American Optical Co. and H. Corby Distillery Limited. A golf outing is also on the agenda followed by I.A.P.A. safety consultants.

March of Dimes Drive Success

Howard C. Caine, president of the Rehabilitation Foundation for the disabled, reports that the March of Dimes campaign was a success.

Mr. Caine said, "Nearly $769,000 has been raised or is in sight — a tremendous tribute to all your hard work and a great public endorsement of our cause.

"On behalf of the thousands of disabled citizens of this Province who will benefit from the generosity of our present March of Dimes campaign.

"Rehabilitation is never a one-man show. It takes donors and fund raisers — an army of salesmen of good causes — planners and paid staff—like all-important efforts of the disabled themselves, plus a warmhearted community to receive them."

Harold Byers, president of Byers - Bush Ltd. will then deal with modern store - planning merchandising, traffic flow, effective promotion and department productivity. Questions will be invited, and a discussion period will follow the talks.

In addition to retail druggists, owners and managers of hardware, variety, gift and other stores will be represented. The program will, of course, cover merchandising and display techniques that apply not only to drug outlets but other retail operations as well.

Napoleon and Hitler

Queen Elizabeth's visit to West Germany has in termed by some Britons, and probably regarded by some Germans, as the "final reconciliation" between the two nations.

It was hardly that.

Monarchs, and statesmen, forgive or remember as expediency suggests. The peoples of the world have longer memories. It will be another generation, at least, before the Luftwaffe has been forgiven for Coventry—or the RCAF for Dresden.

But time will bring a sure cure for existing antipathies, providing the ingredients from which they arose are not restirred in the mixing bowl of history.

Monarchs and statesmen remember dates and anniversaries, as Queen Elizabeth did the other day at Coblenz, when she referred to the fact that on the eighteenth of next month it will be a century and a half since German troops under Field Von Blucher joined the Duke of Wellington at Waterloo to decide the fate of Napoleon.

It was a reminder of old ties between the German and the British peoples, ties welded on the battlefield. Behind those ties, too, are the older ties of blood, not merely in the veins of the Queen and the other members of the Royal Family, but ties, dating much further back, between the common people of these two lands.

But no reference to Napoleonic times can rekindle in English hearts and minds that combination of dread and hatred which Napoleon's name could once evoke among them. The French may be annoyed at the Queen for referring to an old British triumph over a man whose memory and whose deeds the French themselves esteem, but even in their annoyance they must realize that the animosities of those times have long since been buried.

This leads some to suggest that a like tolerance should now be accorded to Hitler and his deeds and that only time is required to soften the British attitude towards the events of the Second Great War, as it long since softened their attitude towards the Napoleonic wars.

This softening will occur. We are not, however, so certain that it should. It is always difficult to judge our own times, the events through which we and our contemporaries have ourselves lived and the history we have helped to make. Yet we cannot escape the conviction that there was a difference between Hitler and Napoleon which deserves a different treatment by time.

Who Is Unbiased?

The National Council of Jewish Women is to be commended for its stand on many of the key issues of today.

The women will ask the government to amend the Criminal Code of Canada to make birth-control measures legal. They have also reaffirmed their opposition to racial discrimination and religious intolerance and passed a resolution asking the federal government to expand its program of education in drug addiction and to provide specialized centres for the treatment of drug addicts.

However, as much as the women should be congratulated on their resolutions, it seems they may have been carried away by the idealism of the moment.

They plan to urge the government to set up a court of "unbiased persons" to hear appeals from individuals who have been refused application for citizenship.

"Unbiased persons . . . ?"

Just where do you find such people?

Wherever a person takes any stand on any issue he is usually showing bias, whether good or bad. The dictionary defines bias as, "a mental leaning or inclination, partiality, prejudice."

Phrases of this nature are detrimental to sincere reports. They are attempts to glorify certain moral elements and bring them up to an unattainable idealistic moral plane.

Taking the report as it stands, it seems fair to assume that the council's idea of an unbiased person is one who agrees with its point of view. If he did not, it would label him as biased.

If at some period in the course of civilization we seriously find that our science and our religion are antagonistic, then there must be something wrong either with our science or with our religion.—Havelock Ellis.

To Your Good Health

Cancer Is Not Contagious According to Known Facts

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: We have a neighbor who has just come home from the hospital. He had an operation for cancer of the lung, and it is still draining.

We will be called upon to help take care of him, and as much as we would like to co-operate, we are hesitant to do so because we have been told by friends that some cancers are started by viruses and we could possibly contract the disease. What is your opinion? — Mrs. C.

Scientifically, the relationship between viruses and cancer is a source of much study. I cannot quarrel with the newspapers for reporting what is done and said in this regard.

At the same time, I don't think that people should jump to the conclusion you and your friends have reached.

On the basis of everything known, there is not the slightest chance that risk is involved in helping take care of your neighbor with lung cancer. There isn't even the faintest suspicion among those who study cancer that you can contract the disease from someone else.

It is true that some animals, but mighty few of that, can be caused to develop cancer by giving them a certain virus. The outstanding example is a particular strain of mice. If the young are nursed by mothers who have this virus in their milk, they later usually get cancer. If they are nursed by foster mouse-mothers and carrying that virus, they don't get cancer.

Yet even so, viruses are not the whole cause. This mouse milk will not cause cancer in other animals.

So what does it all mean?

It means, I believe, that there is no single cause of cancer. A combination of factors is involved: Heredity, irritants, age, species and others. Viruses? Evidently they are involved in some cancers, perhaps in all. Or perhaps not. We just don't know.

We know that certain chemicals, applied in certain ways and in certain concentrations, and for certain lengths of time, tend to start cancer in animals and in man. Chimneysweeps, it was noted a long time ago, are much more likely to get cancer in one particular part of the body (the scrotum) than other people are. But not all chimneysweeps have cancer. So there must be other factors involved.

Cigarettes evidently seem to cause cancer in some people. A jagged tooth, rarely irritating tender mouth membranes, can do the same. A mole, shafed for years by the collar, bra, belt, or whatnot, sometimes turns cancerous. Long-continued, excessive X-ray burns have caused it too. How can we say in such cases that viruses cause cancer?

It may be that some viruses, under some conditions, might irritate act as irritants. Maybe there are no cancer viruses, but just viruses that in certain circumstances may play a part.

Nobody knows, but not for lack of trying to find out. And of all the millions of cancer cases that have been closely observed, we have yet to find reason to think that cancer is passed from one person to another. If it were, it would have shown by now.

My advice, and my wish, is that you forget your fears and help take care of your neighbor. Besides, the operation may have cured him. Lung cancer is difficult to discover early enough to do much good, yet surgery does cure a gradually increasing number of such cases.

It's perfectly all right to use any of the standard ones.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

May 31, 1965 . . .

The Peace of Vereeniging brought the South African War to an end 63 years ago today—in 1902. The war, the result of years of friction between British and independent Dutch - speaking states, had caused serious controversy in Canada since (except for the Nile Expedition of 1884, in which Canadians took part only as individuals) it was the first time Canada had to decide whether or not to support the mother country in war. In the end, 8,300 Canadians out of 7,300 saw action, participating in the battle of Paardeberg and the relief of Mafeking. Three Canadians won the Victoria Cross.

1783 — The Terror began with an insurrection in Paris.

1889 — Between 2,000 and 3,000 people died in the great flood at Johnstown, Pa.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915—on the Western front, 1st Canadian Division transferred to IV Corps; French forces captured the Souchez refinery; in Mesopotamia, British armies began their advance up the Tigris River.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1940 — the evacuation of the British Expeditionary Force from Dunkerque was well under way, under heavy air attack; the Belgian Parliament, in exile at Limoges, France, repudiated King Leopold, who had ordered the surrender of the Belgian army.

Strictly Personal

Two Wrongs Don't Make A Right

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Some weeks ago, in a column, I observed that "paranoid projection" is probably the most widespread and deeply-rooted of all human traits that make trouble for us. The second such trait, I would guess, is the non sequitur.

In reading Dr. Herbert Hendin's recent book, "Suicide and Scandinavia," I was intrigued and saddened by his final note. Although the Danes, he writes, are quite aware of their high suicide rate, "they are sensitive to any attention given it by a foreigner."

When Dr. Hendin was talking before Danish colleagues about his research into suicide in that country, he was interrupted on two occasions with the non sequitur, "What about homicide in the United States?"

"I subsequently learned to mention at the outset," he writes in his book, "that the homicide figures were high in the U.S. and low in Denmark. Assured that their country was not about to be criticized, the audience was willing to listen with relaxed attention."

And these audiences were made up of medical and scientific men, not members of the lay public. When criticized, our first reaction as human beings is what the old Romans called "Tu quoque" — "You're another!" Which may sometimes be true, but is irrelevant.

What has the high homicide rate in the U.S. got to do with the high suicide rate in Denmark? Absolutely nothing — but it makes the Danes feel better to think that we have our own problems, even if of a different sort.

What does de facto segregation in Northern cities have to do with the more segregation in Southern states? Absolutely nothing — but as long as the Southerners themselves can point to the Negro slums in Northern cities, it provides some kind of rationale for their own attitudes.

In paranoid projection, we turn the object of our scrutiny into something we want it to be, not accepting what it is in reality. In the non sequitur, we excuse our faults by our own lapses, weaknesses and vices by pointing to other lapses, weaknesses and vices in those who are criticizing us.

The man who embezzles from his company will say that the company overcharges for its products and is stingy with salaries — which may be perfectly true, but is totally irrelevant to the fact of his own dishonesty. This is an extreme example, but in more moderate ways, all of us are doing this all the time. By some tortured logic, we behave as if two wrongs do make a right, or at least cancel each other out. There is little hope for reform of the human race until we learn that adding negatives together can never get a positive.

Viruses - - - Assorted Shapes

National Geographic News Bulletin

Viruses take the form of pretzels, corkscrews, raspberries, tadpoles, toadstools, needles, cupcakes, and a variety of other things.

Some of these bits of disease-causing matter are misshapen, suggesting anything from a battered ping-pong ball to a tank trap from the Maginot Line.

Other viruses are geometrically exquisite, taking shape as 20 - faceted solids. Some have such unusual structures that virus hunters could imagine nothing on earth to compare them to until someone thought of architect-designer Buckminster Fuller's futuristic domes.

The nature of viruses is paradoxical. Scientists say they may be considered either as chemicals with the ability to reproduce or as living things that can be crystallized like salt.

Whatever their appearance and essence, viruses are fantastically tiny. About one million could fit into a single blood cell. Only the biggest viruses can be seen, even under the most powerful optical microscopes. The smallest known viruses measure only a millionth of an inch across.

Viruses, being so infinitesimal, long eluded capture under laboratory microscopy. Louis Pasteur developed a vaccine to fight the rabies virus, but he never got a glimpse of the beast he was dealing with. Throughout the 19th century, bacteriologists thought of viruses as invisible "infectious" germs.

In 1898, Dutch botanist Martinus Beijerinck was investigating the so-called mosaic disease that infects tobacco. He passed tobacco sap known to cause the disease through a filter that removed every single bacterium. But the liquid still contaminated plants. Beijerinck called it a "living fluid infectant" or a virus, meaning "poison" in Latin.

An American, Wendell Stanley, shook the scientific world in 1935 when he crystallized a virus and reported it was a protein. Four years later scientists in their first look at a virus through the newly developed electron microscope, found it was much of a piece, because the virus contrasted poorly with its surroundings.

An astronomer came to the rescue. Looking through an electron microscope at Mount Wilson in Williams of the University of Michigan remembered how astronomers examine the surface of mountains on the moon from the shadows they cast. Williams and his colleague, biologist Ralph Wyckoff, sprayed viruses from one side with vaporized gold particles. The virus stood out, clearly defined by their "shadows" of gold.

The now-visible virus turned out to be more than a protein. Chemist Wendell Stanley of the University of California stripped the protein coat from the tobacco mosaic virus, and found that what was left could still cause infection. The remaining substance was determined to be nucleic acid, the genetic substance found in the nuclei of animal and plant cells.

The virus' way of life has gradually been deciphered. Like itself, the tadpole-shaped bacteriophage, for instance, is totally inert. It performs none of the customary functions of life — ingestion, excretion, locomotion, and so on — until it bumps into a living cell of the right type.

The virus' tail clings to the host cell. Like a living hypodermic needle, the virus bores a minute hole, using a special chemical as a tool.

Through the infinitesimal opening, the virus squirts its DNA, the vital stuff. What remains of the virus outside the cell is an empty protein shell.

The nucleic acid becomes part of the cell it invaded, and strange things then happen. Like a well - trained saboteur, the virus' nucleic acid causes the cell to cease its normal functions and start manufacturing copies of the virus. Within an hour, perhaps 100 to 200 viruses are produced. The cell bursts, and the virus scatter, each ready to invade another cell.

• • •

Sometimes a virus cunningly enters a cell and goes into hiding. The cell continues its normal activities, even dividing into several generations, of daughter cells. Then, for unknown reason, a daughter cell suddenly begins wildly producing copies of the dormant virus.

People Are Contrary

Sault Daily Star

A London zoo official said recently that men would be great for animals if people would stop over-feeding the animals. Feeding may be fun, says the official, but it can be fatal for the fed fauna (our words).

The culprits responsible for this killing kindness to zoo animals are, of course, largely children. However, there is a fair number of adults who either engage in, or aid in, this illicit animal feeding. Large elephant-eared, trunk-endowed with letters a foot high, say: Do Not Feed The Animals, so naturally, these adults do feed the animals.

This is a stubborn streak, an contrary aspect of some people's characters. When you say or direct they do, they don't. When they are advised or asked or warned they had better not, they go ahead and do it. Actually, it's not entirely their fault. People have been like this since people came into style.

Two dark wines, one named Old Vat was advised to get out of town because the town in which he lived, Sodom, was a city of sin (Paris and those places hadn't been discovered yet). "Go and don't look back" he was told.

So what happens? His wife had had a look back, and, before you could say "Sodom and Gomorrah," where before she had been a pillar of the community, now she was just a pillar of salt — which was a real shaker, even for Lot's story. (As the English would say "don't look for it"). All because she was told don't and she did.

Put a sign on a freshly-painted park bench or something of that nature with the words "Wet Paint — Do not touch" and you can really see this contrariness — mingled with curiosity — come through. Though the sign is clear and the message obvious, after a while, there will be no paint from more fingerprints than the FBI files in Washington. The same applies to "Keep off the grass" sign, only in this case you get so many fingerprints, footprints and pawprints on works that you'll likely end up with something resembling the Grand Canyon's Treasure in Hollywood.

Put a book on a bookshelf with nothing on the cover but these words: "For women only" and you'll see men sidling up to the book when no one's looking both ways and then sneaking a peek inside. Of course, the same applies to women if it was a "For men only" cover.

And how many people read every word of a 50-word advertisement of a producer of some inconsequential item — on that you are not the least interested in and have no intention of buying when the ad reads, in big black letters: "Do not read this!"

People are funny? Yes, and stubborn and contrary, too. Well, a lot of us are, anyway.

Not Winter's Fault

Fur coat sales are lagging behind the upsweep of the economy, retailers say, because young married couples have been putting purchases of cars and houses ahead of warm furs. One thing is certain, none can blame the weather-man for the result during the past winter.

20 YEARS AGO

Discussion on the several questions that were brought before the City Council at their regular session on Monday evening kept the meeting in session until 12.45 a.m. and produced a notice of motion from Alderman Allin "that members be allowed to speak to a question only the number of times allowed in the by-law covering the rules of council." It was first introduced as a motion but being unable to get the suspension of the rules for its introduction, the aldermen and his seconder allowed the motion to stand as a notice of motion. It will not require a unanimity of members to vote for the introduction but will stand as a straight and can be carried or rejected by a majority of the members.

The "North King", veteran of all the steam craft on Lake Ontario, having been launched 50 years ago, has been taken from her present service and is now being refitted as a freight barge at Kingston.

From our file copy at this time in 1895: "Dr Youker of Belleville, has purchased from the estate of Dr. Wilson, the property on the southeast corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets and extending east to the opera house at the top of the hill and on the north side of and Church Streets. It is stated that the price paid was $4,500."

Culture Measurement

The economic state of a nation can be measured, according to some economists, by the amount of rubbish it produces — and its cultural state by the percentage of it that gets published.

J. Polak, Bata Engineering Head, Retires

Having reached his retirement age, Mr. J. Polak, P.Eng. is relinquishing his position as the manager of Bata Engineering, Batawa on June 1st. The Bata organization, however, is retaining his services of consulting on engineering work and projects in Batawa and overseas.

Mr. J. Polak managed Bata Engineering for twenty-two years. During his tenure of service, the company was engaged in a great variety of work first for the national defence and then, after the war, during difficult years of re-conversion to the civilian production, in development and production of shoe machinery, special kinds of automated machinery and safety of special equipment for atomic reactors.

During his years of management, Bata Engineering earned the respect in the Canadian engineering industry as well as among its various customers in the North American shoe industry.

NATO

she will leave the organization.

French NATO delegation sources Sunday night disclosed that France intended to boycott the organization's key tactical and strategic exercise that is code-named Fallex.

Fallex is sometimes a paper exercise and sometimes involves major land and air force manoeuvres. The program for 1965 has not yet been announced.

The French apparently take the view that this periodic massive exercise in the fall does not conform with NATO's strategic doctrine of massive nuclear retaliation against any aggression in Europe.

There was no official confirmation of the reported French move which took many NATO delegations by surprise.

Diplomatic observers felt the reported French decision underlined the growing differences between France and several of its key allies on various major aspects of Western policy.

The United States and Britain now think that the allied response to any attack should be more flexible—depending on the nature of the attack—and need not necessarily bring nuclear weapons into action.

Earlier this month France virtually boycotted the London meeting of the ministerial council of the sister eight - nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said on arrival here Sunday night that the two-day conference would be discussing the relationship between military force structures, contingency plans, and defence budgets.

The defence ministers, including Paul Hellyer of Canada, also will examine the work of NATO's defence planning committee and will lay out a schedule of work for the next several months.

McNamara said the conference also would discuss a movement toward a "NATO common market for defence products."

He said the arms common market was an American objective shared by many NATO partners.

University Drama Group Wins Festival

BROCKVILLE (CP)—A university drama group from Annapolis, N.S., was awarded the Dennis Drama Festival Trophy for the best presentation in the annual festival, which ended Saturday.

The trophy and a prize of $1,000 given by the Players' Association of Broadcasters, the festival's major sponsor, went to the Xaverian Players of St. Francis Xavier University for their production of The Wakefield Cycle.

Festival adjudicator Guy Beaulne of Quebec City said their performance was "a tremendous theatrical experience." Everything about the production had been done with taste, beauty and skill.

Miss Nicholias went up from the glittering theatre, eight audience as a wiry little man to the stage to accept the award.

He was director Frank Canino and the allusion came from the young cast, nearly all freshmen and sophomores at St. Francis Xavier University.

They had been singing them earlier in the day with equal fervor in their play.

them" started beating four of the youths.

One man who later identified himself as Charles Thompson, 38, a minister, was caught and beaten by about 10 men between two houses. Inspector Harold Adamson of the Metropolitan Toronto police said he intervened personally to wrest Thompson from the attackers.

"They would have decapitated him if we hadn't rescued him," he added.

Several bystanders were attacked or threatened — one because he wore a black shirt another because he had blonde hair.

One youth shouted: "I'm not one of them . . . I'm not one of them," as members of the mob beat and kicked him.

Police had difficulty restraining one attacker who shouted: "My father was thrown in the ovens."

CLAIM ONE IS U.S. NAZI

Among those beaten was a man described by a Jewish source as a representative from George Lincoln Rockwell's American Nazi party who had come to Canada specifically for the rally.

The rally was to have afforded Beattie, who recently announced his intention of running for Parliament in the next federal election, a chance to present his platform to the public.

Police at first denied that any Nazis had shown up. Staff Inspector Harold Adamson said: "Our intelligence officers did not spot any of the Beattie Nazi group in the park. We had the park thoroughly covered."

But members of a Jewish anti-Nazi group and neighbors of the Nazi headquarters told reporters they had seen Beattie, Jack McCook, Peter Reidel, and several other known party members at the park.

Police on horseback and motorcycle had been on hand to disperse hundreds of bystanders from the park.

CALL REINFORCEMENTS

During the height of the fighting police numbers were quickly swelled to 50 when reinforcements were called in.

The eight arrested members of the anti-Nazi crowd were identified as Morris David, 42, Max Sore, 44, Ignac David, 44, Bela Diamant, 43, Earl Schwartz, 25, Alex Labadin, 42, Max Bimblick, 33, and Samuel Kaplan, 33.

As fighting started to abate, Alderman David Rotenberg mounted a police van with a megaphone and tried to get the crowd to disperse.

The anti - Nazi rally was organized Saturday by about 30 Jewish groups. One group came armed with tomatoes.

A group of Jewish youths came to protest against both the Nazis and anti-Nazis, saying that any violence would reflect against the Jewish community.

This group had planned to have a freedom rally with singing and folk dancing, but police clamped down and during the melee their freedom rally attracted only about 200 people.

Mayor Philip Givens, who was in the park during the incident, said the Nazis have a permit to hold a rally there.

He later criticized for not making the announcement earlier. It had been widely reported that the Nazis had received a permit.

G. W. Rutledge Joins Funeral Residence of G. F. O'Brien as Partner

Effective today the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Brien at 30 Moira Street West, is under a new name.

And along with the new name there is a new partner in the undertaking firm which has served the Belleville district for many years.

The new funeral home name is The O'Brien - Rutledge Funeral Residence. The new business partner is George W. Rutledge, formerly with the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

The experience of close to half a century in the undertaking business is represented by the two partners in the O'Brien-Rutledge Funeral Residence.

For Mr. O'Brien this year marks the 36th anniversary as a funeral director, while Mr. Rutledge has been in the business since 1942 when he came to Bush's in Belleville.

STARTED IN CITY

Mr. O'Brien started in the undertaking business with Tickell and Brown at their former Victoria Ave. location and the years later joined the Thompson Funeral Home on Front Street.

Then, going into business for himself Mr. O'Brien teamed up with the late Frank Corrigan to establish the Corrigan-O'Brien Funeral Home which remained under that name until Mr. Corrigan's death.

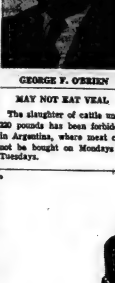
Always taking an interest in community affairs, Mr. O'Brien has been an active worker in many local organizations and has just completed a term as president of the Belleville Country and Golf Club.

Mr. Rutledge is a native of the Georgian Bay district and attended public and high schools at Shelburne, during World War II he served in the Canadian army as an instructor in basic training.

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER

On discharge he attended the Canadian School of Embalming at Toronto graduating graduation in 1948 worked briefly in Trenton and in the same year joined the John R. Bush Funeral Home in Belleville.

Mr. Rutledge is also active in community affairs. He is a member of the Belleville Public School Board and belongs to The Belleville Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 123, where he is lodge historian and a member of the board of general purposes.



He is treasurer of the Belleville Santa Claus Committee and an avid sports follower. He also takes a special interest in harness racing and acts as announcer for the summer time Saturday night meet at the Belleville fairgrounds.

Married and the father of two children Mr. Rutledge has a daughter, Heather, attending Quinte Secondary School while Susan and Chris attend Prince Charles Public School.

Under the new partnership, the O'Brien-Rutledge Funeral Residence will continue to offer the same kindly and sympathetic service which in the past has characterized the business.

How come Financial Security is like a three-legged stool?

Because it's almost useless with one leg, surer with two, but it takes three legs to make it balanced and safe.

The same is true of your financial plans for retirement. A stable, balanced plan needs three strong supports you can count on.

One leg: The Canada Pension Plan and the Old Age Security Pension combine to form the starting point, or first leg of your Family Security Program. But alone, they are not enough.

Two legs: Many people have some form of Group Insurance and Pension Plan coverage through their place of work. These form the second leg supporting their overall security program.

Three legs: Like the three-legged stool, a solid and balanced retirement security program requires a third support. The third leg is a plan of personal life insurance to guarantee a comfortable retirement.

Your Metropolitan representative knows all about the Canada Pension Plan. If you are in doubt, don't hesitate to call on him.

He will bring you a special free booklet that answers all your questions fully and clearly. He will help you to figure out exactly what benefits you do qualify for, and when.

He can also show you how the Pension benefits fit in with any other assets you possess . . . and what combined income they will give you. Then you can see exactly where you stand.

If you think you need it, he will gladly help you make plans of your own; plans that will let you face your future with confidence.

The Metropolitan representative is trained to bring this service to you. He is experienced to give advice you can really trust. He is ready to help you at any time.

Call him today. There is no obligation, except to your own future.

Susanna's Family Fare

BLOW FOR BLOW

Dear Susanna: This trick I play on my husband works so well, I'm almost afraid to send it to you for fear he will see it in your column. But since it will mean so much to so many women, I just can't keep it to myself. So here goes nothing.

This is simply and clearly my solution to the battle of the car windows. Whenever women are out driving with their husbands, side by side, no matter how cool it is, first thing we know he has his window part way down and we are getting a nasty, drafty pain in the neck. Of course, the obvious thing to do is to ask him to close it, but since this usually creates an international incident, there must be another way. There is. It takes a little gumption mind you, but it has worked for me every time.

No matter how cold you re, just quietly lower your window a little bit further than his. What actually happens to the air currents, I don't know. It takes about 2 to 5 minutes but his reaction is always the same. First he will close his window, then he will sweetly ask you if you would mind closing yours — then sensibly, he will suggest that perhaps one of us should open our no-draft vent a little. How about that! — "Cat That Swallowed the Canary."

It's letters like this that make me proud to be a female!

— CHESHIRE SUE

Dear Susanna: Should we or shouldn't we cut the dead blaze off the bushes when they have finished blooming? — "Clem"

The Dept. of Agriculture says "Yes, we should." It seems the removal of the flower clusters forces the plant to put its growth into next year's flower crop rather than this year's seed.

Here is another little gem of information they have passed along to us: How do you tell a boiler from a baker? (potato, that is). Why you give them the brine test. Dump the potatoes you are testing into a solution of one cup salt to 11 cups water. A good "baker" will sink, while a "boiler" will just float about all day without a care in the world. The ones that sink will come out of your oven in a much flakier, mealier condition than those that stay on top of the water. — SUSANNA

WEDDING

JOHNSTONE — KENNETT

DESERONTO — A lovely wedding was solemnized Saturday, May 22 at 2 p.m. in the Deseronto United Church, when Linda Margaret Rose Kinnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kinnett, Deseronto, became the bride of Donald Johnstone, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnstone, Belleville. Rev. Russell Findley officiated.

The wedding music was rendered by the Misses Myers, Tunnicliffe and the soloist Miss Linda Lott sang a selection.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a traditional full-length gown of white organza over nylon taffe. The bodice was of Alencon lace with a scalloped neckline and long lily-point sleeves. The bouffant skirt was styled in a redingote effect and a train of organza and Alencon fell from the shoulders. A rose and petals of organza formed the headdress and held the shoulder length veil of French silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and lily-of-the valley, with rose-buds on streamers cascading from the bouquet.

Miss Linda Topping, Deseronto, was maid of honour and wore a beautiful yellow, cocktail length gown of nylon sheer over taffeta with matching headdress and shoes. She carried a bouquet of white and yellow mums. The bridesmaids attired in the same style were Miss Monica Cronin in pink and Miss Susan Kinnett, sister of the bride, in blue.

Miss Janice Kinnett, sister of the bride, was flower girl wearing aqua nylon sheer over taffeta and carried a basket of flowers.

Mr. William McNevin, Napanee, was groomsman, while Mr. John Kinnett, Napanee, brother of the bridegroom and Mr. Clayton Kinnett brother of the bride acted as ushers.

A reception was held at Dunson's Motel.

The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a two-piece ensemble of blue lace over taffeta with matching hat and corsage of pink carnations.

The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Robert Pedler, assisted in the receiving line attired in a white dress with insert lace at the waistline and a matching hat with black and gold trim. She wore a corsage of white and gold carnations.

For a wedding trip to a southern resort, the bride got a pale yellow two-piece wool suit with black accessories and a corsage of white and yellow mums.

Out-of-town guests were present from Windsor, Toronto, Belleville, Napanee, Canadal, Ont.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was the recipient of many lovely gifts at a shower given in her honor by Miss Linda Topping. The bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. T. McAllister. The bride was presented with a steam iron by her co-workers at the C.I.L. plant at Millhaven.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Jones, of Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda May, to Roger Hugh Keenan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keenan, of Belleville. The marriage is to take place Saturday, June 26, 1965 at 2 o'clock in Tabernacle United Church, Belleville.

IODE Spent Most of Budget On Financial Aid to Students

WINNIPEG (CP)—More than two-thirds of the $350,358 allocated to education last year by the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire was spent on financial aid to students, the organization was told today.

Mrs. George E. Tait, of Toronto, national educational secretary, told the annual meeting 2,246 students received $252,311 — mostly in bursaries, scholarships and loans.

The education allocation was the second largest in the budget of $439,325 who spent on welfare services.

The IODE last year awarded 703 bursaries worth $101,750 and 205 scholarships totalling $26,393.

The organization spent $62,250 on helping 2,067 schools in Canada and the West Indies. A total of 862 schools last year received gifts of libraries or books, visual aids and recreational and study material.

In Labrador, 30 schools all received such aid. Fifty schools in the West Indies and British Honduras received reference and library books and reference materials, she said.

HELP FOR MANY

Assistance in the form of equipment was given to schools for Indians and Metis, for the retarded, the blind, the deaf and for those suffering from cerebral palsy. A railway car school and a school on a west coast mission ship also were given equipment.

A total of $43,321—an increase of 16 per cent from the previous year—was spent on special education projects such as safety and health classes, festivals and library work and endowment.

A municipal chapter organized a "school drop-out project." Members worked twice a week with students having difficulty with school subjects to try and prevent them from dropping out of school. Educational authorities have requested an expanded program, Mrs. Tait said.

The remaining $7,040 of the budget was spent on contributions to the Second World War memorial scholarships.

Miss Sharon Anne McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David T. McDonald of Montreal, formerly of Belleville, received her Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Ottawa at Spring Convocation held on Sunday afternoon May 30th.

Church Groups

ST. ANDREW'S W.G.

The May meeting of the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's Church was held on Tuesday, May 25th, in the S.S. auditorium.

Mrs. Strachan, the president, opened the meeting. Reports of the April meeting were given by the secretary and treasurer. A letter was read from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones Sr. and expressed thanks to the ladies of the Guild for the lunch served the night of the induction of their son Robert.

The president reported on the activities for the month of June and a reminder that the ladies keep saving their Golden Book for Charity labels.

The program was in charge of the Harmony Group and Mrs. V. Weir read the history of St. Andrew's Church from the dedication on November 17, 1895, to the present time, compiled by Mr. K. S. Bill.

Mrs. R. Michaud showed pictures taken on their trip to Jamaica.

After the meeting the Sunshine Group served lunch and a social half hour was enjoyed.

V. O. N. Holds Successful Spring Tea

White and purple lilacs formed the background decor in Hollowey Street United Church for the recent Victorian Order of Nurses annual spring tea convened by Mrs. C. Vader and Mrs. F. Wilson, Hollowey Street representatives to the V.O.N. Board.

Warmly greeting the guests at the door were Mrs. James Nelles, V.O.N. president, honorary president Mrs. Ray Grant, Miss Dorothy Connor, head nurse, and Mrs. E. Nell. Of particular interest to those in attendance were the V.O.N. nursing uniforms of 1898 and 1925 conflict.

Word of Mouth by Jerome Weldman.

This is a tragic novel. It is also a novel about the theatre. John Sayer is a prosperous New York lawyer, happily married, a devoted father—on his way to success. He has managed with remarkable skill, to forget his childhood, his adolescence, the scandal that forced his mother to suicide, sent his father into exile.

Conservation of Heirlooms

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

PRESERVING OLD TEXTILES.

Tattered samplers and frayed bits of early Canadian needlework are too precious to throw away. Now they can be strengthened and mounted with the "modified Stockholm technique."

This method involves sandwiching the textile between two layers of Terylene net and quilting around any embroideries, lines, and frayed edges with Terylene thread. The British, who worked out this method to repair the robes of the Black Prince (circa 1375), believe Terylene is the most permanent of modern materials. It won't harm old fabrics and isn't touched by moths or mildew. It's strong enough to permit the use of a lightweight net weave that doesn't obscure the design of the original textile. You can buy soft-finish Terylene marquisette (used for curtains) at many drapery stores.

To strengthen an aged sampler, first make a frame of spruce strapping, held together at the corners with C-clamps. The frame should be four to six inches larger than your sampler. Stretch a piece of the marquisette tautly over the frame and hold in place with push-pins. Smooth out the sampler on the Terylene, then cover with a second layer of marquisette tacked to the frame.

Use a stab stitch to sew around embroideries and the edge of the sampler. Stab your needle straight up from the underside, take a tiny stitch over one thread of the sampler canvas and the marquisette, then stab straight down to the underside. Leave a loose half-inch long stitch on the underside before stabbing upward again. Be sure to stitch between the warp and woof threads of the old fabric, not through them.

When you have secured the sampler between the two layers of marquisette, cut the sampler from the frame, leaving a half inch margin around the edges. Turn this to the underside and hem.

Mount your sampler between two layers of glass or perspex, and hold the edges together with adhesive tape. This helps support the frail textile, and seals out dust and air. Wadd and cardboard backing in a conventional picture frame are harmful to real old materials.

To store old garments, bedspreads, tablecloths, etc., seal them in polythene garbage bags. Put a handful of paradichlorobenzine crystals in the bag with the garment. This is the only mouth proofing preparation advised for use with old fabrics. Spray bombs, and other de-mothing compounds leave a deposit on fabrics which is destructive over a long storage period.

This is the last in the present series of Conservation of Heirlooms.

Hastings East W. I. Holds 64th District Annual Meeting

Moira Women's Institute was hostess group for the 64th district annual of Hastings East held at the United Church on May 21st. A good representation of 12 branches attended.

Minutes of the annual meeting and financial statement were heard.

Mrs. D. Chisholm, district president, welcomed the guest. She said she had enjoyed her first year of office. A nice start in her term of office was as delegate to the national convention in Wolfville, Nova Scotia. Her visits to the various Institutes in the district were enjoyable.

Mrs. Chisholm expressed regret at losing Parkdale Institute from the district. A vote of appreciation was tendered Miss Geraldine Mowers who has faithfully filled the office of secretary-treasurer for six years.

Mrs. Grant McLaren, board director, expressed the importance of district directors. They are a link between the branch and the district.

REPORTS GIVEN

Reports of standing committees were given. Most of the conveners had 100 per cent reporting. Public relations was given by Mrs. Percy Reynolds; resolutions by Mrs. S. Homan; historical research and current events by Mrs. Garfield Hall and given by Mrs. Grant Kerr; home economics and health by Mrs. C. Hubble; Mrs. G. Priest, on agriculture and Canadian industries; Mrs. Percy Meale on citizenship and education.

Mrs. Ralph Sills, Tweedsmuir curator, gave an informative report. Curator of the latest "Beer to be added to the list.

Curator should be a member of the Historical Society. It is a courtesy each branch can do for her curator. A biography should be completed, including birth date, place of birth, community activities, hobbies. One page is allotted a biography. Pictures not necessarily a photo are to be used of all specimens.

Farm histories are completed when the land is subdivided. All experiences of the Tweedsmuir book is the responsibility of the branch. Curator must keep a record of her expenses. Any money made for this purpose must be earmarked for it, but included in the treasurer's bank book.

CONVENTION REPORT

Mrs. Percy Ray reported for Federation of Agriculture. The annual convention was held November 2, 3 and 4 in Toronto. There was a real feeling of fellowship and goodwill. A lady member has been added to OFA. Mrs. Dalton Derrell of Castleton. Stricter inspection on grading of foods is necessary. Some requests made were: Ontario cheddar cheese be labelled as Ontario; check into live turkeys coming from United States. Mr. Charles Huffman is the new president.

ATTEND CONFERENCE

Report of the Guelph Conference was given by a panel of seven ladies. It was stated that the enrolment at Guelph College in 1964-65 was 1800. Dr. McCreary, Dean of the College, is referred to as the campus sweetheart. She says there is not enough milk used today. The 3 A's for living are: affection, acceptance and ability. The Women's Institutes hold out the hand of affection. Padre Young and Mrs. Kidd led the singing.

Minister of Agriculture William Stewart said 98 percent of the canned tomatoes come from Ontario. 40 percent of it is Canada. British housewives shop every day. This gives them a chance to visit.

Mrs. Akey reported on a talk by Mr. J. Huise, director of Research of the Maple Leaf Milling Company. He is dedicated to service for others in surveys of food from earliest time to the space age. There is a great deal of energy and thought in preparing food by scientists. Liquid nitrogen freezes foods instantly. Slides illustrated his talk on the Canadian government research men supplied food for children of Mysore, India. Knowledge is being taken to India rather than students coming here.

NEW INSIGHT

Presidents were given new insight in their duties. A good president helps to plan, and delegates the work to some one else.

Tweedsmuir histories are to be prepared by each group to their liking, the manual is only a guide. Curators are not to make copies of their book. They are available to say one to get for reference.

Mrs. Rombough favored with a solo.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Afternoon session was opened with a welcome address by Mrs. Thompson of Moira. Mrs. Robert Sullivan of Plainfield, replied.

Miss Janet Munroe, home economist, gave a report on girls' club work. She said two girls received provincial honors and 194 girls completed supper club. Belleville Fair Board is co-operating to give more space for the exhibit of girls' work. Sewing Club, "What Shall I Wear?" There were 24 clubs and 204 girls completing this club. Some clubs have had to divide due to the large number.

A memorial service in charge of Bellefonton Institute. Mrs. Wellman and Mrs. Tufts took the service with Mrs. J. Parrott at the piano.

Mrs. S. Beatty, area chairman, brought greetings. The area convention is to be held at Club Canara, November 25 and 26.

Miss Frances Lampman reported for Home Economic Extension Services and said: make use of available services. She said 378 girls in Ontario received province-i-a honors. The sponsor to be given in future will be 5 o'clock teaspoons. Miss Lampman congratulated the Institutes for their effort in completing the International scholarship.

Mrs. Jack McLaren gave two readings, "Bride Hunting" and "Grandpa's Courtship."

Mrs. G. McLaren, board member for the past three years, has enjoyed every bit of it and regrets that her term of office is finished.

Mrs. T. Kelly extended appreciation to Mrs. McLaren for the capable manner in which she has fulfilled her duties. As a memento of her three years' service a gift was presented on behalf of the district.

Mrs. H. Harrison's sketch of the "Making of Soap" was awarded first place and will be placed in front of Tweedsmuir Book. The remaining poems will be used throughout the book.

ELECT OFFICERS

Election of officers resulted as follows for 1965-66; past-president, Mrs. T. Kelly; R. R. 2, Thomasburg; president, Mrs. D. Chisholm, Roslin; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Jack McLaren, R. R. 1, Shannonville; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. J. Lucas, R. R. 1, Cerbyville; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Elmer Tufts, R. R. 1, Halloway, public relations officer, Miss Geraldine Mowers, R. R. 6, Napanee; Tweedsmuir curator, Mrs. Ralph Sills, R. R. 1, Halloway; Federated representative, Mrs. C. Reid, R. R. 6, Belleville; alternate, Mrs. T. Kelly, R. R. 2, Thomasburg; district delegate, Mrs. J. Parrott, 590 Dundas Street East, Belleville; alternate, Mrs. W. Johnson, Foxboro; auditors, Mrs. Douglas Sills, Halloway, Mrs. Willett Casey, Halloway.

Mrs. Kinnerney reported for the courtesy committee, expressed appreciation to all those taking part which made the day a rewarding one. Special thanks were given to Moira Branch for the excellent dinner served and their gracious hospitality.

SOUP AND POPPY SEED STICKS

Do you remember that I promised to try to make Vichyssoise as good as I was served on an Air Canada flight in January? I've made it and the timing is right, for this famous potato-chicken-leek soup is wonderful both hot and cold.

I served it as a substantial first course with homemade Poppy Seed Sticks and it is these two recipes I have chosen to give you today.

Cabbage Rolls; Tomato Sauce; Lima Beans; Now Potatoes Brown Celery Hearts and Radish Roses; Fruited Jelly; Cookies; Tea.

VICHYSOISSE (serves 6 to 8 - excellent hot or cold)

(I don't need to tell our French speaking readers that the last "s" is pronounced.)
one 2½ lb. chicken (see below),
6 cups water,
2 cups diced potatoes,
3 leeks or ½ large Spanish onion, chopped,
1½ teaspoon mace,
½ teaspoon salt,
1 chicken bouillon cube,
1 cup milk,
½ cup 18% cream,
chopped chives (for garnish).

Simmer the chicken in the water, covered, until it will fall from bones. Let it stand in broth until cool enough to handle. Remove chicken and strip meat from bones and use the cooked chicken meat for another purpose. Discard skin and bones. Strain broth and boil it down rapidly until it measures 3 cups. Add potatoes and leeks or onion and boil, covered, until vegetables are tender - about 15 to 20 minutes. Force through fine sieve. To this puree add the mace, salt, chicken bouillon cube, milk and cream and reheat, but do not boil. Serve at once garnished with finely chopped chives. Or chill. If this soup is chilled it is thicker due to the jellied chicken broth and it may require more salt when served cold.

SEED STICKS (poppy, sesame or caraway)
6 tablespoons scalded milk,
½ cup shortening,
1 teaspoon granular yeast (½ package),
2 tablespoons lukewarm water,
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour,
1 to 1¼ teaspoons salt,
½ teaspoon sugar,
1 beaten egg (for topping),
seeds - poppy, sesame or caraway.

Add shortening to scalded milk and let stand until lukewarm. Soak yeast in lukewarm water in large mixing bowl. When milk and shortening mixture is lukewarm add to yeast liquid, then add the flour, salt and sugar. Stir well as you can then knead for 5 minutes. Return to greased bowl, cover, and let rise for 2 hours or until doubled. On lightly floured board punch down and knead dough for 1 minute. Pinch off pieces of dough about 1" in diameter and roll between your palms to form "sticks" 4 x ½". (This dough is pliable and easily handled like plasticine.) Place touching on ungreased cookie sheets. I made 30 little sticks. Beat the egg and neatly brush all of the touching sticks with it to coat with egg as well as you can. Now while they are still wet and touching sprinkle generously with seeds to cover tops. I used poppy seeds, but you should choose the seeds you like best. Now pick up every other one and roll them a little to another cookie sheet, shifting them all so that they are 1" apart. Bake at 325 deg. F. for about 30 minutes or until golden tan and crisp, switching and turning pans in oven at half time. These keep well.

Volunteer Societies Find It Hard to Get Workers

By JEAN SHARP

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — The problem of how to attract members to voluntary organizations was raised in the opening address Sunday of the annual convention of the National Council of Women of Canada.

More than 100 women from across Canada are attending the convention, representing the 750,000 members of the organizations included in the council.

Mrs. H. H. Steen of Vancouver, national president, opened the five-day convention by telling them: "We are constantly being made aware of changes in our way of life and being warned that we must prepare and fit ourselves to meet new systems and modern methods in work and leisure.

"Voluntary co-operations, many of which make up the council of women, basically, on the local level are experiencing difficulty in attracting new workers. Capable leaders are being sought and not always found, and, in consequence, certain groups must cease to function for want of leadership.

"Much of such difficulty is understandable in a time of rising economy and greater opportunities for women who prefer employment or business outside the home."

But, Mrs. Steen said, outside the home, women are not getting top jobs, cited as example: "Out of some 60 ambassadors and high commissioners heading up Canadian offices abroad, there is only one woman."

Mrs. Steen urged delegates to strengthen local councils so none would have to disband.

At the national level, she said, one newly - organized society has joined the federation this year, to bring the number of federated members to 21.

As examples of work done by the national council in the last year, she mentioned submission of a brief to the conference on aging; assistance to a technical training institute in Mysore, India, as part of the freedom from hunger campaign and work with International Cooperation Year.

Today, delegates were to hear annual meeting reports and begin consideration of resolutions.

Successful Living

Mature Student Questions 'No Question' Attitude

DEAR DORIS — My father was impatient with my questions when I was little. Then I had a teacher who resented my so-called "cheeky" questions, and I decided to stop thinking and questioning as the best way of keeping out of trouble.

DORIS CLARK

Strange to say, this later on became a fear of really being stupid. Somehow I memorized enough to get through high school.

Now in university I have discovered one need not fear the classroom, and that in some people's opinion I am not stupid. One gifted and sensitive professor feels I have insight well above the average.

Now I say to myself, "You just think you're stupid — Bad habit — Dump it!" And all this helps. It's slow, but now growth is showing. Just thought someone with similar experience might be helped if I wrote it down. — WINGS FOR NEW LIVING.

DEAR WINGS — It is very hard indeed to regrade ourselves upward when we have been thoroughly sold on our inadequacy. What we usually need is to go through the motions that go with competency until we achieve some triumps.

Then we can toss the old, familiar fear right out the window. Congratulations for making it — and a bouquet to the professor who was discerning enough to light a candle for you.

DEAR DORIS — This party is to celebrate my 17th birthday as well as graduation, and both my best friends know this and will probably bring a little something for me. I could hide these till the other kids have gone, but I was wondering if it would be all right to have a birthday cake.

Would the kids feel bad because I didn't say anything about my birthday? Because I don't want a lot of fuss over it; after all it is a graduation party mostly. — FUN AND GAMES.

DEAR FUN AND GAMES — Keep your secret about the birthday. Then late in the evening it would be o.k. for your mother or friends to march in with a lighted cake, singing "Happy Birthday to You." This is without your having any hand in it, officially.

If friends say they wish they'd known, merely negate the whole idea by pointing out that this is really a graduation party and all you wanted was their delightful company!

DEAR DORIS — Do boys like loud, laughing girls or shy, silent girls? Or do they like athletic girls or girls not so good at sports? Do they prefer skinny, really skinny girls to fat ones?

Do boys prefer smarter girls than themselves or dumber than themselves in school work? Do they prefer girls who will play kissing games at parties and neck in the park or girls who are more respectable? I may seem a bit frank and crude but I'd really like to know.

Do they like girls who wear two-piece bathing suits and bikinis or the more modest girl? — ANXIOUS TO KNOW.

DEAR ANXIOUS:
Some like them smart, some like them dumb;
Most take their girl friends just as they come!
Boys?

DEAR DORIS — I am 14 years old and the oldest of five. They always seem to be picking on me. When I ask Dad for something, he says I am asking too much but when the others ask him he says "yes" just like that. Even my best friends have noticed it. Does this show that he does not like me as much as the others?

He always looks at me with an angry face and when something happens, it just has to be little Pat who is the guilty one. I am doing fine at school but this bothers me very much; besides I am a very nervous boy.

Is there anything I can do? — TROUBLESOME.

DEAR TROUBLESOME — He loves you. But he probably wants his oldest boy to be perfect — then goes about things the wrong way.

He may think of you as a big responsible boy and the other as children. Get Mom to help him see you need encouragement too.

ANNUAL BANQUET

POINT ANNE — The First Company of Point Anne Girl Guides held their second annual mother and daughter banquet in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening.

There were 32 girls and mothers plus the head table guests. The Division Commissioner, Mrs. Tom Colden, the Area Commissioner Mrs. Dan Stewart and the special guests from Trenton were seated at the head table. Miss Eva Baker was the guest speaker. She displayed a number of beautiful slide pictures of a trip she and a group from Canada took to Mexico.

A number of girls were presented with their badges they had earned this year. One Guide Miss Bonny Branigan was outstanding in this as she had earned a number of badges.

The St. John's Friendship group catered for this event.

Church Groups

PARK DALE L.M.P.F.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies Missionary Prayer Fellowship of Parkdale Baptist Church was held recently in the church. The meeting was in the form of a rally, with churches from Madoc, Kingston, Napanee, Cobourg, Trenton, Picton and Belleville represented.

The ladies were favored with two solos by Mrs. DeMille from Madoc.

The speaker, Mrs. Johnson, was introduced by Mrs. S. Mulligan. A missionary in Equador, Mr. Johnson chose as the topic for her talk, "Motherhood and Mission Work." She spoke on some of the problems of establishing a home in a foreign situation. For the children the problems of health, education away from home, and limited entertainment for adolescents proved to be a real challenge. New language, culture, customs and prejudices, play a large part in the adjustment to living in a foreign country. There are also many advantages to being a mother on the foreign mission field. Mrs. Johnson said, such as a bond between their National friends because of children.

Mrs. Blake closed the meeting after announcing that the Cobourg ladies had invited the Belleville ladies to their June meeting to be held on June 8th.

The ladies retired to the basement of the church for a time of fellowship, with refreshments served by Miss Susan Ellis, Miss Patti Black and Mrs. L. Johnson.

L.O.B.A. Holds Blossom Tea

CANNIFTON — On May 26 Canniflon L.O.B.A. held an evening "Blossom Tea" and bazaar in Canniflon Orange Hall which was decorated with baskets of lilac to form an attractive background for the tea table with its lace cloth, silver service and a table centre arrangement of white snapdragons and red tulips. Each guest table had a small white mum arrangement afloat in a crystal bowl.

Those who poured tea were: Mrs. Pearl Holmes, Mrs. Amelia McKenna, Mrs. Mae Hollinger, Grand Lodge Officers of Ontario East and Mrs. Margaret Hinchcliffe, Past Mistress of Wallbridge Lodge. Mrs. Gladys Rollins, Worthy Mistress of Canniflon welcomed the guests at the tea room door. Daughters of the members served tea. Tickets were taken at the door by Virginia Easton and Helena Clark.

There were several bazaar tables, at the sewing table in charge were Ina Alford and Joyce Walker; home baking, Marjorie McPherson, Doris Pound and Mildred McPherson; candy, Donna Cole and Marguerite Treverton; two draw tables, Vera Crawford, May Avery, Christine Wilson.

The fish pond was opened in the afternoon for children coming from school as well as in the evening. Here Mamie Milton and Dorothy Melbourne were kept busy.

A number of draw prizes were given.

Canada Close To Unity I.O.D.E. Told

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canadians must learn to live in harmony with all ethnic groups which comprise the country's population, says Madame Georges Vanier, wife of Canada's Governor-General.

This is "the greatest task facing us today," Madame Vanier told the opening session Saturday of the annual convention of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

She is honorary president of the organization.

Mrs. D. W. McGibbon of Toronto, IODE president, told about 450 delegates who witnessed the official opening ceremonies that Canada must be close to unity.

The extremists have had their day and now the moderates and men of goodwill can be heard, she added.

ACCEPT CHALLENGE

Canada must accept the challenge of Quebec's new spirit of pride. "We must match its feeling of confidence to develop Canada into a great nation."

She told delegates the IODE stands for what the individual and the volunteer worker can do in a time of increasing government participation in education and social work:

In this sphere, the 28,000-member women's group spends more than $1,000,000 annually "with the aim of helping others to help themselves."

At a cenotaph ceremony Sunday, Mrs. McGibbon placed a wreath in memory of those killed in conflict.

Ann Landers

New Kind of Mother-in-law Trouble Plagues Reader

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've been reading your column for years and have never seen a problem like mine.

My son's mother-in-law telephones me at least twice a week to complain about something my son did or did not do. For instance, this morning Mrs. Pain-in-the-Neck called me at 7:30 a.m. and said, "Your son left for High Point this morning and didn't leave Marcella any money. He won't be back until tomorrow and the poor girl hasn't got a dime. I'll have to take some money over to her right away."

ANN LANDERS

Last week she called to tell me my son gave Marcella only one hour's notice and brought three friends home for cocktails. Marcella didn't have any soda or lemons in the house. The place was a mess and she didn't even have time to comb her hair.

Marcella happens to be a lazy, disorganized slob. I don't want to become involved in their troubles and I don't want Mrs. Pain-in-the-Neck to tell me what goes on between them. What do you recommend? — H.J.K.

DEAR H.J.K. — The next time Mrs. Pain-in-the-Neck calls say this: "It breaks my heart that a fine, lovely girl like Marcella married a worthless, nogood bum, like my son. She could have done much better — and I'm sorry she didn't. Please don't tell me any more sad stories about those two because it spoils my whole day."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a middle-aged, sensible, God-fearing woman. Here is my story and I'd like your views.

Three months ago a man I've known for years telephoned and asked for help. He had been transferred to this city and was having a difficult time finding a suitable apartment. That very day my roommate told me she was getting married and moving out within the week.

I asked the man if he would like to move in. He said yes. This is a large apartment — spacious living room, two beautiful bedrooms, two baths and a kitchen. We split the rent, the phone, the utilities and the grocery bill. It's an ideal arrangement for us both. Anyone who thinks there is sex going on here is crazy.

The landlady told me yesterday that several tenants are gossiping about us. She suggested I remove the man's name from the mailbox or tell people he is my uncle.

I refuse to do either. My conscious is clear. What do you think? — RESPECTABLE.

DEAR RESPECTABLE — Your conscience may be clear but your reputation is going to be mud if you don't get that man out of there.

People make judgements on what they see, and when they see an unmarried man and woman sharing an apartment, they assume the couple is not playing Chinese Checkers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our neighbors have a 23-year-old son who served in the Marines and was discharged last fall. This boy is a smart aleck who knows more tricks than a monkey with a rope.

I saw him wearing his Marine uniform on the street yesterday and asked if he was going to a parade. He said, "No — I'm going to the ball game. The uniform gets me in for half-price." Then he added, "I always wear my uniform when I want to hitch a ride to Richmond or Washington."

Is this against the law? — JUST ASKING.

DEAR JUST — My Marine authorities in Chicago say an inactive member may wear the uniform only when attending a military funeral, a wedding, a Presidential inauguration or when participating in a parade.

This boy is abusing the uniform and he could get into trouble.

World of Rampant Male Superiority on Way Out Says American Author

TORONTO (CP)—The world of rampant male superiority is on the way out, an American author says. But while men are no longer holding women back, women themselves often prove their own worst enemy by continuing to feel inferior, she added.

Mrs. Eve Merriam of New York said in an interview Saturday that women who want to go back to university have difficulties not only with resentful husbands and children but because they themselves feel unworthy.

Mrs. Merriam was keynote speaker at a seminar at York University of the Canadian Federation of University Women on educational opportunities for women graduates who wish to return to university to do graduate studies.

She said the female inferiority complex could be combatted by universities offering courses in the history of women. A whole new series of biographies could be written to teach young girls that Florence Nightingale was not the only famous woman in history and that "the cortex (a part of the brain) has no sex," she added.

HAD CLOSED SESSIONS

Representatives of the Ontario department of labor, all the Ontario universities and university women's clubs met in closed sessions all day to discuss what sort of courses should be made available and how a busy woman could arrange to attend them.

It was the first time this sort of exploratory conference has been held in Canada.

Allan Beveridge, director of extension at Waterloo University, said there has been a rising feeling lately that universities are ignoring a good deal of talent in female brain power."

At present it is not possible to do a master's or doctoral degree by extension courses or part-time attendance at most Canadian universities. Little financial help is offered part-time students.

Mrs. Laura Sabia, president of the federation, said in an interview a recommendation would be made to next month's Sudbury meeting that the Canadian Federation of University Women ask the federal government to establish a royal commission on resources for the education of women in Canada.

Union Jack Will Remain I.O.D.E. Flag

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Union Jack will remain the flag of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, national secretary Mrs. F. C. Woolley of Toronto said today.

"The Union Jack has always been the order's flag and there is no reason for it to be changed," she said.

Local chapters do not need to buy the Canadian flag since the Union Jack is the only one necessary at chapter meetings, Mrs. Woolley told delegates to the IODE's annual convention.

When the Union Jack is displayed at social events, local chapters may decide whether the Canadian flag should also be displayed, she said.

However, the Canadian flag should be displayed, not carried, at national, provincial and municipal annual and semi-annual meetings. It is played to the right of the Union Jack and must not be lower than the British emblem."

The women's service organization, after the annual convention last year, asked Prime Minister Pearson for a plebiscite on whether the Red Ensign or another flag should be the national emblem.

The order also went on record as favoring the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag.

Only 1,377 of the order's 36,000 members are in Quebec and more than half the membership comes from Ontario. The order, which raises more than $1,000,000 annually for welfare and education, was founded 65 years ago to work as a service group in the then British Empire.

George Hees' Daughter Wed In N. Y. State

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. (CP) About 90 relatives and friends attended the wedding Saturday of Catherine Hees, daughter of George Hees and Mrs. Hees of Montreal, and Wayne Philip Kiis of Radnor, Pa., who is completing studies for a doctorate at Columbia University in New York city.

Among those attending were Hees, a former Canadian trade minister and now president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, and Mrs. Hees as well as Catherine's two sisters.

The ceremony took place at St. John's Episcopal Church, with the bride wearing her maternal grandmother's white wedding dress.

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE ONTARIO...

MEMORANDUM WITH REFERENCE TO RETAIL STORE HOURS:

Much has been said and published during the past several months concerning the antiquated restrictive retail shopping hours within the City of Belleville.

Shopping hours, to date, have been established by a group of Belleville merchants, without consultation with the consumer. We feel the consumer, the "LIFE BLOOD" of merchants should have an influencing voice in deciding shopping hours and, therefore, respectfully present the following comment for your consideration.

The basic issue appears to be a sharp difference of opinion between the Downtown Merchants' Association and the Belleville Plaza Merchants' Association. Of course the issue has a much greater horizon, in that, it is the opinion of this Company, after careful survey and analysis that restrictive legislation in these particular circumstances will, in the long run, have unfortunate consequences on all merchants in the City, possibly on the City itself, through the loss of Tax Revenue.

Existence of these restrictions on shopping hours will encourage diversion of goods to outlets free of restrictions. It will discourage commercial development and investment in Belleville, consequently creating diversion of consumer spending to other communities. RETAIL DEVELOPMENT IN OUR CITY WILL UNDOUBTEDLY BE CURTAILED AND BE FORCED TO LOCATE IN UNRESTRICTED AREAS.

Large merchandising chains are reluctant to invest too heavily in Belleville and as a result the consumers are being deprived of a free selection of merchandise. THEY ARE LITERALLY BEING FORCED TO TRAVEL TO OTHER MERCHANDISING CENTRES WHICH MAKE AVAILABLE GOODS FOR PURCHASE, AT A TIME CONVENIENT TO THE CONSUMER.

The essence of retailing as a business is to offer the public goods at fair market value, set in attractive surroundings, and available at a time most convenient to the shopping public, which may vary in different store classifications. Retailing is not an industry which fits comfortably into a 9 to 5 schedule.

Many industries operate on shift hours and many public services are freely available to the public at all hours. There would be an outcry by all of us if, when we left our place of business at 5 p.m., or 6 p.m., we found the employees of the Belleville Transit Commission had decided not to run buses after 5 p.m., and the employees of the Public Utilities Commission had decided not to repair any emergency breaks in the water system after 6 p.m., and the employees of the Police Department had decided to work only on a 9 to 5 basis. It is self evident that the services of these people are needed constantly, 24 hours each day, and the industries that have grown around them are greatful for their devotion.

THE CONSUMER, TODAY, IS BEING FORCED TO MAINTAIN RESTRICTIVE HABITS LIMITING THEIR PURCHASES, BY AND LARGE, TO THREE HOURS ON FRIDAY EVENING EACH WEEK.

IS IT REASONABLE FOR THEM TO WAIT UNTIL FRIDAY EVENING, WHEN THEY CAN SIMPLY DRIVE OUTSIDE OF THE CITY AND GET WHAT THEY NEED ON MONDAY, TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY EVENING, IF THEY SO WISH.

We as members of this community, have much to offer, but we cannot cater to the present, which is changing rapidly, with an attitude of past prejudices. The past is certainly history, and history has its value in assessing the present, but it is the actions of the present that create a future.

STAND UP AND BE COUNTED FOR THE FUTURE BENEFIT OF OUR COMMUNITY!

WE URGE YOU TO WRITE TODAY, WE URGE YOU TO EXPRESS YOUR POINT OF VIEW AND EXERCISE ONE OF THE MOST CHERISHED PRINCIPLES OF DEMOCRACY, NAMELY, THE PUBLIC'S RIGHT TO FREEDOM OF OPINION.

WRITE AND LET US KNOW WHETHER YOU ARE IN FAVOUR OF FREEDOM OF RESTRICTIONS IN SHOPPING HOURS, OR WHETHER YOU ARE IN FAVOUR OF MAINTAINING THE RESTRICTIONS UNDER THE EXISTING BY-LAW.

Campbellford News

Mrs. Pearl Rutherford, 38 Ranney St.—Tel. 653-3822

Association for Retarded Sees Films on Sheltered Workshop

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular meeting of Campbellford and District Association for the Mentally Retarded was held at Merryvale School on Tuesday evening and Mrs. F. M. Rutherford presided.

Camp application forms were presented but no forms were completed for this year. It was decided not to join the Ontario Recreation Association at the present.

Mrs. Rutherford presented the latest information regarding increased government assistance under the Homes for Retarded Children's Amendment Act introduced in the Legislative Assembly of Ontario by Hon. Louis Cecile on May 21.

The purpose of the amendment is to give greater encouragement to local associations for the establishment of residential facilities for retarded children.

The amendment increases the grant per bed for new construction from the previous $2500 to $5000. For an existing building the grant will be $1200. A further increase is made in the daily costs of supporting a child in the hoffel from the previous 50 per cent to 75 per cent cost and the former $5 daily maximum is eliminated. These financial improvements will be of considerable advantage in carrying out any new program of residential care.

ANNUAL MEET

Region 9, of which the Campbellford Association is a part, will hold its annual meeting in Peterborough on May 31st. It was announced the Adult Training Conference would be held in London, June 3, 4 and 5.

The children had been guests of the Shamba Shriners at the circus in Peterborough.

Mrs. R. Lillie reported for the Flowers of Hope campaign and about $700 had been received to date.

Mrs. R. Cook, the only member present of the building committee, said no steps had been taken as yet. Mrs. Rutherford outlined plans of a preliminary survey regarding the appointment of a building committee chairman in regard to either buying or building as government legislation requires the association to provide a building, the newly appointed education authority takes care of the financial operation only of the day school.

Mrs. B. Collins announced the bowling banquet for the retarded children would be held on June 4th at St. John's auditorium. The public is invited to attend, tickets are available.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker of the evening was Mrs. William Shaw of Peterborough, president of Region 9. Mrs. Shaw gave an informative talk on the Peterborough Sheltered Workshop and showed a film of the adult retardates at work. The workshop has been in operation in Peterborough for four years.

The number of questions asked and the informative replies given by Mrs. Shaw was indicative of the interest shown by the Campbellford association.

Mrs. Shaw was thanked by Mrs. R. Lillie.

At the close lunch was served.

OPEN HOUSE

Open house was held at Merryvale school on Thursday afternoon, when about 35 adults were in attendance.

The program consisted of numbers contributed by the school children, tap dancing, rhythm band and a piano number with the children playing chimes and bells.

Mrs. Hoey welcomed the guests and displayed some of the articles made by the school children.

Lunch was prepared and served by the pupils, social graces and good manners are some of the factors of the teaching program.

Mrs. Hoey expressed appreciation to Mrs. Lilliam Lingard who gave the tap dancing lessons weekly since January.

Lawn Bowlers List Officers

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club held their annual meeting on Thursday evening at the club house.

Officers elected were: honorary president, Mrs. C. Palliser; president, Mrs. D. Hickson; 1st vice, Mrs. R. Locke; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. R. Douglas.

Tournament meals committee for men's tournaments, Mesdames McMullen, Mayhew, Locke, Vey, Douglas, Vandewater. To select prizes for mixed tournaments: Mrs. H. J. Taylor and Mrs. R. Locke.

In charge of meals for ladies' tournaments: Mesdames Kingston, Pettey, Smith, Sloggett and Free.

Prize committee for ladies' tournaments: Mrs. W. G. Vandewater and Miss Vera Eldt.

It was decided to hold more local tournaments this year in order to create more club participation and to issue jitney invitations to other clubs earlier in the season. In charge of local tournaments is Mrs. H. J. Taylor.

The Campbellford club instituted a club supper program about ten years ago by which two suppers are held at the club house each month during June, July, August and September. The suppers are arranged by a different group of about six or seven women each month. All food is paid for and everyone pays for their meal. In this manner the only expense incurred is the meal ticket which is nominal.

The monthly supper program has contributed greatly to the continued interest and participation in Campbellford Lawn Bowling Club.

The first tournament of the season will be a mixed doubles held on Wednesday, June 2nd. Campbellford lawn bowlers will be hosts to the other clubs of the area.

Honor Teachers At Annual Meet of Assoc.

CAMPBELLFORD — The Northumberland County group of the Federated Women's Teachers Association of Ontario held their annual banquet and business meeting in the auditorium of St. John's United Church in Campbellford.

About 80 members and guests enjoyed a turkey dinner served by a unit of St. John's U.C.W.

Mrs. Frank Potts, president of the County group welcomed the guests and commented on a highly successful year.

The Northumberland section was well represented at the spring conference held in Oshawa, May 8th and the workshop and progressive learning conference held in the Westbury Hotel in Toronto on April 2nd and 3rd.

Reports of these events were given by Mrs. Doris McLaughlin and Mrs. J. Rannie.

Mrs. C. Seabora entertained with two delightful solos accompanied by Mrs. Bruce Barnum.

The guest speaker of the evening was Professor Isabel Laird, professor of psychology at Queen's University pleased the audience with her informal address which was both informative and humorous.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Winnifred Hay and thanked by Miss Bruce Grills.

40 YEARS' SERVICE

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of life memberships to Mrs. Morley Smith and Miss Irene Murphy in recognition of their outstanding contribution to the teaching profession. Each of these women has taught for more than 40 years.

Greetings were brought to the group by P. S. I. Rikley and P.S.I. Young and from the town of Campbellford by Councillor Blank, retired public school teacher.

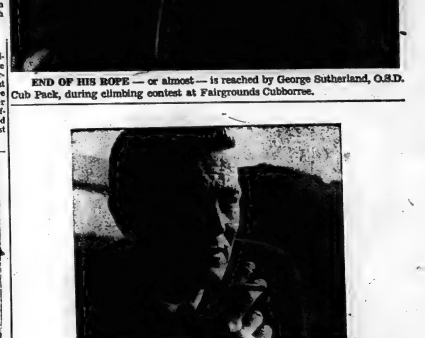
District Cubs Enjoy Meet Despite Chill

Adults would have called the weather chilly.

The youngsters at the Fairgrounds Saturday dubbed it frisky.

And — matching their idea of weather to what an assembly of their own should be — they performed with a liveliness that gave the lie to overcast skies and a knifing wind.

The event was a gathering of cubs, close to 700 of them from 20 Belleville district packs.



The occasion was the district's annual cubboree — a clarion call for a day of field events, high jumps and hi - links for the youngsters.

Supervised by their own adult pack leaders and senior district scouters they came through the day's event without incident.

That is, excluding their own abrasions from challenging each other in athletic events.

Publisher Shocked at Suggestion

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A statement by Justice Minister Favreau that he is considering possible restrictions on publicity given to the names of accused persons before they are convicted has been viewed mainly with disapproval by newspaper men and lawyers.

R. A. Grayhiel, general manager of the Windsor Star and president of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association, said he is shocked at the suggestion.

Stuart Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun who is president of The Canadian Press, said:

"The press of Canada is becoming increasingly concerned about government tinkering with its free freedoms. This could lead to secret trials, which are contrary to every principle of freedom Canada has espoused and enjoyed down through the years."

Mr. Favreau made his remarks in the House of Commons Friday after Ralph Cowan (St. York - Humber) asked whether the justice minister would take steps to prevent the press from publishing names of accused persons until the courts find them guilty.

Mr. Favreau called a press conference later in his office to emphasize that he is concerned with press freedom but that he has reached no decision on the matter. It was not one of the most urgent problems before him.

Howard Green, former Progressive Conservative external affairs minister, and Davie Fulton, former Progressive Conservative justice minister, expressed opposition.

Favorable opinion was offered by Senator J. W. deB Farris of Vancouver and Slew ia art McMorran, Vancouver City prosecutor.

"It seems to me that this is the decent and fair thing to do," said Senator Farris. "If a man is not guilty why should his name be headlined in the newspapers?"

Mr. McMorran said: "There is no question that there have been occasions when the publication of names has caused a good deal of heartache and trouble for persons whom a jury and jury have found to be innocent."

In Toronto, John D. Arnup, treasurer of the Upper Canada Law Society, said that keeping the name of an accused secret until convicted would create an impossible situation.

"If the trial is public, newspapers should have the right to report what takes place," Mr. Arnup said.

Chance Chaos Will Be Averted in Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Bolivia, where almost anything can happen at any time, has reached the critical point where it will soon know whether it is headed for relative peace or chaos.

There is a chance chaos will be averted but it depends whether the ruling military junta can solve the problem of the tin mines and avert disaster for the economy.

If the junta fails, a take-over by extremist elements on the left is possible, even though the communist element is there themselves are widely spill.

If this nation of 4,000,000 should go under, the impact on its neighbors would be enormous.

La Paz means peace. But through Friday morning there had been shooting daily and nightly. The country has counted at least 70 dead and hundreds wounded since May 14 when the junta shipped into exile in Paraguay the leader of the tin miners, Juan Lechin.

Much now depends upon whether the Junta can restore tranquility to the nationalized tin mines.

Many trade union leaders and agitators of the far left are in jail and some have fled the country. But the Communist leaders of the mines in most cases remain free to operate in the major mining areas where the army has not yet penetrated.

Miners who had been on strike have been drifting back to work. The question now is whether the junta can enforce decrees to bring some stability into the mine areas.

In the capital, there is conflict within the army itself. Its officers are divided by their own political ambitions and shifting loyalties.

The backbone of the economy is tin. The mines have accounted for more than 80 per cent of the nation's income. But the situation in that section of the mines which were nationalized — 60 per cent — is one of anarchy.

Comibol—the Bolivian mining corporation which runs the nationalized mines—is bankrupt. It has enough cash perhaps to pay wages for a month or two. The miners, mostly illiterate, form a state within a state, a seemingly beyond control of the central government.

Bolivia is 70 per cent illiterate and has the second lowest per capita income in the Western hemisphere.

Victor Paz Estenssoro, elected in 1951, took over as president in 1952 after a revolution forced him into office. His National Revolutionary Movement broke up big land holdings and distributed land to the Indians.

Agricultural production suffered for the next half dozen years.

Paz nationalized the tin mines concentrating on the big ones which had symbolized an oligarchy system. About 40 per cent of the mines remained in private hands. The nationalized mines developed system of featherbedding and union interference which reached a stage where production costs were as much above the world market price of tin that the government lost money on each shovelful of ore taken from the ground. The private mines continued to operate at a profit.

Communist and pro-Castro extremists have control of the miners and their unions.

Lechin had exercised much power as mine union boss and minister of mines, and was a presidential possibility. Some called him a Communist but it seemed more likely he was an opportunist of the far left who used the Communists for his own ends.

RAN THIRD TIME

President Paz, apparently considering himself an essential counter-balance to Lechin, in 1964 changed the constitution to permit himself to run for a third term in an election so arranged so that he could not lose.

In November, he was overthrown in a coup. The tin miners remained beyond control of the central authorities. There was lack of discipline. They punished and expelled managers they did not like, stole from the company, held meetings on company time, demanded triple pay for overtime.

After Lechin was exiled, the junta drew up decrees vacating all mine union jobs, promising drastic measures. About 25 per cent of the miners were surplus labor and their jobs were endangered. The unions called a general strike.

While the strike was only partially effective, the ensuing violence produced near panic in La Paz.

The majority of Bolivians seemed tired of the violence. But a minority has arms, and a minority with arms could decide the issue against armed forces which are none too stable themselves.

Deny Rumors Mao Tse-tung Seriously Ill

From Reuters-AP

PEKING (CP) — A foreign ministry spokesman today denied rumors that Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung is seriously ill.

"Chairman Mao is in excellent health," the spokesman said.

Rumors that Mao was ill circulated during the weekend.

Officials in London said Sunday the British charge d'affaires in Peking, Donald Hopson, had reported to the foreign office on speculation that Mao, 71, had suffered a serious deterioration in health—possibly a stroke.

Hopson was not able to say whether the rumors were true.

REPORTED AT MEETING

(In Tokyo, Japanese news agency Kyodo quoted authoritative sources in Peking as saying that Mao attended Sunday's meeting in Peking of the standing committee of the People's Congress.

(Kyodo quoted Liao Chengzhih, a member of the Chinese Communist party's central committee, as saying that "Mao is in excellent health—I just saw him yesterday.")

Diplomatic observers said the rumors, unusual as they appear in the last year, were prompted by the lack of any mention in the Chinese press of how or where Mao spent May Day.

Pakistani newspapers said Chinese Premier Chou En-lai is due in Rawalpindi Wednesday for overnight talks with President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan. It appeared unlikely that Chou would set off on a foreign tour if Mao were in bad shape.

Chinese Nationalist sources in Formosa said they had heard nothing to substantiate the reports of Mao's illness.

Pilot Tried To Fly Around Rain Squall

KAPUSKASING Ont. (CP)—Two transport department investigators will attempt today to reach the scene of a plane crash 40 miles southwest of here in which three men were killed and two others injured Thursday.

Percy Bradley, 45, of Remi Lake, Ont., owner of Mattagami Skyways, pilot of the single - engined Norseman; Paima Leclerc, 53, of Kapuskasing, and Elmo Mulkerrin, 51, of Brantford, were killed when the aircraft crashed near Cooper Lake.

Victor Prendergast, 31, of Brantford suffered a broken hip and broken arm, and John Wright, 55, of Midland, Ont., suffered multiple injuries and lung damage. Both men were reported off the critical list in hospital here this Sunday.

Investigators arrived here Sunday but bad weather prevented them from leaving immediately.

LEFT THURSDAY

The five men had left the Skyways' base at Remi Lake, 13 miles east of here, Thursday morning. They were heading for Brunswick Lake, 35 miles southwest of here, where the Brantford firm of S. C. Johnson and Son Ltd. is building a $150,000 hunting and fishing lodge for employees.

When Mr. Bradley did not return Thursday night, his wife called Lazarus Henry, a pilot who set out at noon Friday with mechanic Charles Williams to fly to Brunswick.

They spotted the wreckage 15 miles off course late Friday.

They landed and went to the scene. Mr. Williams remained with the injured men while Mr. Henry flew back to Kapuskasing to advise authorities.

An RCAF air - rescue helicopter from Trenton, Ont., flew the men to safety early Saturday.

Provincial police said it appeared Mr. Bradley was trying to fly around a rain squall when he spotted Cooper Lake and attempted to land. However, the lake was too small and he apparently tried to regain altitude, hit a tree and crashed into dense brush and muskeg.

An inquest will be held after the investigation.

Pianist Strides From Festival, Blames Piano

MONTREAL (CP)—The audience sat hushed as the young pianist, his long, wavy blond hair appearing to fall disheveled, played Beethoven's Sonata Opus 109 at the International Piano Festival competition last week.

During a delicate passage in the Beethoven work, the young man suddenly raised both hands and brought them down hard on the keyboard.

He arose, stalked toward the wings, then suddenly turned and faced the audience.

"Please forgive me," he said. "This we cannot call a piano."

Then 25 - year - old Cornelis Rodert left.

The audience and the 12 jury members representing 12 nations were stunned.

After a few seconds an official arose at the front of Comedie Canadienne Theatre and announced:

"This candidate is disqualified."

HAS NO CHOICE

Later Rodert, who is listed in the program as from Deventer in The Netherlands but lives in Oakville, talked with a reporter.

"I'm sorry this had to happen this way, but I had no choice. The instrument was abominable—the worst I have ever played, and it was impossible for me to continue.

"I don't feel very good about it, but it had to be done. There have been other complaints from other competitors about the piano."

He was mostly concerned that "this should not be mistaken for temperament or anything like that."

Festival officials defended the quality of the piano, brought to the theatre specially for the festival.

"We have had no other complaints," said one official.

Rodert was born in The Netherlands and came to Canada when 11 years old.

Canadian-owned Sailing Craft May Be Heading for Trouble in Atlantic Trip

LONDON (CP)—The builder of a rakish, three-hulled sailing craft that disappeared with its Canadian owner from a Cornish port last week says he has informed the British admiralty that the vessel may be heading for trouble at sea.

Lloyd's shipping intelligence in London reported early today there have been no reports on the vessel's whereabouts.

David Senior, director of Multihull Services of Wadebridge, Cornwall, said Sunday the trimaran, named Tryptich, "was not 100-per-cent ready to tackle the Atlantic, especially if she meets rough weather," when she left Padstow harbor early Thursday.

Matt Burpee, retired Perth, Ont., dairy farmer who ordered the trimaran from Multihull, slipped out of harbor in darkness with his wife Elizabeth, his teen - age children Sandra and David and two English crew after waiting 18 months in Padstow for the Tryptich to be completed.

He was thought to be heading for the West Indies and the Tryptich was last spotted Friday southwest of Land's End. In an interview last month, Burpee said he planned to use the sleek, green - hulled vessel in the charter business in the Caribbean and the Mediterranean.

Senior said he has informed the admiralty that the Tryptich may be heading for the Azores and then westward across the Atlantic.

The shipbuilder, a Yorkshire farmer before setting up Multihull to build the trimaran, said he told the admiralty the vessel is unseaworthy "because it was my duty and to absolve myself from responsibility if there is an accident."

The Tryptich has no radio. British press reports have said mast supports for the ketch-rigged vessel may weaken under strong winds, the compass was not adjusted before sailing, and there may be a weakness in the drive shaft of the auxiliary engine.

Apart from possible danger at sea, the Tryptich left a landward storm behind involving costs. Senior and Burpee's lawyer, Robin Rochard of Truro, Cornwall, agree there was a dispute but public statements vary on amounts, claims and counter-claims.

Senior informed his staff of about 30 men Sunday that "the bank will not release the money to pay your wages and the firm may have to close down," the Exchange Telegraph news agency reported.

The Sunday Express quotes retired air force officer Phillip Robinson of Padstow, host of the Burpees for several months as saying Burpee was "worried and frustrated and afraid that unless he made a quick move, he might never go to sea at all."

Graham Bids Farewell

renounding cheers.

The regiment represented by its color escorts and three guards units drew many comments from "old soldier" and civilian with the neat precision-like execution of the "Trooping the Color" ceremonies.

Its fine appearance and marching in "slow and quick" time gave clear evidence of weeks of special training and rehearsal.

SPLENDID BAND

An outstanding feature of the ceremonies was the splendid performance given by the band of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals from Kingston.

Resplendent in scarlet and blue topped by colorful busbies, the band under director of music lieutenant K. Szarkowski gave polished renditions of the ceremonial music, slow and fast time.

In the evening it gave a special concert on the armouries lawn that was appreciated by a large crowd.

The "Trooping the Color" ceremonies were colorful and interesting seen by many young and old soldiers for the first time.

COLORS UNDER ESCORT

The regimental color was "trooped" since the Queen's color cannot be used unless royalty is present.

The color was brought to the parade ground by the escort, consisting of Major A. W. Cunningham, CD, regimental second-in-command; Captain J. S. Down subaltern; Lieut. D. M. Campbell, ensign and Staff Sergeant S. A. Scott, CD.

The four guard units were drawn up under command of senior warrant officers and non-commissioned officers since tradition forbids officers on parade at this part of the ritual.

The subject is that other ranks are so trusted that the responsibility of guarding the color can be left in their hands.

The band moved across the parade ground in slow time, returning in fast time. A drummer beat the call to the escort captain to hand the color to his ensign.

Regimental Sergeant Major Howard Kokesh, CD, handed the color to Lieut. D. M. Campbell of the escort.

The escort guard to the tune of the "Grenadier's March," slowly paraded the color before the three guard units.

DISPLAY FORMED

The four guards then formed in column marching in quick and slow displaying to the spectators the symbol they hold in high esteem.

The ceremony is one of the most impressive in the army, and tradition says, was instituted by the Duke of Marlborough to "test the sobriety of his officers."

Following the "trooping" the regiment exercised its "freedom of the city" granted last year by Mayor Jack Ellis, and marched through city streets with bayonets fixed, drums beating and colors flying.

The three guards units were composed of Nos. 1 Guard, Captain W. L. Rothwell, Captain F. R. Allan, Lieut. M. H. Evans and WO2 R. K. Wigmore CD; number three guard, Major L. S. Caughill, Captain C. F. Hubel, Lieut. R. Hall and Staff sergeant R. A. Tapp; number four guard, Captain K. G. Rose, Captain Reliance, Lieut. W. G. Gray and WO2 B. D. Shaw.

Major Percy Gray of Marmora who marked retirement after 25 years of service with the regiment, acted as commentator in his last army gesture.

GRANDSTAND CROWDED

The crowded grandstand was a colorful scene with many high-ranking officers in "blues and swords" in attendance.

Out-of-town regiments were represented with a number of former commanding officers of the Hasty Pees present.

The regiment was given a standing ovation as it swung past the stand on its march to the armouries and dismissal.

Lieut.-General Graham and Mrs. Graham, Lieut. Colonel Willcocks and Mrs. Willcocks formed a receiving line at the officers' mess at the post-ceremony reception. The regiment's WO's and other senior non-commissioned officers were hosts at a similar reception in their mess.

In a post-ceremony interview General Graham modestly recalled his many years of military service. He was a "private in world war one" and a "staff sergeant in world war second." He was commissioned in the regiment in 1922 and rose to its wartime command in 1942 until 1944.

He remained with the army after World War Two and rapidly rose to important posts. He was Chief of the General Staff up to his semi-retirement two years ago. At present he is the president of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

SHASTRI TO VISIT

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India will spend five days in Canada next month compared to the two originally scheduled before President Johnson dropped him from the White House summer guest list. Mr. Shastri, 61, prime minister for a year since the death of Nehru, will visit Niagara Falls, Ont., and Montreal as well as the capital after arriving June 10.

A HAND TO AUTHORITY—Regimental Sergeant Major Howard Kokesh, CD., hands the regimental color prior to "trooping" to the ensign of the escort Lieut. Douglas Campbell. This was one of the important features of the colorful ceremonies.

THE GENERAL SAYS FAREWELL — Lieut. General Howard D. Graham walks slowly to the reviewing stand to say "good-bye" to his regiment. To his left are Mayor Jack Ellis of Belleville and Mayor Jim MacDonald of Trenton. To his direct rear is Brigadier J. M. Ross eastern area commander and to his left the brigadier's aide.

SPORTS SLICES

"Slink, sleuch, fix, fake, phoney, flop, farce," you name it—and you'll be right.

Any of these four and five-letter words cover quite neatly that Battle of the Stenchury that allegedly took place in the wooded hinterlands of beautiful Maine the other Tuesday.

The flicking glove (he only needed one) of Cassius Clay that lasted flighty, hardly—take over pick—high on the checkbone of the Philadelphia Bear, has raised a storm of controversy.

Actually only Clay and Liston know the truth of the matter. Leading feet to the fire of argument that the blow was not a KO blur of hearth, is the fact that the smarting Clay stood over Liston screaming "get up." Perhaps he forgot to add "that didn't hurt much."

And Canadian champion George Chuvalo didn't add to his popularity radio by yapping the "blow would not have knocked out my baby."

A British boxing expert who saw the film of the leather commercial several times, commented, "It would not have broken the skin of a rice pudding."

Floyd Patterson—and there's a reason why—states the show was really a hanshoot affair. Floyd has been on the receiving end of three, at least sense-taking smashes, one from Johannesen's "Arm of Thor" and two from the alleged battering ram of Liston. As a spectator, I don't know who can judge rightly.

Post-bout observations of the one-act schmozzle reveal that few if any saw the alleged knockout punch. One eye-witness wrote "It didn't look more edifying in slow motion except that Clay could be seen to land a short right to Liston's head followed by a sweeping left hook that missed by a wide margin because Sonny was already on the way down."

"Unless Liston went to the tank, the short right, a cross between a hook and uppercut, must have loaded with wicked force. Liston went down for the first time in his career like he had been hit with a railroad tie."

After Jersey Joe Walcott who appeared to be at his craftiest as though he had stepped a Clay "kiss of death" walked to the timekeeper, Clay unleashed several savage punches at Liston, any one of which, it is said, carried more power than the alleged "anaesthetic."

Some wag who had probably got into the Maine version of slivovitz—or is it lobster juice? hicced that some Marxian Moose, objecting to the invasion of the mountainous message of earthling counterparts, had loosed a sloop-ray.

The rise and fall of Sonny Liston, is a two-way story in speed. The Philadelphia giant, who could talk a language with his fists but listened to others in as could not understand, didn't do what could be fistic oblivion with the same lightning speed with which he reached the top.

His rise to the golden heights with two sensational one-round knockouts of a former world champion, hailed him as one of the hardest punchers in ring history. His fall to the depths was just as meteoric.

Former champions went down to defeat with fists and colors flying. There was talk of "fix" on one or two occasions, especially the Jack Johnson-Jess Willard Havana hassle.

But never was so blatantly embroiled in the miasma of "phoneyism, fake" as the remarkable demise of Liston.

The lethal power of his bare-like fists; his ring stamina; his destiny felt from him with all the earmarks of a certain dropping from an unveiled picture or statue. Apparently Father Time, who has been an invisible second in Liston's corner for how many years, finally demanded his cut.

But the question still poses in the minds of many —how much punching can Clay take? He has yet to provide evidence as a champion. Chuvalo may have the answer—but he has to have yet more to deliver the mail. Patterson leaves the brightest of all the shadowy faces haugrily looking at millions up for grabs—if the backers are ready and willing to pay.

City Hotel Dumps Cheeseman

City Hotel held on to a half share of first place in the Commercial Softball League yesterday by dumping Black Diamond Cheese 9-3. It was City's fourth win in as many games and leaves the club tied with Lightfoot.

The winners scored in every inning except the seventh while the Cheesemen tallied all their runs in the fourth.

Dave Feeney hurled eight-hit ball for the winners, fanning one and passing one.

Don Holway was tagged for 13 hits in defeat, striking out four and walking a pair.

Jack Martin had a field day at the plate for City Hotel. He crashed a home run in the sixth inning and also collected two doubles and a single.

Rocky Ethier and Doug Hall each rapped a double and single with Frank Donovan, Doug Murray, Doug Morson and Gerry Genereaux getting the other safeties.

C. Clapp had a double and single and L. Wood two singles for Black Diamond. R. Cwichshank, J. Douglas, J. Francis and A. Clapp also hit safely.

Win 10 In Row ★★★★★ Bucs Inter Mets In 4-Game Sweep ★★★★★ Dodgers Rip Reds

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pittsburgh Pirates have abandoned the National League's last-place scramble and instead have declared war on the rest of the league.

The Pirates, with Roberto Clemente leading the attack, extended their winning streak to 10 games Sunday by clobbering New York Mets 9-1 and 12-0. The streak, coming immediately after an eight-game losing string, equals the longest in the majors this season. Houston Astros also won 10 in a row.

Pittsburgh, now ninth, is no longer in much of a battle for last place, moving four games ahead of the Mets with a record of their four-game series. At the same time, the Pirates rocketed within one game of sixth place.

During the winning streak, 36-year-old Clemente has hit .455 and has raised his season's average 68 points to .308. In the New York series he rapped 11 hits in 19 trips to the plate.

Elsewhere in the league, Los Angeles Dodgers clobbered Cincinnati Reds 12-3, Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia Phillies 4-1, San Francisco Giants edged St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in 10 innings and Milwaukee Braves slipped Houston 6-5.

In Saturday's games the Phillies downed the Cubs 4-3, the Dodgers topped the Braves 5-3, Houston edged the Cardinals 4-3 in 10 innings, the Mets defeated the Reds 6-4 and Pittsburgh trimmed the Mets 7-4.

Bob Friend stopped the Mets on five hits in Sunday's opener, retired the first 12 men he faced. The Pirates broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth inning, scoring two runs with the aid of two errors by shortstop Roy McMillan and one by centre-fielder Jimmy Piersall.

Vernon Law pitched a six-hit shutout in the second game. He received home run support from Jim Pagliaroni, Gene Alley, Willie Stargell and Bob Bailey.

Sandy Koufax brought his record to 7-3, holding the Reds to five hits and striking out 13. John Rosebore drove in three Dodger runs while Maury Wills, Ron Fairly, Dick Tracewski and Wes Parker each contributed one pair.

The Cubs downed the Phillies behind the hitting of Ernie Banks and the pitching of Dick Ellsworth. Banks collected three hits, including his 10th homer, and drove in two runs. Ellsworth scattered seven hits, striking out nine and walked four.

Milwaukee stopped Houston's four-game winning streak as Hank Aaron smashed a pinch homer and Felipe Alou and Mack Jones added bases-empty blows.

The Giants edged the Cardinals on Bob Skinner's bases-loaded single in the 10th. Willie Mays, out of the line-up for a heavy cold, batted for Jim Hart with two on and lofted a high fly to Skinner, who dropped the ball.

Murray Balfour Dies At 28

REGINA (CP)—Murray Balfour, 28, the original right winger on Chicago Black Hawks' Million Dollar Line, died in hospital Sunday.

The rugged 178-pound forward, who played six seasons in the National Hockey League, was recuperating at his parents' home from an operation April 5 at Harrisburg, Pa., to correct a respiratory problem. He entered hospital Saturday.

A product of the Regina minor hockey system, Balfour entered professional hockey with the Montreal Canadiens organization in 1957. He was sold to Chicago two years later after playing for Montreal Royals in the defunct Quebec Hockey League and Rochester American affiliate of the American League.

GOES TO BRUINS

Balfour went to Boston Bruins in the summer of 1964 in a four-player deal that brought defenceman Matt Ravlich to the Hawks. Hampered by leg injuries, he was traded to Bruins last season and was sent down to Hershey Bears of the American League, playing 18 games for them before the illness struck.

An aggressive, hard-checking winger, Balfour had a mixture of good and bad luck in his NHL career.

He suffered a succession of serious injuries, beginning with a badly broken arm that knocked him out of the playoffs in 1961 and had to be reset the following winter.

Although he was not in a class with the free - wheeling Hull as a goal-scorer—his best output was 21 goals in the 1960-61 season—Balfour was deadly in the playoffs.

BREAKS UP GAMES

Of his nine Stanley Cup goals, two broke up overtime games, the first against Montreal in 1961 and the second against Detroit Red Wings three years later. He outscored both his teammates during the 1961 playoffs, getting five goals to Hull's four and Hay's two.

Only two men — Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal with six and Mel (Sudden Death) Hill of Boston with three—have scored more overtime goals in Stanley Cup play.

Injuries eventually cost Balfour his place on the Hawks' top line in 1963-64 and he was chiefly used in a utility role, picking up only two goals in 41 games.

A bachelor, he lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Balfour of Regina, and ran a billiard parlor during the off-season.

Wild Race Is Predicted At '500'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—More than 250,000 persons jammed the Indianapolis Motor Speedway to watch a speed showdown in the 49th Memorial Day 500-mile auto race.

Even astronaut Virgil Grissom was on hand as 33 cars began circling the Speedway's 2½-mile oval at noon EDT in a 3½-hour attack on Big Indy records and a $600,000 purse.

The milling mob was lured by a new - breed uprising of eight - cylindered, rear - engine cars, headed by defending champion A. J. Foyt in a ground-hugging Lotus-Ford.

With all the talk of the decline of the old Indy hog, he Offenhauser front - engined roadster, several million dollars of engineering skill and apparatus faced a deadly challenge of soaring friction and human error in the blurring charge of 27 rear - engine Johnny-come-latelys.

Only 12 cars were running at the end of last year's record-smashing, but tragic race which killed Eddie Sachs and Dave MacDonald in a crackup on the second lap.

Foyt set a record 147.350 m.p.h. pace in one of what now are regarded as obsolete Offy roadsters, four of which made as apparent requiem run today.

Foyt had the pole position today driving his red and blue trimmed white car which set a 10-mile qualifying record of 161.233 m.p.h. May 14.

A wild, unpredictable race loomed between Foyt, also the 1961 winner; Jimmy Clark of Scotland and Dan Gurney, rear - engined Fords, powered by eight cylinders compared with the Offy four.

Attendance at the Speedway Memorial Day spectacle never is announced, but owner Tony Hulman concedes there are reserved seats for more than 180,000 spectators and that another 100,000 can be packed — along with 25,000 cars — within the huge racing oval.

Defeat Frankford

City Teams Sweep Three

Bellevilles teams swept all three games against Frankford in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association play on Saturday.

Here in the city, Peewee Merchants edged Frankford 5-4, and Ellis Bantams stopped the visitors 5-1. Both games were played at Park Dale.

Meanwhile, Belleville Midget All-Stars whipped Frankford 11-2 out in Frankford.

PEEWEE

After each side scored once in the first, the Merchants exploded for four runs in the third and hung on to get the close decision 5-4.

Art Wellesley, Allan Neill in the third and Glen Carleton in the fifth combined to pitch three-hit ball for Belleville. They walked seven. Paul Hall was their battery mate.

The Merchants collected six hits off the offerings of A. Hoyle and C. Vasey on Frankford mound. They issued four free passes. S. Bedard was the catcher.

Mario Venotti drove in three Belleville runs with three singles to lead his club. Terry Meagher had a triple and single and Barry Cuhlis also hit safely.

S. Bedard and J. Williamson looked after Frankford's hits.

BANTAM

Belleville got a four-hit pitching chore from Terry McTaggart in Ellis' 5-1 triumph. McTaggart struck out 11 men and walked only one. Ron Jury was his receiver.

Frankford used M. Musclow, S. Mikol, W. Kemp and F. Chapman on the mound. They gave up just five hits while fanning seven and walking five. Three bobbles did not help their cause while the winners miscued but once.

The Belleville hits went to Brian Coughlin with a triple, Ron Jury with a double, Tod Shaw, Herb Hicks and Gary Burnette, each with a single.

W. Kemp hit a double and a single, S. Mikol and Foley a single each in a losing cause.

MIDGET

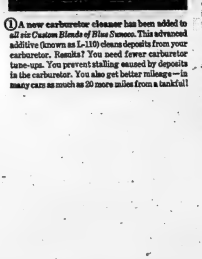
A five - run explosion in the fifth frame put Belleville well ahead in the game at Frankford.

Rodger Hunter was the starting and winning pitcher with relief help from Bob Belcher in the fifth and Jim Parks in the ninth. They allowed just three hits, struck out 15 and passed five. Howard Wark caught.

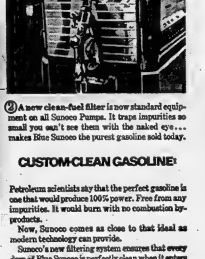
Larry MacAuley and D. Chard in the fifth pitched in defeat, giving up nine hits, fanning ten and walking 11. Kidd and Gilchrist shared the catching.

Dale Durvell paced Bellevile at the plate with a home run, double and single. Doug Atkinson hit a three - run triple, Howard Wark had two singles, Paul Howe, Jim Parks and Paul Goodfellow one apiece.

Roy Scrimshaw, Chard and Kidd collected Frankford's singles.



DRESSEN RETURNS



DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Tigers' manager Chuglio Dressen will return to the helm in New York today and promises there will only be a few minor changes in the roster of the team. The Tigers have been managed by coach Bob Swift since Dressen suffered a minor heart attack in spring training at Lakeland, Fla., last March 2.

Why Custom-Blended Blue Sunoco is now the purest form of power you can buy for your car

(1) A new carburetor cleanser has been added to all six Custom Blends of Blue Sunoco. This advanced additive (known as L-110) cleans deposits from your carburetor. Results? You need fewer carburetor tune-ups. You prevent stalling caused by deposits in the carburetor. You also get better mileage—in many cars as much as 20 more miles from a tankful!

(2) A new clean-fuel filter is now standard equipment on all Sunoco Pumps. It traps impurities so small you can't see them with the naked eye . . . makes Blue Sunoco the purest gasoline sold today.

CUSTOM-CLEAN GASOLINE:

Petroleum scientists say that the perfect gasoline is one that would produce 100% power. Free from any impurities. It would burn with no combustion by-products.

Now, Sunoco comes as close to that ideal as modern technology can provide.

Sunoco's new filtering system ensures that every drop of Blue Sunoco is perfectly clean when it enters your car—free of even the tiniest impurities. And with the advanced additive now in Blue Sunoco, fuel lines, fuel pumps and carburetors will be cleaner than they've ever been.

Stop at Sunoco this week and enjoy the purest form of power you can put in your car . . . new Custom-Blended Blue Sunoco!

Twins Take Over Top From Chisox

Yankees Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Stu Miller, Baltimore's abominable slowpoke, finally has completed his third consecutive shutout.

It took 14 appearances by the 37-year-old right hander, but Miller finished the job Sunday when he came on in the seventh inning and got the final two outs to cut off a rally by Los Angeles Angels.

The Orioles then pushed across the winning run in their half of the inning for a 4-3 victory.

Miller now has baffled American League batters with his assortment of slow stuff for 27 straight scoreless innings. During that stretch he has struck out 27 and allowed just eight hits while trimming his e.r.a. to an eye-popping 1.80.

Miller's fireballing colleague in relief, Dick Radatz of the Red Sox, made his fourth straight appearance in Boston's 5-2, 11-inning victory over Kansas City Athletics, pitched 1 2-3 scoreless innings and struck out three for a total of 16 in his last seven innings.

Minnesota Twins, meanwhile, moved into first place by defeating Washington Senators 6-0 behind Camilo Pascual's four-hitter while New York Yankees dropped Chicago to second by edging the White Sox 3-2 in 12 innings. Cleveland Indians walloped Detroit Tigers 10-2 as Rocky Colavito drove in five runs.

Saturday, Detroit blanked Cleveland 3-0, the Twins outslugged the Senators 11-8, Chicago downed the Yankees 6-3, the Angels topped Baltimore 3-1 and the Athletics were rained out at Boston.

Brooks Robinson knocked in two Oriole runs Sunday with a pair of singles in the third and the winning run for the Yankees in the 12th.

Colavito clouted his 10th homer and collected three singles in leading the Indians to an easy victory after they had suffered two straight shutouts by the Tigers. Sam McDowell checked Detroit on four hits and struck out 13.

Tony Conigliaro pulled the Red Sox into a 2-2 tie with the Athletics in the ninth with his 10th homer. Then in the 11th Radatz contributed the only hit to Boston's winning rally, stroking a single following a two-out walk to Ed Bressoud.

After Radatz' hit, both runners advanced on a wild pitch by John Wyatt and Mike Ryan walked, loading the bases. Wyatt then walked Lenny Green, forcing in the winner.

Pascual brought his record to 6-0 with his first shutout of the season retiring home-run support from Zoilo Versalles and Harmon Killebrew against the Senators.

Softball Games Are Postponed

High School examinations have forced postponement of two games in the Belleville and District Softball League, it was announced by the league executive over the weekend.

Both games involve the young Madoc team, whose line-up consists chiefly of high school age players.

This Wednesday, June 2, the Madoc at Trenton Commercial Printers tilt is postponed. It has been re-scheduled, by the league executive, for Saturday, June 19.

The second postponement is on Thursday, June 10, Madoc at Belleville Trudeau Motors. This game will be re-scheduled at a later date.

Cosmos Clip Belvedere

RCAF Cosmos clipped Belvedere Hotel 6-2 behind the steady pitching of Tommy Thompson in weekend Commercial softball action.

The Cosmos scored single markers in the first and fourth and pairs in the second and sixth while leading all the way.

Thompson had a shutout going until the eighth inning before tering seven hits over the route. He struck out 11 batters and did not walk a man. He got perfect support afield.

King allowed nine hits over the distance for Belvedere and was hurt by five errors. He struck out four and walked four.

Mackie and Knockwood collected two hits apiece to spark the RCAF attack. One each went to Thompson, Arkell, Andrews, Campbell and Clarke.

Myer had a pair of Belvedere safeties with King, Jalewtz, D. Lucas and Brown split the others.

Harness Racing Opener

Driver Sets Five-Win Record

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Pfiofing home five winners and a second, Reg. Bailey of Consecon set a track driving record at the Fair Grounds here Saturday night.

The Quinte Riding and Driving Club's opener was almost a "Wann-borne" meet with a strong Prince Edward county win flavor.

Bailey brought "Yankee Wann" and "J. J. Wann" under the wire to double-heat victories and capped his brilliant five-win performance with "Penny Chief."

William Faulkner, Carrying Place, took "Brighter Days" and "Emlen Hanover" to single triumphs while Picton's Sam Mulholland drove his "Mighty Lass C" to a victory.

FOOTBALL WEATHER

The "county" horses finished first in eight of the meet's nine events.

The weather was more typical of football than harness racing. Over 500 fans shivered in chilly breezes but wagered $6,606 through the pari - mutuels.

The top price of $22.90 was paid by "Early Lakes John" to show in the fifth heat. Two daily doubles paid $54.40 and the quinellas returned $45.60 and $7.80.

The new rock - dust cover of the track sugars well for future meets.

On the somewhat heavy going, "J. J. Wann" set the fastest times of the meet pacing the three - quarter dash in 1.57 and the feature mile in 2.11, 2-5.

For the first time in the club's history, the card featured a two-events race exclusively for trotters.

Sam Mulholland went to the whip with "Mighty Lass C." to snatch the three-quarter dash from "Brighter Days" but the Faulkner - driven horse came back to capture the mile in 2.17.4-5.

"J. J. Wann" defreated a crack field in the feature race that included Dalemite and Bradcliffe. "Early Lakes John" finished strongly to take the place spots in both heats. "Wann" won going away in both events coming from behind in the second to win in three lengths.

Bailey took "Yankee Wann" to easy victories in the second and sixth heats finishing in front of "Luella Scott" by three and five lengths.

Chatterson drove "Brian Wann" to the opening mile dash in a come-from-behind win over "Miss E. Tripp" and "Perchance" who led to the stretch. "Emlem Hanover" had to pace the mile in 2.15 in the eight heat to snatch a length victory from "Penny Chief" in the closest race of the night. "Penny Chief" won the dash earlier.

The opening meet was exceptionally well-handled by Judge Oscar Frederick and his associates. The heats were run off in smooth sequence and minimum of time despite the fact the lights at the west end of the track were not functioning.

DEFINING SHOULDER 'TILT' and 'TURN'

We often hear or read the expression, "Tilt and turn the shoulders." I'm afraid this may be a bit confusing to some golfers and therefore I'll try to explain.

If a person stood perfectly straight, and then turned his upper body to look behind him, he would have "turned" his shoulders on a level or horizontal plane.

However, during the golf swing, the body is not erect. The player bends forward from his waist. Therefore, though the shoulders do turn, they do so while the upper body is "tilted" forward. This causes the left shoulder to lower on the backswing and raise on the down and through stroke.

In the illustrations, you will note that my right shoulder is a bit lower than my left at address. This is because my right hand is lower on the club. On the backswing my shoulders tilt and turn until they are more or less vertical. On the downswing they return to a position similar to that of address as the club enters the hitting area.

Jerome Runs 100 In 9.4

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — World records in the broad jump and hammer throw fell Saturday to veterans Ralph Boston and Hal Connolly in the annual California relays.

Boston jumped 27 feet, five inches on his final leap of competition. Connolly hurled the 16-pound hammer 233 feet, two inches on his fourth attempt in the afternoon.

Both eclipsed world records they already held — Boston at 27-4¼ and Connolly at 231-10.

George Pace of Canada set a Canadian record with his fourth-place heave of 190-5 in the discus.

Another Canadian, Harry Jerome of Vancouver, won the 100 yards in 9.4 seconds, nipping Mel Pender at the wire.

Parsons Win Over Kingston

Belleville Parsen's Cleaners made their initial start in the Kingston and District Soccer League an impressive one yesterday.

This city's entry nipped the defending champions, Kingston Italio Canadians, 3-1 on the loser's own home field.

Belleville next seen action on Wednesday night, at 6.30, against Batawa, at Batawa.

Parson's kept Italio off balance most of the game Sunday, taking a 2-0 lead and playing strong defensive ball throughout.

The winner's half back line of Bob Main, Graham Geldart and John Rosenburg played a strong game, breaking up the Kingston attacks time and again.

Belleville moved ahead 1-0 after ten minutes of play when Chuck Eddy bit Steve Kleigl in the clear with a good pass. Kleigl made his hard shot count.

Italio, with a strong wind at their backs, pressed but Parson goalie, Herb Mueller, stopped them when they did get close.

A three-way play upped the score to 2-0. Bob Rutherford led it down into the Italio end. He passed to Kleigl who relayed the ball to Alan Brown. Brown beat the ball home off a goalpost from a narrow angle.

Just before half time, Kingston scored after pressing hard. Inside right Genovigli got the goal with a Bayard drive high into the Parson net.

Play roughened up in the second half as the pace showed on both teams but Parson's continued to have the best of play. Goalie Mueller saved the victory with two minutes left when he stopped Italio on a penalty shot.

Men Golfers Qualify For Club Title

Seventy of the club's top golfers turned out for the Club Championship's qualifying round and most came away something less than pleased with their scores.

Wind and cold were credited with keeping the scores well above par for the 36 who continue down the titular trail. Another 16 qualified for the consolation series.

Heading the list of qualifiers were Stan Schrieder and Gord Pinder, with rounds of 78, seven over par from the blue championship tees.

Next in line came John Woodcroft and Art Bridge with 80's, followed by Dave Jones and Al McCallum, with 81's.

Bunched at 82 were defending champion Pete Jones, Bob Melbourne, Fred Hebden, Bill Philp, Mac White and Terry McCabe Jr. As defending club champion, Jones did not have to qualify, but found the course as difficult to master as those who did.

Fred Fisher, Doug Grant and Clarence Jones carded 83's while Val Smith, who battled P. Jones in the titular match last fall, was the final qualifier with an 84.

Consolation qualifiers and their scores were: Harold Mott 85; Alex Ingram 85; E. Skuce 86; Ernie Pugh 86; Ivan Hilborne 86; Claire Hoy 86; Brian McKenzie 87; Lloyd Gunderson 87; Terry McCabe Sr. 87; Bob Murphy 87; Hank Fitzgerald Sr. 88; Abe Tobe 88; Terry Bender 88; Don Skinner 88; Roy Jeffery 88 and Vic Kirby 89.

The lateness of the season's start, caused by the late arrival of spring, was also considered to be one of the reasons for the overall high scores.

O.F.S.S.A. Records Broken At Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Three Canadian school records were shattered Saturday, two by Toronto Victoria Park discus throwers, at the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations track and field championships.

Gary Kenney of Victoria Park broke the Canadian schoolboy senior mark with a heave of 167 ft. 11½ in., while his teammate, Dave Arnold, won the intermediate title with a throw of 164 ft. 1 in., a Canadian juvenile record.

Dave Scorvar of Perth C.I. was the other record - breaker in winning the open two - mile event and slicing nearly three seconds off the Canadian interscholastic standard.

The Toronto and District Interscholastic Athletic Association won the division title, collecting 111½ points. The Toronto Secondary Schools Athletic Association was a distant second with 58.

Bob Raftis of Toronto Earl Haig, who holds the Canadian interscholastic pole vault record and jumped 14 ft. 6 in. in recent meet, was an unlucky winner Saturday. Raftis won the event with a leap of 13 ft. 2 in., but landed awkwardly on his first attempt at 14 ft. 2 in. and broke his ankle.

Brookfield High School of Ottawa won the individual school title awarded for the first time. Faced by the victories of Juniors Graham Cox and Geoff Hamelin in the high jump and shot-put and George Clotchier's win in the intermediate long jump, the Ottawa school totalled 19 points. Tied for second place were Willowdale Secondary and Oakville - Trafalgar High School.

Mike Mercer of Oakville-Trafalgar, who won the senior shot put and placed second in the discus, suffered cramps in his attempt to win the javelin. One of his throws travelled more than 200 ft., a distance which would have won him the event and given his school the individual championship.

Leafs Hold Top Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs strengthened their hold on first place in the International Baseball League by virtue of a game they didn't play during the weekend.

A game against Buffalo Bisons Saturday, postponed because of cold, combined with Atlanta Crackers' loss to Toledo Mud Hens 3-1 the same day, moved the Leafs half a game ahead of the Crackers.

Sunday, the Leafs split their doubleheader with Buffalo, losing the first 11-2 and winning the second 7-4. Atlanta also split its pair against Memphis, winning the first 3-2 and dropping the second 10-0.

In other weekend action, Rochester Red Wings defeated Syracuse Chiefs 8-6 Saturday but lost 9-7 in Sunday's game.

Hill Wins Monaco Grand Prix

MONTE CARLO (AP)—Britain's Graham Hill in a BRM Sunday became the first three-time successful winner of the Monaco Grand Prix for Formula One cars, in a ferocious battle between Hill's BRMs and Italian Ferraris.

Italy's Lorenzo Bandini placed second in a Ferrari, and BRM driver Jackie Stewart of Scotland placed third.

Hill's time was two hours, 37 minutes, 39.4 seconds, for an average of 74.18 miles an hour. Bandini was timed in two hours, 38 minutes, 43.8 seconds and Stewart in two hours, 39 minutes, 21.5 seconds.

MAJOR LEAGUER DIES

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Mike McNally, 72, a former American League baseball player and scout, died Saturday in hospital here. His physician said he was suffering from a lung and heart ailment. McNally broke into the major leagues with Boston Red Sox in 1915 and then played with New York Yankees and Washington Senators until 1925. He later was a scout for Cleveland Indians.

St. Kitt's Crew Wins Eights

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A powerful St. Catharines Collegiate eight earned a trip to England in June to enter the Henley Royal Regatta when the crew captured the schoolboy sweepoar title Saturday.

The St Catharines crew knocked off Shawnigan Boys School of British Columbia and four other challengers in climax two days of rowing competition at the Canadian scholastic rowing championships.

The boys qualified for an amateur sports fund grant which will help finance their trip to England.

Shawnigan, an exclusive Vancouver Island boys prep school, is going anyway. With them will be Roger Jackson and George Hungerford, Canada's Olympic gold medal pair. The St. Catharines boat makes it three.

Both school crews will be entered in the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup — a schoolboy eight-oared event at the British rowing classic. Hungerford and Jackson will try the silver goblets for coxless pairs.

WIN TOP TROPHY

The win by St. Catharines in the eights Saturday also clinched the school its fourth consecutive Cosgrave Trophy, emblematic of the regatta points title.

In addition to the open eight, the St. Catharines oarsmen took the coxswain four and the 135-pound eight and four.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting—Rocky Colavito, Indians, drove in five runs with his 10th homer and three singles as Cleveland walloped Detroit Tigers 10-2.

Pitching—Camilo Pascual, Twins, remained unbeaten by winning his sixth game with a four-hitter in Minnesota's 5-0 victory over Washington Senators.

Crampton Wins Festival

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Bruce Crampton of Australia vaulted into the second PGA money-winning spot with a one-stroke victory at the $87,000 Speedway Festival Open Sunday.

Crampton shook off a three-over-par seven on the 425-yard 10th hole at Greenbree Country Club and then finished with a par 71 after an approach from 200 yards to within four feet of the 18th pin for a par five worth about $7,500.

Crampton finished with 279, five under and one stroke ahead of Jackie Cupit and Lionel Hebert to spear the $15,200 top prize.

The triumph boosted Crampton's earnings in 19 of 20 PGA starts this year to $43,095 in official money, just behind the pace - setting $47,862 by Jack Nicklaus, who skipped this tourney.

Lionel Hebert finished a threesome ahead of Crampton with a 70 for a 280 total.

Cupit, playing in the final threesome with Crampton, also put great pressure on the Aussie with a closing birdie four after reaching the 540 - yard fifth in two to post a 69.

Cupit and Hebert split the second and third money, collecting $6,625 each.

WILL GRANT MORE

TORONTO (CP) — East Pakistani Red Cross authorities will receive another $10,000 from the Canadian Red Cross Society to assist flood victims there, it was announced Friday. A similar grant was made two weeks ago.

AT THE PARK — FROM TODAY — Romantic, who co-stars with Wyatt Earl Haliday and William Sylvester in the Richard Gordon - Kenneth Rive production - picture film, "Devil Doll", released by Associated Film Distributors. Carry and Co-Star Hit at the Park Theatre opening today with the first showing of the double feature program, the added attraction "Wild Youth" stars Robert Hutton. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.40 p.m.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (CP)—Cordially, so poorly regarded that her owner paid a supplementary fee of $7,500 to get her into the race, stuck her nose in front 70 yards from home Saturday and kept it there for a narrow victory in the $97,200 Mother Goose Stakes for three-year-old fillies at Aqueduct.

Under the lash of Braulio Baeza's whip, the daughter of Ambiorix - Be - Gracious stepped to a sloppy 1¼ miles in 1:13 3-5 to earn $63,180 for Howell E. Jackson. George D. Widener's What A Treat was second in the field of 12, bowling Up Oars from Harry F. Guggenheim's Cain Hoy Stable on a length for runner-up honors.

Cordially paid $12.50, $6.60 and $4.40. What a Treat's returned $5.80 and $3.80 and Up Oars $4.30.

In Glen Hill, N.J., favored National splashed to his third straight victory, winning the $57,700 Cherry Hill Handicap at Garden State Park.

National nipped Chicot by a head to provide the feature. Black Mountain was third.

Nathaniel timed in 1:12, paid $4.20, $2.80 and $2.20.

Chicot returned $3 and $2.60, while Black Mountain was $2.40 to show.

TORONTO (CP)—E. Day, a big bay horse, won the $12,000 Inferno Stakes Handicap Saturday. The victory was only his second of the season.

Taking the lead a sixteenth of a mile from the start, E. Day and jockey Pat Remillard never looked back and ran the 1 1-16th mile distance in 1:45 1-5. Top Toggery and Brother Leo finished second and third, respectively.

Owner-trainer Pollock predicted $7,000 for the purse and E. Day's backers among the crowd of 16,055 collected $14.00, $5.40 and $4.00.

Defers Bid For Branch Status

VICTORIA (CP)—A bid from Northern Ontario for branch status in the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has been stalled for a year because of a proposed realignment of several branches.

The Northern Ontario Hockey Association now operates in the CAHA under jurisdiction of the Ontario Hockey Association but a motion before the CAHA annual convention here last week sought independence from the OHA.

The motion was tabled until next year when the association will vote on a fact-finding committee's recommendations calling for new alignment of Ontario and Quebec branches.

The committee has proposed that a new branch be formed by a merger of the Thunder Bay district and the Ontario portion of the Northern Ontario district.

The portion of the Northern Ontario district in Quebec would come under jurisdiction of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, and the Ontario and District League would be split into two divisions under the OHA and QAHA.

MARKS ANNIVERSARY

PENETANGUISHENE, Ont. (CP)—Rt. Rev. Jean-Marie Castex, who at 93 is one of the oldest Roman Catholic prelates in Canada, observed the 69th anniversary of his ordination Sunday by celebrating mass at the general hospital here and making an annual pilgrimage to the Canadian martyrs' shrine near Midland, Ont.

Riding Clutch Chief Cause Of Slipping

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Of all possible clutch troubles, the most common is slipping. This condition results when the pressure plate allows the clutch disc to slip instead of holding it tightly against the flywheel face. The usual results are: gas waste, loss of power, high engine heat and burned clutch facings.

How about the causes? There are several, including binding pedal or linkage, weak springs, oil or grease-soaked facings, neglect of pedal adjustment to compensate for loss of free play or change in clearance between pedal arm and floorboard.

In a great number of cases, however, 'riding' the clutch is at fault. This is the constant habit of resting the foot on the clutch pedal at all times, or automatically depressing it in anticipation of braking. More worn or burned facings are probably due to this practice than to any other negligence or clutch malfunction.

From E. P. "What causes water leakage at the water pump?"

A faulty pump gasket, a worn pump seal, a hole or crack in the pump body, a loose pump, a bent pump shaft, plus a dozen other possibilities, all good reasons why you need the help of a good mechanic.

N.B. asks: "What's the most likely cause when the electric dashboard clock stops running?"

A blown clock fuse usually the result of improper ignition at the clock — which, in turn, is usually due to a low battery or to terminal connections at the battery.

R. S. writes: "I turned on the ignition the other morning and the engine started but stalled. I let then engaged. I found the starter was jammed. The garage told me that a thrown gear engine timing caused it, but I don't understand this at all."

If timing is advanced too much, the spark can occur too soon when the engine is cranked. This causes engine kick-back or a reverse action which can jam or sometimes break the starter.

From A.O.: "Can the car heater be a direct or indirect cause of engine overheating during summer?"

Leaking connections or a leaking heater radiator can cause water loss, and thus impair efficient engine cooling."

Amateur Sets New Golf Mark

THORNHILL, Ont. (CP) — Stu Hamilton, 29 - year - old Brampton amateur, shot a three-under-par 67 Saturday to win the annual Eager Beaver golf tournament at the Uplands club.

In capturing the tournament in his first try, Hamilton set a tournament record with his 54-38 over the 35-35 course. The former mark was set by Herb Hanner of Kitchener in 1957 and tied by Doug Gardiner of Uplands in 1962.

The former Ontario junior champion had a three-shot lead on Dennis Johns of Uplands who carded a par 70.

At 71 was Ron Silver of Sudbury.

Epsom Derby

Taylor Horse Scratched

LONDON (CP)—Sir Gordon Richards, trainer of E. P. Taylor's Newtown, said Sunday he is scratching the chestnut colt from the £65,301 ($195,903) Epsom Derby Wednesday.

The announcement came less than 24 hours after Nentego, running his first start of the season after a bout of coughing, finished a poor seventh in the 1½-mile classic testing Ray Jerser Stakes at Newbury.

"If he had been up to it he would have finished in the first three," Sir Gordon said in a telephone interview from his home near Rockbourne, Hampshire.

The decision pared the field for the 1½-mile classic for three-year-olds to 23 horses, including Canadian jockey Ron Ferguson's mount, Meadow Court, rated fourth choice at 12 to 1.

This year's purse falls short of the record £72,067 ($216,201) it won last year by the Irish colt Santa Claus.

(Reuters reported erroneously Friday night that this year's derby purse would be £75,000 ($225,000) which would have been a record.)

"INSURE WITH BURR"

College of Arms Not Happy Over Canadian Flag

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — The Royal College of Arms is reported to be concerned over the lack of "elasticity" in the descriptive qualities of the Canadian flag.

An informant said the college, which regulates heraldic symbolism for Queen, does not want to get into a dispute with the Canadian government over the issue, but there is a feeling of disappointment within this royal household body over some aspects of Canadian handling of design procedure.

While college officers declined comment, the informant said the rigid terms in which the new flag has been formally described would make it more difficult to consider minor modifications in future years without legislation and a great deal of heraldic procedure.

The Royal College is headed by Sir Anthony Wagner as garter principal king of arms. It is understood that when the Canadian flag design was first prepared, he was consulted by Canadian authorities but that his advice on heraldry was not followed.

The conclusion reached among officials close to the college appears to be that political considerations had taken precedence over heraldic qualities in the Canadian flag design and its technical description which had to be considered and recorded at the Royal College.

REGULATE SYMBOLS

The college has heraldic symbols under the Queen's jurisdiction, the Royal College normally would be consulted when ever changes are to be made in the design of shields, banners and flags. In such cases, the college could provide advice on how the heraldic changes are to be properly effected.

This service of providing a technical description of the Canadian flag was available to the Canadian government but the informant said the Canadian authorities virtually ignored this service and provided the college with a description which apparently jarred the tradition of what the Royal College considers good heraldry.

The Canadian flag description was said to lack precision in some ways and was over-precise in others. There was insufficient elasticity in the description therefore, of possible modifications to take care of changing tastes in future years, the informant said.

Phils Buy Burdette, Duren Out

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies purchased veteran right-hander Lew Burdette from Chicago Cubs Sunday and placed Ryne Duren on the waiver list preparatory to giving him his unconditional release.

Burdette had appeared in seven games with the Cubs. He was 0-0 with a 5.40 earned-run average. Burdette had a 76-5 record last season with St. Louis Braves.

Duren, picked up from Cincinnati this spring, made six appearances and had no record. In 11 innings, he had a 3.27 ERA.

By taking Burdette, the Cubs reached the 25 - player limit. They went one above Saturday when they acquired first baseman trade with San Francisco, sending catcher Dick Bertell and outfielder Len Gabrielson to the Giants for pitcher Bob Hendley, outfielder Harvey Kuenn and catcher Ed Bailey.

National Soccer

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sudbury Italia played the first game in the Ontario National Soccer League games during the weekend, defeating Toronto Hellas 4 to 1 Sunday.

For the Sudbury team it was the second win in three starts. Scoring for Italia were Frank Rosati and Ferruccio with two goals each. Juliano Tagliaferge and Joe Perpetuo scored one each.

In Windsor, Ont., three Toronto clubs were in action. Toronto Teutonia gained its first point Saturday by holding Kitchener Kickers to a 3-3 deadlock.

Joe Eberl scored twice for Windsor while Karl Stern got the other. Flo Kitchener, Emil Schiole scored twice and Hans Schabinski once.

The Toronto teams, Olympia and Abruzzi, played to a scoreless tie Sunday.

U. S. Holiday Traffic Toll Six an Hour

CHICAGO (AP)—A rash of multiple-death traffic accidents in the United States during the three-day Memorial Day holiday weekend boosted the toll toward a record as traffic fatalities mounted at six an hour.

Lives were being snuffed out at the average rate of more than six an hour from the time after-midnight bulletins flowed Friday, president of the National Safety Council, said:

"It is conceivable that it could be the most tragic Memorial Day weekend on record unless motorists change their driving patterns."

Fatalities were running 40 per cent ahead of last year's pace.

The council had estimated traffic deaths for the 78-hour weekend, 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Monday between 430 to 510.

In 1964 the nationwide total was 361.

The record number of traffic deaths for a three-day Memorial Day weekend was 431 set last year.

50 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 50 persons died accidentally across Canada during the weekend, 32 of them on the highways.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times included 12 drownings, three fire deaths and three other accidental fatalities.

Ontario and Quebec reported 15 and 14 highway deaths respectively. Ontario had 12 road deaths and two drownings. Quebec had 11 traffic deaths, six on the drownings, one person killed in a fall and another by gunfire during a fishing trip.

British Columbia followed with seven deaths, five in traffic mishaps and two in fires. Alberta reported six persons killed, three on the road, two traffic deaths and a fire.

Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia each had one traffic fatality while one person was drowned in Manitoba. New Brunswick listed three accidental deaths—two in traffic and one when a little girl suffocated.

Prince Edward Island and Prince Edward Island went fatality-free, natural or industrial deaths and

The Trots

CAMPBELL'S VILLE, Ont. (CP) — Bonnie Direct set a track record in the eighth race with a time of 2:46 2-5 for 1-16 miles at Mohawk Race way Saturday.

The former mark of 2:47 was held by Canadian Lassie who finished ninth in the race.

Betsy Herbert posted a 1½-length decision over Lassie in the $4,470 Kitchener Stakes.

It was the second victory of the season for the Bill Herbert owned horse.

Betsy Herbert, Canada's three - year - old trotter of the year in 1962, finished 1½ lengths in front of Hardy Era from Sterling Brennan's Perth, Ont. stable. Nancy Brook B., owned by Mrs. Graham of Lindsay, finished third.

Betsy Herbert paid $7.50 for the win.

HEADS KINSMEN

CORNWALL (CP) — Douglas Ellin of Brockville was elected governor of District 6 of the Kinsmen Association Saturday. District 6 runs from Picton, 16 miles southeast of Belleville in the eastern Quebec border. Mr. Ellin is co-founder of the Brockville Kinsmen Club which began in 1962.

Heavy Frost Reported in Many Areas

PICTON (Staff) — Fairly heavy frost has been reported in some areas of Prince Edward County and in the canning fruit and vegetable growing farmers' districts. Not much concern. For the past two nights exceptionally low temperatures have caused growers to keep a watchful eye on the plants. Smudge pots and fires alongside fields, in which farmers have planted tomatoes, have been kept going. In the greenhouses of some growers an all night vigil is kept with fires going to protect the plants. Last year many thousands of dollars were lost through unexpected off-season frosts and this year it is hoped that the same will not happen.

Special Session County Council Is Called

PICTON (Staff) — A special meeting of Prince Edward County Council has been called for Monday night at 7:30 a.m.

Purpose of the meeting is not yet known but it was requested by the county-appointed public school consultative committee. The committee requested the special meeting of county council following a meeting with Athol Township officials, this week. The job of the committee is to make recommendations on planning of all new public schools in the county.

It is known that the consultative committee was at one time in favor of combining Athol Township with South Marysburg as a central school area. It is also known that Athol Township was strongly opposed to this idea and has gone to much trouble to establish a central school for Athol Township itself, including forwarding a petition to the minister of education signed by every resident in that part of the township.

'Open House' Proposed for Water Plant

PICTON (Staff) — The general public will have a chance to see the completed facilities of the town's filtration plant, at a proposed open house during the afternoons of June 9 and 16.

Although the new addition and equipment at the plant has been in use for some months there are still final adjustments to be made to the equipment this summer.

There is some concern by members of the Public Utilities Commission over the capacity of water problem this summer and they are hoping for the early arrival of some new equipment to aid them with this problem. The equipment is also lacking assembly for the plant's low lift pump which will effectively double the pump's capacity. The promised delivery date is July 15, however, this may be too late. Officials hope that the equipment may be delivered a month earlier. The town's water requirements have become uncomfortably close to the plant's maximum output on several occasions within the past year. Although the commission has discussed the problem many times, it has not actually decided to enlarge the reservoir, no final decision has yet been made. It is hoped that the new low-lift pump will solve the problem temporarily.

Eaton Claims U. S. Is on Collision Course

NORTHFIELD, Ohio (CP) — Cyrus S. Eaton hit out anew Saturday at the U.S. state department for what he termed its wishful thinking that Soviet Russia and China are so deeply at odds that they will not act together in an attempt to crush capitalism.

The catalyst would be Viet Nam where the United States is pouring in troops. The U.S.S.R. and China would submerge and differences that exist in a common defence of socialism.

He expressed his views on international affairs in a while walking around his Acadia farms here during the annual sale of the farm's prize shorthorns. The sale brought the highest prices in recent years.

STICKS TO PREDICTION

Eaton, a native of Pugwash, N.S., and sponsor of the Pugwash conferences on world problems, stuck by his Detroit prediction that "unless some miracle occurs in the next month" the world faces catastrophe. He was aware that some persons in Canada and the United States thought he was an alarmist but said he was seeking to enter a popularity contest.

Eaton, just returned from a three-week visit to Russia and other Iron Curtain countries in Europe, said he reminded him almost a week of his one-to-four-week time limit for disaster to happen had arrived.

He said: "Any weather forecaster is allowed a margin of error of four days. It will happen—perhaps not right now but soon."

Sending of U. S. Marines To Dominican Republic May Save West From Reds

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER and ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—If U.S. marines had not landed here, Communist police might now be patrolling the streets of this Dominican Republic capital and Communist rulers might be sitting in the National Palace. Or perhaps not.

But the United States did intervene in this battered capital a month ago today and there are still about 20,000 U.S. troops on hand.

They and more than 1,000 Latin American troops, forming an unprecedented inter-American force, hold a buffer zone between rival junta and rebel factions while diplomats and politicians seek a way to settle the interrupted revolution peacefully.

The U.S. this week began trimming its forces by withdrawing the first marines to land. Their places were taken by Latin American contingents from Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Brazil. A Brazilian contingent of about 1,200 men is still arriving.

President Lyndon Johnson ordered them sent to Santo Domingo April 28 when, he said, U.S. officials are still convinced that in the first days of revolutionary violence that broke over Santo Domingo April 24 there was substantially more than a 50-per-cent chance that Communist leaders would seize power.

POINT CONTROVERSIAL

But still the question of what would have happened if the United States had not sent troops is highly controversial.

No one has accused the rebel leader, Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, of being a Communist. President Johnson's charge in a speech May 2 was that "Communist conspirators" had got control of the rebellion. Historians will debate the issue for years.

That many more people would have been killed without U.S. intervention is, however, much less debatable. For following the Sunday on which the junta government of president Donald Reid Cabral was overthrown, many army officers and troops defected from government forces to join the uprising. Arsenals were opened and arms flowed to the civilians in the rebel-controlled streets.

For days after that, bullets whirred among the palm trees, machine-guns spread death at the intersections, and armed bands roamed the business and residential areas looking for enemies. Snipers abounded on the rooftops and behind windows.

This all really began years ago.

In 1916, with a major international upheaval threatening to spill into civil war, president Woodrow Wilson sent in marines to "pacify" the country.

HELPED TRUJILLO

The marines stayed until 1924 and, some Dominicans claim, continuing U.S. influences opened the doors of power to Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, whose dictatorship began in 1930 and ran until 1961, when, he was assassinated.

In 1963, Juan Bosch became the country's first freely elected president since 1924. He inherited an unbalanced political and economic situation.

Bosch tried to build — by methods many say were overhasty or politically inept — a democratic structure of government. He was overthrown when the traditional ruling classes and the military felt themselves threatened by a new constitution. The succeeding junta of president Donald Reid Cabral ran afoul of severe economic problems, got caught in the same military-civilian quarrels that had trapped Bosch, and fell also in late April.

UNAWARE OF PLOT

The curtain began to go up on the current scene early on the morning of April 24. Reid Cabral was not aware of the plot. His chief, Gen. Marcos Vicera Cuesta, then army chief of staff, to a military base in the city to dismiss four officers. Rivera was taken prisoner.

That afternoon claims were made on the rebel radio and the tenor of the oratory used, plus the identity of some of the civilians known as Maraist and Castro sympathizers, frightened as important segment of the insurgents, including the original military group, who tried to reverse their coup.

It was too late. The "constitutionalist" movement was rolling.

Reid Cabral himself went on the air to report that the majority of the armed forces had stalled with him. He gave the rebels until 5 a.m. Sunday to surrender.

But the troops that Reid Cabral said were loyal to him did not move when the deadline was passed. This failure is regarded as the army's contitled the real turning-point of the civil war.

Soon a ragtag civilian army led by regular officers took key defensive positions inside the city and at the Duarte Bridge, the only major vital highway link between the city and the San Isidro air and training base north where army and air force units were concentrated.

REBELS TAKE PALACE

The National Palace had fallen to the rebels, who installed Jose Rafael Molina Urena, president of the Bosch congress, as "provisional constitutional president."

Bosch was in position to know claim that members of the Marxist-Castroite hierarchy in the Dominican Republic were actually in political control at the National Palace at this time. True or not, the fact remains that Molina Urena and some other constitutionalists at the rebellion decided to give up the fight a few days later.

McGregor Bundy flew in May 16. In that same week, Jose Antonio Mayobre of Venezuela, a special representative of the United Nations, made his appearance.

By this time two rival "governments" had been created in Santo Domingo. The leaded by Caamano claimed to be the constitutional heir of the Bosch government. The other was a five-man civilian-military junta headed by Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, one of the men who killed Trujillo.

The Imbert junta was considered to be a product of U.S. efforts to begin to normalize the situation. The U.S. had encouraged Imbert to take the job. Imbert rallied military forces and coincident with Bundy's arrival began a successful five-day battle to wipe out rebel resistance north of the U.S.-held corridor. There were reports, strongly denied by U.S. spokesmen, that American forces were helping the junta troops.

WORK FOR CEASEFIRE

The United States decided not to interfere with the fighting in the north but worked with the OAS and the United Nations to get an effective ceasefire. Bundy established contacts with both the junta and rebel leaders as did the OAS and UN officials. Under pressure of reports that it was militarily favoring the junta, the United States a few days later announced President Johnson had reaffirmed "strict neutrality." American forces were operating under a policy of not firing unless fired upon.

Both the junta and the rebels accepted a 24-hour ceasefire arranged by the Red Cross and the United Nations from noon to noon May 21-22. The junta claimed it had wiped out all rebel resistance in the northern sector.

Bundy was here 10 days, negotiating under a cover of secrecy. But it became known he tried to get both Imbert and Caamano to agree to resign so a completely new government could be formed.

He at first refused. Caamano said he was willing to step aside in favor of a government which would embrace the rebel "constitutionalist" principles. Bundy pointed out that Caamano a possible cabinet to be headed by Antonio Guzman, who had been a member of the Bosch regime. But Imbert would have no part of this. He said the rebels should surrender.

DEADLOCK PERSISTS

Bundy left Wednesday to report to President Johnson. He felt he had made some progress toward a solution, but he had not broken the political deadlock. He turned over the negotiations to OAS Secretary-General Mora. The U.S. force became part of the inter-American force under the OAS.

After Bundy's arrival in Washington, administration sources made plain they still wanted both Imbert and Caamano to step down and that the OAS should carry the ball in mediation efforts. The inter-American force, they said, will be needed in the Dominican Republic for a considerable time.

There was some resentment that the force would be cut to a total of 4,000 U.S. troops plus 2,000 men from Latin American countries.

State Secretary Dean Rusk said that the communist threat in the Dominican Republic had been "very substantially reduced."

Militarily the situation is a stalemate between the junta and rebel forces. The rebels hold the downtown commercial section of Santo Domingo in a tight grip. They are separated from junta troops by the American corridor, the international zone and the Ozama River. The rebellion has not spread to the countryside.

By the end of the rebellion's fifth week, no one can tell what the final solution will be. Because of the buffer zone there is general hope here and in Washington that fighting will not break out again.

Imbert, whose influence has spread in some degree to the countryside, is waging a campaign by radio and by rallies to win support and get U.S. recognition.

The rebels, through frequent press conferences and appeals for support abroad, denounce U.S. intervention and call for a "settlement by Dominicans of the Dominican problem."

Rebel leaders say they deserved U.S. recognition.

Storms Are Exciting

By BARRY McCULLAGH

It was dusk and the air was dead still. To the west the clouds were gathering. Canadians know the facets of climate well. Some times, the stillness is broken by a gathering wind that tears at the trees and sets whirling the dust on country roads and moans at the eaves of homes.

It was time to get off Hwy. 401 and I was sort of looking forward to the wrath just around the next corner. There is a rare excitement to being caught in a storm, but knowing one is comparatively safe inside the car. In the open, on a golf course for example, it is different. A golf course is no place to be in an electric storm, especially with all that steel in the golf bag. It is dangerous — and frightening; still, I have always made it safely to the clubhouse.

A few dribbles of rain creased my windshield, but nothing much. I cursed this meagre offering, for I wanted some real action to clean the dust off the front of my car. Well I got it! At Kingston an ocean of water flooding the street. My car did best wash for some time — so much rain in fact that the wipers were unable to cope with it all. Lightning fractured the horizon and thunder echoed with frequency.

A Mini-Minor pulled into the side just ahead and I considered doing the same, but thought better of it when I lost sight of the shoulder. "Discretion is the better part," I recalled, and this was no exception. I followed the lights of the vehicle along ahead and gradually the rain eased.

CAUGHT IN BLIZZARD

My thoughts went back to an other day on another highway. It was New Year's Day, 1963, and I was crossing the Thousand Islands Bridge on a crisp clear morning. The radio announcer was saying that you in New York were in the grips of a severe blizzard and folks should stay home unless they had a very good reason for travelling. I was all too familiar with New York winters, but I had planned to visit friends in Rochester and decided to keep going.

From Highway 190, across the bridge, I ran into the teeth of the blizzard. There ensued the kind of sixth sense driving that I had experienced on 401 last Sunday, only infinitely more hazardous. This storm was not going to blow over in 20 minutes. One thing about driving in such conditions, it sharpens the senses and ability to concentrate.

Ahead, there was nothing but a blanket of white and virtually no indication of the bounds of the roadway. I caught up with a line of cars, moving slowly behind. Knowing the road well, I became impatient with the funereal pace and taking a chance I passed the vehicles without incident. A restaurant at the junction of the Clayton-Watertown highway where I had hoped to stop, was closed. On then to Watertown, and by this time the sky was beginning to clear. Soon the sun was shining and plows were out clearing the snow from the streets.

CASUALTIES ALONG ROUTE

It was good to be able to stop and relax over lunch and prepare for the next stage of the journey. Highway #3 both was open and I resumed the trip. Abandoned cars and trucks littered the highway and fresh snow began to fall.

My thoughts turned to pictures I had seen of some of the spectacular blizzards of the mid-west, with vehicles abandoned all over the place, and stories of people finding refuge in farm houses — if they were lucky.

But my car held the road and the miles rolled by. I saw a sign indicating I was near Gouverneur. Ogo County; the fact I was able to see the sign at all was a good one.

Suddenly the road was dry and skies were clear again. The long ordeal — and it was something of an ordeal — was over. I had phoned Rochester to say I would be late. When I arrived, the city was bright in the winter sun; the storm had missed it.
